THREE SPLENDID ADDRESSES DELIVERED AT CONVENTION

J. F. Singleton Compares Costs of Handling Cheese.

IN TWO COUNTRIES.

W. W. Moore Tells of Trip To England—F. C. Hart Speaks on Laws.

The attendance was not as large at this morning's session of the United Dairymen Co-operative, but the addresses were exceptionally good and were delivered by men who knew thoroughly the subject of which they were talking. The questions asked F. C. Hart about co-operative companies and the law respecting these companies emitted considerable discussion.

J. F. Singleton, chief of the division of dairy products and cold storage, of the dairy and cold storage branch, Ottawa, was the first speaker. He said in part:

The manufacture and export of dairy produce is simply a means to an end, the end being to show a profit to the milk producer. The profit which may be obtained from the export of dairy produce depends upon the selling price and the costs of production and marketing. It is, therefore, advisable for us to take into consideration the cost of manufacturing and marketing our cheese and to ascertain how these costs compare with those of some of our principal competitors. It necessarily follows that, other conditions being equal, the country with the lowest manufacturing and marketing costs has an advantage over all competitors.

During the latter part of last season, information was collected as to costs of handling cheese between the factory of origin in Canada and the warehouse of the importer in the United Kingdom. Wholesale quotations in the United Kingdom for cheese were also tabulated and information collected as to the net returns to the Canadian producer and what proportion of the London selling value the Canadian producer received. Similar information as to net returns to New Zealand producers was also obtained as a basis of comparison with Canadian conditions.

The greater part of the milk used for the manufacture of cheese in Canada is delivered to the factories by the producers individually and the cost of milk delivery from the farm to the factory is not being taken into consideration.

The first charge against the product is, therefore, the cost of manufacturing the milk into cheese and is assumed that 2 1-4 cents is an average price for manufacturing cheese, and for purposes of these calculations 2 1-4 cents is taken to represent the average cost of manufacture. This figure of 2 1-4 cents covers all items in connection with manufacture, including labor, supplies, factory upkeep, overhead and profits on manufacturing if any.

The next cost to be considered is the cartage of the cheese from the factory to the shipping point. The almost universal practice in Canada is for the different patrons to take turns in hauling the cheese to the station. There is, therefore, no cash outlay for this work and this item is not to be taken into consideration. The farmer's time, of course, in hauling the cheese to the station is no doubt worth something but, since there is no cash outlay for cheese hauling, the work done must be considered as being paid for in the final net return received by the producer, the same as is the work done in hauling the milk to the factory or the work done in caring for or milking the cows.

The next item of cost is freight from shipping point to port of export, which is usually Montreal. Some cheese is exported on through bills of lading, particularly from Belleville and shipping points in Ontario west of Toronto. The percentage of our total exports which is so exported is so small that it is not being taken into consideration in these calculations which are based on exportations through Montreal exporters.

Marine freight on cheese from Montreal to the principal ports in the United Kingdom is 60 cents per 100 lbs. gross weight for ordinary stowage, the weight of the boxes being calculated as 7 1-2 lbs. each, the same as by the railways. Marine freight charges amount to .653 cents per lb.

To recapitalize the foregoing and other expenses, we have the following costs:—

Manufacturing cheese 2.25 cents per lb.

Cost of exporter doing business .397 cents per lb.

Dock charges and port dues .020 cents per lb.

Marine freight .653 cents per lb.

Marine insurance .030 cents per lb.

Landing charges in the United Kingdom .142 cents per lb.

Total, 4.068 cents per lb.

That is the cost of manufacturing and exporting the cheese and placing it in the London importer's warehouse exclusive of profit to the Canadian exporter amounts to 4.068 cents per lb. Deducting from this the 2 1-4 cents charge for manufacturing the cheese, we have 1.818 cents per lb. as the cost of exporting the cheese exclusive of any profit to the exporter. This is based on a freight rate of 30 1-2 cents per 100 lbs. from country shipping point to Montreal, and anyone may alter the above costs to suit a higher or a lower Canadian railway rate.

London Cheese Quotations.

The great proportion of Canadian cheese is manufactured during the six months May to October. Trade papers in the United Kingdom publish weekly quotations of cheese being offered from different countries. In the spring of 1925, new Canadian cheese was apparently first quoted for the week ending May 23rd. Our exportable surplus is pretty much all on the London market by the first of December. The average quotations of the 29 weeks between the week ending May 23rd and the week ending Decembr 5th, 1925, was 104.96 to 108.75 shillings per long hundred weight of 112 lbs. The average of these two quotations is 106.85 shillings which converted at par rate of exchange is equivalent to 23.211 cents per lb.

The average yield of cheese per lb. fat in Canada is approximately 2.55 lbs., which at an average price of 23.21 cents per lb. is worth 59.19 cents.

When these calculations were first made it was possible to get annual statements of many factories. Statements of four factories in Lanark County were secured at that time with an average net price per lb. of fat to the patrons for the season of 49.32 cents and the calculation was based on this net price. Further information has shown that this price is not too high. The producer, therefore, received 49.32 cents from cheese of a selling value of 59.19 cents, that is the producer received 83.32 p.c. of the London selling value.

If the producer gets 83.32 p.c. of the London quotations and the London quotation without taking exchange into consideration is equivalent to 23.211 cents per lb., the net price per lb. of cheese to the producer would be 83.32 p.c. of 23.211 cents which is 19.33 cents. The difference between this calculated net price to the producer of 19.33 cents and the average London quotation of 23.21 cents is 3.88 cents, but we have already shown that the actual cost of manufacturing and placing the cheese in the Tooley Street warehouse was 4.068 cents without any profit for the Canadian exporter or for the United Kingdom importer. The difference between 4.068 cents and 3.88 cents is .188 cents. That is the cheese were apparently handled at a loss to the exporter of .188 cents per lb. It is a fact that 1925 was not a profitable year for cheese exporters but the loss may not have been as great as indicated above from the fact that the London quotation upon which the calculation is based is the average of the maximum and minimum quotations and our cheese on the whole probably realized more money in the United Kingdom than would be indicated by the average of these two quotations.

The Canadian producer received 83.32 cents from every dollar's worth of Canadian cheese at the London quotation whereas the New Zealand producer received only 68.73 cents of each dollar's worth of New Zealand cheese at the London quotation. It should be very encouraging to the Canadian farmer to know that, notwithstanding the fact that these 42 New Zealand factories had an average make of about seven times the volume of the average Canadian factory, the Canadian farmer received $14.59 more out of each $100.00 selling value of his cheese than the New Zealand farmer received from each $100.00 selling value of his cheese.

It may also be noted that during both 1924 and 1925 seasons the average London quotation for Canadian cheese exceeded the average London quotation for New Zealand cheese by an amount equivalent to more than one-half cent per pound of cheese.

Conclusion

The costs of manufacturing and marketing Canadian cheese are 14.59 per cent. of the selling value less than are the costs of manufacturing and marketing New Zealand cheese. Canadian producers would probably find it a good investment to pay more for manufacturing cheese provided the extra payment was retained in the business in the form of improved factories, improved equipment, better salaries and living conditions for makers.

The Canadian cheese producer has at Montreal the greatest competitive primary cheese market in the world and competition frequently forces prices on country boards and Montreal auctions to points considerably above what is warranted by London values at the time.

From the foregoing it is apparent that there is sufficient competition to protect the producer in selling and while some years are profitable to exporters other years are not and, for a term of years, the profits secured by the exporter are not excessive. The more one studies the export business the more one is forced to the above conclusion. The export of Canadian cheese is in strong hands, the exporters, having their money invested in the product, of necessity endeavour to secure the highest selling value and prices are very frequently made in Montreal rather than in London.

We have nothing to gain by discarding our present system of handling the export cheese trade in favour of a consignment system.

The average London quotation for Canadian cheese has during the past two seasons exceeded that of New Zealand cheese by an amount equivalent to more than one-half cent per pound of cheese. This improvement in our standing is no doubt due largely to improvement in quality as a result of the grading service.

W. W. Moore.

W. W. Moore, the general manager of the company, spoke about his trip to England this winter, where he looked into the question of cheese marketing there in competition with New Zealand.

Last year eighty-nine per cent. of the cheese produced in Canada was exported and eighty-three per cent. of this went to the United Kingdom. Of the total amount of cheese imported into the United Kingdom, Canada sends 44.4 per cent. and New Zealand 44.7 per cent. Great Britain uses about 310,000 boxes of cheese per month, or 2,170,000 boxes during the seven months the factories are running in Canada. The bulk of New Zealand cheese does not come at this time, but it can be expected that 840,000 boxes will be shipped there in that seven-month period, so Canada will have quite a large export trade for those months. England and Scotland make themselves 1,190,000 boxes of cheese per years. From these figures people can easily see that the English are a cheese consuming nation, and each individual eats about twelve pounds of cheese annually, while Canadians eat about three and a half pounds.

"The reputation of our cheese," he said, "never stood higher on the English market, but our cheese has by no means reached perfection yet. You cannot be very long in England without hearing about Australia and New Zealand's policies. They have their problems and they are trying to work them out from their own point of view. They have established a market control board each, in England, and this board controls the export, in the case of Australian butter, by the issuing of licenses. They discourage f.o.b. buying as they think the exporter ought to take the risk." Mr. Moore concluded by saying that he was very doubtful if price control will ever be a feasible thing in the marketing of dairying products, for they are products that cannot be held for a considerable length of time without losing in shrinkage or by other ways.

F. C. Hart.

F. C. Hart, of the Department of Agriculture in Toronto, was the next speaker, and he dealt upon co-operation and the laws governing co-operative companies.

In Ontario to-day, stated Mr. Hart, there are three kinds of cheese factories operating. In some cases the patrons own the factory and sell the cheese themselves. In some cases a few patrons own the factory as shareholders, and the majority of the patrons have no say in the selling of the cheese, while in other cases the factory is owned by one individual, and he buys the milk from the farmers and sells the cheese himself.

The method of organization is not the vital thing in a co-operative company, so as it will be able to do co-operative marketing, but the real thing is to have a quality product to sell. A manufacturer cannot afford to put a low grade article on the market, and the same principle goes through all co-operative marketing of farm products.

Every local or group which sells poducts should be incorporated, said the speaker, as in case of failure it has something to fall back upon. In a co-operative company the profits belong to the patrons who made these profits or supplied the raw product. In a non-co-operative company the profits go to the shareholders. So this co-operative marketing has to do with internal management and the Department believes that it is a system which gives back to the producer that which he puts into it.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

L. E. H. H.: You are naturally inclined to a life of pleasure and good cheer, with a good deal of fun in it, and a liking for singing and dancing. You will obtain what you want in life in the easiest way by the exercise of tact and diplomacy, rather than of force. Cleverness in getting along with others should be your forte. You are sincere and earnest and have a very active brain. You have quite a strong individuality, which you impress upon those with whom you come in contact. You are interested in literature and art, and should make a very good teacher. You are stubborn at times and independent, working better for yourself than with others. You like luxurious surroundings and spacious homes. You should always be careful of your head, as you have a tendency toward brain fever. You were born on Thursday. The day you ask about is past. Your color is black.

S. M. L.: You were born with a good deal of attractiveness in your makeup, both material and spiritual, but you are fickle and vacillating, without much depth of character. However, you can utilize this charm in getting along in life in the way best suited to you, which is by the exercise of tact and cleverness, rather than by force. You are friendly and agreeable when so inclined, but have the knack of freezing up hard when you wish to do so. You are kindly disposed when your sympathies are aroused, but feel that your own interests require most of your attention. You are somewhat impulsive and headstrong and have a strong will, with considerable power over the minds of others but very little control of your own somewhat wayward impulses. You are naturally practical but have an undercurrent of sentiment in your nature that you are rather ashamed of. You often have fits of the blues, when you should be left alone to combat them in your own way. Always follow out your own intuitions. Think often of your friends and seldom of your enemies. Marry a man born in February, May, August or March. You were born on Tuesday. Friday is your good day, August and December your lucky months. Your colors are all shades of pink.

C. L. Mc.: You have a good deal of self-satisfaction and poise, but you do not care for anything original, preferring to go along in old-established ways. You must guard against too much reserve and against a tendency to study occult and spiritualistic matters. You will be happiest when married, for you should always associate yourself carefully with others at all times, never striving to staud alone. You are sensible and thoughtful and like to acquire knowledge, having a habit at times of asking too many questions when interested in a subject. Do not give way to fits of melancholy weeping. Tears will not get you anything and you will be surprised to see what reserves of strength you will acquire by conquering this habit. Do not worry so much about things that may never happen and do not find fault with others. Do not drink much tea or coffee. You have sensitive feet and will always have difficulty in obtaining comfortable footwear. Dress in pale, delicate shades and give more attention to the details of your toilet. Cultivate the society of men. You would make a good wife. Marry a man born in July, Septembe or October. May and June are your good months, Saturday your good day. You were born on Wednesday. Your colors are shades of steel and brick. The day you ask about, a Thursday, is one for safely undertaking new enterprises.

L. E. L. S.—Your life has much of conflict in it, owing to disturbing elements in your own nature. You were born with a liking for pleasure and good cheer, for singing and dancing and painting but circumstances have cast your lot in a somewhat constricted sphere, where you have become rather reserved and retired, with a certain amount of shyness and morbidity indicated. You are usually quite frank in your speech, but are somewhat cautious and suspicious and you detest secrecy or anything that savors of deception. Although well meaning, your quick temper and impulsive speech sometimes gets you into difficulties with friends. You are very observant of signs, symbols and dreams. You will make few mistakes if you follow out your own intuitions, but should never rely on the advice of others. You are liable to extremes in most things that you do. An uncongenial union will cause you much trouble. You were born on Friday. Your color is black. You ask about 14th of June, 1916. Do you mean 1926? The 14th of June, 1916, which was a Wednesday, was a day for avoiding arguments and new undertakings, especially marriage. The 14th of June 1926 which will be a Monday, is a day for collecting knowledge on. Do not engage in any important business enterprise on this day.

Moviegraphs

HOLLYWOOD, April 13.—Madeline Brandeis has returned to the unknown whence she came after a brief but heroic attempt to produce films that did not bear the Hollywood taint—sex.

In her pictures, which were cheap but interesting, there was none of the flaunting of sex for commercial gain. It would seem that without this no picture shall survive.

If she had the money to stick it out, she might have become a big factor in Hollywood one day.

The latest thing in fastidious undertakings is housed in a doll-like shop on the boulevard—it is a powder-blending concern. Here facial tints are mixed to harmonize with Milady's natural tones. Here Pola buys her powdered live pastes and Betty Bronson acquires her snow-drop color.

One star in Hollywood obeys that inner command—to let the public see but not hear—Ramon Novarro. He has never made a public appearance and doesn't intend to.

"To see me on the screen should be penalty enough for them," he says. "Why prance out on the stage. This not only would kill my audience but myself."

Gloria is certainly the versatile person. Most stars, when they sit upon the shaky pinnacle of fame, demand roles "in accord with position and temperament." Not so for Swanson. One day she is queen of a waffle parlor, another a tomboy with very bad manners, another an incorrigible miss who refuses the taming touch of civilization.

Rudolph Valentino recently, through his business manager refused to play "The Gutter Gentleman"—a story especially written for him by Jack Boyle—because, it was said, the title role did not sprinkle the sheik with sufficient dignity.

From the time the standing tree is turned by the sawmill into planks and applied in construction, from 60 to 65 per cent of its wood has been wasted.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Stewed rhubarb, broiled bacon, creamed potatoes, rye muffins, milk, coffee.

Dinner—Filets of sole with spinach and creole sauce, new potatoes, stuffed prune salad, pineapple souffle.

Keep in mind that children and invalids should not be served new potatoes. A new potato might be compared to unripe fruit the starch grains are immature and difficult to digest.

Filets of Sole.

Six filets from 2 flounders, 2 pounds spinach, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup broken mushrooms, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon onion juice, 1 green pepper.

Put fish into sauce pan and pour over boiling water to cover. Add 1 tablespoon vinegar and simmer for ten minutes. Drain. Wash spinach through many waters and cook in the water that clings to the leaves. Let water cook away as much as possible after spinach is tender. Chop and arrange in the bottom of a well-buttered baking dish. Place poached filets over spinach and pour over the sauce. Sprinkle with grated cheese and put into a moderate oven to make thoroughly hot and melt cheese.

To make sauce rub tomatoes through coarse sieve. Add salt and a dash of pepper. Melt butter and saute mushrooms. Add mushrooms to tomatoes. Stir flour into butter in which mushrooms were cooked. When smooth stir into tomatoes and cook, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Add onion juice and pepper finely chopped. Remove seeds and membrane before mincing pepper. Pour over fish.

This sauce is delicious with any sort of fish.

TUGBOAT CREWS OUT ON STRIKE

WANT MORE MONEY.

NEW YORK, April 16 (Canadian Press).—Sailings of mail and passenger steamers today for Europe, South America, the West Indies and the Bahamas were facing delay as a result of the strike of 3,000 tug boat men, comprising the crews of about half the 800 tow boats in New York harbor. The men were ordered out until their demands for a ten-hour day and higher wages are granted.

The strike will affect almost all the tugs used ordinarily in docking freight and passenger boats, and may have an important effect on inland freight shipments.

COUNCIL OF WOMEN DISCUSSES MEETING

Business of National Council Sessions is Considered.

The regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women was held in the Green Room of the Young Women's Christian Association, yesterday afternoon. The president, Mrs. A. Stevenson, was in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. Joseph Wearing, and the correspondence by Mrs. A. Mowat. The sum of $20 was voted towards the expenses of the council's delegate, Mrs. A. Stevenson, at the recent meeting held in Ottawa.

Mrs. Mowat read a letter from the corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. M. Parsons of Toronto, asking if the Council were satisfied with the charge of "neglect" preferred against the father of little John Dwyer of Dummer, and recommending that some assistance be procured from the Provincial authorities in removing families from a section in which it appeared almost impossible to make a living.

Mrs. Mowat read the list of names for the National Council and these were confirmed by the meeting, the name of Mrs. W. R. Morris being again supported as National Convenor of the Committee of Soldiers' Pensions and dependents.

Mrs. Stevenson gave an abstract of the minutes of the Ottawa meeting, reporting many matters of interest discussed there, including a protest from a representative of the Humane Society as to the present method of slaughtering hogs in packing houses; a motion, which carried, to re-open the consideration of the sale of oleomargarine in Canada; and a discussion with regard to a strict examination, to ascertain Bolshevistic tendencies of immigrants to the country. With regard to a recent resolution, advanced by the Woodstock Local Council, and supported quite generally by other Councils, that the authorities be petitioned to have hangings of convicted criminals carried out in Provincial penitentiaries, Mrs. Stevenson reported a somewhat amusing occurrence in the indignant protests received from several penitentiaries, all making vigorous demands that this resolution be not presented as they were unanimous in declaring against having such executions in their institutions.

It was decided to have the next May meeting the final meeting for this season, instead of in June, as formerly. Rev. J. E. Todd will give an address on the League of Nations at the May meeting.

With regard to a projected discussion of Miss Agnes McPhail's bill for prison reform, in which she asks that prisoners be allowed to do work which will make them self-supporting, a portion of the proceeds of their labor to be devoted to the maintenance of their families, several interesting excerpts from the press were read by Miss A. Lancaster, giving an excellent idea of the scope of the intended legislation, which will come up again for discussion at the next meeting.

There was some discussion also as to the nature of a picture shown at one of the local movie houses during the week. Two of the members who had been deputed to view this production were of the opinion that it was undesirable from every point of view, while a third reported being able to discover little of the salacious element complained of.

Another member who saw the picture also thought it very interesting, and not at all objectionable.

Dynamite Placed To Kill Members Of Royal Family

BERLIN, April 16 (United Press).—Another thwarted plot to assassinate the members of the Roumanian royal family was reported today. Dispatches from Constanipa, a Roumanian Black Sea port, related that cases of dynamite were found under a pier there shortly before the arrival of the royal train bearing Queen Marie, Crown Princess Helene, and Prince Nicholas. It is said that the plotters are known.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

RUBBER WRAPS.

By HEDDA HOYT
(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, April 16 (United Press)—it's a great satisfaction to be prepared for all sorts of weather—particularly rain! These spring months when one finds pastel shades the leading ones, rain is a perpetual bugbear. One spot of rain and a hat or coat must be rushed off to the cleaners.

Ordinarily raincoats have no glamour for us. This season, however, raincoats are so gorgeously colored that everyone hopes to possess one. There are rubberized silks with flowered prints, plaids, marbled designs with sateen finish and plain colored coats which weigh but 10 ounces.

There are cape-coats as well as the familiar straight-lined rubberized models. Often the cape is removable. Beautiful rose, raspberry and green shades are made with lighter tones on the inner side so that they may be reversed. Rubberized print is sponsored for beach wear. Oiled silks painted in batik designs and lined in rayon or left unlined are exquisite for resorts. Flowered cretonnes with solid color on the reverse side are lovely since they may be worn for city as well as country.

Matching hats of rubber accompany many models. One may also buy the rubber hat separately. And smart, indeed, are the pastel colored hats of oilcloth made in mannish style.

Umbrellas have so many new ideas these days that one can't keep up with them. Their handles become powder cases, conceal lipsticks, hold handkerchiefs, cigarettes and change, etc. Of course, the short handles umbrella is the only one carried lately since it can be carried suspended from the arm without dragging on the floor. Light weight umbrellas are much in demand. One no longer asks for solid wood handles, heavy ribs and heavy silks. The demand is for good-wearing light-weight silk, light ribs and light-weight handles. Handles are short and stubby and the entire umbrella has a dwarfed appearance.

When you're in love, all Nature seems to sing the sweettes of songs—the birds, the flowers, the trees—even the sea sounds Loves poem to one whose ears are attuned to catch the tiniest whisper.

And when she picks the conch shell from the beach in the sunny tropic land and tries to hear Father Neptune's song—all she hears is the beloved voice of him whom she has left behind singing the oldest of all songs—Love's song! Ever old, yet ever new. And in the midst of the joys and pleasures of her tropic trip, Dan Cupid takes care to see that these two shall still walk hand in hand along Love's path—so he whispers to the shells and the breezes and they tell her always of the love that is waiting for her. Such is the power of Love!

HER OWN WAY

by A GIRL of TODAY

AN OFFER OF HOPE

"Honestly," said Mamie to me, "you may be shocked at me, but at this moment I think that had I stayed in Montreal, I would be more self-respecting, as Buddy Tremaine's sweetheart, than I am now as Mamie Riley, the check-girl at the Beaux Arts."

"Hush, Mamie, hush," said to her. "You are not yourself tonight. You have always been so self-reliant. Why, do you know what would have happened if I had not had you that first night at the restaurant? Just as sure as you are alive, you saved me that night from prison cell.

"Don't despair. You must know that for anyone who wants to sing as you do, a way will be made for her to sing.

"You say Buddy Tremaine looks unhappy. I wonder if it would be any consolation for you to know that he is lonely for you? You are the one woman who brought him back to the knowledge that there are good women in the world. You are the one woman who gave him back what he lost when he found his wife was not what he thought her. The only girl who showed stamina enough to leave a life of ease for a principle. Why, even his own wife shows that she would give up love for luxury. I don't think she's any better than the rest of the gold-diggers, do you?"

"Perhaps not," said Mamie disconsolately, "but she's got him, Julie, she's got him. I don't see that she's getting punished for what she did."

"Oh yes she is, dear. She's not happy. She's not any happier than you are."

"Well, she didn't show it last night, looking out from under her diamond tiara. I will say this, she didn't smile very often but thought it was because she was comparing."

"Well, let's not talk about it any more, dear. You're much better than either of them and you're going to get your reward on this earth, too. I'm going out to look for a place tomorrow and if I can get one, you'll see that we'll start some voice lessons very soon. Besides, I've got a hunch that I'm going to get my two hundred and fifty dollars back and if I get it, we'll have an interview with the best vocal teacher in town."

"You dear girl," said Mamie, "I don't believe you'll ever get your money back, but if you do you must not spend it on me."

"But, I want to do something for you, Maggie."

"Well, if you want to very much, you will let me come into your room and sleep tonight. I am so unhappy, and I do not think I can sleep."

TOMORROW: Girl to Girl.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

"CROOKED TEETH"

Nature is no bungler; but plans wisely. So it is that she has intended teeth should occlude, or come together, in certain definite relationships, with cusps interlocking as "the cogs of two wheels which work in harmony."

But quite frequently her aim is thwarted, and there is an abnormal relationship known as mal-occlusion.

Many and varied causes as have been cited contribute to this condition as: meddlesome extractions; decayed shedding; tardy eruptions; improper masticating habits; faulty diet; deforming habits of the young child; and general diseases affecting tooth development.

But there is a type of mal-occlusion, without the so-called "crooked teeth." The teeth may in fact be exceptionally well formed and placed normally in the arch, so that in this type the arch 'per se' is at fault, either exhibiting a deformity, or being in improper relationship to its fellow.

Mal-occlusion may be very noticeable, evincing a protruding of retruding lower jaw, or other facial deformity; but again, the facial contour may not be altered from normal to any appreciable extent.

Apart from this relationship to facial expression, however, mal-occlusion may lead to serious disturbance of the teeth themselves.

It may be that due to this condition that one or several teeth are receiving excessive stress, resulting in a diseased condition of the tissues enveloping the tooth, or teeth, and menacing the life of the teeth involved.

Moreover, teeth that are not functioning properly through disuse, may be weakened structurally, leaving them more prone to decay; and in any event, they are not receiving the benefits of normal tooth exercise or of the mechanical cleansing, through excursive masticatory movements, which, after all, is the best defense against the forces of tooth decay.

Eton Collar and Bosom Front Make Simplicity Chic

COTTON prints are being used for tub frocks and make really sweet dresses. The English-print patterns with pinkish-red rosebuds on a white or black ground, lemon-yellow flowers on flesh pink and tiny flowers of reddish-brown terra cotta closely spaced on sulfur yellow are very smart. The frock illustrated was made of a cream-colored print with the flowers of rose, lavender and old blue and the gilet front and cuffs of plain flesh color. The skirt is straight, so that the dress is easy to launder, and the short sleeve is very practical for warm weather.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, APRIL 17.

Conflicting testimonies are discovered among this day's stellar activities. While those in the employment of others are under excellent rule for recognition or advancement and others are in line for public preferment or honors, yet business may meet with certain hazards or suffer through fraud or trickery. It is enjoined that strife and rash or impulsive conduct be avoided.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of conflicting circumstances, and they should be beware of fraud or trickery. Those in employment may look for advancement and others for honors, or public recognition. A child born on this day may require rigorous training in early youth in the matter of veracity. The text "honesty is the best policy" should likewise be instilled. He will make his best success in the employment of others.

The Woman's Day

Written by a Woman for Women.

Touching brightly on woman's every major interest in life from books and babies to politics and psycho analysis.

(By Allene Sumner)

Want to know why you put up the window to the bracing airs of ye night-tide before slumber fast o'er takes you? Fellow yclept Doctor Tronchin of the middle 18th century is the reason. Visiting at the French court, he suddenly hoisted the windows of the stuffy Versailles palace and cried, "let poor, stifling, moribund royalty enjoy at least the free air of heaven!"

THINK IT OVER!

A woman portrait painter is the provocative heroine of a short story read last evening. She explains her rule for a good portrait. She puts three questions to the sitter before she begins. They are: What do you think you look like? What do you wish you looked like? What do you fear you look like?

"AND MAKE FAIRE LADYES—"

George Brummel, the Beau Brummel of England, once ordered a duchess to leave a ballroom walking backwards because her ugly, skinny, yellow back displeased him. Gentlemen aren't doing so this year.

But you might begin now whitening the yellow streaks of wintertime collars—if any. Mix and rub in at night, covering with piece of linen: 1 ounce honey, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 6 drops oil of bitter almonds, whites of eggs, enough oatmeal to make paste. Thrice, and a beautiful alabaster neck ensues!

THE RIGHT THING

Do you know why we shake hands? In early days man lived alone save for his woman back in the cave. He fought the wild animals alone and dragged home his loot alone. Men warred on one another for the most part. When primitive man was too weary to fight he would drop his club upon meeting another man in his path and hold out his empty hand to show that he was unarmed. And the extended hand warmed into the hand-touch, then the handshake.

Today's form says that a person coming into a group does not offer to shake hands. It is up to the members of the group to make him welcome by offering the hand, if they care to.

HOT CROSS BUNS

"One a penny, two a penny
Hot Cross buns,
If you have no daughters,
Give them to your sons."

And if you have no recipe, here's a humdinger! Scald 2 cups of milk in double boiler. Pour over 1-2 teaspoon of salt, 2 tablespoons of sugar 1-2 cup of shortening which have been mixed in a bowl or bread mixer. Stir well and let cool. Add 2 yeast cakes which have been moistened in 1-4 cup lukewarm water. Add 3 1-2 cups flour. Beat until smooth. Cover and let rise until double. Cut mixture down and add 2-3 cup sugar, 2 beaten eggs, 1-2 cup chopped raisins or currants mixed with 1-4 cup flour and 3 3-4 cups flour. Knead and return to greased bowl. Let rise again, shape into buns, place in greased pan, and rise again. Then glaze, cut cross on top with knife, and bake 20 minutes.

Should the present supply of raw materials from which soap is manufactured be cut off, the world would not have to go dirty for lack of soap. The soap wort plant found in many hedgrows, produces a slimy juice that makes a lather immediately it is mixed with warm water. It has cleansing properties also and fabrics suffer no deterioration when washed in it. Gypsies and the peasants of Italy, Spain and France use the soap

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER FIFTEEN—THE QUEEN BEE PAYS HER RENT

The next place that Mister Tingaling and the Twins went to collect rent was at the bee-hive.

So they went tap, tap, tap on the front door of the big roundhive.

"May I see the Queen?" asked Mister Tingaling as one of the bees came to let him in.

"Certainly," said the bee, stepping aside to let the three tiny people pass.

"Here, Queen, here are some people to see you," said the bee.

"How do you do," said the Queen Bee. "Are you workers or drones? I have no use for drones. They're lazy useless people and we put them out."

"Oh no, your Royal Highness," said Mister Tingaling hastily. "We are workers, I assure you. We work very hard—especially on the thirty-second day of the month. And this is the thirty-second. We are collecting rents."

"Neither did we, ma'am," said the fairyman, "but your name is in the rent book, so I suppose you must owe it to us. I'm terribly sorry. I certainly apologize."

"Oh, no! Don't bother," said the Queen Bee. "We shall get around it some way. Let me think! Oh I have it! Instead of money I shall give you honey. That sounds almost the same. Besides, queens may give presents if they wish. It sounds far better than paying rent."

"That's true, your Highness," said Mister Tingaling. "I think it's a fine idea. What do you think, children? Shall we take honey for the rent?"

"I think it's a very good idea myself," said Nancy.

"And I'm sure my wife would think it a good idea, too!" said Mister Tingaling. "Yes, your Royal Highness, I should be very much obliged if you would pay your rent in honey. I mean, if you would make me a present of honey."

So the Queen Bee called her workers and said, "Get one of the honeycomb boxes out of the pantry and give it to my friends."

"Yes, your Majesty," said the bees bumping their heads on the ground and going away to the pantry to get the honey.

"How can we carry it?" said Nick suddenly.

"Oh, that's easy," said Nancy. "We'll have our magic shoes make us big again as soon as we get outside."

But Mister Tingaling looked offended. "I don't like great big people," he said. "I like you little like I am. Please don't grow big!"

"Oh, well then! All right," said Nick. "But how can we carry a whole combful of honey to your house, Mister Tingaling?"

"I know," said Nancy. "We'll put it on wheels and roll it along."

"Why certainly!" said the Queen Bee. "Little girl, you'll be queen of something or other yourself some day. See if you're not."

"Thank you," said Nancy, "I'm head of the class, and that's almost as good."

"Every bit," declared the Queen Bee. "Now then, I know where there are four empty spools. They are right under the window of Mrs. Greenway's room in the garden. They were on the window-sill and fell out. I saw them there yesterday. They'll do for wheels."

Soon the honeycomb was on wheels and the fairyman and the Twins were rolling it carefully along to the fairyman's house.

"I really didn't intend to go that far. You see I'm out for a play today. I'm not working any more. But I'll take the bundle; maybe I'll see your cousin."

Somehow, the water lilies never did look so pretty as they did this day, and Billy Bee stopped to chat with Mr. Blue Fly, who was visiting the Water Lily Lady.

"I don't see why you bother with these daisy castles when Water Lily has such a fine honey well," snapped Blue Fly. "Stay and let's have some fun."

Anything that sounded like fun, just suited Billy Bee. For he could play from early morning until night and still never get enough play. So Billy Bee settled down on the water lily petals, forgetting all about his daisy pollen.

They had such a lovely time seeing who could fly the farthest with his eyes shut; which one could buzz the loudest and which one could fly the closest to the water without getting his feet wet, so they did not notice that the sun was getting low.

"My! What a lovely place to play," buzzed Billy Bee settling on the yellow pillow in the very center of Miss Water Lily's castle. "A lovely place to rest too," he drawled. Billy Bee's eyes closed and before he knew what he was doing, he was sound asleep.

Blue Fly wanted to waken him when he saw Miss Water Lily closing her doors for the night, but she wouldn't let him.

"Maybe this will teach him there's something else in life besides play," she said. "If he has to stay in my castle all night, he'll be more careful next time." and chasing Mr. Blue Fly away, she closed her petal doors down so tight that Billy Bee couldn't get out.

When he awakened and found himself a prisoner he cried and cried but it did him no good. There he had to stay all night. When morning came the little bee managed to get out and sailed back to his home. That was a good lesson for Billy Bee. That was the last time he ever stopped to play until all his work was finished and he never sat down to snooze on anyone's doorway again.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

THE LITTLE BEE WHO ALWAYS WANTED TO PLAY

"Hie-ho," buzzed Billy Bee as he sailed from the side of the road and lighted on a daisy blossom, "I'll get a sip of honey and then I'll play all day."

He knocked at Miss Daisy's door and she flung it wide open and invited Billy Bee to sip from her honey well.

Billy Bee sipped all the honey he could hold and was just about to leave when Miss Daisy reminded him he had forgotten to take a bundle of pollen.

"I'll certainly appreciate it very much if you'll take it over to my cousin on the other side of the lake," smiled Miss Daisy.

"Well, you see," buzzed Billy Bee,

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A few days ago a friend asked why a larger proportion of mothers now resort to bottle feeding of the babies than used to be the rule.

If more mothers do resort to artificial feeding, it is because bottle feeding is infinitely safer than it was a generation ago. In New York City, thirty years ago, 240 babies out of every thousand born, died before they reached the age of one year. Now only sixty die out of every thousand born.

A wonderful man, still spared to bless his day and generation, started a movement to make available to the poor babies of the great cities, an unfailing supply of pure milk. The work of Mr. Nathan Straus has gone on with increasing safety for the babies. The milk given the babies and young children is now so safe that even when the infant is denied the privilege of breast feeding the chance of good health is almost equal to what natural feeding would afford.

If mothers are not capable now of supplying breast milk, it is because a smaller proportion of mothers provide themselves with the milk producing foods. It requires the greatest care to make sure of getting such foods. In modern times many foods are so denatured that they do not supply the mothers with the elements necessary for milk production.

But I fear that the demands of social life, the economic pressure of these times, and possibly a tendency in some quarters to avoid the responsibilities of motherhood, may have something to do with a decreasing dependence upon breast feeding. If there is such a tendency I lament the fact, because every baby brought into the world has a right to be fed in the way God intended.

However, there are many fine mothers who cannot nurse their babies. They would gladly make every sacrifice of time and personal convenience, for what to them would be the highest form of pleasure. Ill health or failure of function deprives them of a milk supply of sufficient richness to properly nourish their babies.

For all such, I have nothing but sympathy. They are to be pitied, not blamed. They would nurse their infants if they could.

I cannot close without saying that sometimes the over-willing mother nurses her baby long after weaning time has arrived. This is wrong, of course, because ,as the age increases, the child requires more food than the mother's breast can supply.

It is a mistake to bring up a baby without the regular use of the scales. The weight of the infant is the best proof of its welfare. There must be steady increase in weight or something is wrong. The most likely trouble, if the scales do not show regular progress, is improper or insufficient feeding.

If the mother is in ill-health, or if she is unable to provide herself with the right food to give her strength and a full supply of milk, then the bottle must be substituted. But if it is at all possible, the breast should be given the child. There is less likelihood of stomach or intestinal disturbance and greater certainty of progressive growth and vigor.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

THE DODGE BROTHERS OF AUTOMOBILE FAME

Horace E. Dodge and his brother, John F. Dodge, added a new record to the annals of the automobile industry when they sold, a short time ago, their gigantic plant for the sum of $146,000,000. This represents the largest amount of actual cash which has ever changed hands over a single commodity.

They were the Sons of a Poor Blacksmith.

The history of the development of the industry for which the brothers Dodge are responsible, reads like a page from a book of fairy tales. The sons of a poor blacksmith in Niles, Michigan, they spent their childhood in their father's shop, at first learning to make utensils from bits of pipe and scraps of copper, and later helping their father as machinists. When they were a little older they left for Detroit from whence came fabulous tales of the salaries paid to mechanics. Some people even went so far as to say that capable machinists were paid the enormous stipend of $5 a day, and young John and Horace looked forward eagerly to making a fortune.

Their hopes were not so easily satisfied, however. They were both employed in the boiler factory of "Tommy" Murphy, and six months later John was made foreman of the shop. This was because he had decided executive ability, while Horace was the better mechanic. In the early nineties they left for Windsor, Ontario, where they were engaged in a small typographical plant. Later they took over this plant on a lease and commenced the manufacture of the Evans & Dodge bicycle, known in those days as the "E. & D." This was their first product.

Business was not all they had hoped for, however, so in 1901 they returned to Detroit. They opened a machine shop and worked night and day to make it a financial success. While Horace toiled over designs, plans, estimates and tracings, his brother took charge of the accounts and correspondence.

The business must have been rather lucrative, for in a few years both men married. And then came a turn in their financial fortunes, for they met a man by the name of Hank Ford He was very enthusiastic about a new carriage which he wished to make. He described it to them as a "horseless carriage run by gasoline." Although the idea seemed a hazardous and strange one, the brothers agreed to manufacture the engine in their plant. In return for this they asked a 10 per cent share of stock in the company that would be formed.

It is claimed that the Dodge brothers made the first Ford engine and were stockholders in the Fodr car when it first made its appearance. They continued to manufacture Ford engines for several years, realizing large sums on the venture. They then sold their stock for $800,000 after they had made $5,000,000 in dividends.

For several years after this the Dodge plant made all Ford parts. This work was turned over to the Ford plant when the Dodge brothers decided to make their own car. The first automobile bearing the insignia of the Dodge Brothers Company made its appearance July 1, 1914. By July, 1915, they had sold $35,000,000 worth of cars and were turning out scarcely enough to fill the demand.

DUFFUS MOTOR SALES

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By E. R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

W. V. Hill, Manager of the California Electric Railway Association, says:—

THAT the Electric Railways are an essential industry. Generally speaking, they have withstood the acid test of automobile competition of every conceivable description during the past ten years. It is true a few lines were abandoned and some forced into hands of receivers, due largely to unfair competition and the reluctance of some regulatory bodies to grant increased fares when the costs of operations were soaring along with other costs of living generally.

THAT the expense of paving of streets and roadways should be taken from the car riders and placed on those who use the paving. Taxes should be more equitably distributed as between rail and motor carriers.

THAT unnecessary duplication of facilities should be avoided, for competition in service can only be secured at higher fares and impaired operations.

THAT there should be a co-ordination of all classes of transportation service under one management. The bus and truck can be used to advantage in supplemental or feeder service to that of the electric lines. If permitted to continue as competitors, they will eventually destroy the electric railway lines, for the margin between operating costs and income is close, and it only requires a small percentage of loss in traffic to a competitor to create a deficit.

The public should not over look the fact that the Electric Railways offer the Longest, Safest, Most Reasonable and Dependable Service, with All of Their Burdens, than Any other Known Means of Conveyance.

SPECIAL AUTO FOR LORD BYNG

Made by Veterans Who Work in General Motors Plant.

GIVEN BY OFFICERS

On the ninth anniversary of the capture of Vimy Ridge—the occasion of the fourth and last Vimy Ridge Anniversary Dinner at Government House—General Lord Byng received a fitting tribute from the former officers of the Canadian Corps, who served under him in France, in the form of a Canadian-made McLaughlin-Buick car.

For many weeks this car has been under course of construction at the General Motors plants at Oshawa, under the direct supervision of W H. Moyse, Chief Engineer, and Lt. Col. Frank Chappell, Assistant Factory Manager. To these men, as to the 733 War Veterans employed in the General Motors plants, the building of this presentation car was a labor of love, and they gave unhesitatingly of their best. Even the President of the General Motors of Canada, Limited, Mr. R. S. McLaughlin, made the production of the car a point of personal interest and pride.

A note of sadness was felt in the gathering at Government House where the presentation was made by General Sir Arthur Currie, who succeeded General Byng as Commander of the Canadian Corps—for it was felt that this tribute not only marked the anniversary of a great victory, in which all had had a share, but also constituted a farewell gift to the Governor-General, now nearing the completion of his term of office.

Pipe-Major John Gillies expressed the feeling of the assembly when he presented Lord Byng with a Gaelic motto from the Highland Regiments of Canada which meant "Would it not be a beautiful thing if you were only coming instead of going?"

Lady Byng entered the dining-room when the speeches began, and was presented by the Canadian Corps officers with a portrait of their beloved chief. After making the presentation, General Currie, turning to His Excellency, said—"And you, sir, in memory of other days and as a small mark of our deep affection, please accept a motor car."

The car, a McLaughlin-Buick limousine, stood in a special portico in front of Government House. On the radiator cap was a Canadian beaver of silver from Cobalt, Ontario. A silver plate at the back of the front seat carried the inscription, —"To Their Excellencies, the Governor-General and the Lady Byng of Vimy, this car is presented by the officers who served in the overseas forces of Canada, 1914 to 1918, as a token of deep affection, April 9th 1926."

His Excellency's voice faltered with emotion as he acknowledged the gift. "It would be better, perhaps, if I didn't say anything," he began, "I can use only very ordinary words, but I thank you sincerely from the bottom of my heart on behalf of my wife and myself."

Lady Byng found a huge bouquet of American Beauty roses waiting for her in the car. Both Lord and Lady Byng expressed their delight with the automobile, which is said to be the finest car ever produced in Canada. Their Excellencies will take it with them when they return to the Old Land in September, the car having been built for English driving.

COL. HAM DIED THIS MORNING

Veteran Publicist Succumbed To Long Illness at Home.

END WAS SUDDEN.

MONTREAL, April . Canadian Press. — Colonel George Henry Ham, journalist and publicist, for 35 years with the Canadia Pacific Railway Company, died at 1.15 o'clock this morning, at his home.

Colonel Ham, who was in his 79th year, had been ill since November, 1924, and for the past six months had been confined to his home.

Despite poor health Colonel Ham maintained interest in home and foreign events until the end which, came with tragic suddenness. A few minutes before he died he suggested that he be moved, changed his mind, then lay still.

Colonel Ham is survived by one son, C. Norman Ham, of Montreal; two daughters, Mrs. L. M. Beard of Montreal, and Mrs. W. M. Burley, of Vancouver.

George Ham carried humor and philosophy into everything he did in the course of a long life, in which he played many parts, including those of soldier, newspaperman, author, Raconteur and publicity man for a great transportation system.

He was born at Tranton, Ont., on August 23, 1847. When only fourteen years old he joined the Canadian militia and was prepared to fight over the Trent Affair. In 1867 he saw service during the Fenian raids, and received the medal for these campaigns. In 1885 he acted as correspondent for the Toronto Mail during the Riel rebellion. He was present with Genera Middleton at Fish creek, and was on the steamer.

CRITICALLY HURT IN MOTOR WRECK

Kitchener Man May Not Recover From Injuries Received.

KITCHENER, Ont., April 16. — (Canadian Press).—Bernard Koehler, 48, superintendent of public parks, was perhaps fatally injured when his car crashed into the Grand River Railway freight motor at Courtland Avenue crossing last night.

Mr. Koehler is in a very critical condition. The car was totally demolished.

FORMER CANADIAN PLANS PLANE FORCE

Col. Hartney Says U. S. Can Become Supreme in the Air.

WINNIPEG, April 16. (Canadian Press).—Supremacy of the air recently offered the United States by a Canadian-born soldier and incidentally a Maniotban, Harold E. Hartney, a native of Hartney, Man., made a proposal to the United States army general staff to establish 50 airplane stations in which to train aviators, equip them with 450 airplanes and auxiliary equipment, recruit men suitable for aerial navigation, pay them $6 for each flying hour, insure them for $5,000 against death and $2,500 for injury. All of which he offered to do at the annual cost to the government of $5,000,000.

Col. Hartney, when a boy about nine years of age, moved with his parents to Souris, Man., and finally to Toronto. He was graduated from the University of Toronto in 1911 and then took a course in law which he completed in 1914. He was a barrister in Saskatchewan until 1915, when he joined the Royal Flying Corps. After serving two years he transferred with the rank of major to the United States air service, organized, trained and took to the front the 27th Aero Squadron. On August 2, 1918, he was promoted to group commander, first pursuit group, and in February, 1919, was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel, and returned to the United States assigned to the office of the Chief of the Army Air Service.

This Canadian soldier at the age of 38 is now vice-president and general manager of the Airways System, incorporated, of New York City. During the war, Col. Hartney had conferred on him the American Distinguished Service Cross, the French Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre, with two palms, the Italian silver medal for valor, the British war medal and later the Aero medal of honor.

Col. Hartney's mother and sister are still living in Toronto, while two of his brothers are in Western Canada. One in Saskatoon and the other in Regina.

SUSPEND LABOR HOUSE MEMBERS

Thirteen Members of British Commons Barred For Obstruction.

DELAYED HOUSE.

LONDON, April 16. — (United Press. — Thirteen Laborite members of the House of Commons were suspended from the bady this morning on the charge of wilful obstruction during an all night session during which the government's economy bill was debated.

John Wheatley, who was Minister of Health in the Labor government of MacDonald, and Geo. Lansbury, Editor of Lansbury's Weekly, were among the alleged obstructionists.

The suspension was voted 163 to 76 after the proceedings had been delayed half an hour due to the refusal of the thirteen to leave a division lobby held on a motion to report progress on the bill. The colleagues of the Laborites with angry gesticulations, protested the suspension as the 18 hour session ended at 9.07 o'clock.

HAS BODYGUARD.

NEW YORK, April 16 (Canadian Press). — After receiving several threatening telephone calls, Edward W. Browning, middle-aged millionaire husband of the former Frances ("Peaches") Heenan, 15, surrounded himself last night with a bodyguard of six private detectives. The nature of the threats could not be learned, but Browning, returning to the hotel in Bronxville, N.Y., with his bride, following a shopping expedition in this city yesterday afternoon, appeared to be nervous and agitated.

It was learned also that the janitor of Browning's office building on West 72nd Street found a long knot of crepe hanging from Browning's door knob early yesterday morning.

NATIONAL ARMY BEING PURSUED

Battle Expected at Nankow—Wu Advises Tsao.

TO REFUSE OFFICE.

(By Randall Gould, United Press Staff Correspondent)

PEKING, April 16—The Kuominchun troops (Nationalist People's Army) who completed their evacuation of Peking over night, were being pursued today by the Feng Tien cavalry of General Chang Tso Lin, victorious war lord. A battle may be fought between the retiring forces and Chang Tso Lin's army at Nankow.

Wu Pei Fu, who declined to combine with the Kuominchun forces so the combined forces might hold the capital, has telegraphed Tsao Kun, former president, who was freed from captivity when he ousted President Tuan Chi Jui, advising Tsao not to accept the presidency. Meanwhile, President Tuan Chi-Jui has left his place of refuge in the legation quarter to which he had fled from the occupation of the city by the National People's Army.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 16. — (Canadian Press.)— In connection with the announcement that a mass meeting of Ontario veterans will be held in Toronto on April 17, to be addressed by General Sir Percy Lake and General Sir Richard Turner, it is hoped that the meeting will take definite steps to bring about a union of all soldier organizations in the Canadian legion of the British Empire Service League. While various veteran associations of Ontario have already signified their willingness to amalgamate with the Legion, no definite organization meeting for this purpose has been held. The western provinces have already taken action along these lines. All veterans regardless of what services, including nursing sisters, will participate.

SALVATION ARMY BIRTHDAY.

(Written and Contributed By the Peterborough Corps).

Anniversary is another name for birthday and most of us, old and young, look back or forward to the bright spots in our lives that a birthday party has brought to us. So many candles, presents, cakes and sometimes a good spanking for as many years, and one to grow on.

The Army of course, had to be born, and the Peterborough Salvation Army had its inception on the streets of Peterborough in April, 1885, just 41 years ago. When the announcement of opening fire, first gun to boom and the storming of the devil's kingdom was published. It certainly did not take long for the citizens of 1886 to flock to the battle field.

Commissioner Eddie, Capt. Mills and Lieutenant Laughlin, with a visitor or so from Lindsay and a few friends formed the attacking brigade. The battle was set and great has been the war. And many the prisoner captured from the ranks of sin and hell, and to be sure the Devil doesn't like the Salvation Army either. It was thought by many at first that the Army would be an absolutely different church, but time has borne out the fact that the Army is not sectarian but in reality is a battalion of the Lord's workers doing their part for all denominations, churches and societies; none being too far away from home and God but that they are ever alert to their helping, reclaiming and bringing them to God and home happiness.

The years have sped quickly. The ups and downs have been many, but they are still on the job. The blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed and to the poor, the Gospel is preached. Yes, it is said that the Army is the poor man's church. It's that and more of the has-beens, a line of many reclaimed could be mentioned, Mark Spencley, Mark Wainwright, Dad Cooney, Dad Green, Joe Barton, John Sawyers, Richard Payne and so on. All stalwart soldiers who did their part but have gone to their eternal reward. Officer after officer, soldier after soldier, all doing their part in the list of notables, and the work has been carried on to the present day with much credit to all concerned and which has enriched with blessing many a weary soul and many a lost and erring child has found the way home.

The Army in a musical way has also done a great stroke for the city and the people. From a very humble and rude beginning to a wonderful musical organization, at present some 75 bandsmen and 35 songsters and many of the bandsmen of other bands and singers in the churches of the city have been recruited in the Army. The Greene family, in the year 1892 came to the city from Stirling helped out in a wonderful way. Mr. J. M. Greene being the bandmaster through some 20 trying years. Many other good men have done much to build this band together continuously for 37 years. Bandmaster Frank Robinson for some years back doing splendid work. Many of the old soldiers passed on but a few remain. Mrs. Mark Spenceley, Mrs. David Law, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Payton, Harry Edmonson, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lang, Mrs. Richard Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Braund and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Braund are all members of over 35 years' standing. Many others, soldiers or members of the Army, are of long standing, having moved here from England and other places.

The Army's following of the present Peterborough Corps or congregation number from 800 to 1,000, which includes the Mission on Chamberlain street, Brownton. The Sunday school is said to be one of the most flourishing of city and country, composed of 40 classes with a working staff of 62 teachers, recording sergeants, secretaries librarians and officers, and the school is rich in organizations with 2 troops of Boy Scouts and 1 troop of Life-Saving cherubs in charge of Sgt. H. Barton The Boys' Band lead by Victor Lang, the Young People's Legion by Mrs. W. Jones and Mr. Geo Robinson. The Corps Cadet Brigade, led by Mrs. T. Lang and Mrs. E. Sutherland; the Senior Troop of Band of Love by Miss K. Gilmour and Sister Halcrow, and the Brownton Band of Love by Miss Clara Barnes and Mrs. Bennett. The Girl Guards, led by Mrs. A. Wells and Mrs. Wm. Jones; Librarian, Mrs. W. Boorman; Secretary, Mrs. H. Hedge; Treasurer, George Robinson; Assistants Mrs. A. Jones and Geo. Collins; Sup'ts of Young People's, Sergeant Majors, R. C. Braund, W. Boorman, A. Lashbrook. Officers of the Board: Treasurer of the Corps, J. J. Cunningham; Secretary, George Leggatt; Sergeant Major E. Jones; Bandmaster, Frank Robinson; Recruiting Sergeant Major H. Wells; League of Mercy Leader, Mrs. T. Lang; Young People's Sergeant, Major R. C. Braund and Major and Mrs. Higdon, Chairman of the Board.

Peterborough Salvation Army Corps are noted in that they have two Salvation Army Envoys, Thos. H. Brooks and Wm. E. Payton, men who have stood the brunt of the battle for many long years and have lately had this honor bestowed upon them.

The Salvation Army Temple has now come to be a land mark. This fine structure is doing noble work in housing all sections of Army activities, and scarcely a night passes but that 2 to 5 different meetings are being held at the same time in one of the 50 rooms of this fine building. The temple for all Salvation Army activities, Junior and Senior while big, is reckoned to be the most up-to-date of any Salvation Army building on the American continent, and the equipment is second to none. Thanks to the good and whole-hearted people of the city, when it was burned down, some 3 years ago, a balance of building account on note at the bank of $1,200 is a great source of worry to the Army at the present time. But they are in high hope that some good friend will come to their help and leave a legacy for the Army's work in Peterborough that will help them out. It might be wise to mention that any person who has not left in their wills something for the Army should at once add a codicil—so that when you are dead your money will go on working for good.

The Quartermaster of the Army is Mr. Bert Gray. He is ever alert, looking after the Army's property and will be glad to shake hands with anyone who attends now to celebrate the 41st birthday. The Army is going to a considerable lot of trouble and is getting to the city, Colonel and Mrs. Jacobs.

Retired officers who have spent many, many years as Chief Secretaries of the whole of the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland.

These fine old comrades will be at the Army meetings Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday—according to card invitations. They will lead a series of public meetings to which all city people are invited to each and every meeting.

Major and Mrs. Higdon, the new officers of the Army are in high expectations of you coming to these big birthday gatherings.

You will admit that brains are necessary to success, so why befog your brains with discouraging individualities and depressing incidents?

THE SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori.

The question of caring for the hair is ever an uppermost one in the minds of the woman who takes the best possible care of her personal appearance.

For one thing the question of bobbed hair which has ceased to be a new one long ago, has focused much attention toward heads in general. Whether to bob or not to bob is still a question of importance in the minds of some women, who did not bob their hair when the style was new, and still feel that maybe they will have missed something if they never shear their locks.

This question of bobbed hair brings me to a very important "don't," which is really the object of this particular article.

The "don't"—I have in mind is "Don't, under any circumstances wash your hair oftener than once every two weeks.

This is linked with bobbed hair because so many women answer to this, "Well, I simply must have a shampoo every week if my hair is to look well."

I am quite willing to wager that this will not be true, once you have trained you hair into the routine of a semi-monthly shampoo. For it is a peculiar fact that if you get into the habit of washing your hair every week, it will grow to need a shampoo every week. This frequent washing weakens your hair, and the result is that its roots give out more oil than is good them.

An excellent substitute for the too-frequent shampoo, you know, is the dry shampoo of corn meal. Simply rub corn meal well into your hair, let it remain in a short time, then brush it out. You will be surprised to find how much oil the corn meal takes away with it.

Then, if you will brush your hair nightly, as I advise so strongly, you will find that each days collection of dust is removed, and your hair actually is not in need of a washing at the end of the week. At least, this will be true if you brush it with a clean brush each time.

COLDS ONLY OVERFATIGUE.

According to the United States Public Health Service, head colds are nothing more than overfatigue which exposes the physical system to the cold bacilli. It is not cold or damp air that causes colds or coryza, the technical term for the ailment, but stale air. The Service ridicules the time honored notion that inclement weather causes colds.

MOM'S JOB.

A man hies homeward, every day when working hours are done. His mind is turned to loaf and play and things that make up fun. He longs to eat a home-cooked meal that wifey has prepared. He knows how good he's going to feel as supper fare is shared.

So buried in such thoughts is he, he seldom stops to think that tiredness comes with homework, and the wife is on the brink. It really looks so easy when the supper's on the table. To realize that cooking food is work, he is not able.

Then wife takes a week end trip, and leaves things on the shelf so dad, when he comes home at night, can cook his meals himself. The first attempt is not so bad. With action rather crude, he rolls his sleeves and sails right in the job of cooking food.

The second, and the third night, begin to tell their story. Dad wonders why he ever thought that mom was in her glory. But then, when she arrives back home and tackles work again, he once more thinks her job is soft—he's like all other men.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

THE CHURCH.

Jesus said unto his disciples, who say you that I am? Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. Jesus answered and said unto him: Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jonah; for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto you, but my Father who is in heaven. I also say unto thee, that thou art Peter (Petros, a stone) and upon this rock (petra, a rock) I will build my church, and the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it. I will give unto thee the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in Heaven; and whatsoever thou shall loose on earth shall be loosed in Heaven. Matt. 16: 15 to 20.

The above words demand careful reading. They have an important bearing, whether interpreted correctly or incorrectly. The words "Peter" and "this rock," do not have reference to the same thing. "Petros" does not represent stability and solidity. "Petra" does represent a solid foundation, something that will not give way. "My Church" does not mean anyone of the many ecclesiastical organizations of to-day. "The church" is a called out class, separate and distinct from all others. The members of the 'church' are enrolled in heaven. Heb. 12:23. Christ is the head of "the church." Eph. 5:23. Christ nourisheth and cherisheth "the church." Eph. 5:29. "The church" must follow in the footsteps of Jesus. 1 Peter 2: 21. Many are called to be members of this "church" but only a few respond to the call, and therefore few are chosen. Jesus stated particularly to Peter that he received not knowledge from man, but direct from God. "Petros" (a stone) is not "petra" (the rock. It appears evident that "this rock" represents "personal direct revelation" from God" There are a number of Scripture statements corroborative of this. "As many as are led by the Spirit (of God) these are the sons of God (members of the church). Rom. 8:14. Those who belong to the "Church" or the Kingdom of God, have a new life, they have been born of the Spirit (of God.) Peter was told to feed the lambs and the sheep. It is not hard to understand what this means. Peter could not do this if he did not know what was meant by "petra" (the rock). He was also told that when he was converted to "strengthen his brethren." This also he could not do if he did not know that "petra" (the rock) is a recognition of the Holy Spirit and a yielded obedience to the same. Peter having the knowledge, and making it known to others, and they in turn accepting or rejecting the truth, they would be liberated or bound. In this case he would be really unlocking the kingdom of Heaven, and what was done here on earth would be done or sanctioned in Heaven. "Hades" (the death condition) shall not prevail against the "church," for Jesus shall give unto the members of the "church" eternal life. The reason of the spiritual dearth that abounds in the different religious assemblies of to-day is attributable to the lack of recognizing and honoring the Holy Spirit. There are a few who do honor the Holy Spirit, and another few who make a semblance of doing so.—M. T. Butcher. 1d91-1773

CITIZENS AND OFFICERS OF O.H.A. FELICITATE SENIOR CHAMPIONS WITH WATCHES, CUP AND EULOGY

Engraved Gold Watches Presented To Petes at Civic Banquet.

PLAYERS GRATEFUL.

Alderman Ackerman Reviewed Progress of Proposed Artifcial Ice Arena.

Peterborough's senior hockey players, champions of the O.H.A., were honored by several score of their fellow citizens last night on the occasion of the civic banquet tendered by the City Council on behalf of the citizens. The dining room of the Empress Hotel was well filled with a large gathering of representative citizens.

The Ontario Hockey Association, the premier amateur hockey organization of the world, was represented by its President, Treasurer, and Secretary, two past presidents, and one member of the executive, besides P. J. Mulqueen of the Canadian Olympic Committee. Mayor Holloway presided and most of the Aldermen were present. Among the other guests were the members of the Rink Rats, midget champions of Peterborough and winners of the Holloway Shield, who were introduced as the Senior O.H.A. champions of 1936.

In his opening remarks the Mayor said that he was proud that he was in office as mayor when such a signal honor was brought to the city and that he considered it one of the most important things that had happened so far during his term. He hoped that the victory would be repeated next year and congratulated the players on their showing this year.

Ald. N. E. Phelan.

The toast to the O.H.A. was proposed by Alderman Phelan, who, in a short but graceful tribute, described it as a national institution. He said that the efficient manner in which the association functioned was due to the careful way in which the officers had carried out their duties ever since the foundation, giving great credit to Secretary Hewitt. He congratulated the players and management of the Peterborough team on the honors they had won and on the way they had played all through the season.

Before calling on the officials of the O.H.A. to respond Mayor Holloway read letters and telegrams of congratulation and regrets from many members of the O.H.A. executive who were unable to be present.

President Easson.

President William Easson, after congratulating the team and city, said that one memory that he treasured was of winning the right to have his name on one of the shields which surround the Senior Trophy he having played on the champion Stratford team of 1907. He referred to the fact that in 1906, while playing as a junior, he had had two ambitions, to play on a senior championship team, and to be president of the O.H.A. Both of these had been fulfilled.

At times, said Mr. Easson, it had been necessary to take drastic action because some clubs had not lived up to the high standard set by the O.H.A. from its foundation, but that the clubs had almost always lived up to their responsibility and had complied with the rules and played the game properly.

With the regard to the demand for players for the pro teams and for the United States teams Mr. Easson said that they were always coming from the juvenile and midget teams into the junior series, in which 2000 players were registered last year. In this regard he said that it was a good thing to have the midget champions present so that they could see how their seniors acted, and that the seniors should remember that they were an inspiration to the boys who would copy them, and should therefore act so as to lay a good foundation for the younger lads. These, then, would maintain the standard that had been set.

Sheriff Paxton.

Sheriff Paxton of Whitby, treasurer of the O.H.A., said that he had been determined to come to Peterborough although it had been at considerable difficulty. He said that he was proud to work with such men as his fellow officers of the Association. He congratulated the Petes on their achievement and expressed the hope that they would go even further next year.

P. J. Mulqueen.

Mr. Mulqueen, who is chairman of the Canadian Olympic Committee, said that there was a future for sport in a city when the winners of such a championship as that of the midget league were brought to the banquet where their senior were entertained for winning the provincial honors. The encouragement of the young players was necessary for the continued development of hockey and other sports in Ontario and to keep up the standard.

He said that when the Canadian team won the Olympic championship in 1924 a Paris paper said that it was because they lived on skates for eight months of the year. He had a correction issued saying that the reason was that there were more artificial ice arenas in one province of Ontario than in the whole of Europe, and expressed great satisfaction that Peterborough was next year to enter the list of cities having modern arenas which he characterized as necessary to keep up the standard of hockey. He urged the team to go forward and win the Allan Cup next year with the further honor of winning the right to represent Canada in the 1928 Olympics.

Ald. C. H. Ackerman.

Alderman Ackerman proposed the toast to the team. He said that the players had brought to the city an honor which would have to be lived up to and that he thought it the best senior team in Ontario. By the victory, he said, the new artificial ice arena has been made possible, and he outlined the plan by which the city would be covered in an effort to get support for the undertaking, which would be a great aid to the team next year in the quest for the Allan Cup.

W. A Fry.

W. A. Fry of Dunnville, immediate past president of the O.H.A., presented the John Ross Robertson trophy to J. J. Duffus, president of the Peterborough Hockey Club. After expressing his congratulations he referred to the O.H.A. organization, he said, is no bigger than the men that compose it and he referred to the good work done by the members of the executive, past and present.

Mr. Fry said that he had been very pleased, when he arrived in the city, to see by the paper that an artificial arena was to be built and he urged that the co-operation of all should be given in order that the enterprise might be pushed forward to a successful conclusion as an aid to the hockey teams of the city.

Mr. Fry said that he was pleased to see the midgets present and he gave the lads a verse for a motto, written by Francis Nelson, a life member of the O.H.A.:

Not the laurel but the race;
Not the quarry but the chase;
Not the hazard but the play;
Make me, Oh! Lord, enjoy alway.

W. A. Hewitt.

The medals for the individual members of the team were presented by W. A. Hewitt, secretary of the O.H.A. He spoke of the great advertisement which the hockey team had been to the city through its prestige and achievements. He congratulated the members on their splendid play and sportsmanlike behavior.

Mayor Holloway presented the watches, the gift of the city, to the players and rings, suitably engraved, to Ed. Dillon and George Gauthier, trainers of the team.

J. J. Duffus.

J. J. Duffus, president of the club, responded to the toast to the team. He said that it was difficult to express his appreciation of the honor that had been his in heading the club when the championsip was won. He spoke of the sportsmanlike conduct of the players and said that no father was ever prouder of his sons than he was of the team and that the citizens might well be proud of the calibre of the players, who, he said, did their best at all times, whether sick or tired or in good shape.

He referred to the fact that three of the players were in business for themselves and stressed the fact that the morning after the games, no matter how hard, always found the boys at their work in shop or factory on time.

Irvin Bailey.

Captain Bailey also replied on behalf of his team-mates. He said that he had played on many teams in different games, but there had been none that had given him such pleasure as had this year's senior Petes. He said there was great satisfaction in knowing, from such a gathering, that the public really appreciated the efforts of the players and promised that they would try to go even farther next year.

The Midget League.

To Chris Graham, a member of the last Peterborough hockey team to win a championship, was deputed the job of presenting Mayor Holloway's shield to the Rink Rats, winners of the Midget League, and this office he ably performed. After a few remarks about the senior, Mr. Graham spoke of the enterprise of these boys in forming the league, calling on the president, G. Agnew, and the secretary, Clinton Miller, to stand up so that the gathering could see them, two youths of about fourteen, who had organized and guided the league. The members of the winning team were then introduced as the senior O.H.A. champions of 1936, each being called out by the name of the senior player whose position he covered. Percy Bond, of the O.H.A. executive presented to the boys the cups donated by the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., for winning the city section of the league. The players were: Norman Calladine, Jack Playford, Wilbert Starr, Romeo Leonard, Jim Ellis, Teddy McMahon, George Mulligan, and George Merritt.

Fred Whitcroft.

The teams of old were recalled when Fred Whitcroft, captain of the Peterborough team in former championship days, entered the room to be greeted with cheers. Mr. Whitcroft was asked to speak and was reminiscent of the days when he led the Petes to victory. He congratulated the Petes of the present day and spoke of the hopes for the future.

Before the gathering adiourned tribute was paid to Bert "Shorty" Burgess, long a member of the Peteborough team, who is now sick at a hospital in St. John, N.B. Dr. E. H. Wood spoke of the little fellow's great efforts for the team and three rousing cheers testified to the regard in which the fans hold him.

Cheers were also given for Manager Ed. Wright and Mayor Holloway.

Frankie Collins Receives Examiner Cup At Banquet

Robert Creighton, winner of The Examiner's Essay writing contest, attended the hockey banquet last night and sat opposite his favorite player, Frankie Collins. At the opportune moment Mayor Holloway spoke of Robert's success as a writer of essays and the winner presented Mr. Collins with a cup, presented by The Examiner, and suitably engraved. The boy found speechmaking a difficult proposition and left his part to the mayor. Mr. Collins expressed wonder that he should have been chosen as favorite but thanked his little friend for the honor done him.

CHARLIE REINLIE

Meet Charlie Reinlie, Racine (Wis.) bowler, who gained immortal fame by rolling a 300 game at the A.B.C. tourament, Toledo, the other day. His score equaled the perfect game mark hung up by Billy Knox of Philadelphia 13 years ago. Oddly enough, Knox also made his record feat in the A.B.C. at Toledo. Reinlie was paired with R. Reipel, who hit 226, giving them a total of 526, said to be a new all-time A.B.C. record.

OTTAWA RUGBY ACE MAY PLAY IN O.R.F.U.

MONTREAL, April 16. Canadian Press.—The Star on its sports page Friday said:

"Although it has been reported at different times that Joe Tubman, kicking ace of the Ottawa Senator Rugby football team, would be here in Montreal to play next fall, and then again that he would be with Lionel Conacher in "Red" Grange's professional league in the United States; it seems now that the former report is correct.

"Tubman was in Montreal this week on business. In fact that business was to get located here. He returned to Ottawa again with practical assurance of a position in this city. If he stays in Montreal, he will play with the Canadian National team in the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Cobourg People Are Saying Little About Diamond Chances.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE

COBOURG, April 16.—The continuance of winter and hockey weather so long into what is usually regarded as the spring season, seems to have put a crimp in baseball enthusiasm lately, and little talk is heard of the diamond and prospetive leagues and players. A few warm days will, however, put more enthusiasm into the fans.

Northumberland County seems to be talking soft ball with a great deal of vim, but Cobourg has not yet organized a soft ball league. That is, however, expected to come later, as there was an enthusiastic league last year.

CLEVELAND MAY GET FRANCHISE IN 'PRO' HOCKEY

Will Be Represented at N. H. L. Meeting in Montreal Saturday.

PLAYERS LACKING.

Montreal Star Says One New Team Could Be Manned.

MONTREAL, Quebec, April 16.—Canadian Press. — While Chicago and Detroit have been mentioned as possible new members of the National Hockey League, there is another city which many people think, has probably more chance of coming into the big Eastern professional hockey circuit than any other, and that is Cleveland, Ohio.

Representatives of that city are also expected to attend the semi-annual meeting of the National hockey league to commence here Saturday morning.

It is understood that the only objection these interests have to throwing in their lot with the hockey moguls is the demanded outlay of $50,000 for the franchise. They claim they have to spend a lot of money to build a rink and organize a team, and they think the amount asked for the franchise is a little too steep. They are hopeful that the league can make some other arrangement in this connection.

May be Opposed.

But while these applications will be made at the clean-up meeting, a new angle comes up which will probably prevent any new members except the second New York club from being included for the 1926-27 season.

The Montreal Star said yesterday, continuing: "The way many feel about the situation may be expressed as follows:

"The sudden expansion seems to some as going a little too far. The clubs desirous of getting in have the money but not the players. Three or four new clubs coming in would in the opinion of several hockey men, decrease the playing strength of the teams, for there are a limited number of players available, and four clubs would be after them instead of one. It is felt that one club should be admitted to balance up the circuit to an eight-club affair, and while others might be promised franchises for the future, these should be given a year more to build up. In this way the playing strength could be kept more equal, and there would not be the sudden scramble by three or four clubs for the few players that may be found of professional calibre at the present time."

B. Smith and W. Robertson came through yesterday's rounds of the Roehampton Golf Club's annual £200 invitation tournament, and today will fight for the season's first professional prize. Mitchell will contend against Smith, and Duncan will oppose Robertson in the semi-finals.

It was a great day for Abe Mitchell. He eliminated James Ockenden, of Hangerhill, three up and one to play, and then took the measure of Archibald Compton, four and three. The last match that Compston played before his American tour was against Mitchell; he got a drubbing then, but returned home this week and rushed from the liner to Roehampton, anxious for revenge. But he fell once more before the great golfing master, whose long distance driving and splendid control and putting, except for one brief interval, far surpassed Compston's game. Mitchell and Compston took practically all the spectators with them, and, despite the pouring rain, they stayed to watch Mitchell beat his man. It was a popular victory.

While he meditated and studied the shots, Big George Gadd, the Roehampton Club's professional, got wetter and wetter and wetter and more and more irritated and ultimately lost, five up and four to play.

J. H. Taylor's age and experience at fifty-five triumphed over the young ex-champion, Arthur Havers, three and two, but the veteran Harry Vardon, although he donned rubber plus fours, could not weather both the storm and Jack Smith's driving.

Aubrey Boomer, the only foreigner to get into the qualifying sixteen Thursday, battled valiantly for a place in the semi-finals, but he lost to George Duncan on the last green. The Frenchman sank an eight-foot putt for a three at the first hole, but Duncan took the next three holes with fours. Boomer evened the match before reaching the turn, and on the way home every hole was halved except the sixteenth, which went to Duncan.

ARSENAL'S GAME SOCCER FEATURE

Huddersfield Fixture One of Last Events of the Season.

LONDON, April 16. — (Canadian Press Cable).—Despite the fact that the championship of the First Division of the English League has been decided for another year, and Huddersfield Town continue to wear the laurels that has been theirs since 1924, interest in the scheduled meeting between the 1926 champions and their runners-up, Arsenal, has by no means been diminished, and it is expected that the Yorkshire town will see a good tussle tomorrow when these teams meet for their second engagement this season. The previous tilt, on December 5, at Highbury, resulted in a two-all draw.

The football season is now beginning to languish; and May 1 will see it packed away for the summer months. In the First Division there have been six teams who at one time or another have led in the League, but with the exception of Huddersfield, they have all succumbed, and now occupy varying positions in the final review. Aston Villa were the first to hold that position when in the initial game of the season they swamped Burnley by ten goals; they were succeeded by West Ham, who now find themselves travelling along near the bottom; Sunderland next took command and were later deposed by West Ham, who headed the table for a second time; Tottenham Hotspurs then came into the picture, but their fate was settled when Sunderland once again wrested the crown. The 'Spurs fought back, however, only to be ousted by Aston Villa. It was on October 17 that Sunderland began their long run that lasted for six weeks as leaders of the League until they were ejected by Arsenal. The Highbury team continued to top the table for two months, being displaced by Hudders field on January 23, when Arsenal dropped their game to Liverpool. From that day Huddersfield were never headed. They gradually piled up points until they wound up as champions last Monday, defeating Bolton Wanderers and acquiring the necessary margin to put them beyond all danger. In the sixteen games played since (and inclusive) January 23, Huddersfield have won 12, drawn 2 and lost 2.

BACK AGAIN

SPENCER ABBOTT

Years ago Spencer Abbott used to play first base for the Kansas City Blues. Later he played on various other clubs. Last year he was a scout for the Brooklyn Dodgers. This spring finds him back at Kansas City in the role of manager. His club, by the way, is figured as a possible contender for the American Association pennant.

DIVIDENDS ARE SUBJECT TO TAX

Former Rule Changed on Companies Paying Income Tax.

PAY NINE PER CENT.

OTTAWA, April 16.— (Canadian Press.)— A new feature in the income tax provisions of the budget is that which provides for the taxation of dividends from companies paying income tax in Canada. The old act provided for a tax of 10 per cent. on the income of the companies, but persons drawing dividends from these companies were not required to include these dividends in their income for purposes of taxation. Under the amendments provided for in the new budget, the normal tax on companies is reduced to nine per cent. Dividends drawn from these companies, however, must be included as part of the income of the individuals receiving them and are subject to taxation in exactly the same way as the yearly earnings of that individual.

The NUT Cracker

By JOE WILLIAMS

To beer or not to beer, that is the triple-distilled question that is gripping the ear-phones of a tongue scorched nation.

Are we to return to the felonious era of sour-stomach quartets and non-skid pretzels, or shall we continue a colony of speak-softies and loud political squawks?

Are we to go back to the balmy nights when white-aproned Gus always bought the "last one on the house," or is Tony Devuccio to remain as our chief source of poisonous delight?

It is a dizzy planet. While we are filling the front-line trenches with straw votes in the great battle for authenticated suds, the eye-brow pickers of Armenia go on strike demanding an eight-hour day and plumbers' wages.

The straw votes piled up a staggering majority in favor of official wetness, served publicly and without etherized amendments. A staggering majority is what was needed most.

An alcoholic filibuster has been spilled to bring medicated malt within the reach of all: the poor, the rich and all the men who married Miss Peggy Hopkins.

There is an important difference between medicated malt and the stuff you buy surreptitiously these days. Medicated malt only makes you sick; the other puts a lily in your knuckles.

"Sweep the cob-webs off the bung-starter, mother dear, for popper's got a job again."

It is a strange sphere. While the swinging-door builders have gone into spring training for the first time since 1918, no one has yet caged the ex-crown prince as a rare specimen of the cuckoo family.

France and Spain Now Ready To Meet With Tribesmen.

MADRID, April 16 (Canadian Press).—France and Spain have agreed on the peace terms to be discussed with the Riffian emissaries in Morocco, says an official statement today. Meanwhile, according to advices from Tetuan, in the Moroccan area, quiet reigns on all fronts.

CONCERT GIVEN AT ST. GEORGE'S

Good Attendance Present For Programme of Great Merit.

UNDER LADIES' GUILD.

The Ladies' Guild of St. George's Anglican church, South Peterboro, held a birthday concert in the lecture hall of the church last night. The price of admission was one cent for every year of a person's age. A fairly large audience was present, and a good time was had by all.

The programme opened with "O Canada," sung by all. Following this Earl Waterman sang "Canada for Canadians" with a suitable encore. Miss M. Scott then gave a solo entitled "Ship of my dreams." A quartette, consisting of Mrs. Rew, Miss Cotton and Messrs Lee and Worrall sang. Mr. Thomas then entertained with some very good card tricks and Earl Waterman was again called on for a solo. Messrs Lee and Worrall sang "Larboard Watch. A pie contest was staged in which the contestants had to guess the names of pies from a list of sentences and phrases. This was won by Mr. J. Worrall, who had thirteen correct answers out of fifteen. The prize was a large cake. Following this, very dainty refreshments were served by members of the Ladies Guild of the church. The chairman, Rev. J. L. Hughes, announced the proceeds to be twenty-five dollars and fifty-one cents.

ORDER DIRECTED AGAINST CANADA

Argentine Also Included in Czecho-Slovak Customs Rule.

FOR RETALIATION.

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, April 16 (Canadian Press).—Declared to be directed especially against Canada and the Argentine, orders have been issued by the Czecho-Slovakian customs authorities stipulating that the entry of cereals, flour, vegetables and malt be refused unless the shipment is accompanied by certificates issued by the Chamber of Commerce of the exporting country, endorsed by the Czecho-Slovak consulate. The new order goes into effect on April 21. Extra duties said to have been imposed on merchandise from this country by Canada and Argentine are said to have ben responsible for the placing of the new measure.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"ALL AROUND FRYING PAN."

The chief actor in this feature production, which opened yesterday for a three days' run at the Capitol Theatre, is the big white horse, "Silver King." Unlike Tom Mix's famous horse, Tony, which is rather an upstage sort of animal, "Silver King" is friendly in the extreme and seems to take just as much interest in the part he plays in the picture as any of its other actors.

"All Around Frying Pan" is an interesting picture, another of the Western affairs which seem to be glutting the picture market nowadays. It centres about the efforts of a band of cattle rustlers to make away with their employers' stock, and their detection by a visiting young man who appears first as a hobo, later announcing himself as young Lawrence, the actual owner of the ranch and its stock.

A clever introduction to the picture, which is not followed out in any of the later scenes, these being produced in the ordinary way, is the picture of the tramping feet of the hobo along the railroad track, and the pursuing feet of the sheriff behind him.

The picture gives the impression of being made in sections, and then gathered together into one piece, with the joining edges rather apparent at moments. The round up scenes are well done and the efforts of the cowboys to ride the dynamic Silver King are full of action. There is a real blonde heroine for a change, and the hero is a new actor to the screen, at least in this city. The cattle rustlers are real bad men in checked shirts, with villainous visages, and the hero goes through a series of misadventures before finally bringing them to time.

One of the small Western reels which are included in many of the Capitol programmes recently deals with the efforts of a lady ranch foreman, "Montana," to circumvent the plans of a rascally gentleman who aims to steal her ranch from an unsuspecting maiden, and there is a Juvenile comedy, "Raisin' Cain," in which a number of tiny tots do some clever stunts.

ALL BRANCHES OF BRITISH SERVICE IN ACTION

There is no melodrama in "Ypres," the story of the Immortal Salient, whose character is epitomized in its title. It covers an astonishingly wide and interesting field. Every important branch of the service is shown in action, the realism of which never degenerates into "manoeuvres." History and histrionics are so admirably blended that even the expert might be left guessing as to where one leaves off and the other begins. Room is found for the most typical aspects of life in the salient, the humors and hardships of which will be appreciated no less by civilians than by veterans. The pictures of troops on march, the King's visit to the front, the Commander-in-Chief at a train conference, are official records, and much of the topography is actual.

Most of the fighting incidents have a common sequel — the posthumous award of a V.C. And while this headline method of telling so much eventful history was inevitable, it results in a certain though glorious monotony rather at odds with the drab monotony—whose happiest issue was only to be visualized in terms of a "blighty"—that was an even more characteristic feature of life in the salient. This admirable film, provided its downright statements are filled out by a sympathetic imagination, the seeing of it should be a gloriously stimulating and far from a saddening experience. "Ypres" will be shown at the Capitol theatre for four days, starting Monday.

AT THE REGENT

ALF. GOULDING'S "DON'T!" A RIOT

Story of Unconventional Life of Rustic Flapper His Funniest

A comedy that is said to be more screamingly funny even than "Excuse Me" is coming today to the Regent Theatre. It is Alf. Goulding's production "Don't!", based on a story by Rupert Hughes. It is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture.

The combination of Rupert Hughes, author, and Goulding, director, is taking its destined place in the Who's Who of Screenland. The two that made "Excuse Me" have again contributed to "Don't!" and made of it a comedy long to be remembered.

Although essentially a comedy, "Don't!" gives Alf Goulding his first opportunity to direct a picture that has a serious motif. It tells of the struggle of a young girl in a small town for freedom—and the much abused term — "self-expression," against her parents and narrowminded friends. In the end, both the girl and her parents triumph, paradoxically enough. Rupert Hughes, who never has anything to say unless it is worth while, has told his story in a refreshingly different style, and it has been directed with absolute understanding by Alf. Goulding.

The cast of "Don't!" is filled with real names. Sally O'Neil, a newcomer to the screen, who acts like a veteran, plays the leading feminine role; John Patrick, popular young juvenile, and Bert Roach in the important role of Uncle Nat. Others in the well-balanced cast include James Morrison, Estelle Clark, De Witt Jennings, Ethel Wales, Johnnie Fox, Dorothy Seay, Evelyn Peirce, Brinsley Shaw and Helen Hoge. Agnes Christine Johnston wrote the scenario.

Flo-glaze Paint!

"The Finish that Endures"

How Value, Service and Proper Protection Are Obtained

YOU MUST HAVE:—A solid, unbroken paint film over the surface of your property that adheres solidly, and will remain unbroken for at least four years.

Linseed Oil, in combination with a properly balanced pigment formula, is the mainstay of such a film for exterior paints. It is used to give paint flowing properties, to insure uniform distribution of pigment on the surface, to form a firmly adherent and coherent film, and to produce the necessary lustre.

Value, service and proper protection are, therefore, greatly dependent on the quality of linseed oil used. In buying raw linseed oil for Flo-glaze Paint we specify a standard of quality higher than the regular commercial product commonly used in paint making. And every tank car is tested and must conform to our standard.

This oil is then subjected to a special scientific mechanical treatment we have developed and control, which gives to its flowing properties a self-levelling quality that entirely eliminates brush marks; distribution of pigments is perfectly uniform; greater covering density and hiding power are produced; the film is denser and enamel-like in its appearance, giving greater lustre and life. But, above all, we have been enabled to produce 25% greater covering capacity than paints made with ordinary commercial raw linseed oil.

These Diagrams, Magnified Several Diameters, Show How Flo-Glaze Gives 25% Greater Value, Service and Protection.

Diagram 1.

This diagram illustrates the faults of brush marks in lead and oil paint and other mixed paints. Points A are weak spots in the film. Points B indicate where an excess of paint gives only surface drying, leaving a soft centre producing surface cracking. Dirt and destructive fungi collect in the dales at points C, giving a dirty appearance and early destruction of the film. Light does not reflect a good gloss from such a rough surface. Too much paint is piled up at points D, which lessens its covering capacity.

Diagram 2.

The above diagram illustrates a typical Flo-glaze surface. There are no weak hollows to destroy the film. Its self-levelling qualities produce a level, unbroken surface. There are no brush marks. Dirt and fungi cannot collect to mar or destroy the film. Light is clearly reflected, giving a glossy enamel finish on both interior and exterior surfaces. Less Flo-glaze is used to cover a given area, giving better wear-resisting protection to the surface. It gives greater annual service value per thousand square feet, and covers 25% greater than any other form of paint.

Scientific and Practical Experience are also essential in producing value, service and proper protection. The raw materials used by paint manufacturers are available to any one who sets himself about to obtain them; even paint formulae of many varieties are available. But the preliminary inspection and treatment of these raw materials, modern facilities for thorough grinding, methods of compounding to avoid harmful chemical action, obtaining balanced proportions for long life and wear are factors that only an experienced organization can undertake in a scientific and practical manner. These problems have engaged the entire attention of our Color, Varnish and Dry Pigment laboratories for over twelve years, in controlling and improving the manufacture of Flo-glaze Paints, Enamels and Varnish Stains. The immediate success of our FLO-GLAZE THIRTY MINUTE LACQUER-ENAMELS is a result of our experienced research in these laboratories.

KIWANIS BUILD A NEWS STAND

J. R. Brownlee To Benefit By Work of Club To-morrow Afternoon.

CITIZENS INVITED.

Kiwanis Club will tomorrow bear out its motto: "We Build."

The members will take hammer and saw in hand and erect a building at the corner of Aylmer street and Charlotte street for J. R. Brownlee, the basket maker. Mr. Brownlee, who is well known to Peterborough citizens through his expert manufacture of basketry, though he is blind, will also conduct a new stand there.

The building will be a substantial, though portable, structure about 10 x 16 feet, large enough to accommodate newspapers and magazines and a display of basket work, with room for Mr. Brownlee to work.

Assistance in planning the building was obtained from the Institute for the Blind, and the materials are being purchased and the labor supplied by Kiwanis Club.

Work will start about one o'clock, and a new relay will take over about four o'clock, so that the operations should be completed by nightfall. Though the Kiwanians are mostly office executives and novices in the art of carpentry, their good work in erecting the buildings in Jackson Park for the Health Association was a good initiation for the job on hand tomorrow. There were two or three near casualties in the operations at Jackson Park, but "Safety First" has been adopted as the motto for tomorrow.

Citizens are cordially invited to turn out and boost the work which will result in a great benefit to a well-known citizen.

If the Kiwanians succeed in making the building waterproof, Mr. Brownlee expects to open up business immediately.

The building will be open to inspection after Harry Huffman assures himself that it will not fall down if crowded.

FELL FROM BALCONY.

Mrs. Condon of Bobcaygeon, Fell From Second Floor of Hotel.

LINDSAY, April 16.—Mrs. Condon, widow of the late owner of the Rockland Hotel, Bobcaygeon, met with a severe accident to-day at two o'clock. She walked out on the second floor balcony of the hotel, and in some unaccountable manner the railing gave way and she fell to the street. Death was instantaneous. She had been a victim of heart trouble, and it is believed that she took a weak spell while on the balcony and fell against the railing. An inquest will be held.

First Air Piracy Case Lost By U. S. Government

CHICAGO, April 16.—United States Government lost its first air piracy case to-day when Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson found for the defendant, the Zenith Radio Corporation, and its president, E. F. McDonald, Jr., who had been accused of violating the wireless act of 1912 by broadcasting on a wave length apportioned to two Canadian stations, one in the East and another in the West.

OLD AGE PENSION OF $240 A YEAR WOULD SAVE NO ONE FROM POOR HOUSE, MR. MEIGHEN SAYS OF BILL

Promises To Aged Indigents is "Pure Hypocrisy" Declares Opposition Leader.

DEBATE ON BILL.

Liberal Appeals To Members For Support of Hunmanitarian Legislation.

OTTAWA, April 17 (Canadian Press).—The bill to provide for old age pensions was given second reading in the House of Commons Friday.

In committee on the bill, George Black (Conservative, Yukon) stated that the wording would not permit the Yukon territory to come under the proposed pension scheme. Other Conservative members supported Mr. Black and Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, agreed with his view.

W. G. McQuarrie (Conservative, New Westminster) said that the Government seemed to be dropping into a slovenly manner of drafting legislation. He thought that it would be advisable for the Government to submit the bill to someone who had some knowledge of drafting legislation. Sections 2, 3 and 4 of the bill were allowed to stand, and the committee proceeded with consideration of Section 5.

Destined to Fail.

Hon. H. H. Stevens (Conservative, Vancouver Centre) spoke of the hopelessness of the legislation until a conference of the provinces had been called. The legislation was destined to fail because the provinces would pass a diversity of laws without any uniformity dealing with old age pensions.

Dr. King pointed to the advantages of a centralized power in the Federal Government, which could guide the provinces to uniformity in their laws in this matter.

A. U. G. Bury (Conservative, Edmonton East) said it was foolish to force the bill through until a conference of the provinces had been called and a uniformity of legislation assured.

Hon. Charles Marcil (Liberal, Bonaventure) declared that he had confidence that this measure, after it had passed the Federal Parliament, would receive the fullest consideration on the part of the Province of Quebec.

J. L. Brown (Progressive, Lisgar) said the bill was following a proper course. It was essential that some "concrete proposition" should be approved by the Federal Government and placed before the province.

P. McGibbon (Conservative, Muskoka) thought that the bill would not be effective because its application depended too much upon the decision of the provinces.

Humanitarian Scheme.

Dr. A. M. Young (Liberal, Saskatoon) reminded Mr. McGibbon of a remark that gentleman had made earlier in the day about the Soldiers land Bill, that it was primarily for political purposes. Dr. Young invited Dr. McGibbon to "join with the other men—and the lady—in the House, to put through one piece of humanitarian legislation. If there is any political advantage to be gained, we can all share in it."

Dr. McGibbon said that he was very willing to assist in the passage of humanitarian legislation. He objected to this bill because he did not believe that it would benefit anybody. Dr. Young felt sure that if the Federal Parliament gave the land, the Provincial Legislatures in time would co-operate to make the bill effective throughout Canada.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition, said that under the bill as it stood, the Governor-in-Council really had the power to re-draft the whole bill.

"I don't see how anyone can come out of the poorhouse on this bill. Who can come out of the poorhouse on $240 a year?" asked Mr. Meighen.

Pure Hypocrisy.

"The Federal Government might help the provinces to maintain the poorhouses by the present bill, but that would be all.

"It is pure hypocrisy on our part to throw out promises to the aged that the shadow of the poorhouse is to be removed from them," he said.

Miss MacPhail interrupted to point out that a man and wife would receive $40 a month, and $20 a month was enough to keep a single person as a paying guest.

"You can't possibly, on $240 a year, mantain old people in the comfort they are kept at present in the homes for the aged," declared Mr. Meighen.

A. De Witt Foster (Conservative, Hants, Kings) could not see how Nova Scotia was going to enter into an agreement with the Federal Government on a fifty-fifty basis to maintain old age pensions. The Federal Government should assume the entire responsibility.

Inch Of Snow In Montreal Spring Only On Calendar

MONTREAL, April 17 (Canadian Press).—Further evidence that spring so far is to be found only in the calendar was seen in Montreal's wintry streets Friday. Snow began to fall between five and six o'clock and before noon over an inch had covered the ground, bringing the total snowfall to date this month up to 11 inches, or a little more than twice the previous 51 years' normal for the whole of April.

QUEBEC CENSOR TOO STRICT FOR FILM BUSINESS

Distributors Threaten To Cut Off Supplies of Movies After Aug. 1st.

TOO MUCH TROUBLE.

Quebec Censorship Described as Worst in World By Col. Cooper.

MONTREAL, April 17 (Canadian Press).—Montreal and other cities of the Province of Quebec are to be boycotted by United States film distributors after August 1, and the prospects are that after that date moving picture houses here will have to close down. This announcement was made Friday at a meeting of local motion picture distributors called specially to consider the situation.

"Orders have been received by local distributors from New York not to take any more orders for presentation of films in Quebec after August 1," stated Colonel John Cooper, of Toronto, president of the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada.

Colonel Cooper attributed the orders to the censorship here. "Motion picture censorship in Quebec is the worst in the world. We have had trouble with the Censor Board here for years," added Colonel Cooper.

"Quebec has a perfect right to make its own laws, but we reserve the right to determine whether we will live under those laws, or do business under those laws.

"For years the distributors have been faced with this situation of their films, acceptable anywhere else, coming up here and being cut by the Censor Board. So much has this been done that Quebec has not proved a profitable market, and for that reason there is no use doing business here. Quebec represents less than one per cent. of the market for films on this continent," stated Colonel Cooper.

SIZE OF CABINET BEING REDUCED

ELLIOTT TAKES THEM.

OTTAWA, April 17. Canadian Press. — Hon. H. S. Beland has resigned the portfolio of Minister of Health and Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment, and Hon. J. C. Elliott, Minister of Labor, has been sworn in as minister of these two departments. Official announcement to this effect was made last night. Mr. Elliott will now administer three departments: those of Labor, Health and Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment.

There is no intention, it is stated, to absorb either the Department of Health or of Soldiers' Re-Establishment in the Depatment of Labor.

Hon. Mr. Beland's resignation from the King government, it is pointed out, is for the purpose of reducing the size of the Cabinet.

Earthquake April 21 Is Warning On Eggshell

NORTH BAY, April 17 (Canadian Press).—"Earthquake, beware, April 21," is the terse warning on the shell of an egg found by Mrs. Alfred Turner, on the floor of her hen house. The inscription is in raised lettering, resembling a child's attempt at printing, which is slightly darker than the remainder of the shell.

FEAR THAT MEN WERE DROWNED

Three Fishermen Have Not Returned From Trip on Lake.

NEAR KINGSTON.

KINGSTON, April 17 (Canadian Press).—It is feared that Claude Dulmage and Slim Pyett, two fishermen who reside at Point Traverse, Prince Edward County, have lost their lives while going to attend their nets, located in the open channel between Prince Edward County and the Main Ducks.

According to information received the men left Point Traverse on Tuesday and went in an easterly direction. Nothing has since been heard of them.

Mr. Dulmage has a wife and one child, while Pyett has a wife but no family.

FRENCH FRANC LOWEST RECORD

HEAVY SELLING.

LONDON, April 17. — (United Press.)— French francs fell to a new low record for all time to-day on the local bourse.

Heavy selling drove the franc to 145 1-4 to the pound sterling compared with yesterday's close of 144 1-2. Belgian yesterday 131 1-2.

PARIS, April 17. — (Canadian Press.)—The franc was quoted this morning at 79.82 to the dollar, notwithstanding encouraging receipt of voluntary contributions by the committee headed by Marshal Joffre for its restoration.

This new low record non-plused the French public.

WIDER MARKET FOR MOTOR CAR

Says Vincent Eastwood, in Considering Tariff Changes.

NEED TARIFF BOARD.

Vincent Eastwood, manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, when interviewed by The Examiner this morning regarding the new budget proopsals, stated that his first impressions of the budget, referring in particular to the tariff changes, lead one to believe that the Government has shown sound judgment and courage in dealing as they have proposed, with the automotive industry. The almost unprecedented development of the automobile by the intensive popular demand, he said, has given opportunity for exploitation of the public seldom excelled and which has been taken full advantage of by the manufacturers. The difficulties of a disciple of high tariff to explain to the ordinary citizen why a Ford car, for instance, should cost him so very, very, much more, in say Windsor than in Detroit has been beyond his powers of argument, Mr. Eastwood said.

The proposed adjustment will help to widen the market for cars and will encourage more Canadian workmanship in the construction of the car by virtue of the drawback on parts which is most substantial. The motor car has provided unprecedented opportunity for service as well as recreation and will steadily increase in numbers. It is the old story said Mr. Eastwood, the manufacturers for five years fully well exploited the trade and now it is retributive justice coming back rightfully to the public and at that "I am anything but a free-trader," he said.

A strong independent tariff commission is much needed to deal with such matters before they become so acute as this situation has. A powerful railway commission must also function if we are to have financial betterment speedily.

Referring again to the motor car, Mr. Eastwood said, "I would like to point out that our dealers have been vassals of the manufacturers, to far too great an extent, so much that they have been imposed upon, and restricted so that they were scarcely masters of their own capital and have been under dictatorial control unreasonably."

In conclusion Mr. East wood said "They have been the means of an immense distribution, in many cases without sufficient remuneration."

AUTO MAKERS PLAN MEETING TO TALK TARIFF

Will Meet With Other Industries Affected By Change.

AMERICAN VIEW.

General Motors Head Says Production May Be Taken Across Line.

TORONTO, April 17. Canadian Press. — Announcement was made here to-day that automobile manufacturers and representatives of commercial and industrial concerns whose business is affected by the tariff changes announced by Hon. A. J. Robb, Minister of Finance, in his budget, would meet here on Wednesday, April 21, to discuss the situation. It was estimated at the offices of the Canadian Manufacturers Association that 1,000 Canadian industries were affected by the Federal government's action in lowering the tariff that has protected the automobile manufacturing industry.

It was also stressed by the C.M.A. officials that the demand for a combined conference for all Canadian Manufacturers affected by the tariff changes had come from the manufacturers themselves.

MAY TRANSFER PRODUCTION.

NEW YORK, April 17. Canadian Press. — The effects of the Canadian tariff regulations evidently mean the transfer of production from Canadian factories to United States factories, or in other words the employing of a greeter amount of United States labor and the elimination of a corresponding amount of Canadian labor, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, declared in a statement to-day.

"Due to the fact that prices in Canada will be reduced, it is fair to assume," he added, "that consumption will be increased with correspondingly increased profit to the United State manufacturers.

"So far as General Motors is concerned operations in Canada have largely been of an assembling character and it is well equipped to operate on either side of the line to any degree that economics of the situation require. From the standpoint of the corporation as a whole, we are not particularly affected one way or the other."

OSHAWA PLANT RE-OPENS.

OSHAWA, Ont., April 17. Canadian Press. — General Motors in Oshawa will likely resume operations on Monday, according to a statement issued by the president, R. S. McLaughlin, late yesterday afternoon. The plant was closed in order to allow officials to decide upon a course of action.

DODGE PLANT DAMAGED.

TORONTO, April 17. Canadian Press. — Damage amounting to $25,000 was caused by a fire that broke out in the Toronto plant of Dodge Brothers Motor Car Company of Canada to-day. The damage was confined mainly to the roof.

The executive of the company had announced that the plant would suspend operations indefinitely from noon to-day as a result of changes in the tariff, by which the duties on imported cars are lowered. Six hundred men will be affected by the suspension.

DODGE PLANT CLOSES.

TORONTO, April 17. Canadian Press. — The Dodge Motor Car Co. of Canada suspended operation at its Toronto plant to-day, and more than 400 employees were rendered unemployed for an indefinite period.

At the same time the Durant Motor Co. of Canada also closed temporarily, affecting about 600 men.

Both suspensions were made in order that the companies might decide on future operations following the lowering of the duties on import motors.

FORD SHARES DROP.

NEW YORK, April 17. — Canadian Press. — The stocks of the Ford Company of Canada continued their toboggan on the New York curb exchange this morning, the theory of the sellers continuing to be that the proposed reduction of the Canadian tariff rates on automobiles would largely wipe out the advantage of the United States companies operating in Canada.

A recession of 25 points was registered at the opening. Since Thursday Ford stock has receded 160 points from 610.

CANADIAN FORD STOCK OFF $105 SINCE THURSDAY

Dropped From $506 To $470 Under Heavy Selling Orders.

TARIFF EFFECT.

Earned $70 a Share Last Year and Soared To $690.

NEW YORK, April 17 (Canadian Press).—Stock of the Ford Company of Canada, traded in on the curb exchange here, fell 35 points Friday, making a total decline of 105 points in two days.

The stock was offered rather freely for whatever price it would bring. Most of the selling came through Detroit wires and was the direct result, according to financial newspapers, of the reduction in the tariff on imported automobiles, which was put into effect yesterday by the Canadian Government.

The Evening Sun says: "The reduction in tariff, which amounts to 15 per cent. on cars selling under $1,200, will directly hit the manufacturer of Ford cars. Selling of the stock subsided later in the day, and a good sized rally got under way, probably on buying by those who took into accounts earnings of more than $70 a share on the stock last year and the addition of a large sur to the surplus account."

The stock sold down Friday morning to $470 a share from $506 a share, the previous closing level. During the boom in automotive stocks last year Ford of Canada sold up to $690 a share. No reflection of the break in Ford stock was shown by other motor securities traded in on the various exchanges.

The shares of the Ford Company of Canada listed on the curb are the only unit of the organization with a public market. The floating supply of the stock is extremely small, however, the majority being owned by Henry Ford, his son Edsel and their families.

JURY UNABLE TO DECIDE CAUSE OF DEATH OF M'DONALD INFANT; STRONGLY CENSURES THREE MEN

Doctors Cannot Say Whether Baby Was Born Alive.

GIRL SUBNORMAL.

Young Man Admit Illicit Relations—Jury Out Over Hour.

(By a Staff Reporter)

BRIGHTON, April 17—The jury appointed to inquire into the death of the infant girl, whose body was found under the floor of a dismantled house last Friday, after dogs had carried portions of the remains away, after listening to the evidence that was produced at the inquest last night, returned an open verdict, which stated that on the evidence submitted thy were unable to determine the cause of death. The jurors added that on account of the subnormal mentality of Norma McDonald, the mother of the child, they did not regard her as responsible for her acts.

The verdict concluded by censuring in strong terms three young men Clifford Squires, Sam Gillett and James Lovelace, who had been placed on the stand and who admitted that they had had illicit relations with the unfortunate girl, who is not yet 17 and whose mental status rendered her irresponsible. This part of the verdict was strongly commended by Dr F. M. Dure, the coroner, who conducted the inquest. The jury retired at 11 o'clock and did not arrive at a decision until 12.30.

Child's Skull Was Broken

The main issue was whether or not the child had been born alive and this the three doctors who conducted the post mortem were unable to decide as the lungs had been carried away by the dogs that mutilated the body. The heart and all the organs above the waist were also missing and the face had been entirely consumed.

Without the lungs to aid them in reaching a conclusion as to whether the child was born alive the doctors were at a loss but there was one circumstance that inclined them to the opinion that the child was living at birth and that its death was due to a fracture in the base of the skull. There had been a hemorrhage of the brain and the doctors were positive that this could not have occurred if the child was dead and the hemorrhage was due to the fracture of the skull.

The Mother Unconcerned.

The girl mother sat at the lawyer's table and appeared perfectly unconcerned and apparently took little interest in the testimony, but steadily chewed gum throughout the entire proceedings. Her eyes wandered around the room and she smiled at any one who happened to meet her glance. The three doctors who gave evidence, some of whom have known her for years, agreed that she was of sub-normal mentality and she is, besides, almost a cripple.

Many Officers Present.

The case has attracted a great deal of attention among the provincial police. Besides Inspector E. C. Gurnett, of Belleville and Provincial Constable T. W. Cousans, of Cobourg, who worked up the case, there were present at the inquest Police Chief Rouse of Cobourg, Sergeant E. Rae, of Belleville, and License Inspector F. J. Naphan of the same city. Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr conducted the case for the Crown and George Drewery, of Brighton, watched the proceedings on behalf of the young mother.

First Ghastly Clue.

The first witness called was Miss Maude Miller, who lives in the home of Thomas Cheer, almost directly across the street from the spot where the remains were found, and nearly opposite the McDonald home. On April 8, a fox terrier belonging to Mr. Cheer, came into the house carrying the hand of a child. Miss Miller took the hand away from the dog, wrapped it in tissue paper, placed it on the window sill and sent for Mr. Cheer, who was not home at the time.

Notified Police.

Thomas Cheer told of returning home and after seeing the child's hand, calling in a neighbor. Then Village Constable Spencer was notified and afterwards Coroner Dure.

Seeding Broadening Out In the Western Provinces

WINNIPEG, April 17 (Canadian Press).—Seeding was underway Friday in many subdivisions throughout the Prairie Provinces.

In Manitoba seeding was in progress in the Carberry, Napinka, Minnedosa and Snowflake districts. Work was well ahead in the terrtiory around Indian Head, and other Saskatchewan points. In Alberta operations were reported in the Aldersyde subdivision. Harrowing and ploying are general.

POTATOES REACH VERY HIGH PRICE

Were $4 a Bag on Farmers' Market and Scarce at That.

EGGS PLENTIFUL.

Design—Potatoes reach ....

Potatoes were $4 a bag on the farmers' market this morning, and were very scarce into the bargain. Eggs were very plentiful, and sold all the way from 25 to 32 cents a dozen, and butter sold generally at 45 cents a pound, with a few offerings at 40 cents. Chickens were a negligible quantity, very conspicuous by their absence, the available supply selling at 35 cents a pound, while hens were 30 cents a pound. A few ducks were priced at 25 cents a pound.

Maple syrup was priced generally at 75 cents a quart, one dealer dropping his quotation to 65 cents. Apples were selling at 50 cents a peck for Spys, and 25 cents for Tolman Sweets and Russets.

Small Yorkshire piglets were $15 a pair. White onions were 10 cents a quart.

THE WEATHER.

With the snow still piled high in many places, and with a snowstorm yesterday morning sufficiently deep to necessitate the bringing out of the snow plows once more, it looks as if we were to have a very late spring. It is already about three weeks behind schedule. Highest temperature yesterday 40 degrees; lowest last night, 24 degrees.—W. P.

PARENTS AND FOUR CHILDREN DROWNED BY FLOOD IN ALBERTA

Ice Jam in Athabasca River Broke, Inundating Lowland With Torrent That Caught Family Driving in Wagon.

NO TRACE OF VICTIMS BY SEARCHERS.

EDMONTON, Alta., April 17 (Canadian Press).—An entire family of six members, father, mother, and four children were swept to their deaths by the waging flood of the Athabasca River Thursday afternoon, according to word received by Inspector Piper, of the Alberta Provincial Police yesterday.

The victims of the flood are Fred Brestlin with his wife and four little ones, the oldest of whom was nine years of age. The father was a farmer in the Whitecourt district where he had been living for some ears.

In Path of Torrent

According to the report from the Provincial police officer, Brestlin and his family were driving along the road on their own land about a quarter of a mile from the river, which was pent up by the ice jam. They were travelling in a large truck wagon drawn by a team of horses. Suddenly the ice dam which held back the water in the river lo sened at one side and the torrent of ice and water came roaring over the lowland directly on top of the party. To make their escape was impossible, and almost in a moment the wagon was carried away by the flood with the six persons clinging on in the hope of saving their lives. The horses managed to break clear of the wagon and they were rescued a short time later by residents of the district. Early Friday morning the box of the wagon was also found at the edge of the flood in an upturned condition.

No Trace of Bodies

No trace has been discovered of the ill-fated family, and it is feared that it will be impossible to find the bodies until the river subsides. A search party is now out and are giving every possible assistance to the police.

In the meantime the main dam of the river, seven miles below Whitecourt, is still holding fast but efforts are being made to loosen it. Until the water is freed many of the residents of the flats along the shore are in danger.

Bearded Lady, Always Shy Orders Her Body Cremated

NEW YORK, April 17 (Canadian Press) — The shyness which Krao, ultra-feminine bearded lady of the sideshows, overcame for thirty years to turn misfortune into prosperity, holds sway with her death. Krao, known in the circus as the missing link" died yesterday of influenza, leaving instructions that her hairy body be cremated so that her peculiarities could no longer be exhibited. Despite her appearance she was exceedingly feminine, according to her friends in the circus.

LITTLE RESPECT FOR LAW FOUND IN THE STATES

Judge Ascribes Lawlessness in America To Lack Of Respect.

ESCAPE IS EASY.

Chances 100 To One Against Murderer Being Executed.

NEW YORK, April 17 (Canadian Press).—There are at large in the United States thousands of men and women murderers who have never been brought to justice, declared Marcus Cavanagh, Judge of the Superior Court of Chicago, in an address last night at the annual dinner of the National Metal Trades Association at the Hotel Astor. There were in the United States last year, he said, more than 10,000 criminal homicides as compared with 100 in England.

Judge Kavanagh declared that the conditions of lawlessness in the States was unparalleled in the history of civilization.

"There is no mystery as to why we have so much crime in this country," he said.

"Evil minded men in the United States have no respect for the law, because their experience has been that they need have little fear of its penalties. A man knows that the chances are three to one that he never will be arrested if he kills, twelve to one he never will be convicted, and more than one hundred to one he will not die for his crime."

MURDER TRIAL.

Son Accused of Strangling Mother.

QUEBEC, Quebec, April 17. Canadian Press. — Eugene Bigaouette will stand his trial next week on a charge of murder, the Grand Jury yesterday having returned a true bill against him.

Biagouette is charged with strangling his mother.

Mrs. Bagouette was found dead in her room one morning in October last. Evidence given at the inquest by a doctor who performed an autopsy, showed that the woman had come to her death by strangulation. She had also been beaten on the head and lying beside her was found a bloodstained broomstick.

ROBB'S STATEMENT.

Refunds Granted if Overpayments Make Under Present Tax.

OTTAWA, April 17 (Canadian Press).—In reply to enquiries as to the effect of the income tax proposals, Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, has issued the following statement:

"The changes in the Income Tax Act announced in the budget will apply to incomes of 1925 and thereafter, but cannot be acted upon until after an Act has been passed by both Houses of Parliament and royal assent has been given.

"Taxpayers may, however, on their own responsibility, estimate their own tax liability under the existing law, or the budget proposals of April 15, 1926, and pay accordingly on or before the 30th of this month; but no assessments will be levied until after the bill becomes law. When approved, refunds will be granted in cases where overpayments have been made.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS

Fatigue and that tired feeling is the result of poison in the blood. When the kidneys fail to remove this poison from the system it leads to backache, rheumatic pains and sometimes to that fatal ailment known as Bright's disease. When this condition exists, don't delay, go to your drugist and get a box of Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills and they will quickly correct the cause of your trouble.

Mrs. Arthur Pinch of Smith Township states that Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills give him more speedy relief than any other preparation that he had tried.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

WHAT a day it has been! And it is now toward evening, abont the time when men take their homeward way, the days' work being done. I wonder where all the people have beeu to-day? In great numbers, they are now returning to the city, but instead of the hubbub that is usually associated with a crowd, there is a strange silence. Every voice is quiet and subdued; and there is more than the suggestion of much pent-up emotion which is being suppressed with great difficulty. Surely they have not been mere sightseers to-day. Look at their dusty and toil-stained appearance. And make note of these things in their hands that speak of serious and dangerous work. This must be an army. But it is not an army on parade. No bands are playing; and this is not the atmosphere of the parade ground. Why then, with no enemy pursuing them, is there no appearance of victory or triumph? Why this general air depression and sorrow?

THE day was one never to be forgotten by those who lived through its hours. It had commenced and continued well, but the close of it had brought nothing but the most bitter disappointment. The occasion was the tragic death of a Prince. All through its long hours a king had been concerned for the success of his army, and a father for the fate of his son. The battle has been fought. It has been lost and won. Messengers are sent on ahead to carry the tidings to the king. "And David sat between the two gates: and the watchman went up to the roof over the gate unto the wall, and lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold a man running alone. And the watchman cried, and told the king. And the king said, if he be alone, there is tidings in his mouth. And he came apace, and drew near. And he called, and said unto the king, All is well. And he fell down to the earth upon his face before the king, and said, Blessed be the Lord thy God, which hath delivered up the men that lifted up their hand against my lord the king."

As those words fell from the messenger's lips, those who stood near by saw a strange look of anxiety steal across the countenance of the king. And they thought, what can be the meaning of such a look as has taken possession of the king's face. Why did not the king hasten and give command that the banners should be lifted to the breeze, the bells and the bands make melody, and the whole populace express the nation's pride in the success of the royal arms?

Sunshine and shadow are never far apart. And for everything there is a reason though for a time it may not be visible even to the brightest intellect. If we had but patience to wait, and faith to believe, the reason for what seems both unusual and perplexing would commend itself to the best instincts of every well-balanced human being. It was so in this case.

Is the young man safe? This is the language of love, and many waters cannot quench it. Oh, what pathos is pulsating in the question that fell from the king's lips. The lips of a king are made the medium through which the love of a father's heart is let loose in words which are as pertinent to-day as when first uttered. "Is the young man safe? No king was ever more kingly than Israel's Shepherd King and no man was ever more human than David was. No wonder the Bible calls him 'the man after God's own heart.'

In this picture, taken from the pages of an old book, we have a foregleam of that most wonderful of all stories, commonly called, 'The Prodigal Son.' If Absalom had returned in penitence, what a welcome he would have had and what rejoicing there would have been in the palace at the close of that tragic day. But that could never be in his case, for he was dead. And never again would the father look into the eyes of his erring boy to tell by his look that love would cover a multitude of sins. The past can never be recalled. It is done with till the day of judgment. Let us live though to-day so that we may have no vain regrets tomorrow. Instead of joy there is sorrow. Instead of laughter there is lamenting. Instead of mirth there is mourning. Instead of the dance there is the funeral dirge. "And the king was much moved, and went up to the chamber over the gate, and wept: and as he went, thus he said, O my son Absalom, my son, my son Absalom! would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!"

The grief of the father's heart eclipsed what would otherwise have been a day of great rejoicing. "And the victory that day was turned into mourning unto all the people; for the people heard say that day how the king was grieved for his son. And the people gat them by stealth that day into the city, as people being ashamed steal away when they flee in battle."

Why is it that we cannot have the sweet without the bitter? Why should every rose have a thorn? The answer to these questions is to be found in the tragedy of that first transgression by which man was estranged from God. In some mysterious way, all creation suffered with him in a catastrophe more terrible than men have yet realized.

Even the Son of God had to take the bitter with the sweet and when in mockery they placed a crown on his brow, it was a crown of thorns. In connection with that first transgression, it is written: "Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee." But if your heart is bleeding because of the thorns, remember that it is written of a time that is even now on its way, "Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree."

News usually travels fast—especially bad news! And bad news is the reason for this general air of depression and sorrow that is abroad. When a crowd of men look sad there is great reality in the gloom. As they approach the city, every voice is hushed, every footstep as soft as can be. There are times when silence is the most eloquent expression of the sympathy we feel. At such times, speech that is audible seems an intrusion if not a sacrilege. The grip of the hand, the glance of the eye, are enough to convey the deepest and best feelings of the heart. There is nothing the people can say to the king, in the hour of his bereavement, that will so well convey the sympathy they feel as their demeanour while every man wends his silent way to his own house.

Oh! what revelations come in the hour of death. And what revelations will come in the hour that lies on the other side of death. What will all our pomp and show amount to then? We remember the words of a French Bishop as he looked into the dead face of a king: "What shadows men are, and what shadows they pursue." And last of all there is 'The Valley of the Shadow' into which each of us must go alone. This is the shadow that constitutes the abiding sadness of life. And if we know not Him, Who is the life and the light of men, the shadows of that dark valley will never lift for us, but will deepen into the gloom of the night of eternal despair!

Again, that question, "Is the young man safe?" And the answer must be, "No! not unless the keeping of his life has been surrendered to The Man of Nazareth." No man, either young or old ever was disappointed in Him. Never yet has He lost anything committed to His care. He will give beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness. If your burden is more than you can carry let Him share it with you. If your heart aches, let Him prove to you that there is balm in Gilead for every heart wound. And you will find a richer meaning, than perhaps you have yet found, in these words:

"Come, ye disconsolate, where'er ye languish;
Come to the mercy-seat, fervently kneel;
Here bring your wounded hearts, here tell your anguish;
Earth has no sorrows that heaven cannot heal."

HARRY SENKLER DIES AT COAST

TRAPPING POOR.

MADOC, April 17.—Madoc people were grieved to hear the other day of the death of J. H. Senkler, K.C., of Vancouver, or as he was better known to the athletic world, "Harry" Senkler.

Mr. Senkler first came to Madoc in his boyhood days as the guest of his life-long friend, the late William Cross, who passed away in February of last year. Both men were interested in sports, and old Madocers will remember the valuable addition Harry Senkler was to the Madoc lacrosse team. In those days Madoc boasted of an excellent lacrosse team, and Harry Senkler was one who contributed largely to the success of the team. He was rated one of the greatest athletes Canada has ever produced. The Brockville Recorder and Times says of him: "He was the perfect sportsman, giving of his best at all times, always generous to an opponent and always playing the game." Old Madoc friends will regret to hear of the passing of this professionally and athletically successful man, who at one time gave of his best to Madoc.

The second meeting for the organization of a branch of the Eastern Star was held last night in the Orange Hall. Everything points to a successful Chapter being instituted in the near future.

Provincial Officer Ted Hill has been transferred from Madoc to Bancroft. Mr. and Mrs. Hill have given up their house on St. Lawrence street and expect to move to Bancroft this week.

W. Hawthorne has purchased the house and lot on St. Lawrence street east, owned by W. Davidson.

The house owned by Parker Embury on St. Lawrence street, west, has been sold to John Allan, who intends selling his farm and moving into town.

The trapping season about Madoc is very late. In fact, acocrding to one devotee, the chances are slim for any trapping at all this season.

A most successful dance was held on Wednesday evening in the Armouries under the auspices of the Sacred Heart church. A very large crowd attended and all are enthusiastic over the very enjoyable evening spent. The proceeds amounted to one hundred and thirty dollars.

THE CHILDREN'S CORNER.

ONCE upon a time a king and queen had a daughter who was beautiful and amiable, and good. She was so lovely and good that the queen of fairies heard of her and came to reward her.

"I have come to tell you," said the fairy, "that I have heard of your beauty and kindness and have come to reward you. Here are three wishes. Choose which of the three you want. First, you may be a bird, to go from one end of the earth to the other with no one to say nay or interfere. Second, you may be a butterfly, with no care in the world, only to be gay and happy and beautiful. Third, you may be a flower whose sweet perfume will cheer those who are unhappy, soothe them when they are ill, and a cheerful companion always."

"Then the princess said: "If I were a bird, I might fly too far from my home and friends and forget to return, so I will not be a bird. If I were a butterfly I might think more of my pleasure and ease than of my duty, and my beauty might cause me to be vain. So I will be the flower, to help and comfort those who may be in need." Then the fairy queen waved her wand, and the princess became the flower mignonette.

THE BEGINNING OF SIN

Text: Genesis 3 1-12.

Now the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made. And he said unto the woman, Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?

And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden:

But the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die.

And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die:

For God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil.

And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat.

And the eyes of them both were opened, and they knew that they were naked: and they sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons

And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day: and Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the Lord God amongst the trees of the garden.

And the Lord God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou?

And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself.

And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat?

And the man said, The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 18. The Beginning of Sin.—Genesis 3 : 1-12.

From the loftiness of the creation of an orderly universe out of chaos, and of man made in the image and likeness of God himself, we turn very quickly to the tragedy of history in the marring of human life by sin, and in the shadow that, through sin, has fallen upon the universe.

The fall of men and the doctrine of human depravity have been discussed at great length. Scientists and theologians have discussed it interminably and in modern times, largely under the influence of the doctrine of evolution, there has tended to be a reversal of former conclusions. This has found expression in the claim of some that "the fall was a fall upward," that instead of lapsing from a condition of loftiness of character and of conscious goodness man's apparent fall marked really the perceptions of moral distinctions and the dawning of moral freedom.

Even though this involved human error and the sad consequences of sin, the teaching of those who held this view is that man's freedom and his consciousness of the impulses toward goodness made progress possible. Such a conception will be found worked out in many books. One might mention particularly the late John Fiske's portrayal of "Man's Rise From the Innocence of Brutehood."

Evidence of Degeneration.

Over against this conception there is the opinion of those who, not denying the evidences of evolution, find that the evidence is equally strong for degeneration. They see a sad and terrible reality in sin which is too often neither merely the negation of good nor the error through which one discovers his mistake and improves upon his experience to come to higher things. They see in sin a damning, overwhelming, terrible, catastrophic power of evil that destroys the souls of men.

There is plenty of evidence in life that the fall of men was real enough, and though the doctrine of total depravity may have been pushed to great extremes, the world in which we live reveals every day horrible evidences of the degradation to which man can descend.

Nor is this power of evil manifest merely in the poor, the weak, and the illiterate. We find men of intelligence and of great power of will who put their strength into ways of selfishness and tyranny.

Where great men have not been moved with the spirit of compassion that inspired Christ, and that pure unselfishness that made him mindful only of the life of service and of devotion to his Father's will, they have too often been almost fiends incarnate, who have scourged humanity with the lashes of their ambition and their greed for wealth and power. Even where such men have not been fiends incarnate, selfishness and false ambitions have made them powerful in anti-social and unjust ways.

It is a great weakness of our age that we do not always dare to face sins as sins and call things by their plain names. Just at present psychology is helping in some measure in the false emphasis that science has sometimes given, and there is a tendency to condone and explain away as "complexes" the things that our plain spoken forefathers knew to be gross and vile sins.

Calls It Allegory.

Need we say much concerning the interpretation of this story of the beginning of sin? Manifestly it is an allegory. If we had not been obsessed with undue literalism and with false theories of verbal inspiration in our reading of the Bible, we should never have regarded it in any other light.

Anywhere else in literature we would immediately regard as an allegory a story in which a serpent spoke and acted as the serpent is represented as acting in this record. So also the very terminology, "the tree of the knowledge of good and evil," etc., brings us into the world of allegory.

The mistake, of course, is in imagining that a mythical or allegorical story may not be a very real statement of truth. One would not think of calling John Bunyan's "Pilgrim Progress" untrue because it is an allegory. On the contrary, it is a figurative and literary conception of the greatest of all truth. So here though we should do an injustice to the narrative if we interpreted it with crude and narrow literalness, we should also do a great injustice to it if we should fail to grasp its truth.

The writer was accounting for the fact of sin in human life, and the teaching of this narrative is that the consciousness of sin arose with the consciousness of disobedience. That is exactly where sin arises today.

It is in the discovery of the true laws of God and in obedience to them that man finds life, just as it is in the failure to discover these laws, and in the failure to obey them when discovered, that man enters upon the path of sin that leads to death.

MUST PAY ON DIVIDENDS.

One feature of the revised income tax regulations as announced by Hon. J. A. Robb on Thursday that should not escape attention by those who are still liable to pay the levy is that henceforth dividends from companies paying the Canadian income tax are taxable.

Formerly a tax of 10 per cent. on the income of companies was enacted, but shareholders drawing dividends from such companies did not have to include these divdends in the statement of their earnings for purposes of taxation.

Now the normal tax on the companies is reduced to 9 per cent., but persons who receive dividends from them must include them in their income returns, and they will be taxed in the same way as are yearly earnings.

Wage-earners will regard this change as an equitable re-arrangement.

It has always been a sore point with those who work for a yearly salary that they had no escape from paying this levy, while other people whose source of income was from dividends or whose income could not be definitely learned got off Scot-free.

THE INCOME TAX CHANGES.

The most popular feature of Hon. Mr. Robb's Budget proposals is undoubtedly the substantial measure of relief from income taxation announced by the Minister.

How he succeeded in securing the assent of Mr. Forke and his followers to this drastic reduction in the face of the oft-expressed Progressive admiration for the income tax as a fair and simple method of obtaining revenue, has not yet been disclosed, but Canadian wage-earners, who are the chief gainers by the modification arranged, are not disposed to look a gift-horse in the mouth.

They are satisfied to accept the greater exemptions provided as a very satisfactory contribution toward a lower cost of living, married persons now being exempt on incomes under $3.000 a year and single persons on incomes under $1,500, and to applaud a re-arrangement which puts Canadians practically on the same footing in regard to the income tax as the people of the United States, the only difference so far as exemptions go being that our married neighbors do not have to pay the tax on incomes less than $3,500.

The income tax changes will not be criticized in any quarter.

Newspapers of all shades of politics have long been begging the Government to take such a step, and the cut will be enthusiastically applauded.

A POPULAR CANADIAN GONE.

The death in Montreal early yesterday morning of Col. George H. Ham removes one of the most widely known and popular Canadians.

George Ham, for many years a Canadian newspaper man and more recently known as a publicity representative for the Canadian Pacific Railway, had travelled many times from one end of this country to the other, and his friends were legion.

A man of great personal magnetism and charm, with an irrepressible wit, an immense gird of good stories, many of them founded on his own personal experiences, rare ability as an after-dinner speaker, and a wonderful "mixer," George Ham was the life of every party in which he found himself.

He was a native of our own district, born in Trenton and brought up in Whitby, and was a frequent visitor to Peterborough, numbering among local citizens many friends and acquaintances, as he did everywhere in the Dominion.

His book, "Reminiscences of a Raconteur," which many Examiner readers have perused with interest, shows in every chapter the love for Canada, Canadian things and Canadian people that characterized this big-hearted, jovial and loveable Canadian.

THE EFFECT ON OSHAWA.

Canadian automobile manufacturers, after consideration of the Government's proposal to slash the tariff on motor cars 15 per cent. in the case of cars selling under $1,200 and 7 1-2 per cent. on higher-priced automobiles, have issued a statement to the effect that the tariff changes are a staggering blow to the Canadian automobile industry.

This statement is sharply emphasized by the fact that the huge plant of the General Motors Company at Oshawa closed down indefinitely, throwing 3,000 people out of employment for the time being.

Peterboro people can appreciate what that condition of affairs will mean to our neighbors if the shut-down continues by supposing that the C. G. E. works here were to suddenly close their doors.

Oshawa is absolutely dependent upon the General Motors for employment for her army of workers, because several other Oshawa plants, in addition to the General Motors factories themselves, depend upon the big firm for the orders that keep them going.

No place in Canada will be as hard hit as the Motor City by the tariff re-adjustment, although the effect will be severely felt in Walkerville and other Border Cities centres.

AND THEY COST HALF A MILLION.

Parliament has been in session since January 7—97 days. During that period our four thousand dollar a year Senators have earned their stipend and vindicated their patriotism by sitting exactly nine days, or about 18 hours. Eighteen hours out of nearly three and a half months.

On Tuesday night these same legislators, no doubt wearied from their exertions for the state, met for something like an hour and a half, and adjourned until May 4.

The Senate costs the people of this country over half a million dollars a year. The exact figure in 1925 was $575,000.

The Journal has never been overly enthusiastic about Senate reform. We have always put such electioneering talk into what the man in the street inelegantly terms "bunk." Yet, contemplating the Senate's record this year, it might be well, we suggest, if between election times the people of this country gave a little more attention to what they are paying for this body, and what they are getting for their money.

It is uite true—The Journal has frequently commended it—that the Senate has at various times during the past few years saved the country a great deal of money by killing unwise legislation. But that does not justify it dozing in indolence for months at a time when, if it is the body it pretends to be, there must be much useful work that it can do.—Ottawa Journal.

LUTHER BURBANK.

The work accomplished by Luther Burbank as probably the greatest creative horticulturist the world has seen has been somewhat obscured during the past few months by publicity given to his denial of faith in the existence of a future state. Willing to admit some great universal power he could not make this conform with belief in the continuity of life after death. "We must look for survival in the spirit of the good we have done in passing through life," he said only a few weeks before his death.

The great majority while disagreeing with his views on immortality must render homage to that lofty spirit which gave 50 years of his life in service to his fellows and was content to face eternal negation and leave behind a "wholesome memory on the earth."

Like our own Dr. Saunders, who has added millions in new wealth to a continent by his discovery of "Marquis" wheat, Burbank's first great service, the rearing of the "Early Rose" potato, which has enriched to an almost incalculable extent the world's food supply, brought no money and little fame. For years he worked as an ordinary farm laborer. Later, on a tiny holding he developed those more than 100,000 new forms of plants and flowers which have added so enormously to the comfort and beauty of mankind.

Great as was his contribution to the world's well being, his personal story will remain as an even more valuable asset. For the most part in poverty, lacking the solace of wife or child, and with almost infinite patience, he gave his toilsome years to a passion for creation that new beauty might have birth and greater happiness be brought to others.

Men of faith more robust than that of Luther Burbank will be inclined to believe that the Great Creator will understand the mental kink that could not accept the doctrine of personal survival and surely find for him an honored place in that garden of great souls who gave all their days to the service of love and beauty.—Ottawa Journal.

SMUGGLING.

Apart altogether from its political aspect, the Commission of Enquiry which has been sitting for some weeks at Ottawa has revealed that smuggling is widespread and that it has assumed such proportions as to be a serious drain on the commerce of this country.

Business men representing all sections of the Dominion regardless of politics made emphatic protest yesterday against the lax enforcement of the law and suggested practical method by which the traiff in contraband goods might be stopped. Jail sentences, restitution of the pilfered money, and deprivation of citizenship were some of the methods suggested by the delegation for stopping these fraudulent evasions.

For the individual there is obviously something attractive in smuggling. Men and women who are wealthly enough to disregard the amount of the tax delight in hoodwinking the customs officials and regard a lie or subterfuge used in support of their deceit as a mark of cleverness rather than an immorality. They boast of having brought this or that piece of contraband from abroad right under the very nose of the inspector and their friends applaud their ingenuity and their daring. The amount of taxation of which each of these duty-evaders robs the Government is not large in itself, but the sum total of their petty thefts aggregates an immense sum.

The danger, however, does not stop there. When evasion of the law becomoes a commendable practice, it is a short step to contempt for that law, which leads to customs duty evasion on a larger scale. One of the delegation which waited on the Government yesterday estimated that 40 per cent. of the imports of this country which should legitimately pay duty on entry escaped payment by the dishonesty of unscrupulous importers. This is a serious matter. When dishonest men on this side of the line co-operate with partners whose conscience is moulded by the dollar mark in another country, and in conspiracy set themselves to defeat the organized forces of Government in evasion of the law, it is obvious that while some of them will occasionally be detected there will be a large drain on the national treasury. The more successful these fraudulent importers are the bolder they grow and the more defiant they become, the greater is the cost of running down and punishing the guilty when detected.

There is just one way to put an end to this smuggling, and that is by strict enforcement of the law. If one of the gang which is robbing the national treasury of millions of dollars a year is given a stiff sentence in jail and kept there to serve his term regardless of influences and "pull" it would do more to check his fraud than any other known means.

In addition to this, men and women should cultivate a new attitude towards individual smuggling. If it was regarded as something mean and despicable to rob the State of a few cents or a few dollars in order that the evader might boast of his triumph and indulge in some luxury, the practice would soon cease. If the members of the leading organizations of the city pledged themselves not to steal any longer by means of cheating the customs, there would soon be a change in the attitude of the public.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Even the most sensitive receiving set will not be able to catch the cheering in Oshawa and the Border Cities over the new Budget.

An Ottawa centenarian gives as a secret of longevity: "Take care of yourself and mind your own business." The latter part of this advice will lead to a pleasant life anyway, if not to a long one.

Between the backward weather and the tariff changes, automotive dealers will not find their business exactly a bed of roses.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

EVERY MAN

Every man, which means every woman also, is but a palpitating, pulsing, thrilling bunch of clay. We sustain, suffer, support, and enjoy nothing but our emotions. We throb, tremble, blow, blush, and flush with some emotion.

The ambition to "arrive" is but an hysterical hop-skip-and-jump. The eagerness to love and to be loved is but warm-hearted emotion. We are just bursting, just "bustin'," with emotion of some kind.

There are a few folks who live in a trance, in suspended animation. The coma class, the numbness number, are comparatively few and are not worth the powder to blow them to rest.

There is a fascination in living, an intoxication in trying, a mental galvanism in going on, a satisfaction in striving—otherwise we would be jellyfish.

Emotions are back of all interest in life.

Examine your emotions as you would insist on knowing your bank balance. See what is causing you to foam, fret, and flame—causing you to rage, rave, and rant. Some emotion is back of all this; and, when you find what the real emotion is, you will know more about the best way intelligently and successfully to guide your course. — The Silent Partner.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 16.—The only real demand for butchers was in the finished handyweights. On account of the competition these sold from $7.25 to $7.50 a cwt., with an occasional few a little over that. Good butchers were $6.75 to $7, but on Wednesday some fairly useful butchers around 800 lbs. each were had for $6.50 a cwt. Medium and common butcher dragged all week and prices on these were down a strong quarter a cwt. Baby beeves were not too badly wanted and only in exceptional cases did the price cross $9 a cwt., while the bulk did not average more than $8 a cwt.

The same kind of a market which has governed on cows for two months was still intact and all the choice cows sold at $6 and over and few with any merit and finish sold below $5 a cwt. Most of the week's bulls were taken for the home trade. Choice butchers' bulls were as high as $5.75 a cwt and bologna bulls sold feeders was slow, but prices were no easier. Just fair feeders, 900 lbs. were $6 to $6.25 and two extra good Western loads over 1000 lbs. each sold at $7.25 a cwt. Rogers & Maybee will want 700 to 800 cattle for next week's export, but the opinion on the yards is that any general price improvement will only result from a light run next week.

Calves have dropped a dollar to a dollar and a half a cwt. from the Easter tops and are now fairly steady in price. Choice calves are 12 to 13 cents; good calves, 10 to 11½ cents, and mediums, 8 to 9½ cents a pound.

Yearling lambs are not too plentiful and Ontarios of good quality, although a little heavy, are 14 cents a pound. Several hundred Western lambs of nice weights sold at 15 cents this week. Spring lambs are easier, with few bringing over $15 each. Sheep are steady at quoted prices.

The hog run this week was favorable to the packers, and two successive drops of 25 cents a cwt. were made, making Thursday's price $12.50 a cwt. f.o.b. Nothing definite is decided upon for next week, but buyers say they want to see $12 a cwt. market.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 16 (Canadian Press).—Weak cables and a bearish interpretation of the Canadian Government crop report issued yesterday, combined to undermine values on the grain market here today. The recession for wheat worked over a range 1 1-8c, with both May and July delivery undergoing the maximum loss. The close showed the respective futures at May $1.55 1-4; July $1.53 1-4, and October $1.33 1-2.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 16 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for grain on the Montreal market today was slack and the volume of business accomplished was smaller. This was attributed to the fact that English importers were not disposed to respond to the higher prices asked by exporters. Only sales of odd loads of oats were made.

There was no change in beans, business being still quiet with car lots of choice white hand-picked quoted at $2.40 to $2.45 per bushel, and broken lots at $2.60 to $2.65 per bushel.

The receipts of butter were 1,042 packages, as compared with 506 for the same day last week, and 444 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no improvement in the demand and business was quiet.

The receipts of cheese were 452 boxes, as against 555 for the same day last week, and 578 for the corresponding day a year ago. The condition of the market was unchanged, business being still dull in all directions and in the absence of any important transactions it is somewhat difficult to quote prices at present. The latest purchases made in the country were at 16c per lb, f.o.b. shipping point.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 16 (Canadian Press).—Big profit taking sales, together with impending shipments of wheat from the northwest to Chicago, gave a decided downturn to wheat values today. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at 3-4 to 2 1-4c net lower. May (new) $1.65 3-4 to $1.65 7-8, and July $1.40 3-4 to $1.40 7-8. Corn finished 5-8 to 1 1-8 off; oats 1-4 to 3-8 down, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 10 cents.

Many speculators took the ground that the advance of late had been too rapid and that a reaction was due, especially as Canadian Government figures implied an addition of 21,000,000 bushels to the estimated yield in the Prairie Provinces and indicated that Canada has an exportable surplus yet of 100,000,000.

WEDDING BELLS.

COUGHLIN—FARLEY.

DOURO, April 17.—A pretty spring wedding took place at St. Joseph's Church, Douro, on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, when Irene M. Farley, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Farley, became the bride of John F. Coughlin of Detroit, formerly of Lakefield. Rev. J. J. Garvey of Lakefield, cousin of the bride, performed the ceremony, and celebrated the nuptial mass.

The bride wore a gown of sandalwood flat crepe, with hat and shoes to match. Her coat was cape style in cocoa brown shade. She carried a bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid, Miss Vina Farley, sister of the bride, wore a gown of georgette in sheridan rose shade, with hat, shoes and coat to match, and carried pink carnations. The groom was supported by Mr. Harry Armstrong of Lakefield.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful pearl rosary, to the bridesmaid a white gold braclet with garnet settings, and to the groomsman white gold cuff links.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where some thirty intimate friends were present.

The bride's travelling suit was crepe de chine in black prince shade. Many splendid gifts were received by the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Coughlin leave next week for their home in Detroit, where the best wishes of many friends will follow them.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., April 17.—(Canadian Press.) — W. A road is now being built from Schreiber to the property and mining camps will be erected.

"Burning the Candle At Both Ends"

THERE is an old saying about "burning the candle at both ends" which seems to apply to modern life.

How is a girl or boy, or man or woman to enjoy social life to the limit, keep up their daily work and escape a breakdown of health.

The nervous system will not stand the strain. There is too short a time for recuperation, too little rest and sleep. The energy consumed in daily activity is not replaced—bankruptcy is sure.

You find yourself nervous, irritable and sleepless. You are worried, have nervous headaches and spells of dispondency.

A restorative is necessary and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food exactly fills the bill. Most women and many men know this from personal experience and use it as occasion arises.

Prevention is by far the wiser plan with disorders of the nerves. By using this great restorative at the first indication of trouble you avoid a physical break down and weeks of tedious treatment. Keep the vitality at high water mark and you will know the joys of healthful living. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 60cts a box; all dealers or The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto 2, Can.

RICE LAKE MUSKRATS AGREE WITH OLD "ILL WIND" PROVERB

Late Spring Has Kept Them Under Cover, Escaping Traps.

ICE IS BREAKING.

BAILIEBORO, April 17.—While W. Barnard was pruning the apple trees in his fruit orchard on Wednesday, he pulled a limb which he had sawed off a tree over a pile of leaves, and to his surprise unearthed underneath the leaves almost a bushel of Northern Spy apples that had fallen from the tree last fall before the frosts, and had been covered with leaves from the tree before the apples had become frozen. On eating the apples, it was found that they were quite firm, and had apparently retained even a better flavor than the Northern Spy apples that had been safely stored away in the cellar.

Trappers Out of Luck

The trappers at Rice Lake and the surrounding district, have so far been very unsuccessful in this season's trapping, there are no muskrats running at all as yet in the majority of the marshes, and with only another week the trappers are becoming uneasy.

At this time last year the rats had ceased running, but this spring a great number of the trappers owning good marshes, have yet to catch their first muskrat. It looks as though many of the trappers who purchased trapping licenses and traps would be out their money for the season.

Up to date the most successful catches that have been reported this spring here been made by N. Guyotte, who has been successful in catching over 60 muskrats, and A. Dawson who has over 20 hides to his credit.

The ice is moving away from the lake shore very very slowly, but it has become too badly shattered to travel on with horses or motor cars. The last traffic noticed at the head of the lake was last Saturday.

Rev. W. H. Foley made the satisfactory announcement to the members of the Fraserville United church congregations that upon making up the accounts of the churches of Bailieboro, Fraserville, and Bensfort for the past year, which ended on March 31st, that the Fraserville circuit had made than met the objective that was asked for from this circuit for the missionary cause. The amount asked for on this circuit was $1,400, over $200 of an increase over last year. But the members met the objective and even did better by going over the top this year.

So far this spring the roads in this district have discarded their cover of snow without leaving any seriously bad roads. The cars are now beginning to make their way over the majority of the sideroads, while the provincial highway is now almost dry, and cars and trucks are now travelling on it again by the scores.

In the elections of officers for the international council, Russel Colgate, of New York, was chosen president, William Hamilton, of Toronto, Ont., was elected second vice-president.

U. S. DRYS HAVE INITIAL INNINGS AT BEER PROBE

Liquor Traffic Allied With Corruption and Crime —Evils Less.

CANADA QUOTED.

Wild Parties Among Youth Exceptional, Cleveland Woman Says.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Liquor traffic before prohibition was allied with political corruption, crime, gambling and prostitution, and for that reason, 45,000,000 church members want it kept extinct, Dr. W. T. Haven, representative of the Federal Council of Churches told the Senate Prohibition Committee Friday.

Haven presented the report of the Council's administrative committee, which said:

"The social perils of alcoholism are becoming of growing concern to the statesmen of the world. If serious evils have sprung up since prohibition, they are far less than the evils which arose from the liquor traffic prior to the amendment.

"It meant the wreckage of men and the degradation of families. It produced needless inefficiency in industry.

Are Inadequate.

"Methods of control short of prohibition, such as taxation, regulation and the governmentally controlled systems of some of the Canadian Provinces and Norway and Sweden all have proved inadequate.

"The call of the hour is for such thorough-going work of moral persuasion and legal enforcement as will give the policy of prohibition an adequate opportunity to demonstrate its full value to the nation and to the world."

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, New York, President of the Council, notified the committee that the churches are "more convinced than ever before of the value of prohibition. Modification would inevitably bring back the saloon," Cadman said.

Not Foisted.

"The policy which led to prohibition was not adopted hastily," the report stated, "nor was it foisted upon the country by a puritanical minority.

"The proposal to modify the Volstead Act would make enforcement more difficult and would inevitably mean the return either of the saloon or something equally undesirable.

"Limitation upon individual freedom in matters affecting society is the price that any people must pay for the progress of its civilization. Personal liberty cannot be rightly claimed for practices which militate against the welfare of others or the interest of the community as a whole."

Is Detrimental.

The resolution stated, "that through the careful investigation of scientists and social workers, as well as the sad experience of multitudes of individuals, there has gradually developed a conviction among the vast majority of our American citizens that the use of alcoholic stimulants as a beverage is detrimental to the welfare of the nation.

"It is resolved the federation, representing 17 denominations and 750 churches in Chicago, does hereby give renewed expression of its firm belief in the wisdom of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead Act, its determination to assist in every way possible in giving loyal support to these measures, its hearty condemnation of whatever tends to weaken their effectiveness."

The resolution pleaded that the present law be strengthened and enforcement encouraged.

Canadian Clergy.

Telegrams from Canadian clergy, containing charges that liquor traffic in Canada has wrought great evils, were read. Lee W. Beatty, superintendent of the Madison Square Garden Settlement, said the east side of New York has changed since prohibition.

From 28th street to 39th street in his district there is not a single speak-easy existing today, Beatty said.

Later he said he went around to two places suspected of being speak-easies, and although he himself had suspicions, he "couldn't get a drink."

Wildness Exceptional.

Mrs. Helen H. Green of the Cleveland Council, said the drys of Cleveland wanted teeth put into the prohibition law.

Mrs. Green read a statement from Charles S. Lake, superintendent of schools, saying that "wild parties among the youth are the exceptions, not the rule." They are isolated, he said, maintaining that the morals of the younger generation were no worse than their forefathers.

MAY LEAVE FIELD TO PEGGY JOYCE

Comstock's Wife is Considering Divorce Appeal.

CHICAGO, April 17. — Peggy Hopkins Joyce may yet be permitted to go through with her plans for a fifth marriage.

The wife of the man she hoped to marry, announced she might sue for divorce and allow her husband, Stanley Comstock, to marry the former Follies star.

Mrs. Comstock said she had received a telegram from a personal friend in Miami, Fla., where Comstock and Peggy announced their plans to marry, advising her to file suit for divorce. The wire told Mrs. Comstock it was her "biggest chance, so go to it."

Comstock, a wealthy real estate operator in Florida, announced several days ago his intention to become Peggy's fifth husband, but Mrs. Comstock at that time indicated she would block the marriage by refusing to divorce her husband.

CAESAR AFRAID OF THUNDER.

It is chronicled that Caesar was terrified at thunder; that Peter the Great was afraid to cross a bridge; that Cardinal Richelieu imagined he was a horse, and would be caught running around and around a billiard table; that Goethe, George Sande and Samuel Johnson often admitted an impulse to commit suicide and that Beethoven, Schumann and Cowper actually made the attempt.

TARIFF BOARD IS ORGANIZING

Will Meet For First Time Next Thursday Afternoon.

NOT BE PUBLIC.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 17 (Canadian Press)—The newly appointed tariff advisory board has opened temporary headquarters in the offices formerly occupied by the Secretary of State in the west block of the parliament buildings. For organization purposes, the board will meet, for the first time, on Thursday, April 22, at 2.30 p.m., at its temporary offices. This first sitting will not be public in character.

Until a permanent location is settled upon, the Board, it is stated, cannot take up as quickly as it would like all the matters awaiting its consideration, but the chairman, Rt. Hon. Geo. P. Graham, last night said that organization shortly would be completed.

"We are making haste slowly, even in the matters of location and organization," stated the chairman, "because we believe the work ahead of us is sufficiently important to warrant most careful preparatory steps. As soon as we have met for organization, on Thursday next, we will be prepared to function in accord with the terms of the order-in-council under which the Board was constituted."

BUDGET CLAUSE AIDS MARITIMES

British Preferential Restricted To Goods Through Canadian Ports.

DEVELOP PORTS.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 17 (Canadian Press)—While local shipping men and board of trade officials were reluctant to discuss the effect of the "direct passage" clause in finance minister Robb's budget on maritime ports, it was agreed that the restriction of the operation of the British preferential to Canadian ports after January first next was a change of importance and of particular interest to the Maritime provinces, as British goods, to get the benefit of the preferential tariff, must be imported directly through Canadian ports from the port of shipment.

That the ports of Halifax and Saint John would benefit and develop considerably under the provision was generally believed but officials expressed the opinion that the matter would require careful study before any comprehensive statement could be made.

E. A. Saunders, secretary of the Halifax Board of Trade, said:

"In regard to customs tariff, three duties are applicable to goods entering Canada, the British preferential, the intermediate and the general. In the past, the first named has applied to goods coming into Canada indirectly, that is to say, goods arriving at New York and thence transported by rail to inland ports in Canada. The new ruling merely means that to obtain this duty, goods must be landed at Canadian ports instead of American. At the present time it cannot be said whether this would do away with the ten per cent. preference which has existed but I believe it will."

KINGSTON RAILWAY ASKS LOWER PRICES

Conference With Utilities in Regard To Cost of Power.

KINGSTON, April 17.—The members of the Public Utilities Commission held a conference with H. C. Nickle, manager of the street railway, regarding power for the street railways, but no decision was reached. Prof. Arkley, of Queen's University, has submitted a report to the Commission on the cost of power to be supplied to the street railway. The Commission is anxious to give the company power at cost, in order to keep the road in operation.

Along with street railway companies all over the world, the local company is meeting with serious losses, as a result of the automobiles.

EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS CHICAGO, JUNE 20TH-24TH, 1926

There is no doubt that this Congress will be the greatest religious demonstration ever held in the United States, and will be attended by thousands of Catholic people from all parts of the world. Canada will be largely represented and the Canadian National Railways has been accepted as the official route of the Knights of Columbus Pilgrimage from Ontario.

Plans have been perfected for the operation of personally conducted trains, and in addition to house and entertain all pilgrims desiring this service, in fact to look after their every need and comfort during the whole pilgrimage.

Any Agent of the Canadian National Railways will be glad to furnish full information and intending pilgrims would do well to make early reservations, as due to the countless thousands that will attend, accommodation will be limited. 1d

"WOMEN love trouble. If they haven't any, they go out and make some for themselves."

Morton laughed, as he reached across the table for a match.

"Don't you—all of you!" he insisted.

The girl gazed at him somberly. For a long while she made no reply, but studied his face as he blew careless smoke wreaths from his cigaret.

"You and your women!" she said, suddenly. Her jeweled fingers clung together, hard, until her knuckles showed white. "Your women—that's the only trouble." I didn't make that trouble. You make it!"

Morton laughed again.

"What's the matter with my women?" he inquired. "Aren't you one of them?" After a moment he added: "Maybe you're the only one."

Her black eyes narrowed, and her lips drew back over her white teeth.

"That isn't so! I'm not! I don't mean anything to you at all!" She took the tall glass that stood before her, and drained it. Then she turned her bare shoulder to him and stared at the dancers in the center of the room.

It was one o'clock in the morning, and activities at the club were in full swing. The room was small—surprisingly small to yield the immense profit that was said to flow to its proprietor. Two dozen tables, at the most, were crowded about the tiny dance floor.

Nearly all the tables were filled, with men and girls in evening dress. A languid couple or two danced to the music of a moaning orchestra. The folk at the tables, equally as languid, watched them picking at the scanty food that lay on their plates, and drinking. Now and then a waiter, bowing over one of the tables, would slip a pint bottle of whisky, wrapped in a napkin, into the lap of a guest.

In one corner, a young man was asleep, his head on his arm. The girl who sat with him held her arm protectingly over his shoulder. Next to her sat a man with a pasty, dead-white face, who automatically took glass after glass of raw liquor. His eyes were glazed; fishy. He stared straight before him, never moving except to fill his glass, lift it, drain it, and fill it again. There was a woman with him, who talked, but he did not look at her, nor answer.

Morton followed the gaze of his girl companion for a moment, and then turned to a survey of her.

Her hair, black and straight and glistening, clung tightly to her small head. A single strand of pearls hung around her neck, moving on her full bosom as she breathed. Her arms were rounded and shapely, adorned only with a broad bracelet on one wrist. Her dress was of gold tissue.

"Pretty fair taste," he commented, half aloud.

She turned toward him. "What?"

"I was saying to myself," he said, "that you are dressed in pretty fair taste."

Possessing himself of one of her hands, he examined it. "Fingers slender; no trace of work; too many rings—but they all wear too many, now. Two of the rings are good ones."

Her attention, though, had wandered. She looked about the room again, watching the dancers for a moment, and then inspecting the couples that sat near her.

"What do people come here for?" she demanded.

Morton dropped her hand. "Why not?"

"Oh," she said, "they all look so ghastly bored. And no wonder!" She smiled, bitterly. "There's no fun in being tough."

"Then why be tough?" he queried.

"Because they're all blasted fools," she said. "I'm a fool. You're a—you're—I don't know whether you're a fool or not."

She held her glass before her, inspecting it, and then looked at him as she had before, searchingly.

"Do you realize," she continued, "that I've known you nearly a year, and I don't know any more about you than I did at first? I don't know whether you are married, or not. I don't know whether you care anything about me, or not. I don't know one single thing about you, really."

Morton smiled, and repossessed himself of her hand. "Poor little doubting Nona! Do you want me to tell you the story of my life?"

"No, I don't." Her tone was curt. "I wouldn't believe it if you did tell me." She hesitated, and when she resumed, her voice was softer. "I guess what I really want to know is about Lois and Camelia, and—and all those girls. Harry, sweetheart, do you care about them? I mean, do you like them as well as you do me?"

Her eyes had filled with tears, and Morton patted her hand.

"Listen, Nona," he assured her. "I never told one of those women I cared anything about them."

"You never told me, either," she retorted, pulling her hand away. "That's your line! I know it! You just sit and laugh, while a girl breaks her heart about you!"

She was weeping now, her crimsoned lips twitching, and her chin quivering in little convulsive movements. Morton rubbed his cheek, reflectively, and arose.

"Come on," he directed. "We're not having a very good time. Let's go."

He handed a $50 bill to the waiter, without pausing to examine the charges on the card, and led the girl to the dimly lighted reception hall. She held her handkerchief to her eyes, but the crowd paid no attention. It was used to crying girls.

"Go in and powder your nose," he told her. "I'll wait."

Obediently she disappeared into the women's dressing room. A check boy, obviously young but singularly old-looking with his knowing eyes, and hollowed cheeks and temples, brought Morton's overcoat. He took, without a word the dollar he received as reward. Then, with Morton's silk hat and slender walking-stick, he stood at attention until Nona came. Upon her the boy bestowed a wink. She accepted it as a matter of course.

"Hello, Patsy," she said. The traces of her tears were gone.

"Be good, girlie," he responded, handing Morton the hat and cane.

The man took her elbow. "We should have had the boy at supper with us, perhaps," he commented, as they entered the elevator. "Sociable soul, isn't he?"

"Oh, I know him," she said. "He used to be call-boy at the old Casino."

"Quit the theater to get rich, eh?"

Nona laughed, a little grimly. "Nobody gets rich around these bootlegging places except the proprietor. You don't suppose Patsy gets those tips, do you? They don't let him have any pockets in his coat and pants. All tips go to the house—except the waiters'. But Patsy gets fifty dollars a week. They can't afford to have him sore, and trotting to the crown attorney."

A long, enclosed motor car was waiting in the dark street, and as Morton and Nona appeared the chauffeur disengaged his machine from the line of night-hawk taxicabs, and drew up to the curb.

"We'll take Nona home," said Morton.

The chauffeur nodded, closed the door, leaped into his seat and threw in the gear.

There was no conversation until the machine, gliding rapidly along the thoroughfare, had proceeded nearly a mile.

Then: "It might have been a very pleasant evening," said Morton.

The girl moved closer, and slipped her arm through his.

"I'm sorry, darling," she murmured. "I know I've been rotten. But I couldn't help it. If I didn't like you it would be all right. But I do!"

The car stopped at a tall apartment building. Morton stepped out, helped Nona to alight, and took her to the door.

"Goodnight," he said, stretching forth his hand.

She took it in both of hers.

"Won't you come in, dearest?" she asked, anxiously.

"No, you'd probably start another war if I did. I'll trot along home, now. I'm going back to Peterborough tomorrow."

Her hands moved up to his shoulders. "Please come—just for a little while. I want to talk to you."

He stooped and kissed her. "I'll be back next week. Maybe you'll feel better, then."

She still clung to him.

"Don't borrow trouble," he added, smoothing her hair. She sighed, and burrowed her head into the hollow of his shoulder. "Women love trouble," he laughed, "but men don't."

"I don't like trouble either," she replied, her voice muffled by his overcoat. "I just wanted to know if you were with Lois, today."

"Tut, tut! Goodnight!" He drew her hands from his shoulders, passed his fingers lightly over her uncovered head, and ran to the waiting machine.

As the car hesitated at the brightly lighted corner, he turned and waved to her. She was looking after him, and responded with a little weary gesture of her hand. She still was standing there, in the doorway of the apartment house, when the automobile disappeared.

Morton's city home was in one of those apartment buildings that are erected for the very rich, and the very extravagant. A liveried giant stood always beneath the canopy that led from the doorway to the curb. A footman waited inside the great glass doors. A telephone operator—a man with huge gray mustaches, sat in the lobby beside the elevators. Past the doorman, and the footman, and the telephone operator and the elevator attendants, guests and tenants were filtered on their way to the suites above.

As Morton came in, he nodded cheerfully to the servants, and doffed his overcoat as he entered the elevator. At his own door he produced a latch-key, and softly turned the lock. There was a bell on the doorjamb, with which to summon the butler, but at two o'clock in the morning butlers are abed.

The great drawing room was brightly lighted. No one was visible, but the pipe-organ, that filled an alcove at the far end of the room, was thundering out the strains of the "Pilgrims' Chorus."

Throwing his overcoat, and hat and cane upon a chair, Morton stepped back to the alcove. The music ceased abruptly.

"Hello, chicken," said Morton, tenderly. "Why aren't you in bed?"

A young, fair girl ran forward, and kissed him, her arm tight around his neck.

"I'm so glad you came," she cried. "I was so lonesome I wanted to cry. I've been slamming away at that old organ since ten o'clock."

Morton stood with his arm around her waist, looking anxiously at her tired face.

"It's two o'clock now," he said. "You're used up." Then he chuckled. "It's a good thing this is a soundproof apartment—I'd have had to go get you out of jail for playing that organ."

He led her to a chair, and seated her in it with grave ceremony. Then he brought a footstool, and sat upon it. She drew his head to the padded arm of the chair, and caressed his temples with her slim fingers. He reached up and took her hand, drawing it over his shoulder.

"Something's worrying you, Audrey," he said. "What is it?"

The girl reached over with her other hand, and laid it on his forehead.

"Almost everything's worrying me," she confessed. "I hate to have you go out nights, when we're here in the city, and you're spending too much money on me, and I don't feel as if I was one bit of good in the world. Maybe I'd feel differently if I were your own really truly daughter, but I'm not. And that's that."

Morton twisted his head so he could look at her. There was a quizzical light in his eye.

"Women love trouble," he quoted. "And if they haven't any they go out and make some for themselves!"

Audrey paid this the tribute of a fleeting smile, but her eyes were serious.

"How much money do you make every year?" she asked, impulsively.

"Oh, about a hundred thousand dollars," he answered. "Why?"

The girl slipped from her chair to the floor, and nestled up against him.

"Do you know," she asked, soberly, "that I wish you didn't have one penny except what you could earn with your own hands, every week, and that I could keep house for you on that, and cook your meals, and mend your clothes, and that when we went out for some fun we'd just go for a nice long walk?"

She took the button of his evening coat, and twisted it in her fingers. "If you didn't have that money, maybe all these women wouldn't be hanging around you, and telephoning you and everything. Some woman has been calling up here almost every hour, all evening."

Morton chuckled. "So you don't think they love me for myself alone?"

The girl took his hand and smoothed it between her own. "Maybe they love you—maybe they can't help it. But if you didn't have so much money you couldn't take them out places. You'd have to work, and you'd be tired at night, and would come home to me."

Morton made a little crooning noise in his throat, as one makes to a troubled child. Arising, he stooped and picked the girl up in his arms. Carefully he mounted the steps to the second story of the duplex apartment, and set her down at the door of her own boudoir.

"I do work, truly," he said, gravely. "Just because I work at a desk is no sign that I don't do hard work. But I never knew that the company of an old man like me would be missed by my pretty little kitten."

As the other girl had done, an hour before, Audrey held him by the shoulders.

"You're NOT old!" she protested. "You won't be old for years and years and years. And I'd rather be with you than with anybody else."

She slipped her two forefingers into his vest pockets, and stood a moment her eyes cast to the floor. "Why didn't you ever get married?" she resumed. "Didn't you ever want to get married? Didn't you ever see anyone you wanted to marry?"

Morton's face contracted for a moment, as at a painful thought, but in a moment he was smiling again.

"Well, I've thought about it sometimes. Have YOU?"

He tilted her head, a crooked finger beneath her chin, and looked a moment into her eyes. She turned her head away. Then, standing on tiptoe, she bestowed a swift kiss upon his cheek, and fled into her room.

"Goodnight," she called from behind the closed door.

Thoughtfully Morton descended the stairs, and sank into the big leather chair which always awaited him, in the living room. At three o'clock, he was sitting there, thinking.

For fifteen years, Harry Morton—and the girl Audrey—had interested the people of Peterborough.

When Morton first appeared there, early in the year 1910, with a little, blue-eyed, four-year-old girl holding tightly to his hand, he went directly to the Oriental Hotel, and engaged a suite of rooms—two bedrooms, and a sitting room.

Almost at once he opened an office, with the sign: "Harry B. Morton, Broker," on the door.

Just what form of property he dealt in, his neighbors in the building were not sure. What attracted their attention, and that of the folk in the lobby of the hotel, was that presently he appeared at the wheel of the largest and showiest automobile in town. In this, on Sunday mornings, and often of a week-day afternoon, he and the little Audrey would speed away for long rides over the country roads and up to the lakes.

When he bought a house, it was notable, not for its size but for the number of servants that he installed in it. This was two years after his appearance in Peterborough.

By the standards of Peterborough, a home equipped with two servants had a bit of grandeur about it. Morton engaged four for his house in the outskirts—a cook, a chauffeur, a housemaid, and a personal maid for the little girl.

Naturally, there was talk; a good deal of it.

Just as naturally, much of the talk was unfriendly.

Folk in Peterborough are just as apt to be suspicious of things and theories and people that they do not understand, as are the people on Main Street, and in Montreal, and over the remainder of the globe.

Nobody understood Morton. He continued his business, in his modest brokerage office, but Peterborough never found out exactly what that business was. Once a fortnight, and sometimes once a week, he made a journey to Toronto. Why he went the most diligent searchers after truth were unable to learn. They knew he maintained an expensive apartment there, as well as his home in Peterborough.

Evidently he had ample means. His bankers greeted him cordially; even with a little deference. Occasionally he dabbled a bit in local real estate. His motor cars were of the finest; the appointments of his house were rich; the little girl Audrey always was dressed in fashions that came from Paris.

The gossips heard, and agreed, that Morton was a bachelor; that the little girl was his adopted child; that he was close-mouthed about his past, and about his present, to a most astounding degree, and that he was the most attractive figure among all the males of Peterborough.

Further than that, there was no agreement at all. Morton himself took no pains to resolve any of their doubts. Indifferent to the talk about him in the town, he went his own way, addressing compliments to such women as he knew, offering gay companionship and hospitality to the men of his circle, giving generously to the poor.

Thus it came about, in course of time, that the unfriendliness toward him in Peterborough disappeared. The curiosity, however, remained.

On the day when he and Audrey returned from Toronto, a little crowd was gathered at the station to greet an incoming celebrity.

Morton smiled as he noted that he aroused as lively an interest as the arriving notable. He waved a greeting to the crowd, and Audrey smiled and nodded, as they entered their automobile.

"You're a regular prima-donna yourself," she said to him.

He laughed. "Some of these people are simply going to explode, some day, over the mystery of my visits to Toronto."

"Why don't you tell them?" she asked.

"Why should I?" he countered.

A neat housemaid opened the door of their home, and dropped a curtsey. She had come not long before from England, and held to the manners of the British household where she had been bred.

"Gentleman waiting to see you, sir," she said.

Morton strode into the study that led off the reception hall.

A man was sitting in an arm chair, beside the open fire. His head was sunk deep between his hunched shoulders, and his chin was on his breast. Audrey, looking over Morton's shoulder, saw him to be roughly dressed, and unprepossessing in the extreme, as Morton pulled upon the sliding door. As the door closed, she saw that the man had not risen to his feet. She heard Morton say:

"Now you explain what you're doing in my house."

CHAPTER II.

The trim house-maid, waiting in the reception hall of the Morton home, was listening at the study door. So was her mistress.

They could hear the steady rumble of voices from within, where Morton and his visitor were closeted.

The words were not distinguishable, but from time to time they could make out the voice of the stranger, raised in evident denunciation. Morton's tone was even and quiet, as always.

The door was banged open, and the stranger, struggling, was propelled through it. Morton's hand on his collar.

The little house-maid leaped to the front door, and opened it. Morton thrust the man outside, and threw after him the shabby hat and overcoat that had hung on a hall rack.

"Now stay out," instructed Morton, calmly. "Don't try to come back, and don't stay in town."

The man was swearing under his breath. He picked up the hat and coat, and with a sidelong glance at Morton and the trembling girls, he moved down the walk and out the high iron gate. Morton stood watching him as he turned to the sidewalk, and shuffled out of sight.

"I seem to have gained an appetite for luncheon," Morton said, brushing his hands together as if to remove from them a coating of dust.

Audrey clasped him by the arm, with both her hands.

"Did he hurt you?" she asked, her voice choking.

Morton patted her on the shoulder. "I never get hurt," he said. "Don't trouble yourself about it, dear. Bad little girls should not be listening at the keyhole, anyway. Did you hear anything that we said in there?"

The girl shook her head, and Morton seemed pleased. He made no explanation, and Audrey asked him for none. She hovered about him, anxiously, though, as he sat at luncheon, and insisted on serving him herself. Once she passed her hand over his slightly graying hair.

"I'm always so afraid about you," she said.

He made no reply, except to smile at her.

Instead of going directly to his office he turned down Water street, and entered one of those buildings where decaying businesses eke out their last days.

On the wall inside the door were the signs of collection agencies, and of lawyers, beneath whose names appeared the legend: "Free Advice." An establishment where bald heads were treated was advertised with crude pictures, labeled "Before" and "After." The name of a lady who undertook to foretell the future, and gave advice on love and marriage, was placarded above the sign of an interpreter of foreign languages.

Morton seemed familiar with his destination, for he did not pause to examine the writings on the wall. He trudged up the creaking stairs—there was no elevator—and opened a door, on which was printed the words: "Private Detective. All Work Confidential."

A hard-jawed, smooth-faced man, with white hair and broad, thick shoulders, was sitting at a desk. There were two other desks, but the chairs beside them were unoccupied. The man arose slowly to his feet.

"Glad to see you, Mr. Morton," he said.

Morton discarded preliminaries. "Got a job for you, George," said he.

Sitting down, he produced his packet of papers. Opening the bundle, he drew from it a faded photograph, and handed it to the man whom he addressed as "George."

"That picture was taken about eighteen years ago," he said. "The fellow who posed for it is about my age now—say forty-five or so. But he hasn't changed much. He wears no beard nor mustache, his face is a little thinner, and his jaw is a little sharper. Otherwise, you'd know him from the picture. Give it back to me when you are through with it. Here's some of his handwriting."

He searched again in his bundle of papers and drew forth some letters. "I want those back, too, when you're through."

The other man looked at them interestedly, fingered them, and looked up. "Yeh?" he said.

Morton arose, took off his overcoat, laid it on the desk, and sat down again.

"That fellow was in town here today. I threw him out of my house. Also, I told him to get out of Peterborough. I want you to make sure that he does, and I want you to put a man to watch my house at night, for a few days. You can call him off as soon as you make sure that this fellow is gone."

The man looked at the photograph again, glanced at the letters, swung in his revolving chair and looked out the window. "Better tell me a little more," he suggested.

Morton struck his front teeth with his thumbnail, thoughtfully. "All right. You know my little girl Audrey? Well, this worthless, no-good loafer claims to be her stepfather. Perhaps you don't know it—certainly I never told anybody—but I filed adoption papers for her in Toronto before I came to Peterborough. This man seems to feel that he has a sort of claim on her—or on me, as her guardian. At any rate, he came to my house today, and threatened to make trouble if I did not give him a very considerable sum of money."

The other man cocked an interested eye at him. "Looks like a case for the police," he said.

Morton shook his head. "I don't need the police. I can take care of him, as long as I know he's around. What I'm afraid of is that he'll make an attempt to kidnap Audrey, or something like that. Have your men look around for him, and see if he is hanging out at any of these cheap lodging places. If he is, call me up. I can get him out of town. In any event, see that my house is watched."

Arising, he took his hat and overcoat.

The detective nodded. "I'll have a good man at your house tonight," he said, "and I'll scout around myself to see if this chap is in town. Sure you don't want him arrested as a vagrant?"

"No." Morton said. "For one thing, if he is arrested, I'm afraid my little girl will find out about him, and I don't want her to know any more of him than she knows already. She saw him today for the first time in eighteen years. She was a year old when she saw him last." He laughed. "She didn't remember him."

Morton ran down the rickety stairs.

"Don't Borrow Trouble" Morton Tells Girl, Etc.

His step was uncommonly light for a man in the middle years, and his stride and figure were like a boy's as he swung up George street again toward his own office. Passers-by saluted him, and once he stopped to make cordial inquiry as to the health of an aged man who sat in a battered, cheap automobile beside the curb.

"Ain't married yit, are you?" The old man asked, chuckling.

"Nope," said Morton. "Too busy."

"Too busy dodging 'em," commented the old man, with a louder chuckle.

Morton walked on, laughing. As he turned into the building where his own office was located, the old man's words recurred to him.

A woman stood in the entryway, evidently waiting. She looked anxiously up and down the street from time to time, and shifted restlessly from one foot to the other. She was nearing 40, but her skirts were short—even shorter than those of the young girls who passed her by. Her cheeks were bright with rouge, and her eyebrow tweezers had left only a thin line over each eye. Her full lips were brilliantly reddened, and from the lobes of her ears dangled two long jade pendants.

Her eyes lighted as Morton approached.

"I've been waiting for you, SO long, Mr. Morton," she exclaimed, rushing forward to seize his hand.

Morton stood, his hat in his left hand, while she clung to his right. His forehead wore a slight frown.

"Was there anything special?" he asked.

"It was about the new house. I wanted to consult you. I'm SO puzzled."

"Better have your husband drop in," said Morton. "I'm willing to sell any of those three houses on Victoria Height I bought them as a speculation anyway."

With a little courteous nod he turned away, and walked rapidly upstairs. After a moment's indecision, the woman departed, with an audible sigh.

A heap of mail and telegrams was awaiting Morton in his office. He shuffled over them rapidly, dictating a few brief replies into a phonographic machine that stood at his elbow, and giving directions to his secretary as to the handling of the rest of the correspondence.

The secretary, a pale, spiritless young man, noted down his orders without a word. When he had gone into his own room, Morton spread before him the remaining papers from the parcel he had opened in the detective's office.

The writing on them was a little pale, with the lapse of years. There were several photographs. Morton spread them before him. Two were portraits of a smiling baby. One was of a comely young woman, gowned in attire that was fashionable eighteen or twenty years ago. Another was of the same young woman, with a man.

Morton regarded this last portrait for a full minute, his face dark. He made a movement as if to tear the picture, but after a pause, laid it down again on the pile of papers before him.

He was sitting, moodily staring out the window when his secretary entered.

"Man called up," said the youth, "and said he was the man you were just talking to this afternoon, and says to tell you that the fellow you asked about has just been arrested."

CHAPTER III.

"Arrested!" Morton snapped. "Are you sure he said the man was arrested?"

The young man nodded.

"Did that detective ask to talk to me?" Morton demanded.

"I told him you were busy," the youth said.

Morton quickly struggled into his overcoat, and took his hat and stick. He stopped a moment, with his hand on the door-knob, for a final address to his secretary.

"Young man," he said, "a good secretary ought to know automatically whom his employer wants to talk to, and whom to put off. You are usually wrong."

He banged the door as he went out, and ran down stairs. It was only a short distance to the police station, and there Morton found the man called George awaiting him. The detective was standing on the front steps.

"What went wrong?" Morton wanted to know.

"I hadn't even gotten started," he said. "It appears this fellow of yours showed up at your house, about the time you were in my office. He went up to the back door and banged on it. Your hired girl saw him, and I guess she recognized him. Anyhow, she telephoned to the police, and an officer went around and arrested him. They've got him in a cell here now."

Morton nodded. "That's not so bad. You wait here, and I'll go in and talk to him."

The officer in charge of the station knew Morton, and greeted him pleasantly.

"This fellow you picked up in my yard," Morton said. "He had no business there, but I know him. Mind if I go in and talk to him?"

The officer assented. "All right with me. Come on, and I'll take you back there."

He left Morton in the corridor, outside the cell in which the stranger was locked. The man stared at him impassively through the bars. Morton went down the hallway, picked up an ancient kitchen chair that stood against the wall and dragged it to the cell door. Sitting down, he surveyed his late visitor.

"Just like a rubber ball, aren't you?" he asked. "Throw you down, and you bounce right up again."

The other man did not reply. Morton resumed: "I rather thought you'd come back, but I didn't think it would be so soon. It seems they have you locked up as a suspicious character. No other charge against you?"

He waited. The other man considered for a time, and at last answered: "They haven't got anything against me—yet."

"They won't have," Morton assured him. "Are you willing to leave the country, if I get you a job that will give you a living?"

The stranger went back to his bunk, and sat down. He dropped his chin to his right hand, and rested his elbow on his knee. There was silence for several minutes. At last he spoke again.

"I haven't got any money to go to a foreign country," he said.

Morton gave a short nod. "I thought not. I'll take care of that. I'll take care of the job, too, if you will go there, and stay on it, as long as the job lasts. Is that fair?"

The man came forward to the bars of the door again. "You treated me pretty rough, over there at your house."

Morton came close.

"You had it coming to you, rougher than that," he said, his tone very low. "You had it coming to you for a good many years."

The other man pulled a dirty handkerchief from his pocket, and wiped his mouth with it, nervously. "I had it pretty rough, for the same number of years." He inspected Morton's trimly set overcoat, his hat, his sharply creased trousers, and his hand-made shoes. "You're rich, well dressed and comfortable. Just look at me!" He waved his hand at his own rough clothing.

"It isn't your money I'm spending," said Morton curtly. "Look here, Smith—I believe Smith was the last name you went under—you're in a pretty bad situation, and you know it. I'm willing to take care of you on this job I spoke about. You were a rather fair metallurgist once. I suppose you would be still, if you had been in a position to work at it in recent years. Are you willing to take a steamer to South America, and go to work there, or aren't you?"

The man considered. There was a sly lift to his lip as he turned to Morton again. "You'd do pretty nearly anything or pay nearly anything, to get rid of me, wouldn't you?" he asked.

Morton turned abruptly on his heel, and strode rapidly down the corridor. He was nearly at the exit when the man called to him. "Wait a minute."

Morton stopped, and waited.

"I'll take you up on that," the man said.

Morton returned, his face stern and set. "If you think that I would pay nearly anything, or do nearly anything, to get rid of you, you're mistaken," he said. "But I'll get rid of you. I am making you a fair and generous offer. If you take it, all right. If you don't, it's all right too, as far as I'm concerned. But it may not be quite so right for you. Do I make myself clear, Smith?"

Smith nodded. "I suppose it's clear. I said I'd go."

It was a matter of no great difficulty to get the man's release from jail. The detective, who still was waiting on the steps outside the station when Morton appeared, listened to the brief orders that he received from his employer.

"Stay with this fellow until we put him on his ship," Morton directed. "Audrey and I will go up to Toronto this afternoon on the train. You take this fellow to a hotel tomorrow, and call me up at my apartment about noon. There's a vessel sailing for Buenos Aires in two or three days. I'll have a berth on that for him. The ticket will be in your hands in plenty of time to get him on board. You won't have to see me again—I'll send the tickets, and some money, over to you as soon as I have found out where you're going to be."

The detective took another bite from the end of his cigar, restored the cigar to his pocket, and chewed placidly until Smith appeared. The two of them walked together down Simcoe street, and Morton, with a light of satisfaction in his eye, turned back to his own office.

"Get Miss Morton on the phone for me," he directed as he entered the office. "That you, dear?" he asked as the secretary handed him the telephone. "Well, we're going back to Toronto this afternoon—unexpected trip. Will you see that my bag is packed for me?—What?—Yes, you're going too. Of course—Yes?—New coat?—Well, all right. We'll go to the opera."

He was smiling as he hung up the receiver. "She wants to know if she shall take her new opera-coat. I guess that's what operas are for."

His secretary made no comment. He lingered at the desk, though, uncertainly.

"Want anything?" Morton asked.

"Were you looking for somebody to take my place?" he asked, at length.

"Yes, I was," Morton said briskly. "Young fellow named Parrish. He'll be here in about a week. Don't worry, though; I'll get you another job."

The young man, his head hanging, retreated through the door. Morton heard the latch click, but immediately the door reopened. His secretary's head appeared. "I'm sorry I'm going," said the young man.

"Tush Tush!" Morton said. "Most men who are failures, have failed because they started in the wrong job. I'll try to put you in the right one."

The young man again withdrew.

Morton took a small account ledger from his desk, and busied himself a while in making entries in it, copying from the stubs of a small pocket check-book. This done, he reached for the telephone, and called the number of his bank.

"Give me the president's office," he ordered when the operator at the bank responded. "This is Mr. Morton talking—Harry Morton." There was a pause, and then he spoke again: "Hello, John—is that you?—Pretty well, thanks. Say, John, did you get a report on that young fellow Parrish?"

He listened as his friend talked rapidly for a minute or two, and nodded his head with satisfaction. "That's good, thanks. Sounds like a first-class young chap. I'll be ready for him as soon as he is clear of his other job. Send word to him to come on over, ready to start in. G'by."

When Morton and Audrey arrived at the railroad station, that evening, the detective and the man Smith were walking up and down the platform. Smith acknowledged Morton's greeting with a jerk of his own head, and stood still, studying Audrey with curious, narrowed eyes. The detective stopped, took off his hat, and restored it to the corner of his head.

"Is that awful man going with us?" Audrey asked.

"On the same train," Morton answered. "We are acting as his escort committee."

The girl shivered. "I won't have to talk with him, will I?"

Morton smiled. "I won't even let you talk to him."

He sat with her and together they watched the detective and Smith, sitting in the far end of the car. At first the men had taken their seats facing the man and girl, but at a terse order from the detective, Smith had taken the opposite seat, turning his back to the drawing room. Before his companion seated himself, he looked with a grin toward Morton, and received the latter's wave of approbation.

A telephone message was awaiting Morton in his apartment when he reached it the next morning. He looked at the number, on the little slip of paper, and frowned.

"Something worrying you, daddy?" asked Audrey, taking quick note of his expression.

He held out the slip of paper to her. "Ever see that telephone number before?"

She shook her head.

"I'm glad of it," he said. "I just wanted to make sure. Would you mind stepping to your room for a moment? I want to telephone, and I don't want you to hear."

The girl went away, and Morton seated himself beside the telephone. First he called his own Toronto office, and dictated a cable message to an interior town in the Argentine Republic. This done, he ordered a steamship ticket to be prepared for the man Smith, for Buenos Aires.

This attended to, he called the number that was on the slip of paper before him.

"Hello, Nona," he said, when a sleepy voice finally answered. "This is the wrong time in the morning to wake you up—but what do you mean by calling me at my apartment?"

Still Enjoying Life at 84

Thanks To That Wonderful Remedy

MILBURN'S HEART NERVE PILLS

Mrs. F. H. Miller, 1843-11th Ave. East, Vancouver, B.C., writes:—"Five years ago my husband suffered terribly with severe attacks of palpitation of the heart and smothering spells, and two doctors stated that he could not possibly live six months.

A friend recommended Milburn's H. and N. Pills, with the result that my husband is still enjoying life at the age of 84 years.

He has improved so wonderfully that he can now climb the stairs without having those awful pains in his heart."

A Summer Romance At Kawartha Park

By "Jane in the Pulpit."

One afternoon in early summer, while mother was away looking after supplies, my elder sister, "Merrylegs," gave me a most awful threshing, calling me a sassy cub. Now, Merrylegs is considered a beauty in the neighborhood, and I'll admit that handsomer stripes than hers have seldom been seen on this hemisphere. To keep them smooth and glossy is her chief aim in life.

Close to mother's home is a spring, which forms into a pool, very clear and still. It is the happy meeting place of friends, old and young. Since settling in this locality mother's best friend has been an elderly wood-chuck. We children call him "Old Ned." In a field, not far distant, farmer Tedford had a huge bon-fire of old logs this spring. From it was left a heap of ashes. For some weeks past Merrylegs has gone each afternoon to stick her nose in the nice white ashes, then to return to sit on the edge of the pool, looking downward and turning her head from side to side. She was at this pretty exercise to-day when Old Ned came up to get a drink. He had a good big mouthful in, when he chanced to look up. The white nose was too much. He gave a great snort of a laugh and the water spurted all over her to the ruin of her beauty for the time being.

I innocently asked if she would like me to go for a supply of ashes. It was at this point she started in to wallop me. Old Ned didn't linger around. When mother returned and heard both sides of the story she looked very grave. Going a little apart, and sitting down by a clump of mullins, she called me to her. She embraced me and then said, "My child, although you are very young and far from being full-grown, I think it is time you should go out into the world to get your living and make a home of your own." This was tremendous news to me and set me all a-tremble. As mother attended to her evening duties, she kept me close by her, earnestly warning me of dangers which I would most surely meet.

That night was the last time I slept in mother's cosy nest, under the cedar stump, out near the Burleigh road. I was astir early next morning, eager to be off, although a bit downcast at parting with my brave, hard-working little mother. How immensely ambitious for Merrylegs dear mother was. I did not take Horace Greely's advice to the young man but started to the east, because the sun looked bright and warm over there. After travelling some hours I reached a large open field, where there were many cows. I love these big gentle creatures. There was a pretty black and white calf among them, and I saw him looking at me as though he thought me a cute little fellow.

I hurried along and after a time came to a huge pile of stones. Close by it was an old zig-zag fence. There was a couple of young chippies sunning themselves on the stones. The larger one spoke in a quite friendly way, asking me where I was going. I smiled and said mother had sent me on a rather long journey. The little one then begged me to stay for a short game of tag. I gladly complied, as I felt the need of being cheered up a bit.

We had good sport racing after each other around and about the stones. We were resting a moment to get our breath, when both my playmates whisked out of sight in a twinkling. I looked wildly about and, to my dismay, saw a big, burly, red squirrel bounding along the fence. He sprang at me full-tilt, and lucky it was that I found a crevice into which I squeezed myself in time to evade him, and there I had to stay all huddled up while he chattered at me, threatening to dig me out. How easily I then could remember mother's warning to never loiter near a fence.

At last the big bully got tired of his game and went on his way. I crept out, warily looking about, and then putting my best foot forward, I showed that fence and stone-pile a clean pair of heels. My playmates had told me of a hillside where there were ripe berries in the grass, so I turned a little to the north to visit it.

I found it a noisy place, robins and blackbirds were there feasting on the berries and chattering and quarrelling among themselves. There were other small animals, but I kept to myself, as I wished to waste no more time.

After a nice meal of the berries, I started again to the east and late in the afternoon I reached a beautiful clear lake. All along its shore ran a dinky little path and just above it a row of tidy-looking summer cottages, about two score of them.

Close to one cottage stood a big pine, and on the ground underneath its branches was a large flat stone. I looked carefully about and made up my mind it would be a good place to locate. I arranged to have the main entrance to my underground home at the very edge of the flat stone. It has proved a lucky choice, for after the family came and opened up the cottage, many a titbit has been placed on the stone for me. The joy of licking out a jam pot cannot be told in words. One day I found a boodle of cherry-pits, and again a bundle of plum-stones.

I took no leisure until I had the last one of them stored in my nest. Almost every day during the last few weeks, there has been left for me a cob of corn. I have learned to rip off the kernels quickly.

Poor mother had to depend mostly upon acorns and they grew dry and dreary betimes. These cottagers are funny cards.

In the morning they lie very quiet, not a squeak out of them, while I am doing my best work, but along toward noon they begin to tumble out and splash a deal of water about.

A few yards away at the back of the cottage there is a funny little structure with a red door in the centre of it. One hot day in August the absent-minded member, I think he's a professor, left the red door standing open. I darted in and sprang up on a shelf. The first thing to my attention was a deep berry tart. I quickly dug out the middle of it, the juice was of a rich red color and of a great flavor, next in line was a cup of cream, the smoothest stuff I have ever tasted. I moved to another shelf and was about to stick a paw into some nice yellow goods, when I heard a noise, and sure enough it was the afterthought coming back with rare sagacity to close the door. I made a neat jump and passed out between his feet.

I really am a handsome blade and every one in the family is just crazy about me, still I haven't been given the freedom of the store-house, more's the pity.

By far the most wildly exciting thing to me is the stunt these cottagers pull off once every seventh day as regular as old Sol in the heavens. From up and down the path they congregate to sit upon some hard, stiff-backed benches under a big awning. When about seventy-five or one hundred of them have arrived, they stand up and give their howl, each in his own tone of voice.

It is a dismal noise and fearsome to one listening in the first time. I have learned that they mean no harm to me or to anyone. When the noise dies down they take to the seats again, all except one man who remains standing and who commences to talk like a gale. Not one word back does one of them say to him.

After awhile he subsides, and then a couple of dapper young fellows, each bearing a plate, pass up and down the aisle. The footing of this aisle is none too even, and one day, unfortunately, one of the young fellows stubbed a toe and took a header. He hastily picked himself up and said: "Dash it all," which somewhat disturbed the general solemnity. Just before they disperse they again give the howl, and while they are hard at it, I move down a bit and get as close to the path as safety will allow. I like to hear their comments upon the sermon and singing.

Along will come a group of ladies, all of them dressed up with pretty hose, and I think I had best not repeat what I hear one and another of them say. I don't want to get myself into bad favor by tattling.

I hear that next summer a boy called Charles is going to ring a big bell, and that people living miles away will hear it and come to the service.

The very dearest girl along the shore is a tiny one called Margret. She has pink cheeks and a very sweet voice. I love to hide under the steps and listen to the patter of her feet on the path. Almost every day she comes along carrying a small red book to play "pretend" and it is good fun for me to watch the performance. Her real home is thousands of miles away, but I'm sure her mother will bring her back here next summer.

Following the upper path past Shingle-Shanty one comes to a little open glade in the centre of which stands a quaint old log-cabin, with vines creeping up about it. I love to visit there for two ...ow that the days are growing short, the place is flooded with sunlight until late in the afternoon, long after the rest of the shore's in shadow.

At the edge of the glade nearest the lake is a big boulder, underneath which there lives with her mother a young chipperess in whom I'm deeply interested. In the event of a beauty contest, Merrylegs would be eclipsed.

When I first endeavored to make myself agreeable she but tossed her head to inform me I was but one of many. Since she knows about the cherry-pits and plum-stones and kernels of corn she has taken on quite a different movement of the head.

Just half way between her home and mine is the new chapel, all glistening white in its nook among the forest trees.

Now that the cottagers have departed, the doors and windows of it are securely locked up, but there is loads of room on the porch steps to hold a modest little wedding party such as ours will be.

Watch the picture section of the "Saturday Night."

Dear absent cottagers, I would that you could see the wealth of beauty spread all about here to-day, October 17. The leaves of the sumac and maple vie with each other in vividness of coloring—the deeper shades of the oak—the lovely rose tints of the wild currant bush with pine-needles aplenty to pin them into garlands—a timid young partridge tip-toeing along the path—a couple of gay cock-pheasants strutting down the back road.

CONCRETE HEAVENS TEACH ASTRONOMY

Movement of Suns and Planets Revealed to the Public

You enter a large dome-shaped concrete building. It is dark. Suddenly thousands of glittering stars appear in what seems to be the infinite sky. More marvellous, suns and planets begin their majestic march across the heavens. In a few moments intricate celestial motions are revealed so simply that you, who perhaps never have opened an astronomy book, can understand mysteries of the universe that puzzled scientists for centuries.

Such a graphic picture lesson in astronomy has been made possible, says the February Popular Science Monthly, by a remarkable invention called the 'planetarium' which recently has attracted wide attention in Germany and which soon may be available to the American public in a number of our large cities, including Philadelphia, New York and Rochester, N.Y. The intricate movements of the stars, the sun, moon and planets are said to be duplicated with amazing accuracy.

The ingenious idea of this planetarium, worked out by the Carl Zeiss Optical Works at Jena, is one never tried before. A huge hemispherical dome is used as a projection screen upon which a system of optical projection lanterns located in the centre of the dome throws images of the stars and planets. Four thousand five hundred fixed stars of the first to sixth magnitude, as many as are visible to the eye out of doors, are shown on the dome. A number of special lantern attachments illuminated by a 300-candlepower lamp through nebulous images on the dome, representing with startling effect the Milky Way.

The planets, which wander in elliptical orbits around the sun, each at a different speed, are projected by a portion of the machine that looks like a big glass cylinder, which contains a series of rotating disks, each revolving in a motion corresponding to that of the body it represents.

Two kinds of motion are provided for. One shows the motion of the heavens in a day, and the other the yearly motion. The instrument can be set to show the aspect of the heavens at any date.

INVENTS A HOUSE ANYONE CAN BUILD

Frenchman's Ingenious "Knock Down" Home Costs Only a Few Hundred Dollars.

In an endeavor to solve the housing problem for the man of moderate means, M. Marcou, an attorney of Versailles, France, has hit upon the idea of an ingenius new type of "knock down" house which he says can be erected for a few hundred dollars and which any man of average intelligence can build without expert knowledge. An 18 months test in all kinds of weather conditions, it is reported, proved the house to be waterproof and very easily heated.

After the size of the house has been decided upon, says Popular Science Monthly for February, the ground is levelled and a foundation wall of brick, cement or stone is laid to a height of about 18 inches. The top of this wall is covered with a strip of tar paper. Up this are placed key planks that hold the wooden superstructure firmly together. These planks have drilled holes, three feet apart, to receive the uprights, consisting of three-quarter-inch iron pipes threaded at both ends. The lower end of each pipe is keyed to the plank by a counter sunk screw nut.

On the upright pipes wooden blocks drilled to fit tightly on the pipes, are threaded in pairs interlocked by halving joints. At each lateral end the blocks are provided with two grooves into which the wooden panels that form the walls of the house are slid. These panels uniformly cut to the size of 30 by 8 inches, form two walls, separated by an air space.

The corner binding blocks are placed at right angles and special blocks forming a T are provided for joining inside partitions with the outer wall. The door and window frames are provided with parallel grooves corresponding to those of the binding blocks. After they are placed in position tongue strips of wood are slipped in the corresponding grooves of frame and by locks, locking the frames securely in the wall. The ceilings are wooden panels slipped into the grooves of transversal strips of timber keyed to the top of the walls. After the completion of the outer and inner walls and ceiling nuts are screwed down tight on the upper ends of the pipes, giving rigidity to the whole structure.

The slanting roof consists of boards placed side by side on a frame work keyed to the walls and covered with corrugated roofing board. To make the walls weathertight the outside panels are covered with tar paper.

They are never alone who are accompanied with noble thoughts.

FORMER RECTOR HERE IS CALLED

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt Asked To Stay With Devil's Lake Church.

The Devil's Lake Journal, published at Devil's Lake, North Dakota, has the following to say about the Rev. A. E. Langfeldt, M.A., Ph.D., formerly of St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham:

"The vestry of the Church of the Advent, Episcopalian, by unanimous vote last night called Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M.A., Ph.D., as its permanent rector. For the last few months Rev. Langfeldt has been serving the church as its vicar, following an invitation from Bishop Tyler extended to him while he was in Calgary, Canada.

"Rev. Langfeldt accepted the invitation, and consented to serve the Church of the Advent for six months with the provision that if he found conditions here congenial he would be glad to consider a call, were it offered him.

"During his stay here, Rev. Langfeldt has done much to reawaken interest in the church and has created a favorable impression upon the congregation, the Sunday morning services seeing the church filled to capacity much of the time. A forceful speaker, thoroughly versed in his theology and possessed of a personality that immediately appeals, the rector of the Church of the Advent has made his presence felt in the city.

"The rectory is being repaired and repainted, and when this is completed Rev. Langfeldt will bring his family to the city from Calgary, where his children are attending school."

GOOD PROGRAMME FOR GYM PAGEANT

Y. W. C. A. Entertainment This Year Promises To Be Very Entertaining.

The programme arranged by Miss C. Littlefield for the Pageant to be given by the Young Women's Christian Association in the Opera House, on April 30th and May 1st, promises to be one of the most interesting in the many successful entertainments staged by this Association in past years. All the numbers will be entirely new, and there will be some special inclusions that will demonstrate very effectively the work done in the various classes throughout the year.

The costumes, which are in process of making at the present time, with many energetic ladies engaged in their construction, are more colorful than ever. Those designed for the interpretive dances are especially attractive.

Items of particular interest on the programme will be a Miniature Circus by little boys, dressed in regular clowns' outfits of many colors, and going through a varied programme of circus stunts.

"The Flowers in the Woods" will be done by the babies, each representing a flower, with older girls in Peter Pan costumes of hunters' green. Forty of the tiny tots, all under six years of age, will also do a dumbell drill.

Lilac and gold, in silk and chiffon, will make the costumes for a Butterfly dance by the junior class, and some eighty children, in real Scotch tartans and Scotch caps, will do the Highland Fling. One of the loveliest numbers will be a Brahms' Waltz, done in Grecian blue and silver, in frieze effect. Another beautiful dance by the Advanced class will be a Rose ballet, done in gowns of graduated shades of rose pink. Still another dance number is the Vintage dance, in purples ornamented with a Greek key design in gold and purple grapes.

A Moravian folk dance will be a specialty, the boys dressed in blue and gold, the girls in red blouses, striped red, yellow and green skirts, and beribboned headdresses. And a Tennis dance by the Seniors will be done in pleated white skirts and red middies, the dancers carrying tennis racquets.

Greens and bronzes in filmy materials will clothe those taking part in a Diana dance number, representative of the mythical huntress and her maidens.

The Swedish work to be demonstrated this year is particularly good, closing with a tableau, and there will be many new stunts in the dumbell, wand and club-swinging work.

The Pageant affords an excellent opportunity for the public to view the results of the season's work, and will be presented by girls ranging all the way from the Senior classes to the tiny tots, the youngest a small girlie of only two years of age, with several between three and five years.

Strength and Safety

Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are built to protect passengers.

That is why Dodge Brothers pioneered in introducing the all steel body, and why they have continued to pioneer by recently improving and perfecting it.

Like the all steel sleeping car—now insisted upon by public opinion—Dodge Brothers all steel bodies are fireproof and as near shock-proof as motor car bodies can be built—an armor of protection in emergencies.

Electrically welded and staunchly braced and reinforced at all points of strain, they are noiseless and built to endure permanently. They also provide unparalleled vision. The menace of thick corner pillars—blocking the driver's vision at street intersections—is eliminated. Slim, steel pillars take their place.

One-piece windshields and exceptional window areas further increase driving vision and safety.

And while safety cannot be measured in dollars, it is gratifying to know that these improved steel bodies exact no penalty from the purchaser.

With production vastly increased, these and many other vital improvements were announced coincidently with the most attractive schedule of low prices in Dodge Brothers history.

There Is Only One Marvelube

The Lubricating Oil Discovery of the Age
—On Sale April 20th, Everywhere in Canada

ON the morning of April 20, the new motor oil will be no longer an interesting laboratory experiment but will become a commodity of commerce. Therefore, its story may be told.

Marvelube is the achievement of four years of patient scientific research, and back of that more years of preparation. The source of Marvelube—the crude oil fields of Peru, South America—came under the control of Imperial Oil Limited thirteen years ago as the first step towards the marketing of Marvelube in Canada in the year 1926.

Every crude oil field possesses distinctive characteristics. Some have a high naphtha content, some are ideal fuel oils, some are valuable in a greater or lesser degree for the manufacture of lubricants. Peruvian crude is at the very top of the latter class. In the world of oil it is recognized as being as different from other crudes as No. 1 Canadian hard wheat is different from the American and European soft wheats.

Other crudes may look like Peruvian just as other wheats may look like No. 1 hard, but the sturdy qualities which make No. 1 hard wheat pre-eminent give to the Peruvian product a similar distinction in the domain of crudes.

Imperial Oil Limited in 1913 commissioned one of its vice-presidents—now its president—to investigate these qualities of the Peruvian fields and largely as a result of his favourable report, the fields were acquired by the International Petroleum Company, a subsidiary of Imperial Oil Limited. Thus Imperial Oil Limited was placed in exclusive possession of the most valuable raw material for the manufacture of lubricating oil that the petroleum world has ever seen.

For four years the staff of the research laboratories of Imperial Oil Limited at Sarnia, have devoted themselves to the perfection of a lubricant from this crude—a lubricant that would be different from any other lubricant that had gone before. In these years young Canadians have gained distinction in the petroleum industry, not only at home but abroad, and have won advancement in the Imperial Oil service by their notable contributions to this work. New refining processes have been evolved, new refining equipment invented and new formulae created until, step by step, Marvelube was made ready for commercial use.

The secret of this process is locked away in the vaults of Imperial Oil Limited; and without this secret and without the raw material, the duplication of the merits of Marvelube is impossible. Imperial Oil Limited has not divulged the secret of the formula to any other company nor has any other company access to the Imperial's raw material—Peruvian Crude.

Marvelube is sold only by stations of Imperial Oil Limited and authorized dealers in Imperial products. If the public knew as much about the lubrication of cars as experts on lubrication know, the demand for Marvelube could not be supplied. If the public knew as much about the lubrication of cars as the experts on lubrication know, the various "golden" oils which masquerade as Marvelube would be in the same class as last year's almanac.

Marvelube represents in short the most significant event in the history of motor lubrication in the past decade. It has arrested the attention of eminent automotive engineers, scientists and petroleum refiners everywhere. After months of secret tests by designers and builders of motor engines, it has been pronounced by the most competent and impartial court that could be assembled in the motor industry, as marking an epoch in motor lubrication. Its merits are not a subject of controversy in any group of unprejudiced and informed oil men. Its new and distinct properties and its superiority to any other lubricant hitherto achieved in modern petroleum refining, is an admitted and impeccable fact.

The real test is in the motor. The Canadian motorist will realize what this all-Canadian, all-Imperial product will mean to him when he has 500 miles of driving behind him and finds his crank-case still filled with the low-carbon-content, minimum sulphur-content, non-emulsifying oil. Marvelube will be placed on sale at all Imperial Oil stations and at good dealers everywhere on April 20.

The chief difference between the moderns and the ancients is in the love of liberty. Are we losing that love? Is the weight of a great Christian civilization proving too much for us? Are we coming to prefer the older way that yielded to the rule of superiors who, from time to time, told the people what they must do and drove the willing creatures to it. Their very laws bespoke their shame. Their statutes did not punish the guilty and let the upright man go free but punished all alike who did not obey them and thus they bowed the people to their will. If no distinction is to be made between the good and bad in our laws there soon will be no difference in them amongst ourselves. If it is useless to be "good," why be good? Is that era of slavery and hypocrisy returning? A slave may be well provided for. Life is clean and easy for him under a good master. But is the slave a "man"? Oh! The shame of it! The shame of it! And yet in the name of a higher civilization we have done this thing.

—Carleton.

"The ancient Greeks loved their city-state and it was a crime to do anything that was not for its sole benefit. Liberty of individual opinion was not permitted, as Socrates found, for that was the real crime alleged against him—as against Christ. Christianity places the individual soul above all things. What if a man gain the whole world and lose his own soul? It is no longer the soul of the man that concerns us but that of the state. Is Christianity passing?"

—Halton.

"We had three kinds of trees in our orchard on the farm. Only one tree, however, was able to throw off the pests and give us good apples. It lived long and when it died we mourned it sincerely. Some of the others did well for a time and gave great promise but unless they were 'grafted' they soon went down and out. So it is in life. There are a few who stand the test and bear good fruit to the end. It is well for us that we are still able to admire them."

JOHN J. HARTLEY.

John J. Hartley was born more than seventy years ago on Antrim street, Peterborough, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hartley, formerly of County Cavan, Ireland, who came to Peterborough in the middle of the last century. He married Miss Taylor, a daughter of Mr. Charles Taylor, farmer, of Smith township.

Mr. Hartley, when a young man, went to the United States and learned the brick-laying business in Syracuse, N. Y., for years later entering into partnership with the late David Carlisle, Peterborough. He has had the contract in full or in part of many of Peterborough's chief buildings, such as the old Bank of Commerce building on George street, extending from Brock street to the Mason grocery, the Crystal Block, Peterborough Hardware Store, the shovel factory and cordage works, and with Mr. McIntyre he had the contract for the Y. M. C. A. the Y. W. C. A. and the Isolation Hospital.

"I think that the reason we have no apprentices in either brick-laying or carpentering today is that the young men are being overeducated. When they get up into the Collegiate Institute they do not want to go into any business of a manual character. As for technical schools they will never make practical journeymen out of their students. "There is only one way," said Mr. Hartley, emphatically, "that a man can learn to do manual labour in our business or in any other business like it and that is by doing it. I would not employ a man who had not served his time in that way."

He is clearly of opinion that the old way of training young men for manual work both in school and out of it was the best.

Bricks were $4.50 a thousand, delivered, in the early days and are $21.00 today. Men got $2.00 a day of ten hours and now get $1.00 an hour for an eight-hour day. But the price of what they have to buy has gone up accordingly.

"When I was in the council," said Mr. Hartley, where he was for ten years, "taxes were never higher than 17 mills and usually less. If you want to kill a town a high tax rate will do it."

Mr. Hartley was also a member of the Board of School Trustees for fourteen years and chairman for two years; also president of the Social Service Council for Peterborough, of which Mr. A. B. Cunningham is secretary with a membership of from twenty-five to thirty. He was also chairman of the Board of Health, N. G. of the Oddfellows and Deputy District High Chief Ranger of the I.O.O.F.

Mr. Hartley is of opinion that owning the distributing electrical plant as it does this city should own its own power.

"The pre-eminence of Peterborough in the old days of its rapid development was due to its water power. This it let slip out of its hands and go to other towns, out of this province with the result that they are in in just as good a position as Peterborough. We let our birthright go," said Mr. Hartley, "and we are suffering for it. We had an extraordinary advantage in our cheap powers in this neighborhood. We could have outbid almost any other place and did so. Quaker Oats and the C. G. E. enjoy the benefit of private ownership of Peterborough power."

Public ownership does not reward private enterprise and without private enterprise we are at a standstill. We are feeling the effects of it, especially in Ontario. There are plenty of ways of preventing monopoly and combines by private enterprise but one of them is not to kill it altogether. The individual must be cherished because without individuals there can not be a nation or any other body composed of individuals. When people sacrifice the "individual" to theories they are sure to reap the consequences. Mr. Hartley is of opinion that it would be much better if we hastened more slowly. In the light of what is happening in church, state and industry, who can deny it? Formerly it was the "barker" who took in the gaping crowd. Now it is the "booster."

Mr. Hartley is not a reactionary, but yet has a pronounced faith in the good old times and in the good old people who under God made those times what they were. Thoroughness is his watchword and he has a strong suspicion that people allow themselves in these days to be buncoed too easily.

HEROIC LIGHTHOUSE GIRL

All England recently rang with the story of how Ethel Langton, the 14-year-old daughter of the keeper of St. Helen's lighthouse, off Bembridge, Isle of Wight, kept the beacon burning for three nights during a violent storm. Her parents, who had gone to the mainland for supplies, were unable to return because of the heavy seas. On the left is Ethel, with her dog, her only companion during her long vigil. On the right she is seen climbing to the tower, where she had to attend to the lantern.

IT HURTS TO SEE NOISY MOTHERS SLAP AND SHRIEK AT CHILDREN

Poor Little Homeless Things Who Don't Know What It's All About Are Suddenly Struck For Nothing.

Something ought to be done to the mother who always slaps her children.

There was one in the subway the other day.

She got on, her arms filled with packages, and her little girl, a harmless enough looking child, followed.

The mother found a seat and the child stood in the aisle in front of her.

All was quiet and peaceful.

The mother suddenly saw a place on the seat opposite to her, where the child could sit down.

She wanted to get her over there in a hurry before anybody else took the place.

Her motive was all very well.

But before she even started to talk, she struck the child on the back to attract her attention, then turned her round by grasping a shoulder with a grip that must have been painful, finally slapped her across the ear and pointed to the seat.

The poor bewildered child sank dutifully into it and gaped stupidly back at the mother who had been hitting all the sense out of her.

Impatience is understandable in a mother who has had to take a child along when she has been marketing or shopping.

A certain amount of roughness might be inevitable to a situation that required prompt handling without much explanation.

But this was neither the impatience of weariness nor the roughness of necessity.

It was the behavior of long habit.

This mother was quite obviously in the habit of cuffing her child like a mother bear whenever she wanted to attract her attention.

And the slapping was no novelty, either.

None of it was necessary; the child was not stupid until her mother had slapped all the sense out of her.

But she'll go on being stupid that same way, because undoubtedly her mother will go on slapping her and she will go on wondering why.

The little boy tried to hurry across to the pavement while she was lifting the little girl down from the step of the car.

The curb was too high for him and he stumbled and fell.

While he was picking himself up with more trouble than it took all the King's horses and all the King's men to attempt to pick up Humpty-Dumpty—much puffing and blowing and gruntingh—is mother came along and helped him.

She grabbed him by one delicate little shoulder shook him with unnecessary roughness and yanked him to his feet so fast that his breath was fairly knocked out of him.

And all the time she shrieked things at him about how she'd teach him and so on.

There are times when any mother's patience is tried, times when children seem lovable only when they're asleep.

But those times pass over; the home-like atmosphere cannot prevail in a household where that attitude is the usual one; love for home and mother doesn't thrive on unnecessary slapping and shakings.

Children are sensitive enough to be affected by this to the extent of being afraid of a mother who treats them this way, or to grow up with a half dislike of her.

Anyhow, how can a woman with any tenderness in her nature at all strike a child suddenly and hard when there's no reason for it?

If she were doing it in punishment, or if there was anything to punish for, it would be a different matter.

But to bat Suzy around until she is dizzy just in order to attract her attention, and to shake the breath out of Johnny just for falling up the curb, when he didn't want to fall anyhow, seems more brutal than necessary.

You don't wonder when you hear that the children of women who have brought up their families on blows and shriekings have grown tired of home and are out on their own to earn their living.

They probably just want to see whether it isn't possible to be kind and gentle and still somehow or other get along in the world. — Philadelphia Ledger.

DAILY TREAD

It was past five o'clock in the afternoon and people were beginning to return from their work. From his wheel-chair in the basement living room Michael could hear the steady "tap-tap" of footsteps on the sidewalk above him. By pushing himself forward he could even see the shoes that made the sounds and it amused him in his invalidism to watch for familiar footwear and to weave fanciful dreams around each pair of boots.

Almost daily he recognized the same gay, impractical sandals of the flappers and shopgirls; the heavy, thick-soled brogans of outdoor men and teamsters and the expensive highly polished oxfords of successful business men. Then there was a dainty pair of blonde kid slippers that Michael watched for more closely than the others.

They were a queer little complex, those slippers, because the sedateness of the sturdy, square heels belied the frivolity of the butterfly bows and cut-work. Michael had never seen the face of the wearer, but being a sentimentalist, he loved and looked up to the owner, both literally and figuratively speaking.

As has already been said, Michael was usually amused and entertained by the passing parade of boots, but to-night they seemed to mock and chide him for his helplessness. Hopelessly he pounded his disabled knee with a clenched, angry fist, while the incessant "tap-tap" continued overhead.

"The daily tread in pursuit of its daily bread," he murmured bitterly. "Active, fortunate beings and probably dissatisfied with their lot!"

At that moment the blonde kid slippers passed his window, else his soliloquy would not have ended. Michael straightened in his chair, to obtain a better view, and, to his surprise, the slippers turned into the very apartment where he was living. He heard the outer door open and shut, and, in another second, an excited young girl had stepped into his presence. Like her slippers, she was pretty and gay, yet dependable.

"Please excuse me for coming in here like this," she gasped, "but a man has been following me for five blocks and I had to lose him somehow."

"Oh, that's all right," exclaimed Michael, who was overjoyed by the incident. "But please excuse me for not rising. You see, I am er——"

"Crippled?" asked the girl softly.

"Yes, crippled," he faltered. "Now, won't you sit down? You are quite safe here. Tell me more of your pursuer, perhaps I can help you. Who was he, some fresh masher?"

"No," replied the girl with a defiant toss of her head, "he is a fellow who is making himself annoying just because I refused to marry him. I don't love him, never can love him, yet he persists in pestering me and making my life miserable! But my trouble is trivial compared to yours. Did you have an accident?"

"Yes," Michael admitted. "About a year ago I prevented a child from being struck by a truck. I myself was hit by the car and I've been helpless ever since. The doctors say I am incurable."

"I'm so sorry," sympathized the girl. Then, consulting her watch, "Well, I must go. I think the man has gone now."

Michael was so pleased by their meeting that he decided to take a long chance and attempt to keep her a while longer. Taking his courage in both hands, he said:

"I know I presume, but won't you stay and have supper with me? Mother will be home soon—she works, you know. Please say you will stay. I get very lonely with only the radio for company."

The girl couldn't help but detect the eagerness in the man's invitation and she had not the heart to refuse. And what a repast it was! Michael's mother must have sensed the presence of a guest, for she came home with a delicious roasted chicken. The girl insisted on going to the store for ice-cream and macaroons and she also bought a huge bunch of carnations to deck the center of their dining-table.

During the meal, Michael learned that his friend's name was Martha, that she shared a suite with another girl, and worked as a secretary to an eminent surgeon. She left Michael and his mother with a promise to call again, but Michael was not prepared to receive her the very next afternoon. She did not come alone, but was accompanied by a fine-looking gentleman, whom she introduced as Dr. Ray.

The doctor extended a cordial hand to the astonished Michael, and exclaimed heartily, "Well, well, so you are the chap Miss Martha has been raving about all morning! With your permission, I'd like to examine your injury. I feel sure you can be helped."

"I am afraid it is impossible to help me, sir," stammered Michael.

"Impossible!" repeated the genia doctor. "Nothing is impossible, unless we think it is. I wish you could see the soldier-lads I've put on their feet!"

Several days later he performed another successful operation.

Michael's road to recovery was a long and painful one, but with Martha to cheer him, he was soon convalescing in his own basement living-room. The daily tread of footsteps ceased to taunt him; instead, it seemed to stand for a vast army of happy men and women, marching toward a brilliant future and some day he would be a part of that army.

And about Martha' slippers. At Michael's request, she wore them until they were actually shabby. In fact, she wore them until they were replaced by a pair of white satin slippers, to match her bridal costume.

Beauty in the Bedroom

(By Elizabeth S. Brennen, Director of the Niagara Decorators' Service Bureau.)

This panel effect is especially suited to bedrooms.

Who is there among us mortals who doesn't enjoy a night's rest in a comfortable bed and a pleasant room? And, undoubtedly, the pleasant, cheerful atmosphere of a room has a great deal to do with the success of our slumber.

Our minds retain the impressions brought to it at the close of the day, and if our bedroom does not have a quieting, soothing effect on us as we retire, our sleep is likely to be restless, and we toss about not knowing why.

'Tis then that the room becomes a bore and a cell, whose ill effe grows on us the longe

To relieve that boresome sameness which often makes a room an irritation, there is nothing quite as effective as the interesting "top-third" panel treatment illustrated above.

There is nothing rigid or formal about this treatment—the furniture and occasional pictures can be moved about and placed wherever convenience suits,and the whole room acquires and air of nicety and pleasant repose.

And one of the best things about it is the fact that this decorative treatment can be acquired with a minimum of labor and material through the new "applique panel system" which is becoming so popular throughout the country.

Pruning Shrubs on the City Lot

FIG. 1. UNPRUNED SHRUB

(By Henry J. Moore.)

In this article it is proposed to give a few simple instructions as to the way in which the owners of a home in a city or town may properly prune the shrubs he has used to beautify the surroundings. To indicate the importance of proper measures of pruning, it should be said that the successful flowering of the shrubs wherever cultivated depends upon it. Unless shrubs are pruned, many of them will grow so high as to become unsightly. They will crowd your small lawn areas and the stems will become so matted as to preclude the production of flowers in profusion.

Things to Learn

There are certain things of importance about which we must learn before we can intelligently prune our shrubs. The chief of these is that there are shrubs of varied characteristics. We should know the nature of the shrubs before we may successfully carry out the work. We may for our purpose divide the shrubs into four classes. Even although we may grow only a few we may have a representative of each in the classes.

Class A:—In this class we will place the shrubs which flower upon the current year's growth, that is shrubs which flower upon the growths made in the same year as the flowers are produced. Hybrid perpetual and hybrid tea roses and hydrangeas belong to this class. It is the practice to prune these shrubs as soon as danger from heavy frost is past. As usually the lower buds on the growths will produce strong flower-bearing growth, it is well to prune severely unless for some reason large bushes are desired The way to obtain large blooms of hydrangea paniculata is to remove the very weak growths and restrict the shrub to four or five strong ones, then to cut these back just above buds, three or four inches above the wood of the previous year. Hybrid perpetual roses are pruned in much the same way except that the growths are shortened a little further above the wood of the previous year, say eight or ten inches. Hybrid teas are pruned a little more severely about four inches above the previous year's wood.

Class B:—In this class the shrubs which flower upon growths produced the previous year, as Spiraea Van Houttei, The Bridal Wreath, Weigelia, Lilac, Lonicera Tartarica, Tartarian Honeysuckle, and Lonicera Morrowi Honeysuckle, and all shrubby honeysuckles, also Deutzia, the Snow Flower, and Forsythia, the Golden Bell and others too numerous to mention in this short article.

The shrubs in this class are dependent upon the formation of new growth for the following season's flowers and should as a rule be pruned as soon as the flowers fade. The pruning should consist in the removal of old flowering growths to favor the development of the new and the subsequent ripening of the flowering buds before winter. The pruning of these shrubs should more properly be termed "thinning." If the shrubs have grown somewhat tall they should be reduced in size by thinning out the oldest and the longest of the growths and not by drastically shearing or cutting back the growths to a given height. Shrubs should not be allowed to become overgrown on the average city lot; if so their beauty will be sacrificed. In the case of the lilacs the growths which have flowered should be removed before seed formation takes place, their growths being cut back to the next joint.

Sub-class C:—This class which might properly be termed a sub-class of Class B, will comprise the shrubs which are valued for their ornamental berries (fruits), or for their colored stems and twigs during winter. It should not be necessary to say that if after flowering these shrubs are heavily pruned there will be very few berries or colored stems left to cheer the eye during winter. In this class we have shrubby honeysuckles, the same as in Class B and where we desire to preserve fruiting growths we simply do not thin out the growths which have flowered, very drastically. The Symphoricarpos two kinds, the Snow Berry and Indian Berry, Barberry and Euonymus, also belong to the class. The pruning of these should be left until they have served their ornamental purpose during late winter.

Class D:—The evergreen shrubs should reasonably be placed in a class by themselves. It is true that very little pruning is ever necessary. Whether they are used as specimens in the lawn or massed in the border, it is folly to interfere very much with them. As they usually are of very slow growth the only pruning necessary will be to remove a wayward growth occasionally. Any pruning if necessary should take the form of a thinning.

The writer knows that during past years evergreen trees and shrubs have been shorn to grotesque shapes in all cases, however, this has been done at the expense of the natural beauty and gracefulness of the subject. The beauty of your evergreen shrubs no matter where planted, except in hedges, lies in their naturalness. Do not despoi this. In this class we have the Japanese Yew, Thuya (arbor vitae) Dwarf Spruce, Dwarf Mountain Pine, Junipers (although not so good for the atmosphere of a city) and similar low-growing forms.

Hedges for Flowers and Ornamental Fruits

Briefly the pruning of hedges such as of shrubs which flower upon the previous year's growths, such as the Bridal Wreath, should take the form of a thinning (never a clipping or shearing) just after the shrubs have flowered. Even the Caragana, Siberian Pea, should receive this treatment much as to the contrary we often see it clipped. If you desire to defeat the purpose for which these hedges were largely planted—the production of lovely flowers, clip or shear

Hedges of the Japanese Barberry valued for the red stems and berries should never be clipped but be thinned out lightly every year, so many growths being left as to leave no suspicion in the mind of drastic pruning.

FIG. 2. PRUNED SHRUB

Foliage and Evergreen Hedges.

When pruning hedges such as the English Privet, Amur River Privet, or the California Privet (the last mentioned not hardy in cold winter localities), also evergreens such as Arbor Vitae or as it is sometimes called White Cedar," White Spruce or Norway Spruce, the practice is to clip these to cause the branches to thicken out Such hedges are usually planted to serve a purpose where utility is the chief consideration. The evergreens are usually pruned during July and the Privets in spring and midsummer if necessary. For the ordinary deciduous hedge one pruning a year will however suffice.

Pruning Shrubs an Art

To properly prune shrubs is an art which however when studied is easy of accomplishment. To be able to diagnose the case is of prime importance for the pruning of any shrub is really an operation. Be certain first to which class the shrub belongs and then prune. The objects of pruning may be summarized as follows:—To encourage the development of vigorous flower-bearing growth. To eliminate superfluous and worthless growth or branches, and those which are dead, defective or which have performed their function. To promote by pruning the production of young growths to replace the old and worthless and cause a general rejuvenation of the shrub.

When effecting this annual pruning of your shrubs, don't leave any stubs. Remove the branches at their injunction with others If necessary as it sometimes is to shorten the long ones, cut these just above smaller branches or buds with a slanting upward cut. A great reason for encouraging young growth is that the strongest stems grow quickly to the light. The lateral ones are thus badly shaded. This may result in their partial or full defoliation and sometimes death. It simply being a case of survival of the fittest. Unless we carefully prune our shrubs unsightly leafless stems will appear near the ground and dilapidation will quickly ensue. When the practice of proper annual pruning pertains, renovation will constantly take place, much to the enhanced appearance of our plantations.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

Doc—You were born with a rather vacillating type of nature, endowed with a good deal of charm, but fickle and hangeable, lacking "stick-to-itiveness." However, your destiny points to a useful career, not extraordinarily successful in a financial way, perhaps, but one blessed with much understanding and sympathy for others. Much will be expected of you as you go through the world, so you will have to try and conquer this fickle quality of yours. When your highest nature is in power, you can be a tremendous force for good. Try not to be dissatisfied with your lot in life. Do not always be wishing to be away and to be doing something else, and above all, do not whine, nag or scold. You can be ideally happy when married, if you can learn first to conquer these habits off scolding and fault-finding. Learn patience and cheerfulness, resolve not to complain or murmur, try to control your own innate restlessness and finish one task before beginning another. Always take good care of your health. Responsibility should be sought by you. You were born on Saturday. The day you ask about is past. Your color is pink.

Babe.—You have a good deal of ability of a varied type, and can do almost anything you turn your hand to. You have a great love for people, not exactly a personal type of love, but a very nice sort, and are anxious to give to those who are in need. You have a liking for knowledge, and ask many questions about matters that interest you. Sometimes your questions are irritating to those who cannot understand your thirst for specific information. You are apt to be too modes t and lack self-esteem and self-assertiveness. At times, you are somewhat shy and a little morbid. When things bother you, you want to go off somewhere and have a good cry. Try to overcome this habit, and you will be surprised to find what reserves of strength you will uncover in your own character. Do not be so sensitive. Many of your woes are absolutely imaginary. Restlessness and anxiety in your own nature cause much of your trouble. Dress in pale, delicate shades, and give a good deal of attention to the details of your toilet. You were born on Monday. You will make an ideal wife and home-maker. Your colors are red and brown. The day you ask about, a Tuesday, is one for safely undertaking new enterprises and forming new partnerships.

G. B.—You are of the type that is conservative in essence. You are not especially favorable to new enterprises and have a somewhat reserved character, well adapted to the study of religion and occult sciences. You are tormented often by uncertainty, which will tend to make for unhappiness in your life, if not conquered. Do not fluctuate so much in your ideas. Try to make them steadfast. You are filled at times with nervous unrest, wishing for something different, and, like another member of your family, have a tendency to whine and nag. You people would have a very happy home, if you could cut out this eternal dissatisfaction with things as they are and this habit of scolding and fault-finding. It will never get you anywhere. You have tremendous powers for good, if you cultivate them. Learn to be patient and to keep your conversation free from personalities. Strive for cheerfulness and steadfastness, and study the right of others to their own and take great care of your health. Responsibility is good for you. April and August are your good months, Friday your good day. Your colors are steel and purple. You were born on Saturday. You must ask for one specific date. July has several Mondays in it.

A. P. A.—You are quite young yet, young enough to decide on what you want to be, and to follow out your choice without swerving. You were born with a nature that may be turned into a very fine career. If you wish, you can make your life something really worth while, one of integrity, virtue and permanency, but, in shaping your course, you must not try to stand alone. In union there is strength for you and you must never attempt to control the affairs of others. Such attempts will always end in failure. You belong to the type that is said to be at once the strongest and the weakest in the world, endowed with great possibilities, which are not always used to their greatest extent. You should study self-reliance and concentration, think carefully over your future, select a path along the line of your particular talents, and then never swerve from this path. Learn to know opportunity and to improve upon it. Never forget that perfect honesty and truthfulness are necessary to great characters. Strive also for independence of all outside influences. Marry a girl born in October, January or June. April and August are your good months, Saturday your lucky day. You were born on Wednesday. Your colors are red and brown. The day you ask about, a Thursday, is one for safely undertaking any new enterprise.

Mars.—You are naturally of the leading type, strong, active, creative, but somewhat self-centred and inclined to disregard the rights of others. You will domineer, if allowed to. And this is not well, because the only way in which you can achieve happiness and success in life is by bringing joy to the lives of others. You must cultivate at all times the faculty of not seeing the little things which annoy, in the daily round, and try to cultivate patience also. You are very energetic and wish to be occupied with something all the time. Your mind is always working and you have not too much sympathy or patience with those who cannot understand your individual ways of doin things. You have some contempt also, for those things which you do not understand. Try to remember that the other fellow has a viewpoint which, curiously enough, even if it does not coincide with your own, may be right. Repose should be cultivated by you, and patience, and the cheerful outlook, always. You can have much influence for good over others, once you understand your own somewhat erratic nature, and try to control your faults. You have an easy manner that makes friends for you quite readily. You were born on Friday. Your color is flame, in all its variations.

R. A. C.—You have a well-equipped nature, able to meet with and surmount the difficult of daily life. You have a ggeat deal of friendliness in you makeup and fell well-disposed to all mankind. No man is your enemy, until he has done something quite drastic against you. You will succeed best by using your clever instincts, rather than trying to gain your wishes by force. Cleverness and diplomacy and tact should be your watchwords. You are independent, executive and aspiring, apt to undertake more than you can successfully carry out, at times, as you overlook small details that require attention at all times. You would much rather oversee than do, but in carrying out your own personal plans, you readily put your shoulder to the wheel. You throw most of your dependence on the head, having great respect for mental powers, and not much consideration for those others who are not as quick as you are. You are liable to be somewhat contemptuous of that which you do not readily understand. Your natural sphere is the business world, and you have the capacity to drive a close, shrewd bargain. You were born on Tuesday. Your colors are red and brown.

A motion was placed on the books that all bills be brought before the meeting, where, if satisfactory, the treasurer would be granted permission to pay same.

Several bills were presented for flowers and expenses in connection with the tea and upon motion were ordered to be paid.

The matter fo any necessary decoration to the inside of the parsonage was left in the hands of the parsonage committee, Mrs. Morcombe and Mrs. Bradburn.

A discussion followed as to the painting of the fence surrounding the church property and also the barn, and as this matter was settled last fall, but owing to the showery weather the work could not be accomplished; it was decided to leave same in the hands of the previous committee, Mrs. Overholt and Mrs. Bradburn.

A flower committee in the persons of Mrs. R. H. Williamson and Miss A. Neill, was appointed to be responsible for the decoration of plants, etc., to be placed in the church each Sunday during the month of May.

A short discussion followed as to what might be the nature of the jubilee celebration in connection with the church this summer, but, as yet, no plans have been made.

All the ladies present paid their fees for the ensuing year and the meeting closed by singing ,followed by prayer by Mrs. Rowland.

CROWS FIGHT GULLS.

Reserves of Gull Finally Win Battle.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., April 17.—(Canadian Press.)— A flock of about a dozen crows waged battle with a larger number of sea gulls on the ice opposite the city yesterday. The fight appeared to be centred about a deposit of rotting fish. The gulls and their adversaries were screaming and the din was terrific. For a time the crows maintained their position but as the gulls brought up reserves, which in great numbers answered the call of mates in distress, the black birds were put to rout.

HOD CARRIERS TO GET $10 A DAY.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., April 17.—The building trades tie-up ended here to-day when the hodcarriers and wheelbarrow men agreed to return to work under the old scale of $8 a day until May 15, when they will receive $10 a day. Further trouble impends, however, as the carpenters now contend that in view of these increases they are entitled to at least $12 a day instead of $10. The carpenters ask for such an increase beginning April 23.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE BEING RE-ORGANIZED

Entries From Five or Six Teams Are Expected.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 17—A general meeting of the Campbellford Softball League was held in the public library last night, President Davidson in the chair.

The secretary read a letter from the Ontario Amateur Softball Association acknowledging receipt of entry fee, in the intermediate series, and stating the entry could not be accepted unless the name association was used instead of league. The secretary was instructed to write the O.A.S.A. and inquire the reason, also full particulars of affiliation with the O.A.S.A. The Outlaws, Millionaire Club, Junior Colts, Hydro and Oddfellows signified their intention of entering teams, with the Cloth Co. and Clerks probable starters.

A limit of twenty players to a team was discussed and left with the executive to decide, and report at next meeting Friday night, April 23, at 7 p.m., in the public library.

T. J. Horkins, on behalf of the Agriculture Society asked for teams to perform at the annual 24th of May celebration here. It was decided to play a double-header in the regular league schedule and the teams to draw the holiday date, will be chosen later.

Last year the Cloth Co. had two teams entered, and now find it hard to field one team capable of holding its own. The champion Clerks with five of last season's stars missing, are also having trouble rounding up a team, while the Oddfelolw have lost some players to the new Millionaire club, and want permission to sign players who are not members of the lodge.

JURY UNABLE TO

first clue has been praised by the provincial police. He had the two fox terriers belonging to Mr. Cheer, locked up without food for some time and then turned them loose. He watched one of them and had Thompson Kerr keep track of the movements of the other. The dog, watched by the latter, made straight for the dismantled building across the street, and going under the floor, disclosed the remains of the infant. The coroner was called in and took charge of what was left of the body. Near the body a bloody cloth was found and a small bone that the doctor said was one of the child's ribs. The ice on which the body lay was bloody.

The Medical Evidence.

Dr. Harold Clark, of Brighton, said he had been present at the post mortem. He could not say whether the child was alive at birth as the lungs were gone, but he was of the opinion that it had been born about six weeks before the body was found. He believed the infant was fully matured. It would weigh six or seven pounds. A fracture was found at the base of the skull.

Dr. Wade, of Brighton, one of the three medical men who made the post morten, said he could not tell how the skull had been fractured, but it could have been made before death through the use of force. It could not have been broken by the blow of a fist and was not likely to have been caused by the child falling from the mother's arms.

Dr. H. C. Rundle.

Dr. H. C. Rundle of Brighton read the official report of the post-mortem. The heart and lungs were gone, but all the organs left appeared to be normal. The condition of the brain would indicate that the child had been born alive. There had been a hemorrhage in the brain and this would not take place after death. It would take considerable force to produce the fracture of the skull, as at birth the bones in a human head are elastic. He did not think a blow of a fist had caused the fracture, as something hard had to be used to break the bone.

Death Caused By Violence.

Mr. Kerr—"Was the child, in your opinion, born alive?"

Dr. Rundle—"It was."

"Then what caused death?"

"It died of violence."

Mr. Drewery—"Could not the bone in the skull have been broken by the dog?"

"I don't think so."

"Could the fracture have been caused by a fall?"

"I could not say. There are many ways in which it might have happened."

"Could this girl have destroyed the child immediately after its birth?"

"I don't think so."

"If any violence was used it was used by some one else?"

"I would think so."

The doctor said that the child had never received any nourishment. There was meconium in the lower intestine, and this was one evidence that the infant had been alive at birth.

Juror Tweedie—"Did that fracture cause the child's death?"

"I think it did."

To Mr. Kerr, Dr. Rundle said it was possible that the fracture was made when the child was thrown under the floor of the house.

The Girl's Statement

Constable Cousans said that before the girl had been taken into custody she had made two statements to him. When she was taken to the Cobourg Jail Saturday evening, she made another statement in the presence of Police Chief Ruse of Cobourg, after she had been warned by the officer. This statement was voluntary. It was read to the jury, and in it the girl said that the father of her child was a man named Thomas Johnston, whom she had met on the street one night, and whom she had never seen again. Next morning a man named "Sid" told her that Johnston had left town. Officer Cousans has searched for Johnston but no one in Brighton, so far as he could learn had ever heard of either Johnston or "Sid."

In her statement, the girl said that on Sunday, March 25, she was in the house alone, except for her father who was sick in bed and who died a few days later. The child was born dead but if it had been alive she would have kept it. She carried the body outside and put it under the floor of R. Chatterton's house. No one knew of the affair except herself, and she never told her mother until the day of her arrest.

Gruesome Exhibits

The fractured bone of the skull, some torn bedclothes and female attire, stained with what was supposed to be blood, were offered in evidence. Part of this clothing had been found in an outbuilding of the McDonald home.

Police Chief J. C. Ruse of Cobourg, corroborated the evidence of Constable Cousans with regard to the statement made by the girl.

All three doctors who had testified were called and each gave it as her opinion that the girl was sub-normal mentally.

Self-Confessed Sinners

Without any appearance of shame at the position in which they found themselves, three young men of Brighton, none of them much older than the unfortunate creature of whom they took advantage, were placed on the stand and admitted that they had had illicit relations with her, during the past two years.

Case Goes to Jury

In a brief address to the jurors, Mr. Kerr told them that the main question they had to decide was: "Did the child die of hemorrhage of the brain as a result of the blow which fractured the skull."

Coroner Dure Indignant.

Coroner Dure said that before the jurors retired, he had some things to say to them. Meconium in the lower intestine was not conclusive evidence that the child had been born alive as this condition, in his own professional experience, had often been in the case of children who were stillborn. Sometimes what is apparently a slight fall results in a fracture.

"Are the three young men whose testimony you heard," continued the coroner, "directly or indirectly responsible for the situation in which this girl finds herself? Without any shame they told of their relations with this crippled and sub-normal girl. It is our duty to help others, to add to their happiness instead of dragging them into degradation. We are law-abiding people in this community, but such men as these are a detriment to the municipality."

Preliminary Hearing Monday

Norma McDonald will be given a preliminary hearing before Colonel W. H. Floyd, County Polic Magistrate, in the town hall at Brighton at 10 a.m., Monday. The charge on which she is held is concealing the birth of a child.

The unfortunate girl was obliged to leave school when she was seven years old on account of her health and is barely able to write her own name.

SUCCESSFUL ANNUAL MEETING OF UNITED DAIRYMEN IS ENDED

Addresses By W. A. Weir and G. H. Barr Mark Final Session.

TALK ON HONEY.

Mr. Weir Tells of Efforts of Ontario Beekeepers' Association.

The marketing convention of the United Daiymen's Co-operative Company was brought to a close yesterday afternoon by a session at which two splendid addresses were given. A tour of the De Laval plant also featured the afternoon.

W. A. Weir of the Ontario Beekeepers' Association was the first speaker and he gave a comprehensive address on the growth of the honey producing industry in the province and on the efforts of the association to improve the quality and marketing conditions for the producers. The possibilities of the industry, he said, were almost unlimited if a system of marketing were built up. This is particularly necessary in selling honey as some system of providing a steady export supply must be devised. This must be province wide because one section and then another will have a year with a very poor yield, depending on climatic conditions.

Mr. Weir gave a history of the development of the industry. In 1910, he said honey was a seasonal luxury. More people began keeping bees and in 1913, with a big crop, the beekeepers began to feel the pinch of an over supply. This was relieved when there was a very small crop in 1914. Then came the war and the shortage of sugar made honey popular until in 1917 the price reached twenty-six cents a pound and there was great enthusiasm in the industry. The Ontario Beekepers' Association, which had been an educational association, started to issue market reports, but the marketing was still done individually. In 1918 the war ended and the natural competitors, jams, jellies, etc., came back on the market and things became dark in the honey industry.

In 1922 the beekeepers were carrying over a great deal of honey, principally amber and dark. With such an erratic crop, individual beekeepers, no matter on how large a scale they operated, could not build up an export business. There was no agreement on grades and no definite package scheme. In 1923 358 members of the beekeeper's association signed up to give the association control of their produce. The association began to look after means of saving money for the producers, and started a number of carloading points in the province.

In conclusion Mr. Weir said that the association had saved the beekeepers from a terrible morass and they were now holding their own.

Mr. Barr.

Building quality into Ontario dairy produce was the subject of the address by George H. Barr, Dairy Commissioner for Ontario. In starting he congratulated the co-operative on having Mr. Moore as general manager and said that he had been glad to be associated with him in grading the first cheese shipped by the united dairymen.

In speaking on the subject of quality Mr. Barr outlined a circle. Starting with good cows, well fed, he traced it from there to more milk, busier factories, better equipment, better workmanship, better quality, better prices, and finally more money to buy more and better cows.

All dairymen must do their part, he said. If one sends turnipy milk seven or eight cheese are spoiled. If one is careless about cleanliness in his stable seven or eight more are spoiled, and go as seconds. How can these losses be checked? he asked. By educating the producer? The Government literature is put to many uses as waste paper. By paying on a quality basis? This he seemed to think the logical method, saying that the producer of second grade milk would be asking how he could get the extra few cents that the first grade man was paid. Ninety percent of the farmers send in milk that will make first grade cheese and they should not lose for the faults of the other ten percent, he said.

Other losses, he said, could be eliminated by employing the best men and by paying salaries to the makers that would induce good men to learn the business. He hoped that the law to issue certificates to cheese and butter makers would be put in force in 1927, and that it would then be necessary for a man to get the quality to retain his certificate. This would also enable the makers to refuse poor milk as the unscrupulous maker who would accept milk of any kind, even if another had turned it down, would not run the risk of losing his job.

Quality in the herd was another point. He urged that there should be care in everything from feeding to breeding the cattle, and that the farmers should work at home to stop the leaks and to bring the production of their herds up to the highest point.

Considerable discussion about the points he brought out followed Mr Barr's address.

WHEN METEORS FALL

When meteors fall their composition takes on peculiar characteristics which were recently studied when a large meteorite fell in India. It was found the meteor consisted of three kinds of matter. Igneous rock of a slate gray color formed a part and this was marked with large spots of dark turquoise blue. Another part was jet black matter resembling highly glazed lava. In addition there were veins running through the mass having a turquoise blue color.

WEDDED TO ONE IS PAL TO OTHER

But Caring For Two Childhood Sweethearts Has Drawbacks.

CLEVELAND, April 17.—Living with one husband and having the responsibility of a former husband on her hands at the same time has its drawbacks, according to Mrs. Frances Maloney-Ruck-Hutter, who recently sued for divorce, charging the presiding husband had "swatted me on the jaw" just because the ex-husband had stood up for her in a family quarrel.

"The strangest story ever heard in this court," was the astounded opinion of the judge when Mrs. Maloney-Ruck-Hutter had completed the recital of her marital mishaps. She had told of those days nine years ago when she, a girl of 15, had incited love in the breasts of both Ed Ruck and Jack Hutter, neighbor boys. The two were chums, and at that time had sworn lifetime friendship for each other. Ed was 20 years old and Jack three years younger. Being pals and in love with the same girl made it hard on them, for neither cared to propose marriage to the maiden and break the heart of the other.

But in time, Jack Hutter, being by nature more demonstrative and more forward, declaimed his love to Frances, and thereafter it became known in that part of Cleveland that Frances Maloney was Jack Hutter's girl. Ed took his seeming defeat well, and the friendship between the boys remained unbroken.

But Ed Wins.

And then one day the neighborhood received a thrill. Frances Maloney was married, but the bridegroom was not Jack, the favored one, but Ed. How Ruck succeeded in beating Jack's time, remained a mystery. For six years Ed and Frances lives the customary married life, and Jack still remained Ed's friend. He visited the couple in their home, and often when Ed was tired, would take Frances to a show or dance at the husband's invitation.

This went on for some time until one day in 1923 Frances confided to her husband that she again loved her childhood sweetheart and asked Ed to divorce her so she might marry Jack. Ed, loving these two better than anyone else on earth, consented. So, Frances and Jack were married, moved into a new flat and started life anew.

But Frances was worried. She remembered that Ed suffered from indigestion and that he thrived best on her cooking, so she demanded that he be included in the household where she could look after his poor stomach. Jack, remembering the sacrifice Ed had made for him, consented. And Ed moved in.

For some time things went merrily along. It was nothing unusual to see Frances and Ed and Jack saunter out of the house of an evening for a stroll or a ride in their car. Ed even bought much of the furniture with which the house was furnished, Frances testified.

Ordered From House.

Then, one day, Hutter and his wife had an argument. Ed joined in, taking the side of his landlady, i. e., his former wife. This enraged Hutter and he ordered Ed from the house. Later, Jack and Frances made up; Ed came back, and once again everything was peaceful.

But it didn't remain so. Arguments became more frequent, and the Hutter house slowly became a divided one—Jack Hutter on one side, Frances Hutter and Ed Ruck on the other. New Year's Day marked the end. It was on that day that Jack is said to have first "busted Ed one in the jaw," and then given Frances a like dose. He then left the house for good.

"Your Honor," said Frances, "that was a bit too much to take even from a childhood sweetheart, let alone your husband. I don't want a divorce so I can marry Ed again. I don't want to get married until I meet the man I love. I don't know what love is now, I'll admit.

"No, I'm not sorry I divorced Ed for Jack. I've learned two lessons. But I still feel responsible for both boys. Oh, no, your Honor, I don't want Jack put in jail for hitting me. You know, I like him awfully well, too."

Legislative and adjustment work of other uniting organizations will be co-ordinated at Ottawa, as well as in Legion Provincial offices.

"2. Officers of the Legion placed before the Government and other groups in Parliament, the more pressing legislative requirements with regard to pensions, appeals, soldier settlement and employment.

"3. Plans were evolved for the financing of the Legion's national work during the period of transition from the old organizations to the complete establishment of the new organization.

National Convention.

"4. Tentative plans were made for calling a national convention of the uniting groups within the next six months, to be constituted into the first Dominion convention of the Legion."

In his concluding remarks, Sir Percy said: "In building for the future, the officers of the new organization regard with admiration and appreciation the work accomplished in the past by the organizations now merging their separate identities into the Legion, and in particular, in taking over the work of the G.W.V.A. Bureau at Ottawa, the achievements of that Bureau under its former director, C. Grant MacNeil."

While Sir Percy was still suffering from the effects of the heavy cold that confined him to his rooms Thursday, he hoped to be able to address a mass meeting of veterans in Toronto to-night. Later he will leave for his home in Victoria.

SOLDIERS' LAND REVALUING BILL GIVEN READING

Approved By Commons Committee of the Whole On Second Reading.

MINOR CHANGES.

Final Revision By Government To Include Members' Proposals.

OTTAWA, April 17 (Canadian Press).—The House of Commons in committee of the whole took up yesterday the Government bill to revalue soldier settlement land. Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of the Interior, had said previously he had endeavored to take advantage of proposals made by members of the House, and unless the committee could accept the bill, he would be compelled to withdraw it.

H. M. Hannesson (Conservative, Selkirk) thought the most important consideration was to get something done for the soldiers. He did not approve entirely of the bill. There were a number of other things that should be provided for. A lot of suggestions had been made to the Minister, who had accepted some and rejected others. If this was as far as the Government could go at present, "let us proceed with the bill," said Mr. Hannesson.

Too Long Deferred.

G. G. Coote (Progressive, MacLeod) echoed the suggestion. Soldier land revaluation had been talked of for years and put off by Parliament. If the House accepted all the suggestions made by members, such as that of the member for Muskoka (Peter McGibbon), the bill would be delayed indefinitely.

Mr. McGibbon: "I think the Hon. Minister is more interested in the political side of it than in doing justice to our soldiers."

Mr. Stewart interjected angrily that he had nothing to say to a statement of that kind.

Mr. McGibbon hastily added that he was referring to Mr. Coote and not to Mr. Stewart. The inference was that he had meant to say "Hon. Member" instead of "Hon. Minister." The incident closed.

Declare Land Value.

There was some discussion of that clause which calls upon the soldier settler to produce an affidavit in regard to the value of his land.

General J. A. Clark (Conservative, Vancouver-Burrard) said it would be unfair to bar a soldier from the benefits of the Act just because his affidavit was not made on the form provided by the Department.

Hon. R. B. Bennett (Conservative Calgary West) suggested that the clause be amended by substituting a statutory declaration or affidavit.

The bill as amended was reported from committee and now stands for third reading.

BRIGHTON OFFICER GETS BACK MOTOR

(By a Staff Reporter).

BRIGHTON, April 17. — J. M. Spencer, the village constable, has always been recognized as a faithful and efficient officer, and has handled several cases here with discretion and success. He is being specially commended for the efficient manner in which he dealt with the case of the infant whose body was found under a dismantled house, following it up to a speedy solution from a slender clue.

It is not always that Constable Spencer has a self-confessed thief deliver himself into his hands, but this is what actually happened on Friday. A respectable looking youth of about 19, and who gave his name as John Steele, walked into the constable's office and told Mr. Spencer that he had stolen a car in Toronto. He started along the Provincial Highway for Kingston, but when within a mile of Brighton the car went dead for the want of gasoline, and Steele walked into Brighton and gave himself up.

Constable Spencer 'phoned to Toronto and learned that such a car as the one driven by Steele had been reported stolen, and the young man is in a cell here waiting the arrival of an officer from Toronto.

For milk-producing and general health-building properties no roots excel Sugar Beets and no Sugar Beets excel those raised from Steele, Briggs' Seeds. The roots are uniformly large and of exceptional quality. "ROYAL GIANT" and "GIANT WHITE" are two popular strains.

Steele, Briggs' Seeds have been general favorites in Canada for over fifty years.

SUCCESSFUL ANNUAL MEETING OF UNITED DAIRYMEN IS ENDED

Addresses By W. A. Weir and G. H. Barr Mark Final Session.

TALK ON HONEY.

Mr. Weir Tells of Efforts of Ontario Beekeepers' Association.

The marketing convention of the United Daiymen's Co-operative Company was brought to a close yesterday afternoon by a session at which two splendid addresses were given. A tour of the De Laval plant also featured the afternoon.

W. A. Weir of the Ontario Beekeepers' Association was the first speaker and he gave a comprehensive address on the growth of the honey producing industry in the province and on the efforts of the association to improve the quality and marketing conditions for the producers. The possibilities of the industry, he said, were almost unlimited if a system of marketing were built up. This is particularly necessary in selling honey as some system of providing a steady export supply must be devised. This must be province wide because one section and then another will have a year with a very poor yield, depending on climatic conditions.

Mr. Weir gave a history of the development of the industry. In 1910, he said honey was a seasonal luxury. More people began keeping bees and in 1913, with a big crop, the beekeepers began to feel the pinch of an over supply. This was relieved when there was a very small crop in 1914. Then came the war and the shortage of sugar made honey popular until in 1917 the price reached twenty-six cents a pound and there was great enthusiasm in the industry. The Ontario Beekeepers' Association, which had been an educational association, started to issue market reports, but the marketing was still done individually. In 1918 the war ended and the natural competitors, jams, jellies, etc., came back on the market and things became dark in the honey industry.

In 1922 the beekeepers were carrying over a great deal of honey, principally amber and dark. With such an erratic crop, individual beekeepers, no matter on how large a scale they operated, could not build up an export business. There was no agreement on grades and no definite package scheme. In 1923 358 members of the beekeeper's association signed up to give the association control of their produce. The association began to look after means of saving money for the producers, and started a number of carloading points in the province.

In conclusion Mr. Weir said that the association had saved the beekeepers from a terrible morass and they were now holding their own.

Mr. Barr.

Building quality into Ontario dairy produce was the subject of the address by George H. Barr, Dairy Commissioner for Ontario. In starting he congratulated the co-operative on having Mr. Moore as general manager and said that he had been glad to be associated with him in grading the first cheese shipped by the united dairymen.

In speaking on the subject of quality Mr. Barr outlined a circle. Starting with good cows, well fed, he traced it from there to more milk, busier factories, better equipment, better workmanship, better quality, better prices, and finally more money to buy more and better cows.

All dairymen must do their part, he said. If one sends turnipy milk seven or eight cheese are spoiled. If one is careless about cleanliness in his stable seven or eight more are spoiled, and go as seconds. How can these losses be checked? he asked. By educating the producer? The Government literature is put to many uses as waste paper. By paying on a quality basis? This he seemed to think the logical method, saying that the producer of second grade milk would be asking how he could get the extra few cents that the first grade man was paid. Ninety percent of the farmers send in milk that will make first grade cheese and they should not lose for the faults of the other ten percent, he said.

Other losses, he said, could be eliminated by employing the best men and by paying salaries to the makers that would induce good men to learn the business. He hoped that the law to issue certificates to cheese and butter makers would be put in force in 1927, and that it would then be necessary for a man to get the quality to retain his certificate. This would also enable the makers to refuse poor milk as the unscrupulous maker who would accept milk of any kind, even if another had turned it down, would not run the risk of losing his job.

Quality in the herd was another point. He urged that there should be care in everything from feeding to breeding the cattle, and that the farmers should work at home to stop the leaks and to bring the production of their herds up to the highest point.

Considerable discussion about the points he brought out followed Mr. Barr's address.

WHEN METEORS FALL

When meteors fall their composition takes on peculiar characteristics which were recently studied when a large meteorite fell in India. It was found the meteor consisted of three kinds of matter. Igneous rock of a slate gray color formed a part and this was marked with large spots of dark turquoise blue. Another part was jet black matter resembling highly glazed lava. In addition there were veins running through the mass having a turquoise blue color.

WEDDED TO ONE IS PAL TO OTHER

But Caring For Two Childhood Sweethearts Has Drawbacks.

CLEVELAND, April 17.—Living with one husband and having the responsibility of a former husband on her hands at the same time has its drawbacks, according to Mrs. Frances Maloney-Ruck-Hutter, who recently sued for divorce, charging the presiding husband had "swatted me on the jaw" just because the ex-husband had stood up for her in a family quarrel.

"The strangest story ever heard in this court," was the astounded opinion of the judge when Mrs. Maloney-Ruck-Hutter had completed the recital of her marital mishaps. She had told of those days nine years ago when she, a girl of 15, had incited love in the breasts of both Ed Ruck and Jack Hutter, neighbor boys. The two were chums, and at that time had sworn lifetime friendship for each other. Ed was 20 years old and Jack three years younger. Being pals and in love with the same girl made it hard on them, for neither cared to propose marriage to the maiden and break the heart of the other.

But in time, Jack Hutter, being by nature more demonstrative and more forward, declaimed his love to Frances, and thereafter it became known in that part of Cleveland that Frances Maloney was Jack Hutter's girl. Ed took his seeming defeat well, and the friendship between the boys remained unbroken.

But Ed Wins.

And then one day the neighborhood received a thrill. Frances Maloney was married, but the bridegroom was not Jack, the favored one, but Ed. How Ruck succeeded in beating Jack's time, remained a mystery. For six years Ed and Frances lives the customary married life, and Jack still remained Ed's friend. He visited the couple in their home, and often when Ed was tired, would take Frances to a show or dance at the husband's invitation.

This went on for some time until one day in 1923 Frances confided to her husband that she again loved her childhood sweetheart and asked Ed to divorce her so she might marry Jack. Ed, loving these two better than anyone else on earth, consented. So, Frances and Jack were married, moved into a new flat and started life anew.

But Frances was worried. She remembered that Ed suffered from indigestion and that he thrived best on her cooking, so she demanded that he be included in the household where she could look after his poor stomach. Jack, remembering the sacrifice Ed had made for him, consented. And Ed moved in.

For some time things went merrily along. It was nothing unusual to see Frances and Ed and Jack saunter out of the house of an evening for a stroll or a ride in their car. Ed even bought much of the furniture with which the house was furnished, Frances testified.

Ordered From House.

Then, one day, Hutter and his wife had an argument. Ed joined in, taking the side of his landlady, i. e., his former wife. This enraged Hutter and he ordered Ed from the house. Later, Jack and Frances made up; Ed came back, and once again everything was peaceful.

But it didn't remain so. Arguments became more frequent, and the Hutter house slowly became a divided one—Jack Hutter on one side, Frances Hutter and Ed Ruck on the other. New Year's Day marked the end. It was on that day that Jack is said to have first "busted Ed one in the jaw," and then given Frances a like dose. He then left the house for good.

"Your Honor," said Frances, "that was a bit too much to take even from a childhood sweetheart, let alone your husband. I don't want a divorce so I can marry Ed again. I don't want to get married until I meet the man I love. I don't know what love is now, I'll admit.

"No, I'm not sorry I divorced Ed for Jack. I've learned two lessons. But I still feel responsible for both boys. Oh, no, your Honor, I don't want Jack put in jail for hitting me. You know, I like him awfully well, too."

CANADIAN LEGION OF VETERANS PROGRESSING TO COMPLETE UNION

Sir Percy Lake Expresses Satisfaction With Recent Organization.

REVIEWS RESULTS.

OTTAWA, April 17 (Canadian Press). — Prior to leaving Ottawa last night, Lieut.-General Sir Percy Lake, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., National president of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, stated that the work accomplished by the special committee of the Legion in Ottawa during the past week had brought the final accomplishment of complete unity appreciably closer. He summarized the results of the meeting as follows:

"1. The Legion has assumed responsibility for and direction of the Legislative and Adjustment Bureau at Ottawa, formerly maintained by the Great War Veterans' Association. Temporary direction has been arranged, pending the establishment of the Legion in a sound financial position. Legislative and adjustment work of other uniting organizations will be co-ordinated at Ottawa, as well as in Legion Provincial offices.

"2. Officers of the Legion placed before the Government and other groups in Parliament, the more pressing legislative requirements with regard to pensions, appeals, soldier settlement and employment.

"3. Plans were evolved for the financing of the Legion's national work during the period of transition from the old organizations to the complete establishment of the new organization.

National Convention.

"4. Tentative plans were made for calling a national convention of the uniting groups within the next six months, to be constituted into the first Dominion convention of the Legion."

In his concluding remarks, Sir Percy said: "In building for the future, the officers of the new organization regard with admiration and appreciation the work accomplished in the past by the organizations now merging their separate identities into the Legion, and in particular, in taking over the work of the G.W.V.A. Bureau at Ottawa, the achievements of that Bureau under its former director, C. Grant MacNeil."

While Sir Percy was still suffering from the effects of the heavy cold that confined him to his rooms Thursday, he hoped to be able to address a mass meeting of veterans in Toronto to-night. Later he will leave for his home in Victoria.

SOLDIERS' LAND REVALUING BILL GIVEN READING

Approved By Commons Committee of the Whole On Second Reading.

MINOR CHANGES.

Final Revision By Government To Include Members' Proposals.

OTTAWA, April 17 (Canadian Press).—The House of Commons in committee of the whole took up yesterday the Government bill to revalue soldier settlement land. Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of the Interior, had said previously he had endeavored to take advantage of proposals made by members of the House, and unless the committee could accept the bill, he would be compelled to withdraw it.

H. M. Hannesson (Conservative, Selkirk) thought the most important consideration was to get something done for the soldiers. He did not approve entirely of the bill. There were a number of other things that should be provided for. A lot of suggestions had been made to the Minister, who had accepted some and rejected others. If this was as far as the Government could go at present, "let us proceed with the bill," said Mr. Hannesson.

Too Long Deferred.

G. G. Coote (Progressive, MacLeod) echoed the suggestion. Soldier land revaluation had been talked of for years and put off by Parliament. If the House accepted all the suggestions made by members, such as that of the member for Muskoka (Peter McGibbon), the bill would be delayed indefinitely.

Mr. McGibbon: "I think the Hon. Minister is more interested in the political side of it than in doing justice to our soldiers."

Mr. Stewart interjected angrily that he had nothing to say to a statement of that kind.

Mr. McGibbon hastily added that he was referring to Mr. Coote and not to Mr. Stewart. The inference was that he had meant to say "Hon. Member" instead of "Hon. Minister." The incident closed.

Declare Land Value.

There was some discussion of that clause which calls upon the soldier settler to produce an affidavit in regard to the value of his land.

General J. A. Clark (Conservative, Vancouver-Burrard) said it would be unfair to bar a soldier from the benefits of the Act just because his affidavit was not made on the form provided by the Department.

Hon. R. B. Bennett (Conservative Calgary West) suggested that the clause be amended by substituting a statutory declaration or affidavit.

The bill as amended was reported from committee and now stands for third reading.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

OUR FEATHERED FRIENDS.

In the country we can prepare to make the birds welcome by building houses for them; placing feeding stands and sanctuaries, planting a certain part of the garden with tall, growing, wild and woodsy things and setting it apart for the birds' occupancy where they won't be disturbed continually.

A bird house on top of a sturdy pole makes a lovely center for a hollyhock group. The house may be as elaborate as one desires.

In one country place, the peaked roof of the garage is used for a dovecote, and the little doorways open onto an eight-inch promenade along the two sides.

Should the place have a cherry tree and a good kitchen garden where digging and hoeing is done daily, keeping the earth soft for the worms to be gotten readily, robins are sure to take possession. They are the most discerning of house hunters and surroundings mean so much to them.

The revolving bird house on the tall pole is a real first aid to family birds in stormy weather, if we are thoughtful enough to keep the protected feed dishes filled. These are especially comforting to busy little mothers who cannot leave their nests for long at a time, yet must eat. The house faces away from the wind, so it is a protection if the feeding floor is well covered with the roof.

Birds like to bathe in the sunlight, so it is well to think of this when placing the baths. In a garden spot made ready for birds, some strange things happen and most eunxpected visitors come at times. Delayed on their way North they stop sometimes days, or even weeks, in the garden, enjoying its hospitality.

MUCH SUFFERING FOLLOWS INFLUENZA

An epidemic of influenza, such as is now prevalent in many parts of Canada, always leaves widespread suffering in its wake. The disease itself is dangerous, but the danger is seldom over when the characteristic symptoms of the trouble have passed. There is left behind depression of spirits, weakened vital powers, thin blood, impaired digestion and over-sensitive nerves. Men and women who were robust before stricken with influenza find their bodies racked with pain previously unknown to them. This is due to an abnormal thinning of the blood and leaves the system an easy prey to other serious troubles. This is the time when the convalescent from influenza should build up the blood with a reliable blood-making tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When the blood regains its rich red quality the nerves recover their strength and the organs of the body function naturally and the dangerous, depressing after-effects of influenza disappear. Proof of the undoubted value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a blood-builder and nerve tonic is shown by the case of Mrs. R. O. Stromberg, Cobalt, Ont., who says: "I had a very severe attack of grippe, or influenza, which confined me to my bed for a week. On getting up again I did not recover my usual strength. I was very weak, had a severe pain in my head, and a constant backache. I had to get a woman to do my work for me as I had neither the strength nor the energy to do anything. At this stage, remembering the great benefit I had through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in girlhood, I began taking this medicine, and soon my strength began to return. I am now able to do all my own work again, and take care of my baby boy. I am very grateful for what the pills have done for me, and hope my experience will be of benefit to some other sufferer."

If you need a blood-building tonic begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50c a box by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"To have and to hold—till death do us part!" What sweeter promise does a girl make in her whole life than this? True, when she first gives the promise of faith and love in her engagement—she thinks this the most wonderful of all. But when, in her bridal veil with the sweetly solemn music softly filling every corner of the church, she places her hand in her beloved's and echoes these dearest of all words, and looking down at her hand she sees the pledge of her faith and love—then only does she realize to the fullest extent the dearness and sweetness of the wods she has just said. For the promise of faith and trust is the sweetest of all, especially when Love dwells within the hearts and prompts the words.

JUST A WORD!

Irate parents of an eastern hamlet demand the resignation of a pedagog who has been discovered to punish the shooting sprouts by forcing them to imbibe epsom salts. There's no pleasing parents, I opine! They rise up in wrath if teacher spanks, slaps, shakes, whips, or even deposits the progeny upon a stool in the corner with foolscap on his head.

In short, they rebel at all the time-honored disciplinary methods without which their own homes would be in a havoc! I timidly suggest that a pedagog with such ingenuity and imagination as exhibited in this choice of punishment is well worth keeping!

Somebody once said that if that time ever came when women's clubs were drenched with a good squirt of humor, the country would be saved. Evidently that time has come. The program for the annual conventoin of the National League of Women Voters in St. Louis contains Robert Benchley's famous "Treasurer's Report." If club women can see humor in this, and not bristle like wet cats, they are saved!

BOOK AND BIRDS

One of these nature ginks has this to say in "Secrets of the Friendly Woods," about a pair of blue jays "Usually you cannot keep still enough to watch them. But the amorous urge seemed to dull the customary keenness of the particular pair."

Which explains, mayhap, why in the spring, tra la, park policemen have no difficulty creeping up on park bench lovers.

FAIRE LADYES

A Western judge bowled out "a painted wife" appearing in his court against her husband. The judge in no uncertain terms told the lady that "painted-faced trollops made no hit with the court."

If the lady had known how to apply her rouge wisely this calamity would never have occurred. Rouge, the experts say, should be applied in V-shape, the point towards the nose, then gently smeared in. And a tiny daub on the chin helps the illusion—or delusion.

YOUR CHILD

Several hundred dollars were recently spent by a national woman's magazine in prise money to boys who wrote letters on the subject "If I Were My Mother, What Would I Do for My Son?" The winner said this among other things

"I'd never allow my boy to think he could get away with anything, just because I was his mother. I'd love himalrightie, but I'd take second place in his life if it killed me."

THE MODE

"Masculine women, feminine men: which is a rooster, which is a hen?" is the title of a genteel classical ditty going the rounds of the vaudeville houses. Designers have been forced to consider the trend of public opinion and are softening the severity of the mannish lapeled tailor suit. Paree is even making the tailleur in georgette and chiffon.

BIT O' VERSE

"Too close life crowds. There is not place to hide.
Let us take time to know the thoughts of men:
Time to know beauty: and time to feel again
Calm and content of soul—the quiet power
Of meditation through a gentle hour:
Time for the book, the song, the golden weather.
Made for the happiness of friends together:
Let this hour be still. Let us take time—
Take time."

FASHION NOTES.

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, April 17 (United Press).—The Spanish Sailor, not the seafaring kind we read about in books, for we are referring to millinery, is sponsored by Agnes who is one of the foremost designers in Paris. The sailor is made of Picot straw and has a medium wide brim and medium high crown with a cocarde of coque feathers or multi-colored aigrettes at the side back. The hat is worn titled a bit over the right eye.

The tam shape of straw is the newest thing in New York. Usually there is a tiny brim effect over the eyes and the crown of straw drapes to one side where a cluster of stubby burnt ostrich of matching color is used as a brim. In many cases there is no trimming whatever save the ribbon band. Again, there may be a flat-fitting bandeau which is cut rather wide and fits the forehead and this may be composed of several layers of colored silk ribbon or satin banding. The tam portion in this case is rather small.

Draped crowns appear on many of the new wide-brimmed straw models. The draping which covers the crown may be of satin, faille or velvet. Occasionally the drape suggests the tam crown effect.

Hair braid hats with large sized brims will be popular this Summer. Some of the newer straws of this type have gold or silver thread running through the straw and this gives a very dressy appearance to the hat. A lovely soft blue hair braid shape has silver threads glimmering through the blue. It is piped about the brim in narrow silver ribbon and has a pastel rose of huge size appliqued flat on the side of the upper brim. This hat is an example of many other Summer models of various color combinations.

Large hats are invariably drooping as to brim. The underbrim of some smart models is faced in matching velvet. It is doubtful whether larger hats will make their formal appearance until long after Easter.

Small hats remain the favorites for sports wear for Spring and Summer. They will also have many followers for street wear since most women are loath to give them up owing to their becomingness and to their snugness.

HER OWN WAY
by
A GIRL of TODAY

GIRL TO GIRL

"I'll be awfully glad to have you with me, Mamie," I said, "for I am rather excited over my eventful evening and I don't think I'll sleep much either. We'll talk it all out and get it all out of our systems, my dear.

"First and foremost," I said as we were undressing for bed, "why did you not tell me there was a son in the family that owns the Beaux Arts restaurant?"

"Because I didn't know there was one," answered Mamie in a surprised tone.

"Well, there is, and his name is Jerry Hathaway. He doesn't care for restauranting and the old man is sore about it, so he probably doesn't get around to the eat shop very often."

"Say, Mamie, please don't call me Julie any more. "My name is Julia Dean instead of Julie Kean as that French waiter got it the first night and I let it go as I thought if the episode got in the papers, Dad would never connect the name of Julie Kean with me and he would not say that this prophecy had come true.

"From now on, however, I'm going to be Julia Dean to my acquaintances and employers and Judy to my friends."

For the first time that night Mamie you could not have had a French name like Julie. You're too independent and aggressive. Julie always sounds like a clinging vine to me.

"I know I've been awfully slefish to talk to you all the evening about my affairs. Now you can tell me all about what happened to you after you left the restaurant with that nice Jimmie Costello, as you call him and I'll listen."

"Well, Jimmie and I walked miles before we came across the fact that I was starving and we were looking for food, we had so much to say about our old home town. At last, just as we were going into a very modest place, for Jimmie was developing a very black eye, some man, a very good-looking man, stalked up on us. He seemed delighted to see Jimmie, who introduced him to me as Jerry Hathaway. He had just come from the Beaux Arts and had heard of the fracas. He was more than delighted that Jimmie had taken a fall out of Horton.

"In the course of the explanation and conversation, I was mentioned as being the cause of it all and my story had to be told."

Shell-Pink Georgette with Silver Ribbon Flowers

The loose ends of restless draperies add their flutter to the kinetic mode of a Spring and Summer evening frock. What is the status quo of your evening wardrobe? Velvet frocks that are too heavy, beaded or metallic frocks that are too elegant for the less formal demands of approaching Summer? Lay them away in black paper so they won't tarnish and then turn your attention to fine lace dyed in lovely colors, flowered Georgette or the new evening shades in crêpe de Chine. All the pinks are good, but mauve pink, crushed-berry pinks and shell pink are the smartest. Chartreuse green, the rather intense flag blue, poppy red, citron yellow and white are the French shades of night.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

TOOTH STRAIGHTENING

Your child has 'crooked teeth,' and wisely, you are thinking of his future, and are not content to let this condition persist.

Irregular teeth are in a sense, a deformity, and often mar one's natural attractiveness, and indeed, in many instances may also lead to general systemic disturbances.

Now, can anything be done by way of correcting this mal-occlusion?

A great deal! especially if treatment is commenced while the child is still young.

Each case, of course, presents its own problems with their special solutions, but in the main, your dentist, or the orthodontest who specializes in this branch of dentistry, will correct this condition by making use of metal bands and bars which your child would need to wear continuously for some little time, the period of wearing being determined by the severity of the case in hand.

But you wonder, perhaps how a tooth can be moved when fully erupted' encased as it is, in dense and seemingly unyielding bone.

However, it is simply a matter of making use of a natural physiological process whereby bone tissue is resorbed and broken down in advance of a properly applied and persistent force, thus permitting the tooth to move bodily through its supporting bony structure.

Then, is tooth straightening a painful process?

Not in the least, where too rapid movement is not attempted.

And when should it be commenced?

Many operators like to take the case in hand while the child still has the temporary set and generally at about the eighth year, when success is more easily and quickly secured.

Then, of course, where treatment is delayed, the case becomes progressively more difficult of correction because the muscles and tissues are becoming more or less fixed. When early adult life is reached, 'tooth straightening' is not advisable except in the very simple cases.

DAINTY DISHES FOR SPRING APPETITES

People living in the middle strata between North and South enjoy three seasons of good things, those from the South, their own, and the things sent from the North. This happens with peas, beans, strawberries and other like commodities. New potatoes are new when their season arrives no matter where they may be grown.

Menus for a couple of Spring dinners may whet our appetites for the things and set us watching for their arrival.

1st Menu.
Egg Canape
Broiled Shad, Fried Roe,
Egg Canape,
New Potatoes, Asparagus,
Spring Salad,
Rhubarb Pie, Coffee.
2nd Menu.
Grapefruit Cocktail,
Roast Spring Lamb, New Potatoes,
Radishes, Scallions,
New Carrots,
Dandelion Salad,
Lemon Pie.

For the egg canape, allow a hard boiled egg for each person. Chop the eggs fine, season with juice of an onion, salt, pepper, a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, a tablespoonful of fresh horseradish, and enough mayonnaise to bind the mixture. Spread on toast rounds and garnish each with a single scallion and a radish rose.

If the cook is an expert, she may bone the shad before broiling, if not, see that the broiler is well greased before putting the large half or the smaller whole fish on it, if it is to be broiled over coals.

To insure the roe being properly cooked, it is a good idea to place it over the fire in cold water and let it boil gently eight minutes from the time it begins to boil. Drain and lift it, roll in very fine crumbs, or dredge with flour and fry in hot fat.

The spring salad is made of well washed and picked-over water-cress, minced onion, thinly sliced radishes, and French dressing flavored with a tiny bit of garlic.

In the second menu, two grapefruit will make four ample cocktails. Drain and chill the pulp before using and garnish with maraschino cherries. The new potatoes to serve with the lamb should be boiled and have a melted butter and parsley dressing over them. The carrots may be creamed.

A new way to make the dandelion salad is to add two sliced oranges and the juice of an onion to the French dressing that is used over the salad. The salad should be very carefully picked over and washed before using.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

There was an odd contest in New York recently. A prize mother was selected. Out of a thousand entrants, Health Commissioner Harris decided that Mrs. Robert H. Myers was entitled to the honor.

This lady is forty-one and the mother of two children, a boy twenty and a girl of eighteen. She was considered to be the healthiest of all this great group.

I am hoping that the attention given the expectant mother, the improved conditions of the sickroom, and the better surroundings of the home life will make every mother healthier and longer lived. Certainly the modern methods are increasing the number of prize babies.

Health contest are a good thing. They teach that beauty or "prettiness" is not essential. There are other qualities far more important.

I have taken pains to go behind the scenes and to study the records of the babies who have gone through the preliminaries and have entered the final contests for prizes. In every such case it has developed that these facts obtain.

The Prize Baby has been brought up by rules. He has had regular hours of feeding, sleep, bathing and outings. His feedings have been prepared scientifically. His living room has always been well ventilated. He has slept in a room with open windows. He has been taken out of doors for a part of each day. He has been bathed and dressed according to rule.

The Prize Baby has been inspected regularly by the family doctor or at the Baby Health Station. In this way the first warning of trouble with nose, throat, mouth, eyes, ears or digestive organs has been detected in time to prevent the development of a stubborn ailment. Such a warning is often overlooked by the most careful mother.

These precautions make for clean limbs, clear skin, white teeth, proper breathing space and good lung action, good eyesight and hearing, correct posture of the body, proper functioning of the abdonimal organs and no bad habits. These points make up the general physical perfection. They make a Prize Baby.

If the baby is below the standard in any one of these points, if his flesh is flabby, his complexion pasty, his eyes running, his teeth yellow or neglected if he is a fretting, sniffling, mouth-breathing, bow-legged, thumb-sucking child, no matter what beauty Nature gave him, he is far from a perfect baby and he will have to go way down near the foot of the class.

The Prize Baby is the Baby who has had, not only loving care, but the right kind of care from the day he was born. Maternal instinct is a wonderful thing—one of the most wonderful things in the world. But alone it is not sufficient to raise a Prize Baby. Guided by the scientific knowledge of the family physician or the doctors and nurses at the Baby Health Station, it is sufficient. Every mother owes it to her baby to see that he has the benefit of this sort of training. He may not win a prize, but he will be a prize.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

Mrs. A. G. Q.—What do you advise for a 7-year-old child who is always afflicted with sick stomach when riding in cars or automobiles?

A.—Be sure to avoid constipation and indigestion by giving the child only light, easily digested foods when going on a trip. Also avoid overeating. The trouble will probably be outgrown.

K. C. T. Q.—Can any form of cancer be cured or stopped in progress when it is a small growth on the outside of the body?

A.—X-ray usually helps this.

W. B. Q.—Is whooping cough contagious—

A.—Yes, it is.

T. O. B. Q.—Is there a safe and permanent way to remove superfluous hair?

2. How can freckles be removed?

A.—The electric needle is beneficial for this condition.

2. Equal parts of lemon juice and peroxide will act as a bleach, and use a good cold cream afterward.

L. W. Q.—What will remove a black substance which collects on the teeth?

A.—Consult a dentist about this.

MAUD. Q.—What can be done for round shoulders?

A.—If you cannot use your will power to hold the shoulders back and walk erect, then join a gymnasium and have them outline a special course of exercise for you.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, APRIL 18 AND 19.

Sunday's astrological chart holds presage of activities of a social, artistic and romantic nature but of adverse conditions in any kind of workaday matters. Protect the health and also the finances.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a pleasant and happy year rather than a prosperous one. They should look to their physical condition. A child born on this day should be artistic, accomplished and well thought of.

Monday's horoscope holds promise for a change of radical importance, resulting in a permanent expansion in old as well as new business. Large opportunity and substantial gains are indicated. Employment may be disturbed.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of large opportunity, involving probable radical change. Stable fortunes are forecast. A child born on this day will likely have qualities assisting it to amass wealth through unusual ventures as well as by its industry, application and responsibility.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DAVID MEETS BOSSY COW'S COUSIN

"Hum, but you certainly are a funny looking fellow," David mused as he glanced between the iron bars at the four-legged creature.

"You are not a beauty by a long shot, are you, Mr. Bison?" chuckled a tiny voice. David turned around to see Happy Giggles, the wee elfin from Make Believeland, standing at his side. "Hello, there, David! This is my friend, Mr. Bison."

"Mighty glad to know you, Mr. Bison," said David, blushing to the tips of his ears. "I really meant no harm. I'm not much on beauty myself. But, you see, I've never seen an animal like you."

"No harm done," laughed the animal, good-naturedly. "I know I'm not good-looking. And I'll not be a bit offended if you take a good look at me. That's why I'm in this zoo, so folks can see what a bison looks like."

He was a large, heavy fellow, with a great hump on his shoulders. He carried his head low and from his throat hung a long beard. His tail was very short and made David smile when he saw him trying to wag it. The hair on his body and hind parts was light brown and rather short, while his shoulders, neck and knees were covered with long, shaggy dark brown hair.

"Your horns look something like our cow's horns," said David.

"He's a first cousin to your cow," replied Happy Giggles. "Mr. Bison's horns never fall off, as so many animals' horns do. They are hollow and stay on for life."

"This Is Mr. Bison."

"I'm mighty glad they do not drop off," declared Mr. Bison. "And I'm glad they're not forked, as some other animals' horns are. Instead of shedding my horns I shed my coat of heavy hair."

"I should think you'd want to do so in hot weather," laughed David. "My! It's thick. Don't you nearly die when it's hot weather?"

"I guess you would, Mr. Bison," said Happy Giggles, "if you didn't take mud baths."

"Mud baths?" David exclaimed. "Do you really take mud baths."

"Sure I do," replied Mr. Bison. "When it gets so warm I can't stand it any longer I just find a nice muddy spot and roll in that mud until I'm covered with it. That not only keeps me cool, but keeps the bugs and flies from biting me."

"What do you live on, Mr. Bison?" David asked.

"Oh, grass mostly," answered the animal. "Fact is I'm perfectly happy in a nice, grassy meadow. Years ago, before the hunters became so thick, we used to graze over the fields in great big droves. But those days are gone, and the only place we are safe now is in the zoo. I wouldn't go back to the old life for anything. Well, I'm going to take a nap. Come and see me again." Then, nodding his great big head, Mr. Bison went around the rock, leaving David and Happy Giggles alone.

They waited quite a while, but Mr. Bison failed to return, so David and Happy Giggles ran down the path to visit the other animals in the zoo.

THE BUBBLER.

Sweet little lips of the tiniest child kiss and caress you each day. Many the youngster who often has smiled—halted, and then walked away. Tired from their playing, and running about, always they think of you first. Cooling the water, that slowly seeps out—quenching the little one's thirst.

People of age may be passing your way, worn by the hours in the sun. How can you wonder how greatly you pay? Think of the good you have done. Hands, all atremble, will coax you to sprout. Then, when your contents are freed, cooling the draught that comes bubbling out—giving the drink that they need.

Bubble, yea, bubble—then bubble some more. Flow ever gently, and kind. Now we all know what you're standing there for—right where the tired folk can find. Nothing on earth is as tempting to all, as water that bubbles on through. "Sip me, you thirsty," it seems is your call. We drink—and the drink is to you.

WHERE THE COIFFURE INDICATES AGE

Reports come from China that the girls of that ancient republic are bobbing their hair just as their Western sisters are. And that report must come as a shock to anybody who has ever visited China.

For Chinese girls have long been in the habit of using their hair to denote their ages. There was no variety in the coiffures one saw in China. A girl had to wear her hair in a certain way at the various periods of her life.

For instance, from the time she was an infant, the Chinese girl's hair was shaved, save in a round spot about a quarter of an inch above her forehead. There it was allowed to grow until the little plait became thick and long.

At five, she lost her "milk-name" and took on the important one of "mellowing age." Then her hair was allowed to grow. It was divided carefully by a part through the middle. One part was braided and coiled about the left ear. The rest was braided and allowed to hang at the other side.

This style of dressing the hair signifies that the maiden was ready to be asked in marriage. And this period lasts until she is between ten and fifteen. If she is still unmarried at that time, her hair is braided and arranged in two coils over her ears. This denotes that she is ready for marriage.

After the girl is married her hair must be worn in a coil behind. That is the only correct coiffure for a married woman.

Marriage Depends on Her Hair.

The Chinese frequently use glue on their hair to give the effect of satiny glossiness. For the beauty of the hair was highly esteemed in old China and the possession of shining, luxuriant locks was an asset that every girl coveted. Frequently her marriage price depended upon her hair. It it was particularly lovely, she would be far more desirable in the eyes of her husband.

What changes the new mode may bring in China is as yet unknown. But it is safe to infer that the old symbols are on the wane.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

THAT if you read the advertisements of your local merchants you will find that merchandise can be bought as cheaply in your city as elsewhere, and in most instances you can actually receive more for your money than you can by buying from a catalogue or in a distant city.

THAT when you buy from your local merchants you can see what you buy before paying for it.

THAT when you buy at home you don't have to wait days and even weeks for the delivery of the articles you order.

THAT you don't have to order from a catalogue or some distant city to buy good merchandise. Your local stores carry big stocks of seasonable merchandise.

THAT money spent at home helps to build your city; money sent away from your home city helps to build some other city. You should have no trouble in making up your mind to be for your home city first.

THAT your local business concerns need your business; they should have it. They are your friends, your neighbors and a living part of your city.

THAT as business grows so will your city grow. As a loyal citizen, as a booster, as a builder you should spend your money at home.

Don't look around to see who I am talking to. I am talking to you!

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

"Proper Food and Exercise," by ARTHUR A. McGOVERN Former physical director, Cornell Medical College

Exercise an aid in preserving beauty

SURPLUS ENERGY ESSENTIAL FOR SOCIALLY ACTIVE

IF you had the wealth of a Croesus at your command, but were not feeling very "fit," how would you go about winning new strength and health? You might call in the best physicians in all the land and they would tell you that there was nothing really wrong with you, that there was nothing they could do and that you must effect the change yourself, through your own efforts. And if your lassitude is the result of unused muscles and physical laziness, that prescription holds good for you whether you are a factory worker, a typist or an heiress.

People who move in a constant round of social activities, just as do those who work all day, find that they must conserve their strength if they are to stand the strain successfully. You must have resistance to dance into the wee, small hours of the morning and feel fresh upon arising. You must have enough vitality to recover your buoyancy in short order.

The secret of vitality such as this is the possession of perfectly functioning organs, combined with well-developed muscles and a good supply of rich blood and fresh air. Each of these factors is absolutely essential to the whole. You cannot be healthy if one of them is missing.

Daily exercise of the proper sort is indispensable to keeping "fit." You quickly realize this when you have to do anything particularly strenuous. You become tired very easily, practically any effort seems to exhaust you. It takes you a very long time to regain your complete efficiency. These are signs of a lack of reserve energy.

My twenty years of experience in treating people physically below par has taught me by practical experience that a lazy intestine is the underlying reason for most sicknesses, both physical and mental.

Women in particular are sufferers from this distressing malady. No woman can be attractive or retain her beauty who is suffering from faulty elimination. It is said that twenty-five million Americans have the laxative habit, but taking laxatives as a remedy for constipation is seldom advisable. It is an emergency method which, if constantly repeated, will aggravate instead of improving the condition.

A real cure is a combination of correct diet, regularity, normal habits and exercise.

My chart of twelve exercises is too lengthy to be put in a short article, but I will send it free to any of my readers who will send me a self-addressed stamped envelope.

A "Keep Well" Diet

BREAKFAST: Fruit such as oranges, cherries, currants, grapefruit, prunes, apricots, etc. Cooked cereal served plain or with cream. Toasted whole wheat or graham bread, corn or bran muffins with butter. Cup of cocoa or chocolate—or coffee substitute. Two glasses of water between breakfast and lunch.

LUNCHEON: Glass of buttermilk, fermillac or sweet milk. Any fruit, vegetable or mixed salad. Bran, whole wheat or brown bread with butter. Rice, tapioca or farina pudding. Take two glasses of water between lunch and dinner.

DINNER: Small portion of soup such as bean, tomato or vegetable. Broiled meat, chicken or fish. Two green vegetables—cabbage, peas, onions, carrots, beet tops, lima beans, cauliflower, and one starchy food such as rice macaroni, noodles, potatoes, hominy. A lettuce or vegetable salad, French dressing. For dessert stewed fruit, berries or fruit pudding. Weak tea or a coffee substitute.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER SIXTEEN—SNITCHER SNATCH HAS TO RUN

Mister Tingaling and the Twins left the hive of the honey bees and all the friendly bees buzzed a good-bye.

"Good-bye!" called the Queen Bee. "I hope that Mrs. Tingaling will like the honey. And tell her she can eat all she wants, and it won't make her fat."

Away started Mister Tingaling and the Twins, pulling the square honey-comb along like a little wagon.

"Let's sing a song," said the little fairyman. "I'm feeling happier than I have for six weeks. I feel just like singing."

"What shall we sing?" said the Twins.

But before anybody could answer there was a loud buzzing, and looking back they beheld a large wasp settle himself right on the honey and start to eat it.

"Get out!" shouted Mister Tingaling.

"I won't," said the wasp. "I like honey and I'm going to have some. If you put me off, I'll sting you."

"Oh, then just help yourself!" said the fairyman. "I guess you can't eat much anyway. Come on, children. Don't pay any attention to the cross old thing. Let's sing."

"What'll we sing?" said the Twins again.

"Why let's sing, let's sing—let's see. Why we'll sing—"

But just then there was another buzzing.

And looking back quietly the rent collectors saw a big hornet settling himself on the honey.

"I don't care," said the hornet. "I like honey and I'm going to have some. Move over, wasp! Gimme room! Um, yum! That's good sweet honey! Don't worry! There will be lots left for you, Mister Fairyman."

"I guess you won't eat much," said Mister Tingaling. "Come on, let's sing, children!"

But before they could decide what to sing, there was another buzzing and this time it was a dragon-fly.

Then next came a yellow-jacket, and after that came a June bug. And pretty soon the entire top of the honey-comb was covered with passengers helping themselves to the honey and getting a free ride.

"My goodness! You'd think I ran a bus line!" cried Mister Tingaling.

"I'd call it a dining car—meals at all hours!" laughed Nancy.

Mister Tingaling had forgotten all about singing by this time. He was looking pretty blue. "How am I ever going to get all those creatures off my honey when I get home?" he kept thinking.

Suddenly they heard a dreadful voice—Snitcher Snatch's voice—saying, "Here, give me that honey! I like honey and if you don't give me that honey, I'll grab it and run off with it."

"Help yourself!" said Mister Tingaling quickly.

Out of the woods hopped the bad little goblin, and he grabbed the honey with both hands.

But the wasp and the hornet and the yellow jacket began to buzz angrily around him and he ran away yelling at the top of his lungs.

"One good turn deserves another," they buzzed. "Thank you very much. We're full now and we're going. Good-bye!"

"Now let's sing," said the fairyman. But I don't know what they sang so I can't tell you.

HOUSE OF REFUGE REPORT

Statement of receipts and expenditures re the House of Refuge farm operations alone from 1905 to 1923 inclusive, also 1924, the year of the change of stock, followed by the barn being burned.

All stock expense is included, and machinery, but if the institution was operated with say five acres for garden and orchard and five acres for house site and ingress and egress, some horses and machinery, as well as certain vehicles, would be required. All farm wages are also included in the statement.

	Payments
Paid cash for same to Dec. 31, 1923	$14355 22
Paid cash in 1924	2488 53

Total Payments	23093 75
Receipts in Excess	$7367 70

The item "produce used" is partly estimated, but for 12 months (or to date, April 30, 1926), the cows were dispensed with the milk has cost $432.21; and the greater part of same was paid for at 4½ cents per quart. During former years, when stock was kept, considerable cream was sold, yet the House was kept in milk from the small herd of cows.

The insurance referred to above was $500 on old building and contents, $758.90. You will observe that the farm is charged with the $2,250 over Government subsidy on the $6,250 purchase, leaving nothing for the site charged to farm.

KILLED BY BOAR.

Attacked Youth About To Slaughter It.

MONTREAL, Que., April 17 (Canadian Press).— How a black boar became enraged as it was being led to the piggery and launched at a man, biting him in the right thigh and inflicting such a wound that the victim bled to death, was related Friday in the coroner's court when a verdict of accidental death was returned in the case of Alcide Ethier, 19, residing on his father's farm at Coteau Station, Que.

Deputy Coroner Prince, in disposing of the inquest on the body of Alcide Ethier, 19, Coteau station, Que., who was bitten by a black boar which had become enraged, and later bled to death, remarked that a similar case had recently been reported from Drummondville, Que., and wondered whether the rabies epidemic which laid low the dogs of Montreal, had not spread to the animals of the countryside.

HORTICULTURISTS ARE ENTHUSIASTIC

Directors Meet and Show Progress—Mr. Young Submits Planting Chart.

An enthusiastic lot of horticulturists met last evening at the Chamber of Commerce comprising the directors of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, and members of the several committees. Very good reports were made by the chairmen of committees, that of Mr. Madill, of the children's membership campaign, showing real progress and everything ready for business. Each child who pays a fee of 10 cents, will receive a handsome pin button with a red gladiolus and junior member printed on it, and will also be given a package of either vegetable or flower seeds, with a choice of six varieties of either.

The children will get their buttons and seeds from the teachers, and it is expected to dispose of the whole 1,000 buttons in a week. The button will be badge of junior membership.

It was also decided to hold a Glad Day in the interest of the coming big show, and to every one (who pays 10 cents) the salesgirls will give a gladiolus bulb of a really good variety, so that thousands of gladiolus will be grown in Peterborough on this special gladiolus year.

In this connection, Mr. Young has prepared a planting time table which shows the proper time to plant the different varieties to have them in bloom at the time of the show. A total of $92.00 in cash and $70.00 in value is offered for competition by members of the Peterborough Horticultural Society only.

About the time various gladiolus bulbs should be planted to have them in bloom for the big gladiolus show, to be held in Peterborough, August 24 and 25, 1926. Of course a few bulbs should be planted a few days ahead and a few days after the dates given.

"We would like to have you see how we Gum-Dip our Cords"

We wonder how many car owners actually know that the greatest enemy to tire life is heat, which is created by internal friction. Heat not only weakens the fabric, but also softens the rubber and causes blowouts and tire failures.

The earlier type of tire—the fabric—was of a tightly-woven construction that was extremely difficult to insulate with rubber.

The cord tire—a later development permitted much greater insulation of the cords because of its more open construction. This materially reduced friction and internal heat and doubled the tire mileage.

Firestone chemists and engineers felt that if they could find a way to insulate and impregnate every fiber of every cord with rubber, they could further increase the life and mileage giving qualities of the cord tire, and such a method was found which we have called "Gum-Dipping."

We would like to have every car owner see how we carry out this extra process in our special Gum-Dipping plants, and see the Gum-Dipped cords before they are sent to the tire factories for the usual process of calendering.

You would then understand why Gum-Dipped Cords have won all of the important national races during the past five years and established such remarkable records for speed. In fact, experienced race drivers insist on equipping their cars with Gum-Dipped Cords as a matter of personal safety and to increase their chances of winning.

In commercial use—on taxicabs, buses and trucks—where mileage and dependability are vital factors, you will find that these fleet owners—because of the careful cost records they keep—are among the largest users of Gum-Dipped Cords.

Firestone dealers—familiar with Gum-Dipping and its advantages—will gladly explain to you how thousands of extra miles are built into Firestone tires by our exclusive method.

ANNUAL REPORT OF CEMETERY BOARD

Speciel Request For Proper Care of Lakefield Burial Ground.

LAKEFIELD, April 17.—A meeting was held last week of the Lakefield Cemetery Board and a statement of the previous year was read showing a very satisfactory condition in every respect. Mr. T. T. Milburn, chairman of the Board, presided, and after due discussion the following resolution was passed and order given to have it published in the daily press and also to have this very important matter brought to the attention of each and every lot holder. The following is the resolution:

To the Directors and Lot Owners of the Lakefield Cemetery Co.

Gentlemen.—There are a few matters of grave importance, which as your board of trustees, we feel it our duty to bring to your attention. No doubt each of you, like ourselves, have noticed the neglected burial places throughout our country wherein many of our first settlers in this district are buried, which have become not only an eyesore but a disgrace. We could name some of them if necessary, and it is to avoid the possibility of our cemetery in years to come, becoming similarly neglected, that we are today laying this question before you. As you know, we have a small fund, which we are holding in trust for the future and perpetual care of our cemetery. These funds, which are invested in bonds, are deposited in a safety box in a chartered bank, subject to the order of your president and one or two directors.

Then we want to particularly request all lot owners and others interested in our cemetery, either during their lifetime or when making their wills to remember the cemetery in them by leaving sufficient funds for the perpetual care of their lots.

The money received from lot holders for the care of lots may be handed to the caretaker and given in his monthly accounts to the secretary-treasurer. Other donations are to be given to the president or the finance committee.

We have a good location and ideal soil for a cemetery, and in our opinion, it only requires a little forethought on our part to make it one of the beauty spots of the whole country side. We, therefore, ask each and all to think this matter over carefully and give your board of directors your loyal and financial support.

(Signed) T. T. Milburn, chairman of the Board.

This is a matter which should appeal to practically the entire community, as each year as it rolls by sees its processions to this quiet spot God's acre— and sees laid to rest men, women and little children, and each fresh mound means at least one more person interested in the upkeep of the cemetery. It is the duty of the living to their beloved dead mortal remains is at least creditable and not neglected and uncared for.

PLAY PRESENTED AT GEORGE STREET

"Patty Makes Things Hum" Enjoyed By the Audience.

The Sunday school room of George street church was crowded last evening for the presentation of the three act comedy drama, "Patty Makes Things Hum."

The parts in this interesting little play were taken wonderfully well. It was a first appearance for the majority of the players, and yet the whole performance went off with speed and accuracy. Everyone in the cast was well chosen for the part, and a naturalness and ease of manner in interpreting the characters made it a pleasure to the audience, who thoroughly enjoyed the whole entertainment. One small boy expressed his opinion as the curtain fell on the last act: "Aw, I wish it was just starting!"

Special mention is due Kathleen Cooney, as Patty, Gwen Routley as Mrs. Green, Pattys older sister, to whom Patty comes when expelled from school and at home she "makes things hum," also Mary Dunlop, who kept the audience in laughter, as Hyacinth, the colored help, who always gets things twisted, and Fred Ash, who falls in love with the pretty maid, who later turns out to be Patty.

The stage settings were exceptionalle good, the first two acts being placed in Mrs. Green's drawing room, and the third scene being a pretty garden party.

The cast of characters was as follows: Captain Braithwaite, a dignified young English officer (Fred Ash); Captain Little, a Canadian officer, (Dick Bates). Mr. Green, a good-natured young business man (Ernest McGee); Mr. Smith, an obliging neighbor (Harold Baker); Mrs. Green, an attractive young matron (Gwen Routley); Mrs. Smith, a neighbor of Mrs. Green's (Dorothy Pogue); Patty, a mischievous, pretty school girl (Kathleen Cooney); Helen Braithwaite, a sweet, dignified English girl (Irene Heard); Hope Dunbar, a sister of Mrs. Smith, (Vera Stevens); Hyacinth, the colormaid, (Mary Dunlop).

Between acts, the following programme was given, each number being enthusiastically encored: Vocal solo by Dorothy Cooney; reading by Vera Stevens; humorous songs, by Court Miller and Rusell Lewis; accompanist, Miss Laura Macfarlane.

Just before the last act, Miss Myra Baird, director of the play, and Miss Leta Brownscombe, teacher of the class which had the presentation in charge, were presented by the cast with pretty bouquets of flowers.

The proceeds of the play will be devoted toward the Sunday school Building Fund and Canadian Girls in Training Summer Conferences.

STARS OF EDMONTON GRADS AND TORONTO LAKESIDES

The famous Grads team from Edmonton, Alberta, are on their way home minus the International, but retaining the Canadian Ladies' Basketball Championship. They lost their series of games in Chicago, but defeated the Lakeside ladies of Toronto this week. The Grads have been recognized as the greatest girls' athletic team of all time.

TWO AVIATORS' CONDITION GOOD

Found Miles Apart By British Officers—Need Medical Treatment.

SURVIVAL PUZZLE.

CAIRO, April 17. — (Canadian Press).—Captain Estevez was found by Flying Officer Coghill of the British Air Force, forty miles from his abandoned machine. His feet were blistered, but otherwise his condition was said to be fair. He was taken by aeroplane to the nearest medical section. Mechanician Calvo was found twenty-five miles further away from the plane. If his condition permits he will be taken by aeroplane for medical treatment.

The authorities are at a loss to explain how the airmen subsisted during the long period between their forced landing and their rescue.

EUCHRE AND DANCE.

Mr. and Mrs. Meeks Entertain Large Number of Friends.

A very enjoyable euchre and dance was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Meeks, 384 Burnham street yesterday evening when about sixty-five of their friends gathered to spend the evening. The Peterboro Gotham Orchestra was engaged for the evening. Refreshments were served at midnight and dancing continued until the wee small hours of the morning.

Treachery, though at first very cautious, in the end betrays itself.—Livy.

PARLIAMENTARY NOTES

The event of the week has been the budget speech of the Finance Minister presented to the House on Thursday. This speech may be regarded as the most important one at any session of Parliament, dealing as it does with the proposed tariff and other matters affecting the general interest of all the people. Mr. Robb made a speech bristling with figures; he occupied less than one hour in delivery. Mr. Guthrie, acting as financial critic in the absence of the Hon. Sir Henry Drayton (who was unable to attend on account of illness), spoke at considerable length, and Mr. Forke, leader of the Progressives, moved the adjournment of the debate, which will be proceeded with on Tuesday next. The Finance Minister's speech is fully reported in the press and only a few comments may be made here.

The estimated surplus for the year just ended (on March 31st) is twenty-two million dollars, though it does not seem as if this fully takes care of certain expenditures in connection with our railway system.

The reduction in postage on ordinary letters than three cents to two cents (taking effect on 1st July) and the removal of the excise tax on receipts (taking effect immediately) will be generally welcome.

The reduction proposed in income tax is quite substantial, for instance, a married man without dependents with income of $3,000, formerly paid $40.00, now nothing; with income of $4,000, fromerly $6$0.00, now $10.00; with income of $5,000, formerly $126.00, now $40.00.

The effect on reduction in tariff on automobiles is impossible to estimate at present. It is stated that 20,000 workmen are employed in Canada in the manufacture of cars or their parts. Will their jobs be affected? Without undertaking to answer this, a comment on the position of industry in this country may possibly be permitted. If industry is to receive protection by means of tariff the amount of protection should not be subject merely to the opinion, for the time being, of the government of the day.

It is now proposed by the present Government to appoint an independent Tariff Board to report upon such matters and to which Board the views of parties interested could be presented and carefully considered. Why this course was not followed in the present instance, no good reason was given.

The tariff on autos may, or may not, be too high for the purpose of giving fair protection, but there should be some way of determining such a question by a non-political body.

During the week a day was occupied in further discussing Maritime Rights. Another day, Wednesday, considering the resolution of Woodsworth of Winnipeg, who urges the establishment of a national banking system, and some time has been given to a resolution introduced by the Government on the subject of old age pensions. This matter will come up later for further discussion. A matter of some interest was also the presentment to the House of a petition on behalf of indigent blind persons asking in effect that their position should be regarded in the same light as is proposed with reference to old persons.

FRIENDS GATHER TO SAY FAREWELL

Mr. and Mrs. Nixon Receive Presents Before Departure.

On Thursday evening the neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Nixon, John street, gathered at their home to spend a social evening and bid farewell to them 'ere they leave for thier new home in Perth, Ont. During the evening Mr. Neil F. Porter read an address and Miss M. Flaherty presented an electric toaster and umbrella to Mr. and Mrs. Nixon and a table service to Miss Mary and Master Hugh Nixon.

Several tables of progressive euchre were played, the ladies' prize going to Miss L. Flaherty and the gentleman's prize to Mr. Strickland. Mrs. Dryland won the consolation prize.

The ladies then served lunch and the company parted for their separate homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. Nixon health and prosperity in their new home.

Mme. Melba has decided to make her farewell appearance on the operatic stage at the Convent Garden season.

SYRUP MAKING IS DISTINCTLY CANADIAN TRADE

Indians of Canada First Discovered Use of Maple Syrup.

CHANGES MADE.

Improvements Wrought in Methods By Ingenuity of White Men.

Now is the time of year when the sap commences to run from the roots of the trees up into the trunk and branches. With the running of the sap the farmer goes to the sugar bush with his sap buckets, his spiles and his large iron kettles to make maple syrup.

Few people in our towns and cities today have ever seen maple syrup being made. Little do they know of the long hours of careful watching and the hard labor that each pint of maple syrup has cost some man or woman.

Many years ago the North American Indians discovered that in the spring, when a branch of a certain kind of tree was broken off a fluid like water, but sweet in taste, ran from this break, and if this fluid was collected and boiled in their kettles for a considerable length of time it began to thicken and become very sweet. This was the first making of maple syrup from the Canadian maple.

Our forefathers came to this country and they found out that a certain kind of maple tree was the best to make maple syrup and it was then called the hard maple. They, being more intelligent than the Indian, who then roamed the woods, soon found out that for two or three weeks in the spring this sap was the best for making maple syrup as it had no bitter taste then. They also became aware that the sap ran best on the south and east sides of the tree as there was more sunshine and the run was better on a warmd ay after a severe night's frost.

Former Way of Making.

The old way of getting the sap from the trees was by drilling a hole into the trunk of the tree about three-quarters of an inch into the wood; in this hole, which was usually about five eighths of an inch in diameter, a wooden peg, eight or nine inches long was driven, which had a groove cut out along its upper side. The sap would run out this groove and drop into a trough which was hewn from a piece of log about two and a half or three feet long. So, as the sap would run down this groove easily the peg was generally driven in with a slight slant downwards. From these troughs the sap was gathered three times a day or more and carried to what they called the boiling down place.

Making the Syrup.

At the place where the syrup was made the first thing that one would see was a huge pile of the very best wood which was usually collected the year before so as it would be dry. There would be also a fire and over this fire two and three large iron kettles, each able to hold a half barrel of sap, were hung, the three kettles were filled with the sap and boiled for several hours. At the end of this time the volume had shrunk about two thirds and this was all transferred to one kettle and the remaining two filled with sap again. The third kettle was boiled much more slowly this time for several hours and if ever it showed signs of boiling too fast some sap from the other kettles would be added. This third kettle was boiled until the syrup became fairly thick and then it was taken off the fire and taken to the house. By this time the volume had decreased to about a twelve-quart pail of syrup.

In the house the housewife would put it on the stove again and add something that would clear the chips and ashes out of the syrup and boil it until it became as thick as she desired.

In the meantime, in the sugar bush the farmer was boiling the sap which he had collected. This usually took him well into the small hours of the morning and he would trudge home wearily, generally with wet feet, to be at it again early the next morning.

Parties Held.

The young people of the district used to go and hold parties around the boiling down place at night, and usually the farmer would let them do what they liked with the whole day's sap. The hot syrup would be drunk by the cupful and taffy would be made by pouring hot syrup on the crust of the snow.

Present Day Way.

Today the manner of making maple syrup has changed, although in many places one sees the old iron kettle still used. In the place of the wooden peg is a steel spile which is driven into the tree. This spile is grooved in shape and on this spile is hung a tin pail. At the boiling-down place a shanty is generally built and in the centre of this shanty is a large rectangular stone fire-place with an open top. At one end of the fire-place is a door where the wood is put in, and at the other end is a stove pipe hole which allows the smoke to be carried off by means of stove pipes. On the top of this fire-place is found a set of pans all connected together with a valve between each pan. These pans are five and six in number and nine or ten inches deep.

The sap is put into these pans and as it boils down, it is allowed to run from the back pan forward, so that in each pan it becomes thicker and more like syrup, and by the time it reaches the last pan it is ready to be taken off and strained by the housewife. Sap is continually being put in the first pan and as it boils down it is let run forward to the other pans. There are other kinds of pans in which the sap is allowed to run by no mechanical means from one pan to the other, but it is in slow movement all the time.

Today the number of farmers making maple syrup has greatly decreased on account of the time it takes to make it, the amount of good wood consumed in boiling it down and last but not least, the number of maple trees in Ontario is slowly decreasing and there are very few farmers who have a large enough sugar bush to make it worth while making maple syrup.

BEAR FOR ZOO

Such accommodation as the Red Lake trail offers is illustrated by these pictures. On the left, above, a prospecting party shown waiting for the tea-pail to boil for lunch on the chilly shores of Lac Seul. The figures standing are: Left to right, Provincial Constable Carr, H. E. Holland, the Red Lake mining recorder; T. A. McArthur, inspector of mining recorders' offices; and Billy Crane, an Ojibway dog-musher. Kneeling at the fire is Neh Faulhenham, owner of the dog team that took the party in. Below is the Hudson's Bay Company's store at Lac Seul factory, where the company has had a post for over a century. The picture on the right is of Sande's fishing camp, further west on the shore of Lac Seul. The little cabin will one day be famous as having sheltered scores of the early stakers at Red Lake.

Motor snowplows similar to the one illustrated above have this winter been keeping open 218 miles of international highway between Port Arthur, Ontario, and Duluth, Minnsota. It has proved of great value to farmers along the route.

PORTRAIT CAUSES STORM

When Sir Robert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto, was authorized to have his portrait painted he had the job done by Greiffennagen, while in England. The result has been a recent storm of protest from Canadian artists, who say that Sir Robert "slighted" Canadian art, and they further charge that the portrait he did get is atrocious. Sir Robert says he merely made use of some spare time while overseas, and had no intention of slighting the ability of Canadian artists.

The reports of the secretary, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, and of the treasurer, Mrs. J. Harkness, follows:

Secretary's Report.

Madam President and Members of the Ladies' Curling Club,—I beg to present the following report of the activities of this club for the season 1926. The curling year which is being brought to a close to-day has been one of great interest and pleasure, marred only by the prevalence of sickness among the members of the club and by unavoidable physical mishaps which interfered necessarily to some degree with the rinks which had been drawn up to play the scheduled games in the various competitions. However, these difficulties were overcome as well as possible by the re-arrangement of the players and all the trophies were competed for with one exception, namely, the Vice-Skins' Bonspiel, for which Mrs. W. H. Hill had offered prizes.

We started the season with 36 paid-up members and eight scheduled rinks.

The winners of the Gibson trophy were Mrs. A. Cameron, Mrs. A. Gibson, Mrs. J. Harkness and Mrs. W. Oke (skip); while Mrs. V. Eastwood's rink were the runners-up.

In the Consolation or Waddell Trophy competition, Mrs. A. W. Turner's rink was successful, with Mrs. R. Grant as vice-skip, Mrs. H. Darcy playing second and Mrs. M. Comstock as lead.

The games for the Sturgeon Trophy were unusually close and interesting this year, the winning rink being Mr. J. Wylie, Mrs. Beal, Mr. T. Brightman and Miss H. Munro, skip, while the runners-up were Dr. Sutton, Mrs. Cameron, Mr. J. Brightman and Mrs. W. Oke (skip). For the first time, a consolation competition in connection with this trophy was arranged, for which the men interested provided the prizes. The winning rink was composed of Mr. J. Gillespie, Mrs. F. J. A. Morris, Mr. R. Sturgeon and Mrs. R. Grant (skip).

An "all-star competition" was arranged to be played off while the Tankard rinks were engaged in strenuous practice. These games, for which Mrs. R. M. Waddell offered the prizes, proved exceedingly exciting and enjoyable. The winning rink was Miss H. Munro's, with Miss Littlefield as vice-skip, Mrs. Beal as second stone and Mrs M. Comstock as lead.

The local club had the privilege this year of offering hospitality to the rinks competing in the Tankard games as the Tankard competition was held in the Peterboro Curling Rink on February 9 and 10.

As only two clubs entered, in addition to the home club, viz., the Toronto and the Granites, through and through games were played and points counted.

Peterboro was well represented by two rinks, the personnel of which was Mrs. R. Grant, Mrs. G. Wood, Mrs. H. Cressman, Mrs. W. H. Hill, (skip) and Mrs. R. Turner, Mrs. W. Oke, Mrs. W. A. Turner, Miss N. Davidson (skip). While this year the home rinks failed to carry off the Tankard Cup, which was won by the Granites, with the Toronto club as the runners-up, the Peterboro rinks, judging by the plaudits from the gallery, curled consistently well, and upheld most worthily the honor of our local club. This club is justly proud too that one of its members, Mrs. J. Harkness, carried off the coveted points competition prize presented by our president, Miss Morrow, with the splendid score of 33.

All arrangements for the entertainment of the visiting rinks were admirably made and successfully carried out by a social committee under the joint convenorship of Mrs. V. Eastwood, Mrs. Darcy and Mrs. E. Wood. To this Social Committee the club's thanks are due, as well as to our president, Miss Morrow, for the very delightful afternoon tea at which she entertained not only the visiting players but all the members of the local club as well.

And finally the gratitude of the local club is extended, in this connection, in no small degree, to the genial, painstaking and sympathetic official referee, Mr. T. Brightman, who has ever proved himself a warm friend of this club, and who during this year's Tankard competition, as official referee, was untiring in his efforts to make the competition pleasurable and successful.

In closing this report, may I place on record the club's sympathetic regrets at the prolonged serious illness of Mr. Angus McIntosh, as well as its gratitude to his son, who has been so courteously kind and efficient throughout the season.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Mary I. Kenner, Secretary.

ABE MITCHELL WON.

Defeated George Duncan at Roehampton.

ROEHAMPTON, England, April 17 (Canadian Press).—Abe Mitchell Friday defeated George Duncan, three up and two to play, thus winning the Roehampton golf club invitation professional tournament with its prize of £200. This annual competition affords British professional golfers the first opportunity to display their spring golfing styles, and Mitchell sustained the hopes that the golfing public of this country places in him as the likeliest man to end the raids on the British open championship which the United States conducted.

SANCTION REFUSED.

For Flowers-Walker Bout in June.

NEW YORK, April 17 (Canadian Press).—The State Athletic Commission Friday refused to sanction the match between Tigre Flowers, negro holder of the middleweight boxing title and Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, planned by Tex Rickard for the Yankee Stadium in June.

The Commission based its action on the ground that Harry Greb, former middleweight king, has prior claim to a title match with Flowers. It also indicated opposition to Walker going out of his class again, although the welter titleholder was permitted to box Greb last summer when the latter held the middleweight throne.

YPRES IS GREATEST PICTURE OF CANADIAN TROOPS IN WAR

Immortal Salient Was Field of Glory For Canucks.

MIRACLE PICTURE.

Tribute To All Regiments and Every Arm of of Service.

(Written by Wm. T. Biesel)

"Ypres" is a suficient answer to the feint hearts of the British film industry. The nation that can produce a film like this, which can organize spectacles like the Wembley Tatoo, does not need the assistance of "quotas," "contingents," 'tariffs', and other legislative action, in order to win a place in the world's film markets.

This picture, which is now playing throughout Canada, and will be shown at the Capitol theatre, starting Monday, is designed to show how the Immortal Salient was held by the British Empire soldiers during the Great War. The story of Ypres, because of the number of years during which the salient was occupied, and beause of the countless deeds of heroism performed during its occupation, is transparently a record which no one picture could hope to tell in detail. Therefore the producers, in approaching their task, in conjunction with the War Office, decided that the best method of treatment would be to follow the outstanding episodes on the issue of which the occupation of the salient from time to time critically depended.

The episodes chosen, according to this plan, are the opening of the first Battle of Ypres, with the loss and recapture of Cheauvelt, the capture of Hill 60, the second battle, in which the Germans introduced poison gas to the Western Front, and in which the Geddes "details" achieved immortality; the launching of the trench raids, which were of vital importance in sapping German morale; the grand assault of Messines Ridge, with the exploding of nineteen mines which had been eighteen months in construction; and, finally, the attack of Passchendale.

Then in deciding how to deal with the personal element in the defence of the salient the producers came to the conclusion that it would be correct to take from these episodes the deeds of those men who are recognized as having, by their heroism, exercised decisive influence on the issue of the battle. The task that faced the producers of "Ypres" was therefore a tremendous one. Several years were spent in research work before a single foot of film was exposed and to insure the absolute authenticity of the picture in every detail, the Army Council not only placed its official war records at their disposal, but the War Office detailed eight hundred and fifteen officers and men to supervise the work and to appear in the picture. Although a large number of feet of film records taken during the war and cherished in the War Office archives have been incorporated, so cleverly are the actual war scenes worked in the studio-made and Aldershot-made scenes that it is hard to believe that any part of the film was not really filmed on the battlefield.

Over 100,000 feet of film was used in photographing these scenes and over fourteen months was spent in making them. One of the difficulties encountered, the taking of before-the-war scenes of landmarks that are now completely demolished, was overcome and resulted in one of the cleverest bits of cinema work in the picture. Done by the use of double exposure, the 7th Division is showing marching past the still undamaged Cloth Hill.

A Miracle.

And there is something that turns the heart to water in that actual picture of the original Expeditionary Force, the heroes of Ypres, swinging along through the heat of a distant summer day and singing as they go.

Most, if not all, the men seen in the picture must be dead, but here by the magic of the cinematograph camera they have been rescued from the past to live for ever.

That is the real miracle of Ypres. One generation, and many other generations, will grow old and die while the men of Ypres remain young—on the screen.

This admirable film, provided its downright statements are filled out by a sympathetic imagination, the seeing of it should be a gloriously stimulating and far from saddening experience. In the recapture of Gheluvelt, officially regarded as the "most critical moment in this great battle," we see how Brigadier-General Charles Fitz-Clarence, V.C., organized this vital counter-attack, a act that was tragically unrevealed until a year after this gallant soldier had died in action. In the defence of Hill 60 we see how Captain (then Lieutenant) G. H. Woolley took command at a desperate moment and so earned the first Territorial V.C., in circumstances so appalling that of 450 N.C.O.'s and men only two N.C.O.s and one man answered the roll call when the action ended.

A Dignified Memorial

In the great gas attack we see the rallying of the 4th Ontarios by Lt.-Colonel Birchall, V.C., and the covering of the Canadian retreat by Lance-Corporal Fisher, V.C., and the desperate effort of Private John Lynn to stay the Germans with his machine gun, by which he remained in spite of gas poisoning, from the effects of which he died the following day. That machine gunner, who, with his comrades dying like flies in torment about him, clings grimly to his Vickers, with its leaping and swaying, and far in the distance the oncoming Germans going down in the true machine gun fashion—arms wide, pitched forward, suddenly, erratically, in little groups, that actor is a soldier. He has fired a Vickers in something besides fun. You see how a machine gun fires—how it works—how the lad at the trigger clamps himself to it and is shaken by it as it fires, and each detail throughout the picture has been as carefully considered. The Canadians are by no means over-played in the second battle of Ypres, where the gas attack occurred, but our veterans will be pleased rather than disappointed that the Imperial Regiments are at last given their fair share of credit for what they did.

In the trench raid episodes, no names are given, because these scenes are designed as a tribute to the men of all regiments taking part in these heroic adventures. Here in this picture you see a raid really well done—the figures in the night creeping and crawling, thrusting their tube of explosives under the enemy wire and blowing it up, and then charging through. In the attack on Messines Ridge the tribute is to the minds of Britain whose skill and endurance made this success possible. In the Passchendaele episodes we see how Sergeant John Moyney, V.C., surrounded by a host of enemies, and having only fifteen men with him, brought every one of his men back to the British lines, how Captain Clement Robertson, V.C., led his tanks into action, walking in front of them to show them the way, choosing the best ground, so that his tanks might arrive in time and not disappoint the infantry depending on them; how Private Thomas Holmes, of the 4th Canadian Mounted Rifles, the youngest V.C. in the British army, captured a German pill-box; and how Lieutenant Shankland, V.C., of the 43rd Canadians, held Bellevue Spur, the key to Passchendaele.

There are also in "Ypres" lighter moments behind the lines, such as glimpses of Toc H., the concert party of the "Mud Larks," and the men in what was dignified by the name of baths. In fact, it shows vividly all that survivors remember, and all that official archives preserve. All the properties of the old days go pictured past, tanks, pill-boxes, bivies, gun pits, ration wagons, and even a flight of camels patrolling the heavens is shown. There is an actual shot of the 15th Highlanders on the march from Bailleul, swinging through a little Belgian village, behind their pipes and their thrilling drums. You see cannon firing, shells bursting, and a reconstructed scene, illustrating in a singularly vivid series of pictures, Sub-Lieutenant Warneford's chase and destruction of a Zeppelin. There are several scenes in trenches that nobody—not even the old troops can afford to miss, real trenches, broken, lousy looking trenches, and one trench up to the knees in mud, with a poor old sanitary corporal sort of chap carrying rations up it, with a and Mrs. Jones Cross.

AT THE GRAND

In reviving "The Corsican Brothers," Sir John Martin-Harvey has responded to the reiterated request of a very large number of his admirers throughout Canada. "The Only Way" and "The Corsican Brothers" are the two plays that first brought him fame—the latter before he had entered actor-management on an extensive scale, and the former as largely the child of his own creative genius. In both he has roles that combine romance, character-study, and adventure to a remarkable degree, and the scope they afford is calculated to reveal his amazing versatility at its most effective development. "The Corsican Brothers" will be presented by Sir John and his entire London company at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, April 26th.

"MONTE CARLO."

People who are interested in the technical advance of motion pictures will marvel at the true-color photography in "Monte Carlo," the Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer comedy coming to the Regent Theatre on Monday. An entire fashion show is shown in actual tints and to those who remember the first color pictures of several years ago, the effect will be astounding. For motion picture color photography is now so nearly perfect a process that its achievements bear little resemblance to the jumpy and flashy results of the earlier color-film process. So faithfully and beautifully are colors now reproduced on the screen that color photography is being more and more frequently used in scenes of spectacular appeal.

Exceptonaliy fascinating costumes are worn in the fashion show in "Monte Carlo," and their loveliness on the screen is considerably enhanced by use of the color process. "Idle Hour" is the name of the exquisite lounging costume exhibited in this sequence. The trousers are of silver cloth and caught tight at the ankles with silver buttons. The coat is of rich dark velvet beaded in rhinestones. It is worn by Evelyn Atkinson, "Miss Seattle" of the 1922 Atlantic City beauty pageant. One of the most bizarre creations worn in the fashion show is the "Sunshine and Flowers" gown, which has an elaborate headdress of pearls and flowers. The skirt is of black velvet while nude tint satin forms the waist. It is worn by Dorothy McGowan, a cousin of ZaSu Pitts, who has just entered motion pictures.

Lew Cody, Gertrude Olmsted, Karl Dane and Roy D'Arcy are featured in "Monte Carlo," which has been directed by Christy Cabanne from an original story by Carey Wilson.

PUBLIC ENTHUSIASM FOR ARENA AT MEETING OF THE PROMOTERS ARCHITECT'S REPORT RECEIVED

Ice Sheet 80 By 190 and Seating 3,900 To Cost $110,000.

CAMPAIGN READY.

Ald. C. H. Ackerman Says Project Depends Upon Local Support.

A representative meeting of citizens was held in the council chambers last night to consider the possibility of building the new arena, and marked enthusiasm was shown by those present.

Ald. C. H. Ackerman presided and explained the situation in a very concise manner showing that he fully understood the situation and also was deeply interested in future hockey in this city. The success of this rink depends upon the ability of this city to develop good hockey players. In the next few days a subscription campaign is to commence. Certain days will be set apart for the different factories in the city, there will be a day for the retail merchants, one for the insurance men, one for the professional men and so on so as every person in the city will be included in some day of the campaign. The subscription list will be in charge of some of the leading men for whosoever day it is. If at the end of the campaign it is found that enough shares have been subscribed, a company will be organized and the engineers will be ordered to ask for tenders. The construction is to be done by local contractors and local men employed on the job.

This subscription list will be only binding if enough shares of stock have been subscribed. The stock will be all common stock and will be sold at $10 per share. People will be allowed to pay for the stock in three equal instalments, one instalment will be due when the company is organized, a second in thirty days and the third sixty days after the company is organized. So the onus is on the people of Peterborough if they want this plan to go ahead. Five of the local factories which have been so far spoken to are whole hearted behind the scheme. One employee for the C.P.C. and stated as far as he knew it the men of the C.P.C. are behind the scheme to a man. Also it was stated that men like George MacDonald of the Quaker Oats, W. R. Breyfogle of the DeLaval, Gordon Matthews of the C.P.C., Dr. Cameron and many other leading men of the city. Col. Ackerman stated that he had had Norman McLeod, the architect, draw up plans and submit prices.

The following is his report:

Location

The location fixed on, in the city park at Burnham and Hunter streets can be so utilized as to permit the public entering the Arena from the approach to Hunter Street Bridge at a little above the level of the promenade back of the seating and give one exit at the north east corner, at this same level, to the cut off sidewalk now existing. The other four exits would, of necessity, be at the lower level.

Size of Ice Surface and Seating Capacity

Windsor—180 x 80, seats 5500.
Stratford—180 x 80, seats 4000.
London—180 x 80.
Niagara Falls—180 x 80, seats 4000
Grimsby—170 x 70; seats 1900.
Hamilton—192 x 80; seats 4000.
Ravina, Toronto—190 x 80, seats 4000.
Arena, Toronto—200 x 81.
Queen's, Kingston—200 x 80, seats 2500.
Arena, Ottawa—200 x 80, seats 5300 and 2700.

The uniformity of the 80 foot width together with the great saving in cost would seem to indicate that an 85 foot width was unnecessary but, in view of your instructions, I have made an estimate for both the 80 and 85 feet wide by 190 in length.

Seating

After inspecting the loose chairs and bucket seats used in some places, I find that bucket seats have the one advantage that they are out of the road when one patron wishes to pass another already seated. Outside of that, however, in addition to being expensive, they are subject to heavy loss by breakage and add very materially to the cost of cleaning. I, therefore, recommend that a form seat with a two foot back be used, except, perhaps in the boxes where, on account of the higher price charged, the public expect a chair.

Ventilation

In order to provide for ventilation of the arena and remove the fog so often present in buildings of this nature, I have provided for a double monitor the full length of the ice surface, which will also add materially to the lighting of the building during daylight.

Ice Making Machinery

In view of your subsequent advice that the existing ice-making plant would probably not be used, my estimate contemplates entirely new machinery but for your general information the estimated cost of removing and relocating the existing plant is $7000.00 to which would be added $20,000.00 as the cost of piping, pumps, etc., necessary to this existing plant, against a cost of $50,000.00 for an entirely new outfit, including commercial ice making or $33,000.00 exclusive of commercial ice.

Generally

I would recommend that, on account of its location, a certain amount of care should be taken of the outside appearance of the building and have designed it in tile covered with white dolomite stucco, the lines of which are brought out by a band of colored ornament just under the parapet. This finish, which is just as durable as brick, would by day give a brilliant white effect picked out by the color referred to, and at night, lighted with a few flood lights from the parapet of Hunter street bridge would have a very pleasing appearance. I would further recommend the inclusion of a removable hardwood floor over the piping for use during fairs, motor shows, or even dancing.

Size.

Ice surface 80 x 190, over all 141' 6 x 261' 6, seating 3,900, or Ice surface 85 x 190, over all 146' 6 x 261' 6, seating 4,000.

Walls.

These are of hollow tile, smooth on the inside and stuccoed outside, carried on concrete foundations.

Seating.

There are ten rows of wooden forms with 24 in. high back, the rake of these forms is slightly dished and a length, front to back, of 2 ft. 4 in. by a width of 17 in. has been allowed per seat.

Structural Framing.

The steel roof trusses have been so designed that all seats in front of the seventh row will have an entirely unobstructed view of the ice, and in the last three rows the obstruction will not be noticeable.

Roof.

The roof will be of 1¼ in. splined plank covered with three-ply asphalt roofing.

Windows.
Dressing Rooms.

Just under the Hunter Street entrance ample dressing room accommodation is provided for general skaters, both men and women, with lavatory accommodation, check-room, etc. In case it is desired to use one of these rooms as a visiting team dressing room during a hockey match, showers are shown in the men's dressing room, which ordinarily could be kept locked up. The floors of these rooms are of wood as concrete has been found unsatisfactory to people walking with skates on. On the south side, two team dressing rooms are provided, both with lavatories and showers. These latter dressing rooms might be used by patrons of the ball park in the summer time.

Mechanical Trades.

Heating of the dressing rooms is taken care of with a low pressure steam boiler which, through a 500-gallon adapter, will provide hot water for the showers.

There will be the following plumbing fixtures:

In the women's dressing room: 2 toilets, 2 wash basins.

In the men's, 1 trough, 2 toilets, 2 wash basins, 2 showers.

In the home team: 1 trough, 2 toilets, 2 wash basins, 2 showers.

The ice surface is lit with 300 W. bulbs equipped with the necessary reflectors and the necessary lighting has also been provided in dressing-rooms and passageways.

Ice Machinery.

The ice-making machinery provided in the estimate is only that required for the arena itself. Whether or not the commercial manufacture of domestic ice was undertaken, the tanks and equipment could be installed at a later date, but it would be advisable to incorporate the ice storage space (less the insulation) when the arena was built.

Cost.

My estimate of cost is as follows:

Ice Surface, 80 x 190—

Building proper	$70,800
Ice machinery	29,200
Engineering fees, etc.	5,000
Contingencies, 5 per cent.	5,000
	$110,000

Ice Surface, 85 x 190—

Building proper	$78,000
Ice machinery	30,000
Engineering fees, etc.	5,400
Contingencies, 5 per cent.	5,600
	$119,000
Commercial ice plant, if added	$20,000
Ice storage insulation	3,000
	$23,000

It was also stated by Col. Ackerman that to one hockey match in Toronto this year the C.P.R. had sold 900 tickets, and the trip to Toronto would average a cost of $10 to each person who went, or over $9,000 in all, or pretty nearly one-tenth the cost of the new arena, and it is reasonable to assume that in the nine games played out of the city this year $50,000 was spent away from home.

With a good hockey team here, stated Col. Ackerman, there should be no difficulty in paying for the rink in 4 or 5 years, if the statements made by the leaders of the O.H.A. at last night's banquet were true.

Wilfrid Huycke spoke in favor of the plan; he stated that he had gone to five games outside the city this year and it had cost him about $80, and for what he knows of East City he believes they are behind the plan.

The matter of Brock Street Rink was referred to by Mr. Ackerman, who stated that R. M. Glover had, on being requested to do so, at a previous meeting, stated the Brock Street Rink could be purchased, enlarged and remodelled at a total cost of $40,000.00, but as this did not include an artificial ice plant, it was turned down by the twenty men who held in the informal meeting last Saturday night.

The meeting concluded by Col. Ackerman asking every one present to get behind the scheme and push it for all it is possible if they wish to have hockey in this city in the future.

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

I ain't seen you since the hockey banquet Thurs. night, but I guess you think the same as me, that she was a great function and a real wind-up to a bang-up hockey season. All the good things what was said of the Petes and them watches what the city dads give the boys and the presence of all the big guns of the O.h.A. made the affair a stand-out, and showed Mister Wright and his men that 1 and all appreciate what they done this year in capturing the O.h.A. honours.

To me and some more of the old-timers what was there 1 of the biggest kicks of the evening was the arrival on the scene of Mister Fred Whitcroft, what I consider 1 of the greatest of all hockey players, and the ovation what was tendered him as he come in oughta to tell the young midgets present what when a guy gives all he's got and climbs out in front of the parade that athletic fame ain't so darn fleeting as some folks sez it is. Here was a guy coming back after 20 years out of the game, so far as his home community was concerned, and getting a reception that nearly shook the shingles off of the roof of Mister George Graham's well-known home-away-from home.

And in today's sermonette I propose to tell the new generation something about Mister Whitcroft. Peterboro has won six O.h.A. championships. Two of them was junior titles, back in the prehistoric days when they wasn't no age limit in the junior serious and father and son could play on the same team, and sometimes did. Another was the senior championship of this year. Mister Whitcroft was the key man of the teams which brought the other 3 to Peterboro, the junior against Stratford in 1901, the intermediate against Galt in 1902 and again the intermediate against Goderich in 1906, and by key man I don't mean mebbe, cause no 1 player had so much to do with winning them 3 titles as Mister Whitcroft. Playing back in the days when men was men and women wasn't even trying to be, when you had to go 30 minutes without a rest and they wasn't no subs, he was fast, clever and tireless. They ain't produced no better stickhandlers since, and the way he could check, cut across a opposing forward line, grab off the rubber and start a counter-attack still remains a brilliant memory. Naturally his work attracted the attention of the higher-ups, and "Whittie" passed off the Peterboro hockey stage to the Kenora Thistles, 1 of the great teams of all times, then to the Edmonton professionals, and after to that other colourful and expensive aggregation of starry puckchasers, the famous Renfrew Millionaires. A great hockey player, 1 of the finest the O. h. A. ever produced, was this Peterboro-born and trained meteor on skates, and so everybody was glad when he arrived from the Pacific Coast just in time to be present at the first championship hockey banquet held here since he helped to bring 1 20 years ago.

THE BASEBALL OUTLOOK.

I see, Mister Sporting Editor, that the Central Ontario Baseball League is going to carry on with only 3 teams. Well, anyhow the competition has always been between Kingston, Belleville and Peterboro, and with all 3 well balanced every contest on the schedule this year should oughta be a real battle, and the fans will get their money's worth of keen competition.

They're going to operate their umpires on a different system, with each of them working at home. This oughta to have 2 advantages—1st becau'se it'll save jack, and 2nd because the memory of the officials as to ground rules, etc., should oughta to be better on the home lot. 1 of the mysteries of last season was how most of the umpiring staff engaged in the final serious forgot to fix a ground rule for right field in Kingston where the crowd always interferes, or else forgot they had made 1, and the shift to the familiar scenery of the home grounds is expected to have a good effect. Just when Mister Shiner Johnston is going to lead his athaletes out for their 1st practice there ain't nobody knows, but anyhow, it looks as if the spring training of all the league teams is going to be sorta sketchy. Even Mister Jimmy Hall and Mister Jeff Hardill is beginning to get discouraged, and all them birds asks is a bare spot big enough to toss a ball around.

THE POPULAR PLAYER COMPETITION.

The Examiner popular player essay contest was a novel little competition, and they ain't nobody sorry that the cup presented by the Examiner went to Mister Frankie Collins. A little bird tells me as how the player which was picked by the majority of the lads which wrote was no other than Mister Joe Dwyer. The bulky goal-minder was the hero for 11 of the essay writers, and I hear Mister Bailey and Mister Collins was next in line, each being picked by 6 youngsters as their ideal. The kids wrote some good dope on the players, and it musta been interesting to the boys on the team to read just how they stood by the future greats.

Incidentally, Mister Sporting Editor, I'm pestered by guys what want to know how old Mister Joe Dwyer is. Some of them seem to think he has been playing hockey since the year of the Fenian raids, and other more conservative guys pick the outbreak of the South African War as the year of Joe's debut. Them birds is all wet. Mister Dwyer started his hockey career as a raw junior with the Peterboro Bearcats in 1912, and he was eligible for junior ranks for 2 or 3 years after, so you can do your own figgering.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, the big leagues has kicked off, and to me for 1 the feature so far has been the pitching of them hoary old ruins, Mister Walter Johnston and Mister Covaleski, for the Senators. Any time 2 old birds can go out in football weather and hold them hard-hitting Athaletics to 1 run in 24 innings, you gotta admit the club that owns them has got a right to be confident about the future, and right here now, at the risk of jinxing Mister Bucky Harris and his men, I'm going to call them weather-beaten old hulks to lead the parade past the American League grandstand next fall.

Anyhow, you'll hafta to wait a few months to see what kinda picker I've turned out to be.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

P.S.—Speaking of the Budget, which nobody was, I think, Mister Robb pulled a boner when he didn't put no embargo on hockey players being exported to the U. S. It looks like we might need 1.—A. W. C.

VIRGINIA TOOK LEAD

Virginia appreciating its peculiar situation in the geography of the then rapidly developing United States, established the first institution of higher learning west of the Alleghany mountains. This was in 1789. The institution that came to be known as Transylvania seminary, at one time rivaled Yale and Harvard, and as an institution it still flourishes at Lexington, Ky., where it was located in 1794. This part of Kentucky was in the early days within Virginia's boundaries.

What the Young Fans Have to Say About Their Favorite Hockey Players

(Essays submitted in The Examiner Competition)

harles E. Meyette, 17, of the School r the Deaf choses Bert McLeod.

My favorite player on the Peterborugh Senior Hockey Team, champions f the Ontario Hockey Association, is lert McLeod, star left defence.

I believe that he is one of the greatst defence players that have ever layed on the Peterborough team. He s a fine looking fellow and a real sturdy efence man. He is a brilliant checker nd a dangerous man when he makes rush. I am sure he is the best allound defence man in the O.H.A.

A year ago I saw an exhibition hockey natch between Belleville Intermediates nd Peterborough Seniors, then the nners of the S.P.A. Cup. It was a eat privilege for me to see this game. cLeod was particularly good. He roved to be a first-class checker and ored two goals during the game.

In a game with Kitchener he saved s team from defeat, when, with the ore 2 to 1, and his team two men short, e stickhandled his way through the ntire Kitchener team.

Last fall, during the S.P.A. play-offs, he Petes lost to Preston, 4 to 3, in vertime. McLeod played the best me of his career. His defence could ot be beaten and his rushing and ickhandling were brilliant. On two three occasions he beat Schamatz, nd should have had more goals to his edit.

In the play-offs for the Allan Cup, arsity defeated the Peterborough niors both games. The entire Peterrough team were away below form. these games McLeod played only a r game but he gave his best whilst fering from a very bad cold. If he re to meet Varsity in good condition play would undoubtedly be outnding.

(Special mention.)

Many hockey fans of today would ose as their favorite player, the ow who plays forward and does all fighting and scoring for his team; , give me the clever goal tender, like e" Dwyer, who stops a goal with his k or some part of his large body.

Joe" was born in Lindsay, and an his hockey twelve years ago with Bear Cats of Peterborough. "Big " also took the Sarnia team through Intermediate Ontario Hockey Assotion Championship in Nineteen Sixn and Seventeen. He also captained e Niagara Falls team through the ials of 1920.

Dwyer has been with the Petes for ve years and was captain last year; verytime doing his best to help win e game.

Of course, like all other goalies, "Big e" has his off night, but I believe that is the best goal tender in the Ontario ockey Association. I also believe at without the Peterborough goalie, o is never seen without his ear-to-ear mile, we would not have won the chamonship this year; and I also hope to "Big Joe" out in "Blue and White" xt winter.

enneth Johnson, 7, of 196 King street, chooses Harold Parker.
(Special mention.)

Harold Parker is my favorite in the terborough hockey team.

In the first place he plays a real sports me. I think he has got the least m of any player in the team. This one reason why I picked Harold arker.

We should always encourage clean port. In the second place I think Harold Parker always played a finished brainy game, we look back when it ome to a pinch and a goal was needed, Harold Parker either got it or assisted in tting it, lots of speed and I think e is about as good stick handler as ou will find in any team.

(Special mention.)

I choose Biffer Ranger as my favorite ayer because he comes on the ice with smile and keeps it all the way through e game. If the sailing is smooth or ugh he takes his bumps, and also gives em with the same old smile and he lways comes through on top.

I like him because of his clever stickandling and his wonderful shot. "Oh oy!" it's a treat to see him pick the orner of the net from the twenty-foot e. He is also there patting the other low on the back when he scores a al this shows his unselfish nature. ffer Ranger was born in Peterboro, rned his hockey in Peterboro, and ays played for Peterboro.

When Biffer says come on boys and s get them, "he don't mean maybe," d he also does his part with the other low. My friend Biffer occasionally kes a trip to the penalty-box, and ll smiles. But when he comes back shows a faster burst of speed than er and makes up for lost time and leaves his opponent to send out nals of distress.

Now Mr. Examiner I think I have inted out to you that my favorite ayer ranks among the best in senior ckey. And if I ever have the honour playing senior hockey in the years come for Peterboro, I will be satisd to have a record equal with my vorite player. Again thanking you r this opportunity of expressing myelf.

(Special mention.)

My favorite hockey player is Ray Rose. I have been a hockey fan for the past three seasons. Ray has ways been my man because he is a terborough boy and the best he had, s given to help his team. He is very luable, he can play any position and it well. His skating and clever stickandling scores. He plays baseball at cond base and this keeps him in good ape. Ray is a gentleman and always ears a good smile. And he is liked by he other players. His well-built body elps him to stand the bumps which layers get when playing our great ame, hockey.

(Special mention)

It is rather hard to pick a favorite layer on the team because they all id their share, and then a little ore. It is really not right to pick e but pick them all because they erve all the congratulations pos e. My favorite is "Joe Dwyer." ick on him because of his wonful skill and clean playing and lness as a goal-minder. He has been for years back an outstanding player. You could almost have called him the backbone of the team in several games this year, especially in the New Hamburg games. But one man must not get all the credit because they all played the game together, not one man trying to run it alone. I also pick on Joe because of his wonderful saves and also being a real clean player in all sports, especially in the game between Varsity and Peterboro where Joe congratulated the Varsity player for scoring after he had fallen on the ice. Here's wishing the team the best of luck for the remainder of 1926 and the beginning of 1927.

(Special mention)

Of all the hockey players on the Peterborough team I consider Joe Dwyer to be the best. He is always on the job. He seems to know all the arts of hockey. He does not pay attention to anything else (except what he is doing. Some of the others are flashy hockey players but they can't beat Joe, he is the one to depend upon.

Just the last couple of games Joe has failed because of his terrible could, but no person can play at top form all the time. The papers have called him "Talkative Joe", but my opinion is that he helps his team along by his cheerful words and good nature.

When Joe puts on his pads and cap, spits in his baseball mitt and says, "Get out of here—let's go!" something is bound to happen.

In all the Senior O.H.A. games no team has got over three goals. Joe has held the record for a long time and it is hard to beat.

(Special mention)

The Peterborough hockey team has won the Ontario Hockey Association champsionship title. All the players did their best to win this, and, if it had not been for the unfair schedule and the condition of the players, they might have won the Allan cup.

My favorite player is one who did not do much but sit and watch in the finals. His name is Harold Parker. On account of having his shoulder broken just before the finals, he has just got back to fit condition.

The first reason for my choice is that he was a good clean sport. He never got in wrong with any of the players on the opposing team. He never got hurt through unmanliness or unfair play. Another reason was that while he was playing he was the backbone of the team. If he got hold of the puck he took it through the opposing line as far as possible. He always got back to his post before the other players did.

The local team was greatly handicapped when they went down against Varsity. Perhaps, and I am almost sure, if Parker had been playing, they would have stood a better chance.

Judging from what I have seen and read of the Peterboro Senior hockey team, I consider Frank Collins to be the fastest and cleanest player on the team. If it had not been for his clever backchecking, the team might not have had the honor of bringing to Peterboro the Senior championship.

As a hockey player he is not selfish in passing the puck, and is agreeable to anything that would benefit the team. He is considered to be one of the best centre ice players in the Senior league. In the last four or five games that the Senior Ontario Hockey Association champions played, he proved himself worthy of his position by scoring an average of one goal a game. He is a steady player and has a swift, accurate shot that accounts for many of Peterboro's goals.

It is not alone in hockey that Frank excells. He is an all-round sportsman. His genial manner and good fellowship made him a favorite with the boys. May Peterboro long enjoy his good citizenship and continue to have him as a successful member of its sports' league.

(Special mention)

I consider Mr. J. Dwyer my favorite on the Peterboro hockey team because he has saved them from many defeats, and has been faithful and played in every game. He is a good winner and also a good loser. As a goal-keeper he has more than done his duty by stopping many hard shots, making the most difficult ones to handle look easy. He is also considered the best goaltender in the O.H.A. In reading the sport news of both The Examiner and Toronto Daily Star, Mr. Dwyer, in my opinion, seemed to be the leading character in the bringing home of the O.H.A. championship to Peterboro. In the first game with Parkdale he demonstrated his ability by taking the place of the defense men who were in the penalty box. Mr. Dwyer in being a veteran, and through his coolness and presence of mind, has kept the younger players on the ice when they otherwise might have been serving penalties. He was also a drawing card for the team, on account of his many sensation saves and his spectacular plays. In concluding I might say he thoroughly understands the game and knows just when and where to place his team in front of him so as to be most effective to the defensive and the offensive. Hoping you choose in favor of me as I think I could do full jostice to the banquet. I remain.

GORDON FAIRMAN, 15, of Campbellford, chooses Joe Dwyer.

In regards as to my favorite is in the Peterborough hockey team I would choose your skilful and noteworthy goalie. He is not only skilhow the Varsity team passed the puck is drifting all the time. It was title as champions of the Senior Hochow the Vasity team passed the puck seven times past your wonderful tender.

Although I was only able to see one of the games I was so interested that I could not bear to return home until I saw the final game between Varsity and your Petes.

Dwyer is a noteworthy character and one who should not be forgotten as long as Peterboro holds the title as champion of the Senior Hockey League. He is a perfect goaler and understands his position without one mistake. He has his skill, his nerve, and his ambition that very few goal-tenders of Ontario have.

In reference to the game which I saw between Varsity and the Petes Dwyer was the hardest working man on the ice while Collins, your centre man, did perfect work. The Petes need the praise of a world and as I have said Campbellford cannot yet understand how the Petes were defeated by a score of seven to one.

Joe Dwyer is my favorite of the Petes' team, while all the team needs the "praise of a nation" and I sincerely hope that next year no such trivial team as Varsity shall be strong enough to cause the downfall of the Petes. I shall now close giving my highest honor to Joe Dwyer your famous goal-tender.

SPEROS YEOTES, 12, of 205 Brock street, chooses Joe Dwyer.
(Special mention)

My favorite hockey player is Joe Dwyer, goal-keeper for the Peterboro Senior hockey team.

Joe Dwyer is my favorite player because he plays a good clean game of hockey, anywhere and anytime.

He has the best pair of eyes in the whole team, and he has the quickest eyes also.

He is very smart with the hockey stock, especially at the net. He can stop most of the shots, which they shoot at him. And the only way the other side scores is when they play some smart trick on Joe.

It is hard work to watch all sides of the net at once. Joe has played some wonderful games of hockey, especially this season.

More than once Joe has come away from the net, and stopped shots which looked like sure goals. And he has fell on the puck, lots of times, to save also.

And I think if it was not for Joe Dwyer Peterboro would not have the championship this year.

For nearly everybody said if Joe Dwyer plays good goal keeping to-night the Peterboro team will not lose. Everybody put their faith in Joe Dwyer. Joe Dwyer is a crackshot at the job of goal-keeping.

P.S.—We are all proud of all the hockey players in helping to bring to Peterboro the first Senior O.H.A. championship.

HENRY JAY, 15, Of 258 Aylmer Street, Chooses Joe Dwyer.
(Special Mention)

It was fortunate for the Peterboro Hockey Club that when they settled down to the real senior hockey test that they had a goalkeeper, especially one of the calibre of Joe Dwyer. With the important group games against Kitchener and Parkdale and the play-off with Parkdale, the ginger-topped net custodian was real good—in fact, a real goalkeeper. The London series was then the real test, and with the team changed around, it looked like a toss-up, but again the genial sorrel-top was Joseph at the gate, and Peterboro emerged from this series.

The reason that I pick Joe Dwyer for my favorite is, in the first place, because he is a home product, learned the game here as a junior, and then, again, he has played on an intermediate championship team at Sarnia. And now he has crowned it all by being on the first champion senior O.H.A. team Peterboro has ever had.

In conclusion I would like to say that Joe has always the happy knack of keeping the players in good humor and stands in well with the team, and would sum him up with the following ode, with apologies to Kipling:

"Peterboro's goalkeeper, Joe Dwyer,
Pulled them out of many a fire.
On the puck he put the clamps,
Made this burg senior O. H. A. champs.

KENNETH JONES, 14, Of 506 Patterson Street, Chooses Harold Parker.
(Special Mention)

Here comes Snap. Doesn't he look like a hockey player? That fellow doesn't play for a show—he plays for the true love of the game.

I once overheard two gentlemen talking about Mr. Parker, and one said that when Mr. Parker was getting his shoulder fixed all he was thinking about was, could he be able to play in the next game. This shows that he is not thinking of himself always.

From what I have seen and heard of Mr. Parker's playing he seems to be a favorite of most of the hockey fans. He handles his stick well and has a true shot. He had a good name as a Hamilton hockey player before he came to Peterboro. He goes around the ice with ease. And very often when the forwards are getting the worst of it he makes two or three charges in succession to try and help them out. These are some of my many reasons for writing on Mr. Parker as my favorite hockey player.

LADIES' MERCANTILE PLAY-OFF

At the Water St. Alleys on Thursday, Insurance Ladies, First Series Winners, took two games out of three and the Championship from C.P.C. Ladies, winners of the Second Series. The new champions are deserving of great praise, as they have developed from last season's tail-enders, and by constant practice and consistent bowling are now the steadiest scoring team in the league. Miss Ackeson was the best for the night with a single of 209 and high three of 510.

CITY LEAGUE PLAY-OFFS.

Freemans and Cressmans met at the Water Street Alleys last night to play off the tie for second series winners, and some great rolling and exciting finishes resulted. The first game ended in a tie with 1023 pins each. Freemans won the second game, but Cressmans fought back gamely and took the last two. Big "Steve" Elliott was the high roller for the night with 921 for the four games, and a grand single of 313 in the last. Tom Curvin had 904 for his total with a nice single of 266. Other real singles were turned in by Freeman 236, Shaughnessy 233, Ballard 228, Kimmel 227 and Routley 221.

BRITISH TEAM AIDS LACROSSE

Games' Great Possibilities Shown in U. S. College Tour.

(From Philadelphia Ledger.)

Twelve young men, representing two great English universities, yesterday showed us how lacrosse should be played. That fact is worthy of prominence in this story.

We Americans are getting this idea that we're "pretty hot," as the boys in the racket would put it. We think that about all we have to do is dress some athletes for any old game, send them to the field of play—and an invading team will fall right down and roll over.

Yes, we do, folks, and you know it! But from our own untrained observation, and from what Billy Crowell and some other former players told us, Pennsylvania's lacrosse team was bally well licked by the Oxford-Cambridge twelve out on the Merion Cricket Club field.

Without intending to be technical, we should say that the Britons had it on our Red and Blue "lacrossers" in every department. The lads from England were faster, they handled their sticks with greater dexterity and there seemed to be more of the essential team work in the play of the invaders.

Nearly every time the folks at the reporters' table looked down the field toward the Red and Blue goal a Briton's stick was spinning in the air. We discovered that was a signal a goal had been scored.

Indeed, to be absolutely correct about it, we should write there had been another "GAME." Listening around among the English lads we discovered that when the ball is landed in the goal—which is something like a batting cage, only smaller—they say they have scored a game.

No Game for Cream-Puff Athletes.

It was unfortunate for some of the "rookie onlookers" that Penn was puddin' for the Britons. This robbed the contest of some of the thrills we are certain must be in it when the match is tight.

That young men who are fighting a close battle can be rather rough—unintentionally so, of course—is evident to a novice among the spectators.

When a healthy young athlete starts swinging one of those sticks about, and an opponent who is equally young and healthy is swinging a stick in an effort to check an attack—well, somebody is likely to be hit.

The stick—or "crosse"—is light. But a clout on the arm or leg or face is going to sting, particularly on an April afternoon when it is so cold that snow flurries are making us think winter has returned.

The ball is of sponge rubber. Ordinarily it wouldn't damage you very much. But "lacrossed" by a lad with all the power at his command, that ball would make you holler "Ouch!" if it struck you fair on an unprotected portion of your body.

That sticks and the ball fly around rather promiscuously, as it were, was evident from the headguard one one of the Britons. He wore his spectacles all the while. To protect them and his eyes he had a sort of wire mask covering the upper portion of his face.

Then it was noted that the players wore padded caps, similar to the helmet worn by pony polo contestants. This possibly saves many a headache when a stick inadvertently lands atop a cranium.

There is blocking, or checking—personal contact similar to that on the football field—and this can be rough if the game is fast and furious.

Pat Fries, who coaches the Penn lacrossers, has taught them how to use their sticks cleverly in catching and throwing the ball. Or that would be the judgment of a layman.

What the Red and Blue players lacked—again giving the opinion of a mere onlooker—was the speed and experience of the Britons. The Oxford-Cambridge lads appeared to concentrate on "lacrossing" that ball down into enemy territory and then fiddling around until somebody got a clean and uninterrupted shot.

We are sorry you all couldn't watch the game. It is worth while. We are certain that two well-matched twelves would have all the red blood in your veins racing through your body.

Peasants of Jugoslavia are buying automobiles, and prefer American cars.

Berlin is to have a series of radio fairs this year.

BILLY EVANS SAYS.

QUALITY

Not more but better ball players is the cry of every major league manager.

Most of the players who came up for the spring training test this year have been far removed from the major league standard.

There is no lack of quantity as to major league recruits but there is certainly a dearth of quality. Spring phenoms are the exception these days.

During my travels to 14 of the training camps I don't believe I saw over a dozen players among the recruits who looked decidedly impressive.

A number showed much ability and promise but most of them are two or three years away, some of them more than that.

When I speak of impressive players, I have in mind players who look ready to step into a regular job and deliver if given the chance.

VETERANS

While the recruits as a whole have been a disappointment, the fine play of any number of veteran stars has brought smiles to a number of the big league managers.

Stanley Harris is delighted at the condition of Walter Johnson. The big fellow is farther advanced at this time than in years.

Everett Scott, counted out last fall, is doing a remarkable comeback for the Chicago White Sox. He has caused the usually reticent Eddie Collins to enthuse.

Collins, by the way, is in great form himself. The injury to his leg last year that threatened to end his career seems to have entirely mended.

Catcher Frank Snyder of the Giants, reported to have retired last fall, is looking and catching better than in years.

This condition holds good all along the line and gives the magnates and managers something to be thankful for.

ORIGINAL

Umpire Clarence Rowland of the American League staff has sprung something entirely new this spring: he is wearing a wrist watch on the field.

No doubt some of the athletes will hold this against him.

However, the stunt of fastening the watch around the wrist has definitely removed one of the favorite old-time customs, the snatching of the watch by some irate player and throwing it over the grandstand.

The wrist watch will hardly become a standard part of the Umpire's equipment. I am sure Hank O'Day would offer strenuous objections.

WISDOM

Speaking of umpires and their time pieces recalls a story Tim Hurst once told me.

Tim had a habit of carrying on the field a very valuable watch presented by admiring home folks. A certain National League player, who often took issue with Tim, threatened to throw it over the grandstand the very first time it was pulled on him as a threat to forfeit the game.

Tim knew the player would make good his word, so he substituted a cheap gold watch in another pocket. When the opportunity arrived for him to pull the watch on said player because of a strenuous kick, Tim came up with the cheap one. It had cost him $5. True to his threat, the player threw it over the grandstand.

Tim put in a bill for $50 to the league president and the player was assessed a fine to cover that amount. The laugh was on the player. And, when Tim revealed the true facts, it became the joke of the organization.

SOCCER TEAM TO INVADE CANADA

Missionary Work of English Football Association in Dominions.

YOUTH AND VETS.

Next month a small body of English soccer players will set sail for the Dominion, thus continuing the missionary work of the English Football Association which has been carried on in South Africa, Australia, and the European countries during the past few years. At first glance it appeared, when the names of the travellers were cabled, that the visitors would not be that representative side which was promised, but when the records of the players are enumerated it will be seen that many internationals of recent years will play on Canadian soil.

The chosen team is a mixture of veterans and youthful talent, the former still actively engaged in league warfare for their respective clubs, but not now in the public eye to the extent which they were a few years ago when they represented their country. Such names as Magee, Tunstall, Joe Smith, Sewell, Jack, Healless, W. H. Harvey, Carr, Rawlings and O. Williams all bring memories of International honors, and with ten such men on the team, the tourists can not be termed a weak combination in any sense of the word.

The younger talent will surprise the Canadian fan, and Keeping estention. The young Southampton tention. The young Southampton back played his first big game in this season's cup-tie against Liverpool at Anfield, and his display caused the press to dub him an International in his first season in first-class company. Similarly Clifford of Portsmouth, Foxall of the same club and Wainscoat of Leeds United will not suffer by comparison with their more famous colleagues.

Never Beaten.

The record of the F. A. touring teams is worthy of mention. During two Australian and one South African tour the tourists have never suffered defeat, and have won outright each of the 180 games played, test and club games, and with a tremendous margin between goals scored and those surrendered. It remains to be seen if a Canadian team can be the first to lower the colors of an English football association touring side. Dominion clubs have everything in their favor, cast iron grounds, with which they are familiar, and climatic conditions which will be a great handicap to the tourists. In any case the tour will be a great boost for soccer in each and every town in which games are staged.

"Our Boys" has a record of having enjoyed a run of 1,500 nights in London, England, when first put on, and Mr. Clark, the director in charge, is delighted with the clever manner in which the boys and girls in the cast have taken hold of the work, and are putting on their parts like real professionals. Better get to the opening night's show or there may be no room on the second night.

DANCE REVUE IS A NOVEL FEATURE

Miss Marion May Perry and Her Dancers Score a Triumph.

A novel and delightful feature of the successful dance of The Examiner Softball team, in the G.W.V.A. Hall last night, was the dance divertissement introduced by Miss Marion May Perry and her clever dancing pupils. The numbers so effectively given at the recent Rotary entertainment were even more successfully presented last night by Miss Perry and the members of her revue, and the dancing programme was carried out with a profesional snap and skill that were refreshing.

Miss Perry scored heavily in her two solo numbers, the Merry Widow Waltz, most gracefully danced, and a modern jazz dance in which the Charleston and the newer Cincinnati were most effectively introduced. With Mr. Stan. Bishop as partner, Miss Perry also presented with splendid effect an exhibition waltz. Her class consisting, of Misses Dorothy Graham, Bunty Dunlop, Irene Chambers, Alma Stinchcomb, Florence Geary and Adelle Robinson and Lillian Farthing, proved a charming dancing chorus, whose work in the Merry Widow and Charleston numbers was a convincing proof of their own cleverness and grace, but also of the success of Miss Perry as a teacher.

This, too, was revealed in the Rose Dance performed by two picturesque little tots, Moira Coutts and Sophia Yeotes, whose dainty "cuteness" in this fetching little number was supplemented by their precision and cleverness in the jazz number.

The dance revue was made especially notable by the striking costumes designed by Miss Perry. The latter work a dashing red costume in her Merry widow number while the girls of the chorus were most effectively attired in costumes in which panniers decorated with roses were used to good advantage. In the Charleston number fancy black frilled costumes and red hats and canes made the effect very striking.

Music for the dance revue was furnished by Joe Nazimok and his orchestra, who not only were of invaluable assistance in this respect, but also provided a very attractive programme of numbers for the general dancing, adding greatly to the success of the occasion.

The committee of The Examiner Softball Team very cordially thank all who assisted in last night's successful dance and the many patrons who attended.

Higher Prices For Wheat On Report From Winnipeg

CHICAGO, April 17 (Canadian Press). — Higher prices here for wheat went hand-in-hand today with indications of large export buying at Winnipeg.

Unfavorable crop conditions in Nebraska and mixed advices from Missouri, Illinois, and Ohio tended also to lift values.

The opening, unchanged to 3-4 higher, May 1.65 to 1.66 1-2 and July 1.41 to 1.41 3-8, was followed by a general advance with May going well above 1.67.

Corn and oats were responsive to wheat strength. Besides, there was an indication of corn export business and a demand for corn to be shipped to the Pacific Coast at a much higher basis than the market for Chicago future deliveries. Opening, unchanged to 1-8 higher, May 73 5-8 to 73 3-4; corn scored a material upturn all around.

Oats started 1-4 up, May 42 to 42 1-8. Later all months showed some gain.

Standard Exchange Quiet Three Mines Feature

TORONTO, April 17 (Canadian Press).—Advances in Dome, McIntyre, and Mining Corporation were the features of a quiet session of the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, when prices remained steady and trading was again light in volume. Dome recovered another 35 cents to close at 14.15, and McIntyre strengthtened 30 at 24.85. Mining Corporation closed 16 cents higher at 367. Tough Oakes was a soft spot, easing 2 at 36.

Recessions In General List With Smelters Feature

TORONTO, April 17 (Canadian Press).—Recessions all along the line were shown during this morning's session of the Toronto Stock exchange, with Consolidated Smelters the outstanding weak issue. Smelters closed 6 1-2 points lower at 195 1-2. Brazilian closed 1 lower at 88, and C.P.R. a point lower at 154. British Empire Steel, second preferred, was marked down 1 at 4 1-2, Brompton 3-4 lower at 31 1-4, and Fishing down 1-4 at 64. The strength of mines was in strong contrast to the general weakness. Mining corporation firmed 18 cents at 370, and Kirkland Lake 7 at 125.

SYMPHONY CONCERT IS WELL RECEIVED

Good Programme Given in Third of Popular Series.

(By Jeanette.)

The third of the series of popular concerts which have been given this year by the Peterborough Symphony Orchestra in the Hall of the Conservatory of Music was presented last night before a fair-sized audience. Assisting artists were Miss Mathilde Masson, soprano, and Mr. Stuart Widdess, violinist. The orchestral selections and the solo work were received with much enthusiasm, and hearty encores were vouchsafed in nearly every instance.

The Orchestra was perhaps not at its best last evening, on account of the absence of many members, through illness, but their numbers were played with the attractive verve and vigor which distinguishes the work of this organization. The programme opened with a Sousa March, a bright, gallant, forceful number, and the Overture from Schubert's "Rosamonde," the latter a pleasant, graceful thing, with a good deal of flute overtone, and gliding passages alternating with staccato measures.

A set of Concert Waltzes, played with buoyant freedom, and Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance," the softly-shaded "Land of Hope and Glory" portion played with much expression and excellent volume of massed tone in the fine, majestic music, adequately handled, brought much applause, and the third group by the orchestra consisted of Schubert's "Serenade" and "A Woodland Suite" by Percy Fletcher. The "Seranade," which had incidental music, well played, by Mr. Walter Miller, on the trombone, and Mrs. Joseph Minicolo, on the cornet, showed some ragged instrumentation, but the lovely, soft melody brought repeated applause and a repetition of this popular number. The "Woodland Suite" was effectively given, the first movement a bright-toned portion, the second played with muted strings, and the third section quick and vibrant, with massed effect in the forte passages and a glissando of the shivering strings as a finale.

Miss Masson's song were mainly in French, in which her bright, pretty voice wa very attractively displayed. Her numbers were enthusiastically received, and were accorded much applause in every instance. The French songs, which were mainly of the same type, were lovely compositions by Massenet, "Open Thy Blue Eles, My Beloved," an excerpt from Delibes' opera, "Lakme," and a bit of Persian Poetry, set to music by an Italian composer. These were sung with excellent effect, the use of the middle register being particularly good, with a slight edge of shrillness to the higher, soaring passages.

Songs in English by Miss Masson were Chaminade's Carnival Song of Southern France, dainty and sweet, the well-known little "Answer" song which was followed by repeated applause, and an encore to the first group in a charming little song about the wind. A bouquet of roses was presented to Miss Masson at the conclusion of her first group. Miss Agnes Logan acted as accompanist for the vocal numbers.

Mr. Stuart Widdess, whose clever handling of the violin, and sweet, clear tone made his playing very attractive, gave two numbers, the pretty "Londonderry Air" and an encore in Beethoven's 'Minuet." Accompaniments were played by Miss Margaret Widdess.

TERMINATION OF GOVERNMENT SUBSIDY TO BRITISH COAL INDUSTRY ON MAY 1, WITH PROSPECT OF LOWER WAGES, IS CAUSE OF THREATENED STRIKE OF MINERS

Mine Owners Already Posting Notices Cancelling Existing Wage Agreements, But No Intimations of Proposed New Scale—Conference on Tuesday.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF ROYAL COMMISSION.

Miners Demand New National Wage Agreement—Owners May Contend That Without Subsidy They Cannot Meet the Men's Terms.

LONDON, April 19 (Canadian Press)—Events in the coming fortnight will decide whether there shall be peace or war in the British coal industry. The position, although less serious, has much similarity with the position last July when another crisis was threatened, and was only averted by the Government providing a State subsidy to enable the mine owners to pay wages which the owners claimed were not justified by the economic condition of the industry.

This subsidy, which cost the country some £20,000,000, will come to an end April 30, and the mine owners are already posting notices terminating the existing wage agreements on May 1. They are also preparing schedules of new wage scales for the men's acceptance, but there is no indication as yet of the reductions they propose.

The miners have refused to consent to any reduction whatever. Therefore either a strike or a lockout seems inevitable unless a settlement can be adjusted within the next fortnight.

Commission's Report

When granting the subsidy last year, the Government appointed a royal commission to investigate the whole coal problem and endeavor to find a solution. This commission made a number of recommendations for reoganizing the industry and increasing its efficiency. These recommendations include purchase by the state of mining royalties, promotion of amalgamations of mines, the granting of powers to local authorities to engage in the retail sale of coal, and many other measures. The commission also favored some retion of family allowances.

The position now is that the government has undertaken to carry these recommendations into legislative effect, provided both the mine owners and miners agree to accept them. The commission's report and recommendations, however, are susceptible to considerable divergence in interpretation, and it is these divergencies which cause the present conflict.

The commission's report has been accepted by the Government and the owners, but the miners, although acquiescing in its main recommendations so far as proposals for a reorganization of the industry are concerned, take exception to the owners' interpretation of its wage clauses.

Deadlock on Wages

A deadlock has arisen on the question of hours and wages, the mine owners contending that without a subsidy they cannot pay the existing scale of wages and, therefore, the men must accept lower wages or longer hours. The view of the government and community generally is that the miners ought to agree to some reduction pending reorganization, which it is hoped will restore the industry to a solvent condition.

The miners argue that they cannot wait so lond and, although they have not entirely closed the door to negotiations, they argue that it is up to the government and country to see that there shall be no reduction in the miners' standard of living.

Counter Proposals.

The main bone of contention is how the new wage scale shall be settled. The miners are standing out for a new national agreement to replace the existing agreement embodying a national percentage on district rates. The owners insist on varying percentages, as well as a varying basis of district rates.

The commission's report upheld the principle of national negotiation but suggested a somewhat ambiguous procedure for fixing minimum rates. The commission's idea was that a national agreement should secure every miner above want and district adjustments should determine the amount of a man's earnings over and above that subsistence

Arthur Henderson, Labor leader, describes this national settlement negotiation as being of vital importance, not only for the miners but for the whole trades union movement, and declares that if the government is relying upon the unwillingness of the trades union movement to assist the miners in their fight, it is making a disastrous mistake.

Meeting on Tuesday

The Government today is in a much better position than when in July last it was caught without any policy, and it is believed that when Premier Baldwin sees the mine owners next Tuesday he will be prepared with plans for helping the disputants to agree. All that is yet known is that the Government is prepared to grant temporary financial assistance to bridge the gap between the cessation of the subsidy and the settling down of the industry under new conditions.

All that the public asks is that whatever money may thus be granted may be used to help place the industry on its feet and not as a mere sop to help the mine owners retain their profits at the expense of the taxpayers. It is believed that the prime minister may propose some form of state loan to facilitate the amalgamation of the mines as proposed by the commission.

The firt task, however, is to secure an agreement on the wages question, and present indications are that the owners will agree to negotiate wages on a national basis, provided the miners will be content with a lower minimum percentage.

Population Of Paris Drops 25,000 Within Five Years

PARIS, April 19.—Since 1921 the population of Paris has, contrary to expectation, declined. Within the twenty arrondissements of the city there are now, according to a census taken on March 7 last, 2,838,416 inhabitants, which is 25,000 less than was shown by the census of March 6, 1921.

This loss of population, however, is only an indication that Paris, following the example of all other cities, is spreading outward. Though the full results of the census in the suburban districts are not yet known there are indications here and there of an increase of more than 400,000

SHOPPERS' CLUB SCHEME ILLEGAL

Lindsay Merchant's Contest Attacked—Car Offered as Prize.

OBTAIN OPINION.

LINDSAY, April 19—A number of local merchants are in a quandary at present owing to their connection with a Shoppers' Club Contest which they believed was strictly legitimate, and which an outside lawyer has ruled illegal. As a result the contest has been held up temporarily until an opinion is received from the powers that be at Ottawa.

It appears that a local citizen forwarded a copy of a paper containing an advertisement dealing with the contest to an officer of The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada which was in turn forwarded to a Montreal lawyer for his decision. It was on the strength of that decision that the merchants have held up the contest until word comes from the capital.

An Overland coach and one hundred other prizes were features of the contest. Every dollar spent with merchants identified with the contest entitled the purchaser to a coupon good for one hundred votes. Nomination coupons were secured at the club stores and were good for one thousand votes. A large number in the town and district were nominated, and the standing was published each week.

The merchants are satisfied that the contest is perfectly regular as every coupon has a face value. However they preferred to wait for a ruling from Ottawa before continuing the contest.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST YOUNG BRIGHTON GIRL

Norma McDonald Remanded Until Saturday After Hearing To-day.

BREAKS DOWN.

Weeps When Murder Charge Is Read Against Her—At Brighton.

(By a Staff Reporter)

BRIGHTON, Ont., April 19—Norma McDonald pleaded not guilty to a charge of murder, preferred against her at a preliminary hearing this morning, and was remanded until Saturday morning next. When the charge was read the girl, who sat so stolidly through the inquest into the death of her infant child, broke down and wept.

The hearing today was before County Police Magistrate Floyd, and was very short. County Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr, K.C., of Cobourg, represented the Crown and George Drewery of Brighton appeared for Miss McDonald.

The charge arises from the death of the infant child of the McDonald girl. The body was discovered badly mangled by dogs under a dismantled house near her home. At the inquest on Friday evening the doctors who conducted a post mortem examination were unable to state whether the child had been born alive. One, however, was inclined to the view that it had been alive as the skull had been fracturd and there had been a hemmorhage of the brain. The girl said it had been born dead. Three young men of the village admitted having had illicit relations with the mother who is sub-normal, during the past two years and were strongly censured by the jury.

RIFFS RECEIVE FRANCO-SPANISH ARMISTICE TERMS AND ASK DELAY TO DELIBERATE WITH CHIEFTAIN

Five Days To Consult With Abd-el-Krim May Not Be granted.

TORRID WEATHER.

Severer Conditions Demanded of Tribesmen By French and Spanish.

CAMP BERTEAUX, Morocco, April 19.— (Canadian Press.) — The French, Spanish and Riffian delegates, met at noon Sunday to discuss military conditions for an armistice preliminary to the official gathering of the peace delegations in conference at the Oujda.

The Franco-Spanish armistice terms were presented, and the Riffian delegates asked for five days in which to consult with Abd-El-Krim, the Riffian chieftain, before giving a final answer.

The terms set forth that Abd-el-Krim would not be recognized, and demanded that the French troops be permitted to advance seven kilometres along the front. These conditions are different from the original conditions submitted to the Riffians before they left for the meeting.

It is considered unlikely that the French and Spanish will grant the delay, and the outlook for the successful issue of the conference seems dim.

Armistice Weather.

Camp Berteaux is 20 miles north of Taourit, and if situated in the French military zone. It is one of the most desolate places in the sunbaked Moroccan plain. The thermometer registered 90 degrees Fahrenheit when the delegates met.

"How can anyone get up courage enough to fight in such weather?" one peace delegate asked as he entered the camp. "This should provide fine armistice weather."

The Riffian delegation made a most impressive picture. All three members, standing well above six feet, grave and solemn, walked inside the camp with slow, measured step, looking neither to the right or left. Their heads were adorned with white turbans; they were dressed in white flowing robes, covered by black dolmans and wide sleeves. Their feet were encased in sandals over thin wool hose half way up to the knees.

Formalities Open.

After formal introductions, General Simon, addressing the Riffian delegates, asked: "In whose name do you speak?"

The Riffians handed their credentials to an interpreter; then Si Mohammed Azerkane, brother-in-law of Abd-el-Krim, and described as minister of foreign affairs of the Riff, took two steps forward and, placing his hand over his heart, which is the Moslem sign of friendship and faithfulness, replied, his voice shaking with emotion: "Allah is great and Abd-el-Krim is my master."

The solemn recognition of Abd-el-Krim as his sovereign by Mohammed Azerkane was an initial poser for both French and Spanish delegations, especially the latter, which always insisted that Krim must be treated like any other of the multitude of caids ruling over the dissident tribes. The situation was somewhat relieved by General Simon asking the other Riffian delegates a similar question.

The youthful giant, Caid Aman Cheddi, the second Riffian delegate, one of the finest specimens of manhood, stepped forward, and standing at attention, said: "I represent the tribe of Beni Mithoua."

Britain To Aid States To Stop Rum Runners

LONDON, April 19 (Canadian Press). — The British Government has a plan for assisting the United States to tighten its control over rum-runners. The plan does not go as far as a new treaty, but, according to official circles, will take the form of permission for United States revenue cutters to visit the Bahamas and co-operate with British ships in carrying out searches for contraband liquor.

BIG DELEGATION MAKING PROTEST

To Visit Ottawa To Protest Against Tariff Changes.

MANY CONCUR.

TORONTO, April 19 (Canadian Press). — A protest to Ottawa against the tariff changes, which are claimed by the manufacturers to be injurious to the automotive industry in Canada, is to be made by a mass delegation of representatives from various parts of Ontario.

On Saturday Mayor R. D. Preston of Oshawa sent out 300 wires to cities, towns and manufacturers, asking them to join in placing before the Government objections to the changes, and it is stated that, so far, he has received more than fifty replies favoring such a move.

BUDGET DEBATE OPENS TUESDAY MAY RUN MONTH

Has Precedence Over All But Routine Business Until Vote Reached.

BRISTOL'S MOTION.

Toronto Member Proposes New Agreement With U. S. on Niagara Falls.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Parliament has passed its annual budget milestone and debate, for some weeks to come, will be devoted to fiscal matters. The debate on the financial review of the past year, and the budget proposals for the year just beginning, begins on Tuesday and will have precedence over all but routine business until a vote is reached. The length of the budget debate is variously estimated from three to six weeks.

The last private members' day occurs to-day. It is expected that a resolution standing in the name of Hon. Edmund Bristol, Conservative member for Toronto East Centre, will come up first, and the debate on it will likely take up the whole day's session. It asks the House to authorize the government to take up with the United States' government the advisability of altering the 1910 agreement which limits the diversion of water from the Niagara river above the falls.

Falls Losing Beauty.

Erosion is rapidly changing the contour of the horse-shoe falls at Niagara, threatening ultimate destruction of its scenic beauty unless the flow over the falls is lessened and remedial works are constructed to spread the flow of the waters at the crest of the horse-shoe falls, the resolution says.

The limited amount of water permitted under the 1910 agreement to be diverted for power purposes have been wholly diverted and utilized in the generating of Hydro-Electric power, the resolution adds and the increasing demand for electric power will necessitate the use of steam in the near future, unless a greater diversion from Niagara river is authorized. For these reasons it is suggested that Canada should negotiate at once with the United States for an increase in the amount of water to be diverted for power purposes, and in reference to the joint construction of remedial works for the preservation of the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls.

REAL ESTATE SALES.

Several Transactions Are Reported in Campbellford District.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 19—T. L. Diamond reports the following real estate transactions:

Warren Harlow has bought the residence in Stirling known as the Cook house, and took possession last Thursday.

The Joshua Tinney property on Centre street has been sold to Thomas Doyle of Seymour who is giving up farming. Besides the house, the property consists of five lots four of which are planted to fruit trees. Mr. Tinney, who is now living in the country, sold this property to Arthur Merrills about two years ago.

OVER 2,000 CLAIMS FILED IN NEW FIELD

Big Rush On To Women Lake Following Gold Strike.

TORONTO, April 19.—(Canadian Press).—Over 2,000 claims have been staked between Women Lake and Clearwater Lake following a gold strike in that vicinity, according to Mayor Greer of Sioux Lookout, who is a visitor in the city. Veteran prospectors predict that the rush will continue in a northeasterly direction.

PETERBOROUGH GIRL IS DOING GOOD WORK

Miss Dorothy Hanna Receves Praise From Santa Cruz Paper.

The following was taken from "The Santa Cruz Morning Sentinel" and refers to Miss Dorothy Hanna, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen R. Hanna, 302 Elias avenue. Miss Hanna left Peterborough about two years ago for Santa Cruz, Calif., and is already making a name for herself in the field of commercial art. She received her early training in Peterborough.

It is a wonderful age when art and commercialism join hands and produce a combined force that sell each other. It is satisfying to all of us to loose the sharp edges of the mart of trade and feel the alluring 'pull' of art. It's soothing to realize that art has crept into the bosom of trade—invited.

That is what the big front window of the Seaside Store is proving to those who have been passing since Friday evening. And not one of the hundreds who have gone by, but has paused to absorb the beauty and artistry displayed.

It's more than a picture—for it pulsates with life. But this is the setting. It is a cozy corner in a garden. Banked on either side are tall and stately lilies—callas, and Easter lilies against a delicate tracery of green. There are fairy suggestions of color, but not enough to take from the purety of whiteness—just enough to strengthen the prospectus.

In the midst of it all is a crystal brick-trimmed pool with its flowing fountain. Beautiful water lilies float on the placid surface, while gold fishes and pollywogs play unmindful of the eyes that are fascinated by their antics. Reeds, ferns and mosses diffuse the pungent fragrance of grottos. Frogs seem willing to lend mirth to the setting.

And into this bower of beauty have come children—happy children bent upon their Easter Hunt. Their dresses blend into the picture. Beautiful green and pink taffetas—voiles and soft silks—dainty Easter frocks. The bunny has been there before them.

One forgets the suggestion of commercialism, but it's there—gowned in the beauty of art.

George Parton and Miss Dorothy Hanna are responsible for this display and are to be highly commended for the results of their efforts.

THREE RACES ON VICTORIA DAY

Other Sports Are Arranged For Celebration in Campbellford.

LACROSSE GAME.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 19—The sports committee of the Seymour Agricultural Society, of which T. J. Horkins is chairman, has decided to hang up $400 in purses for the horse races that will be held in connection with the celebration of Victoria Day. There will be three classes, a 2.18, a 2.30 and a 2.40 pace or trot and for the first time in years there will be a number of local horses among the entries.

Other sports that are already arranged for is a lacrosse game between the combined teams of Norwood and Havelock and the team composed of players from Hastings and Campbellford. These teams will play for the A. J. Meyers cup which was won last year by the Hastings-Campbellford boys, and which must be won three years in succession to become the permanent property of any club.

There will also be scheduled games between two teams from the Town Softball League.

HON. W. E. RANEY IN WASHINGTON

people then are the liquor voters?" asked Senator Reed.

"Oh, no; oh, no," said Mr. Raney. "because the present Prime Minister also held the Conservative temperance vote by promising that he would not interfere with the Ontario temperance act without the direct vote of the people."

"So on one side we have the wets, as we will call them, or the liberals, if you want to call them that," said Senator Reed. "On the other side you have the prohibitionists, or the drys, if you want to call them that. Each side mustered its forces and you had it out in a grand assize of the people, and in your Province of Ontario the drys held the line of battle and did not get defeated But in the other provinces the wets or the liberals gained the day."

"No, it was not in any of the western provinces, so far as I know, and I think I know a party question. And in Ontario it was not put to the people as a party question."

Q.—I did not mean it was a party question. A.—No.

Q.—Now just one question further. Pardon me for asking this. It is personal. Are you a native born Canadian? A.—I am, of the fourth or fifth generation, yes.

Q.—I just wanted to know that, or whether you had gone there possibly from the United States or England. A.—I think my great-grandfather went from this country to Ontario.

Q.—And he went to a good country, I will say that.

Senator Walsh—Just a minute, please. Mr. Raney, regardless of the change in your government or which party prevailed, the law continued in force. A.—The law is still in force. The Ontario Temperance acti still in force and is being fairly well enforced.

"Of the nine provinces of Canada five have adopted one form or other of so-called government control and three of these five permit the sale of beer in beer parlors by the glass.

"There is no prohibition in Canada of manufacture of intoxicating liquors. The prohibition in force in the four dry provinces is confined to sale and importation into these provinces. There is a heavy exportation of whisky and beer from Canadian distilleries and breweries to the bordering American States and a good deal of the product of Canadian distilleries and brewerles is bootlegged in the Canadian provinces, both those that are under prohibition laws and those that are under so-called government control.

"Before dealing with the 'Government control provinces let mey say a few words about conditions in Ontario with which I am more familiar. The Ontario Temperance Act was enacted in 1916 during the war with the promise of the government of the day that after the war and the return of the soldiers from overseas it would be submitted to the direct vote of the people as to whether it should be continued or not."

Voted to Continue the Act.

"Was that same promise made in the other provinces of Canada, that might have a vote on prohibition at that time?" asked Senator Harreld.

"I think so," Mr. Raney replied.

"It was so submitted in 1919, he continued, "with the result that after an experience of three years the people voted more than two to one to continue the act in force. The vote for the act was 792,942, against 369,434. There has been a subsequent history in the way of popular votes which I shall be glad to discuss with the committee after I have completed my statement, if so desired

"Under the Ontario Temperance Act there is no prohibition of manufacture, and so we have several large distilleries in Ontario, whose produce is well known in this country and a large number of breweries. These of course increase the difficulties of enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act.'

"It also increases difficulties of enforcement of the United States temperance act, I take it," interrupted Senator Harreld.

"No doubt," said Mr. Raney. "Nevertheless I am bound to say that during my tenure of the office of Attorney General I found no great difficulty in enforcement of the law so far as the open sale of liquor was concerned, and the efforts to suppress the clandestine sale were reasonably successful and gave general satisfaction to the friends of the act.

"I am also bound I think, to say, speaking generally, that the efforts of my successor in office, have also been reasonably successful and have given general satisfaction to the friends of the act. I may add that my successor is of a different party and might also explain that I am still a member of the Ontario Legislature, but do not hold any executive office.

No Juries in Liquor Cases.

"There are just two other things to which I ought I think, to allude in this statement. The Ontario Temperance Act permits the sale of native wines in five gallon quantities. This provision is regarded by some as a safety valve, by others as a weakness in the law.

Extent of Prohibition.

"So that, whatever the law may ultimately be decided to be, the construction given has been that the province could not regulate the men " asked Senator Reed.

"Yes, that is right," replied Mr. Raney.

"And consequently the men went on unrestricted, except that the general laws of the Dominion of course, provided some regulation as to who could manufacture and who could not?"

"I think that is correct, although I think there is the maximun. of regulation in respect to domestic wines.

"So that as a matter of fact in the Province of Ontario, under what is termed prohibition anybody could make all the wine he wanted to and only had to get a license from the general government, which was easily obtained? That is correct, is it?

"I think that is right.

"And ciders?

"Yes.

"And beers for his own use?" persisted Senator Reed.

"No; there is no interference with the manufacture of wine or cider or beer for a person's own use, except that in the case of beer there must be a notice to the Excise Department of the intention to manufacture," said the witness. "There is not even a permit that is necessary."

Q.—What about the right to sell the wine? Was that practically unrestricted? When I say that, Mr. Raney, I mean, by going and getting a permit or complying with some regulations, could people sell wine generally? A.—They could sell it in five-gallon quantities.

Q.—That was in what you call the prohibition period? A.—The prohibition period that began with 1916.

"These were the conditions in the prohibition period?" asked Mr. Reed.

"Yes, sir," replied Mr. Raney. "I might just qualify that in this way. During the war there were Dominion Orders in Council which prohibited the manufacture, transportation, exportation and sale. When those Orders in Council were repealed at the beginning of 1920 there was nothing to prevent importation into a province from another province. But in the meantime the Dominion Parliament had passed an act which provided that upon a resolution being adopted by a Provincial Legislature the Dominion Government would submit a referendum to the people on the subject of prohibition of importation into that province, and if that referendum resulted in favor of the prohibition, then there would be prohibition of importation.

Ontario Barred Importation.

"We did that in Ontario; but we did not get that law against importation effective until July of 1921, so that between the first of January, 1920, and the middle of 1921 there was free importation of liquors into Ontario from other provinces for domestic use."

Q.—You continued under that condition until when? A.—Down to this time.

Q.—You still have what is called prohibition up there? A.—Yes.

Q.—But you have prohibition where anybody can make all the wine he wants, and anybody can import all the hard liquor or beer he wants? A.—Oh no, he cannot import it; no, he cannot import at all. He cannot import any intoxicating liquor. He is prohibited, of course, from making whisky, by the Dominion law, that is, moonshining. But he is not prohibited under any law in force in our province from making wine or beer or cider for his family use.

Q.—Are hard liquors still permitted to be made in your province and shipped out? A.—Oh, yes.

Q.—But they are not permitted to be sold there? A.—Not permitted to be sold there to Ontario people. They may be sold there for export.

Q.—So the people of Ontario who want hard liquor get what is made in other provinces, and that is what you call bootlegging? As.—Yes.

Q.—And under these conditions you have found it hard to stop the sale of hard liquors? A.—As I said, my experience was that there was no difficulty—I mean, there was the ordinary difficuly of law enforcement, but I found no special difficulty in stopping the open sale of intoxicating liquors under our law. I do not suggest that we stamped out the clandestine sale, but the enforcement was accepted by the people as being fairly satisfactory.

Q.—That is to say, if a man opened up a place of business and went to selling whisky there you could stop that? A.—Yes.

Q.—But if he was selling it around under cover you found more difficulty in reaching that? You occasionally got a man? A.—Yes, I suppose that is putting it fairly.

Q.—You do not know, then, how much was sold clandestinely, of course? A.—Oh, no.

Q.—Without, perhaps, having the specific facts, did you see some evidences of prosperity among the bootleggers? A.—I have heard of prosperity among the bootleggers.

Tells About Other Provinces.

"Now, I hope you will not misunderstand this as a reflection upon your great country; but I am so ignorant of Canada, I am sorry to say, that I cannot quite keep these provinces straight in my mind, and if I get them mixed up you will set me right," said Senator Reed.

"You may be pardoned, you have so many of your own to look after," Mr. Raney replied.

"We have so many that we cannot look after. This is Ontario that you have been speaking of?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now, there are a number of other provinces in Canada that have prohibitory laws, or laws that they call prohibitory laws? Am I correct in that?"

"Yes, sir."

Q.—Under those so-called prohibitory laws in other provinces, speaking of them now in the broad way, did they generally have about the same conditions that you had under your Ontario prohibitory law or were they more stringent? A.—You mean the laws?

Q.—Yes. A.—I think the laws were very similar — our own law was framed after the Manitoba prohibitory law. Quebec had, I think, a prohibitory law for a very short time.

Senator Walsh—What other prohibition Provinces are there? A.—The prohibition provinces now are Ontario, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Senator Reed—Was not all of Canada once under prohibition of this kind that we are speaking of? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, this kind of prohibition that we are speaking of—I speak of it in that way because it is different from our prohibition—has been repealed by the vote of the people in how many provinces? A.—Three.

Q.—What has happened in the others? A.—Well, in Quebec, the repeal was not by the people, it was done by the Legislature; in the four Western provinces there were votes by the people.

Q.—So that whereas Canada was all at one time under prohibition, the prohibitory laws have been changed or repealed and new laws enacted in all of the provinces except Ontario and the three Maritime Provinces and they are what? A.—Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Q.—Now, is Ontario one of the populous provinces? A.—It is the most populous. It has a population of about 3,000,000 people.

Q.—What about Nova Scotia? A.—It is one of the smaller provinces.

Q.—Do you know about what its population would be? A.—Oh, I should think maybe three-quarters of a million; something like that. That is just a rough guess, you understand.

Q.—Just your estimate, which I suppose is approximately correct. New Brunswick has about what population? A.—I think about the same, or maybe a little less. Somewhere about that.

Q.—And Prince Edward Island? A.—That is small. Again just an estimate—perhaps 100,000. It is like your Rhode Island, just a little province.

Half Under Control System.

"So that in round numbers, counting Ontario as 3,000,000 and the other two provinces as 750,000, there is a population in Canada of approximately 4,500,000 that adheres to this limited prohibition which you have spoken of?" asked Mr. Reed. "What is the population of the Dominion?"

"About 9,000,000, speaking broadly," was the reply.

"So that more than half of the territory in area and about half of that territory by population has gone to Government control?"

"Yes," said Mr. Raney.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The welfare of over 100,000 Canadian employees and their dependents in our own and allied industries, together with our tremendous investment in plants, equipment and organization, representing $31,000,000, allows of no alternative but to continue operatious in spite of recent tariff reductions on motor cars.

For the present at least we have no option but to meet the competition of imported automobiles. In consequence, we announce the following price reductions retroactive to April 16th. We also declare our intention to continue operation as usual until such time as costs of manufacture under the new tariff can be ascertained. In so doing there will be no compromise on our part either as regards our employees' interests or the traditional high quality of our product.

Advertising Rates on application.

H. H. GLOVER, Managing Director.

MONDAY, APRIL 19, 1926.

CHEAPER POSTAGE.

In connection with the return of Canada to penny postage on Dominion Day Examiner readers will be interested in learning that in 1924, according to figures just published by the Citizens' Research Institute, the Postal Department did not pay its own way.

The complete figures for 1925 are not available, but in the proceeding year the revenue from the post-office was $28,793,817, as compared with expenditure of $31,721,543, or a loss of $2,927,726.

The per capita receipts were $3.28 and the expenditures $3.61, a deficit of 33c per head of population.

If the same condition of affairs exists now the loss of revenue entailed in the return to cheaper postage will be reflected in a larger deficit that will have to be made up in some other way.

It may be claimed that the lower rate will lead to a larger volume of business, but the people of Canada have had a long time to get used to the 3c rate, and it is extremely doubtful that the extra cent acted as a check upon letter writing to any appreciable extent.

GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES.

The decision of the Federal Government to cut the expenditure for advertising Government annuities from $15,000 to $5,000 was no doubt arrived at in the interests of economy, but those who have paid any attention to this question will be inclined to think that a mistake has been made.

The people of this country know far too little about Government annuities, which offer Canadians a splendid chance to provide for their old age at very moderate expenditure.

There are many admirable features about this method of saving for a rainy day, but the trouble has been that no systematic attempt has been made to bring the scheme before the country.

What little advertising has been undertaken has been done spasmodically, and the result is that not one person in a hundred knows that an opportunity is open to provide a yearly revenue against the days when one's earning capacity has dwindled to nothing.

The Canadian Government annuity scheme is worthy of being advertised, for there is not the slightest doubt that were its advantages to be placed before the people in a proper manner a far greater proportion of Canadians would avail themselves of the benefits of the system.

SAVE THE FOREST.

The statement that forest fires each year in Canada destroy more timber wealth by twenty times than the operations of the lumber men, is in itself a sufficient reason why a week should be set apart for a campaign of education along forest preservation lines.

Somehow the people of this country seem to think that Canada's forests are inexhaustible.

Our timber resources are vast, it is true, but they are being devastated at an alarming rate.

The situation is simply this, that if the destruction by fires is allowed to continue unchecked it will only be a comparatively short time before both timber and pulpwood supplies will be dangerously depleted.

This is Save-the-Forest Week.

To most of our citizens perhaps that fact may seem to be without interest—yet indirectly or directly every one of us is concerned with this question.

Those whose business calls them into the woods and the others who go there as campers or hunters are especially appealed to on this occasion to remember that they have a responsibility to discharge, that of seeing that the forests are not menaced by carelessness on their part.

Especially should they resolve that they will be careful in regard to camp-fires, and about throwing away lighted matches or burning cigarette stubs.

Ordinary care on the part of the people of Canada would preserve millions of dollars of timber that otherwise would be consumed by the fire fiend.

THE CASE GOES TO THE PEOPLE.

With a persistence worthy of a better cause, County Clerk Elliott continues his championship of the closed-door policy for county committee meetings with another letter, which appears on this page today.

Shorn of its heavy-handed sarcasm, the latest communication from county quarters boils down to the inference that because the present system has been in force for many years it must be considered sacrosanct.

If that explanation will satisfy the county ratepayers as a logical reason why they should not learn something of the deliberations of county committees, they are easily satisfied.

If the system is wrong, and the Examiner most sincerely believes it is, the fact that it has been carried on for many years is surely no justification for keeping always on the wrong road.

Peterboro County was kept out of the county roads system until it was almost the last county in the Province to enter into the system, but it got there eventually, and there is, therefore, hope that even though the closed-door policy has persisted so long its days may be numbered.

The Examiner has no intention of adopting this controversy as a daily feature.

We have never been under any delusions as to our ability to convert the County Clerk into an advocate of the open-door policy for committee meetings, but we are satisfied to leave the case with the jury of public opinion.

To our readers who are county tax payers we would suggest that if they believe with the Examiner that the deliberations of the county committees should be published, as is done in neighboring counties, they make it a point to acquaint their representatives in the County Council with their views.

If they will do this, and do it emphatically enough to show the Councillors from their district that they are in earnest in the matter, no parochial Mussolini is going to be able to block the will of the people.

POPULATION OF U. S. AND CANADA.

Increase of population in the United States is only moderate, says the London Advertiser. The estimate for 1926 is 117,135,817, as compared with 105,710,620 in 1920; and it is likely that the census of 1930 will show about 125,000,000 or less. Two causes are operating to check increase—the restrictions on immigration and the low birth-rate of the native Americans. The chief statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company says in the Atlantic Monthly: "We must be prepared at a comparatively early date for a stationary population unless we completely change our present attitude toward the foreigner and his further entry into the country, and modify our approval of small families."

It may be of some interest to know that the population of the United States is now about equal to that of the Roman Empire, as estimated by Gibbons. "The total amount of this imperfect calculation," Gibbons wrote, "would rise to about one hundred and twenty millions of persons; a degree of population which probably exceeds that of modern Europe, and forms the most numerous society that has ever been united under the same system of government." The population of Europe has, of course, immensely expanded since Gibbons' time; the United States were then almost negligible as to population, and the self-governing commonwealths now included in the British Empire had not come into existence. Gibbons seems to have overlooked China, or not to have regarded it as an organized society.

It will soon be Canada's turn to repeat the early history of the United States in regard to increase in population. In 1820 the population of the United States was 9,638,453, rather more than Canada's in 1921. By the middle of the century this was increased to 23,191,453, by 1880 to 50,155,783, and by the close of the century to 75,994,575. It would not be rash to predict a similar increase for Canada during the remainder of the twentieth century.

DISORDER AND RULES AT WESTMINSTER.

Because during a division they refused to pass the "aye" tellers thirteen members of the British House were suspended for "wilfully obstructing business." The incident draws attention to differences in the method of taking a division in the British and Canadian Parliaments. In the Canadian House, the motion having been read, the Speaker simply says "all those in favor of the motion will please rise," whereupon one of the Clerks of the House simply calls the name of each member as he rises from his seat. This procedure repeated in the case of those who desire to vote against the motion, the Clerk of the House simply tabulates the result and announces it to the Speaker who, according to the result, announces the motion as either lost or carried.

In the British House after the question has been put by the Speaker, and his statement as to the preponderance of the "Ayes" and "Noes," as the case may be, has been challenged, the division bells are set in motion for the assembling of absent members. After the lapse of two minutes the question is again put, and if the statement from the Chair is again challenged, tellers are again nominated. After the lapse of six minutes from the first putting of the question the doors are then locked and the Speaker directs the "Ayes" to go into the Right Lobby and the "Noes" into the Left Lobby. As the members pass through the Lobbies, the Division Clerks take their names, and their number is counted by the tellers. The result being reported by the tellers to the Speaker, he declares the result to the House.

According to the cables, suspension of the 13 Labor members followed their refusal to pass the tellers, an incident that must have been accompanied by a certain amount of disorder. Suspension proceedings in the British House are approximately the same as in Canada. Whenever a member shall have been named by the Speaker or by the Chairman as disregarding the authority of the Chair, such member shall be automatically suspended from the service of the House. If any member who has been suspended refuses to obey the direction of the Speaker, the Speaker simply calls attention to the fact that force is necessary in order to compel obedience, whereupon the member in question is suspended for the remainder of the session. The Speaker, too, may order members whose conduct is "grossly disorderly" to withdraw immediately from the House during the remainder of that day's sitting; and the Sergeant-at-Arms acts on such orders as he may receive from the Chair in pursuance of this resolution. If, however, the Speaker deems that his powers under the Standing Order are inadequate, he may name such member or members, or he may call upon the House to adjudge upon their conduct. This, it would appear from the cables, is what happened on Thursday, the House having divided on the question of suspension.

The "naming" or suspension of a member has been very rare in the Canadian Parliament. The only case we can recall in the past 20 years, indeed, was when Mr. Speaker Sproule, during the fierce naval debates, "named" Dr. Michael Clark; but even in that case suspension was not carried out.

In the British House, however, which is actually much more hectic and disorderly than our own House of Commons, suspensions have been quite frequent. In the old Home Rule days the Parnellite party almost counted that night lost which did not see one or more of their number "named," and it not seldom happened that they had to be removed by physical force. Mr. John Redmond used to tell how, on the very first night that he took his seat in the House he was "named," suspended and physically ejected.

Nor have such incidents been uncommon in recent years. Mr. Jack Jones, one of the great characters of St. Stephens, has been put out of the House half a dozen times within the past 10 years, and some of the more turbulent Labor members, particularly those from the Clyde, have experienced the same fate. Westminster, however, is quick to forgive, and it is rarely that suspensions are extended.—Ottawa Journal.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

LETTERS TO BE PUBLISHED UNDER THIS HEAD MUST BE RECEIVED AT THE EXAMINER OFFICE ON THE DAY BEFORE THEY ARE DESIRED PUBLISHED.

RE BODIES CORPORATE AND SYSTEM OF PROCEDURE

To the Examiner;

Dear Mr. Editor.—Representatives of such bodies have to subscribe their name to a declaration of serious character, and it is the privilege of ratepayers to comment on the actions of such body when a newspaper article creates wrong impressions, they accept such insinuations. But letters are not copied in other newspapers hence they stop at the readers, but not so with an editor's editorial,—it is printed and commented on far and near.

The loyal Lindsay editor got a nice boost in for Victoria by commenting on the knock the local editor attempted to give Peterboro. The American papers referred to the deplorable conditions in Dummer after reading a reference in the editorial columns of the local paper. The Reeve of Dummer stepped in with no uncertain sound by way of a letter, but letters stop at readers.

After the Province and the County spending vast sums of money on highway improvement and the Chamber of Commerce putting forth energy all with an eye single to attracting tourists this way or to Ontario. But the American tourist might draw the inference that Dummer had become on a par with the uncivilized parts of the world where life was not safe, save under the protection of a regiment of soldiers.

He refers to the Lindsay paper as backing his contention which gives evidence of strenuous effort to push his opinion, that gives rise to the breach of integrity of the council or at least the inference will be so drawn by the reader.

The legislation of the County speaks for itself, shown by the following actual figures:

Peterboro has a network of waterways only equalled in two or three counties in the Province, and the same necessitates a multiplicity of permanent bridges. The greater part of such bridges have been rebuilt in recent years. During the last ten years the liabilities of the County has been met out of current rate (not debenture issue) as follows: Debenture liquidation $142,694.19; Highway improvement $187,526.64; Patriotic grants $19,000.00; one mill on the dollar for several years to meet Provincial War Tax; one mill on the dollar to meet bridge building, as well as House of Refuge, Administration of Justice, Schools and all other obligations, and the Debenture debt lowered by $12,000.00; Assessment of County $9,613,627, one of the lowest in the Province; rates 1925 Highway purposes 3 and 16-100 mills and all other purposes 9 1-4 mills; Permanent Assets in excess of Liabilities $112,839.51. The editor gives reasons for suppression of report of City Committee by referring to such time that a prospective industry is looking for a site, then silence prevails lest the other municipality steals "the plum." A time when propective companies are looking for concessions and four or five committeemen can guarantee fixed assessment for long period, bonuses, and guaranteed loans, the same things causing a lot of cringing in various municipalities at the present time. But he would have the opinions of the gentlemen with regard to the purchasing of a wheelbarrow thoroughly reported.

After insinuating things as against the County Council, he now attempts to twist his allegations to the clerk.

My dear friend, the system you complain of has been practised by the County Council since the middle of the last century, long before the editor and clerk were born; but the gives promise to an individual canvas of the Council with regard to his scheme, but judging from observation, I might say that no one man, let alone a servant or even an editor, can successfully buttonhole such body, and the attempt at such insinuation of being a weak-kneed body is preposterous and deserves an apology.

Thanking you for space. I remain, Yours sincerely.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., April 18 (Canadian Press)—A feature of the export grain trade here on Saturday was the increased demand that developed from local and United States exporters for ocean grain room from this port for May loading which resulted in quite an active business being done. The foreign demand for grain here was again limited.

Owing to the further advance in prices for oats in the Winnipeg market a stronger feeling prevailed in the local trade at the close and prices were marked up 1-2c to 1c per bushel.

Owing to the renewed strength in the Canadian cash wheat situation on Saturday a stronger feeling developed in the local flour market for spring wheat grades and millers generally marked up prices another 20c per barrel which makes a net rise 10r the week of 40c per barrel.

In sympathy with the above, the continued light offerings from Ontario millers and the comparatively small stocks held on spot the undertone to the market for winter wheat flour was also stronger on Saturday and prices advanced 10c per barrel making a net gain for the week of 20c per barrel with indications of them going still higher in the near future.

Cables received from Manchester on Saturday reported sales of Quebec hay at 75s to 80s per ton, C.I.F., and quoted prime clover mixed hay for May shipment at 75s to 80s per ton, C.I.F., which prices are considerably below working basis and the prospects for the movement from this port at present are anything but encouraging. The local market was quiet and prices were unchanged.

The receipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 3,083 cases, as against 2,179 cases for the same day last week, and 3,120 cases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending April 17, 1926, were 17,919 cases, as compared with 13,075 cases for the previous week, and 18,280 cases for the same week last year. The trade during the week was fairly good, but the market closed easier.

Potato Price Strong

The trade in potatoes during the past week was active, there being a good steady demand from buyers in the United States and other sources for supplies and as the offerings were none too large to meet all requirement a stronger feeling prevailed in the market and prices closed 25c to 75c per bag higher than a week ago.

The receipts of butter in Montreal on Saturday were 614 packages, as against 812 packages for the same day last week, and 1,217 packages for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending April 17, 1926, were 3,799 packages, as compared with 9,748 packages for the previous week and 3,120 packages for the same week last year.

The feature of the past week was the weak feeling that prevailed in the market and prices scored declines amounting to 2 1-2c to 3 1-2c per lb. which was to some extent attributed to the marked increase in the receipts of cream here of which the bulk is being turned into butter, and this factor coupled with the larger arrivals of butter from the country had a depressing influence on the situation.

Butter Declines

With reference to jobbing prices for butter it was announced on Saturday that a further reduction of 3c per lb. would go into effect on Monday morning which is a net decline of 4c per lb. within the past few days and brings prices down to 35c per lb. for finest creamery in solid packages, and to 36c per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal on Saturday were 485 boxes, as compared with 102 boxes for the same day last week, and 1,858 boxs for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending April 17, 1926, were 2,149 boxes as against 1,908 boxes for the previous week, and 5,002 boxs for the same week last year. The market continues dull and featurelss.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 17 (Canadian Press)—Immense export dealings in North American wheat led to a steep new upturn today in wheat values here. Engagements of ocean vessel room for grain the first week of May were reported to be the largest ever known.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 2 1-4 to 3 7-8c net higher, May (new) $1.68 1-8 to $1.65 5-8, with corn 7-8c to 1 1-2c up; oats showing 1-2 to 5-8 to 7-8c gain, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to a rise of 12 cents.

Judging from the activity of buying of future deliveries of wheat both here and at Winnipeg, export business, especially in Canadian wheat, was on a tremendous scale. According to estimates which were current, 10,000,000 bushels of North American wheat has been purchased this week to be shipepd to Europe as soon as practicable. The consequent stimulus today to prices for future deliveries, however, was greater in the July delivery than May, the new crop month being at an unusually wide discount.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, Que., April 18 (Canadian Press) — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand—$4.84 7-8.
Sterling Cables—$4.85 3-8.

SUNDAY RIOTS IN MADRAS.

MADRAS, India, April 19 (Canadian Press).—Serious rioting, growing out of agricultural disputes, occurred Sunday at Satyamangalam, 250 miles south-west of Madras. Six policemen were badly injured and a number of rioters were arrested.

Order finally was restored and the authorities have forbidden gatherings of more than four persons.

HON. W. E. RANEY IN WASHINGTON DEFENDED O.T.A.

Tells U. S. Senate Committee Conservatives Elected With Aid of Liquor Element.

WINES AND BEER.

Denounces Government Control—Says He Enforced the O.T.A.

WASHINGTON, April 19—Continuing their onslaught against the wets, the prohibition forces sought Saturday before the Senate Judiciary Committee to disprove the testimony given by Canadians who declared that Canada had found the solution to the liquor problem in its Government-owned and operated liquor-selling stores in various provinces of the Dominion.

The first of the Canadian witnesses was W. E. Raney, former Attorney General of Ontario, who, facing a long cross-examination by Senator Reed, insisted to the end that the assertions made by friends of the Canadian control law that it was a success were unfounded and could be disproved by a dispassionate study of the facts.

The other Canadian witness was the Rev. Dr. W. W. Peck of the United Church of Canada, who is Educational Secretary of the Prohibition Federation of Canada and is sometimes referred to as the "Wayne B. Wheeler of the Dominion." Dr. Peck denounced the Canadian system as a sham and a failure.

The following is an excerpt from Mr. Raney's long statement to the committee:—"In the western Provinces, the prairie Provinces and British Columbia they did have the pohibitory measure for one reason or another. British Columbia, for instance, is the most English province in Canada. There are more people of English origin there than anywhere else in Canada."

"They are more English than the English, I think," Senator Walsh remarked.

"Yes, they are more English than the English, that is true," said Mr. Raney. "I understand that the averaged Englishman, some of whom come to this country and go back again and say things, that is, the average Englishman — there are many notable exceptions — but the average Englishman is impatient of the American principle of prohibition, but that may account in a measure for British Columbia.

"First came Quebec, then British Columbia, and then the prairie Provinces, Mantitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, which had had bad crop years, and to the people of those Provinces revenue was a factor, of course. They voted against prohibition, or voted for modification in favor fo sale by Government agencies."

Senator Reed — Yes. Now you were the Attorney General. When did you go out as Attorney General? A.—In the middle of 1923.

Q.—Well, was that at the time of the change of the Government? Did the Government change at that time? A.—The Government changed at that time.

Q.—The wets, as we will call them for the sake of describing them, went in, and the drys went out? A.—Well, the present Government at home might resent it if I called them wets, but I do say that they went in beyond any question with the support of the liquor element.

Q.—And you went out with the dry administration? A.—Yes.

Q.—Are you yourself, a prohibitionist by principle? A.—I think prohibition is the best solution of the drink problem so far as lawmaking is concerned.

Q.—You spoke of the liquor interests being active, or the liquor interests being in control. Did you mean by that the manufacturers of liquor, or did you mean the voters at the polls? A.—Controlling?

Victors Aided by Liquor Vote

"I don't want to misquote you, but I understood you several times to say that the liquor interests had gotten into control, or the liquor interests did control the situation," said Mr. Reed. "Whether you did say that the people of Canada did not have a fair opportunity to express their opinion?"

"What I said was that the present Government of Ontario was elected with the support of the liquor vote," said Mr. Raney.

"Yes, the liquor vote. Now do you mean that the majority of the

COAL TROUBLE IS MADE WORSE

ENGINEERS' TROUBLE.

LONDON, April 19.—(Canadian Press).—Premier Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin were guests last night of King George at Windsor Castle. The Premier was especially summoned to explain to the king the present status of the coal problem. It is generally presumed that Mr. Baldwin will outline the policy the Government proposes to adopt, which is almost certain to include some further allocation of public money to tide the industry over the few months needed to place it on a stable basis in accordance with report of the coal commission.

There will be a lull over the week end in the negotiations to bring about a settlement of the differences between the mine owners and the miners. According to a report from the Brussels conference of miners the international has resolved to accord British miners full support in the event of a strike.

This will harden the miners in their resistance to any wage cutting and makes the Government's task more difficult.

A deadlock similar to that obtaining the coal industry developed today in the engineering trade. Negotiations in progress for a long time on the engineers' demand for an increase in wages amounting to a pound a week, broke down completely, the men finally rejecting compromise terms proposed by the employees. Thus there is danger of a strike or lockout in the engineering trade concurrently with a possible upheaval in the coal trade.

Communists Believe Demonstration Was Planned by the "Upper Class."

LONDON, April 19.—(Canadian Press).—The greatest women's demonstration seen in London since the historic days of the suffragette movement was held Saturday afternoon when thousands of women from all parts of the country took part in a huge demonstration parade in a protest against strikes and lockouts during economic difficulties through which the British Isle are passing.

The Women's Guild of the Empire, under whose auspices the parade was held, has estimated that 30,000 women would take part in the demonstration. Special police precautions were taken by Scotland Yard to protect the marchers because of reported threats that a contingent of unemployed workers would attempt to break up the procession on the ground that it is a capitalist move.

U. S. WANTS TREATY END RUM RUNNING

May Approach Britain to Have Exports to Rum Row Stopped.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(Canadian Press).—The government is attempting to place another stumbling block in the path of the rum smugglers by supplementing its liquor treaty with Great Britain to prevent exportation from the British Isles of liquor intended for rum row.

Informal conferences between the state department and British officials have laid the ground work for such negotiations and if President Coolidge approves it is planned to send a mission to London this summer to frame a treaty.

SILENT IN LONDON.

LONDON, April 19.—(Canadian Press).—Officials here are disinclined to discuss the news that the federal officials of the United States are considering proposing a new liquor treaty with Great Britain. Political observers, however, profess to see considrable embarassment for the British Government if such a suggestion is advanced formally.

Experts here say the liquor interests here are so powerful that any government would encounter formidable opposition in attempting to sign a formal pact precluding the exportation of alcoholic beverages in any direction.

Organ Swollen To Eight Times Normal Size By Rock.

STOMACH TORN.

PAISLEY, Ont., April 19.—(Canadian Press).—A small stone sharply pointed at both ends was found firmly lodged in the heart of a cow owned by D. A. McIntyre, of the fourth concession, Eldersville, after the animal had been killed yesterday as ordered by a veterinary surgeon when it was found to be suffering from a disease which refused to yield to the ordinary methods of treatment prescribed. The heart was swollen to eight times its normal size.

Dr. Cordick, V.S., believes that the cow first swallowed a piece of tin or zinc, which tore lining of its stomach and was finally dissolved by acid. Stone was probably eaten later with food and passed through opening of stomach, finally penetrating heart.

YESTERDAY'S STORY IN BRIEF

Harry Morton, wealthy, middle-aged, attractive bachelor, has been a center of interest in Peterborough for 15 years. The gossips have been unable to learn exactly what his business is. He has an adopted daughter Audrey, who tells him she wishes he were poor, so he would not be ought so much by other women.

He maintains an expensive home in Peterborough and an apartment in Toronto. A man called Smith, claiming to be Audrey's step father, appears after 18 years' absence, and Morton sends him to South America with the promise of a job there. Morton andf Audrey go to Toronto, where Morton receives a telephone call from Nona, beautiful young woman who is in love with him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IV

"I'll be out to dinner, dear," Morton said, when Audrey descended the stairs.

"Is it with that woman who telephoned you?" Audrey asked, quickly.

Morton eyed her with interest. "How did you know it was a woman?"

The girl hung her head and thought. "I guess it was just instinct. It was a woman, wasn't it?" Morton assented. "I wish women didn't call you up," she went on. "I wish you didn't know any women except me."

She sank into a chair, twisting her hands together. "You're too fine a man to be going around with women like that."

"What makes you think they are 'women like that?'"

"I don't know it. I just feel it," she said. "Anyhow, they aren't women that you take me to meet."

He crossed to where she was sitting, and stroked her hair. "Dear little kid Of course, I don't let them meet you. They can't hurt me. But I don't want them to hurt you."

She took his hand and pressed it against her cheek. "It hurts me to have you with them at all," she said, softly. "Why do you see them?"

Morton shook his head. "Do you know, child, that the question 'Why?' is the hardest question there is in the world to answer?

"Nobody ever can tell, really, why he does anything. There are so many reasons behind every movement in life. No man can answer truthfully when you ask him 'Why?' Things that happened to us when we were little; careless words dropped by our parents when we first started to know the world; the shape of our brain, transmitted to us by our ancestors for ten thousand years; our health; the things we read; the people we meet; all of these things act together in causing the things we do. 'Why?' It's a question that no man can answer."

She patted his hand, and looked up at him shyly. "Maybe I can answer it, myself," she said. "I think you see those women because they run after you. I believe it is always the women who run after the men, and not the men after the women."

Morton laughed, and vigorously tousled her hair. "Don't gossip about the ladies, sugarplum," he admonished. "They'll be sure to get back at you." He continued, his voice graver. "I've got to go out to dinner, but I'll promise to be back early in the evening. Is that all right?"

The girl sighed, but agreed.

"I'll wait for you," she said.

Morton was thoughtful as he left the apartment, and he was still in a reflective mood when he met Nona that evening in the waiting-room of their appointed dining-place.

This was an old mansion, made over into a restaurant by an enterprising Frenchman. Tables, lighted by discreet rose-colored lamps, filled the apartments that once were the two drawing-rooms, the dining-room, the library, and a long, glazed sun porch that ran along one side of the building. The glass on the porch had been painted, to screen the guests from outside observation. At one end of this room, Nona and Morton were seated.

"Didn't have time to dress for dinner," Morton said. "But I see you've dressed for both of us."

Nona wore a close fitting gown of green and silver; it gave evidence that aside from one narrow band, there were no garments beneath.

"As a matter of fact," Morton said, "you haven't got on enough clothes."

She glanced at her dress, and said defensively: "This is the way everybody else dresses. Anyhow, I'm not cold."

Morton tilted back in his chair. "Do you ever read history?"

"No," she said. "Why?"

"It's a historical fact," he said, "that through the ages, whenever men are hard to get, women begin to take off clothes. There have been a lot of times when men courted women eagerly—and then women bundled themselves up; wore balloon-sleeves, and hoop-skirts, and wide ruffs. But it has always been a sure sign, when women began to strip themselves that the men were losing interest. Are men hard to catch?" His smile was quizzical.

The girl considered the question gravely. "You are," she said.

"How about the other men?" he inquired.

"I don't know," she began. Then she corrected herself. "Why, I suppose I do, too. All the girls are talking about 'catching' this man, or that man. Do you know that there isn't such a thing as a stage-door Johnny, any more? That is, except for a few young kids up from college, and a fat old man or two?"

"And do you girls really show so much of yourselves, in order to lure the men?"

She ran her forefinger around the service-plate that lay before her, and looked at him with the dawn of an idea in her eye.

"Do you know, I believe that pretty nearly every thought a woman has is in connection with a man," she exclaimed. "I never thought of it before, but I believe it's so."

She was starting a new and animated sentence, when her voice dropped abruptly, and her eyes hardened. She stared toward the entrance of the room. Morton turned. In the doorway stood a young woman, alone. She was strikingly attractive, though somewhat older than Nona, and shorter, and a little heavier. Her eyes, like Nona's, were large and dark, and they swept animatedly over the room. As they fell upon Morton, they lighted in recognition. She waved her hand, and hastened toward the man and girl.

"Hel-lo Harry! and Nona, dear! How lovely!" Her voice was low and throaty. Morton rose to his feet, took the soft evening cape the girl had carried, and draped it over the back of her chair. After she was seated, he sat down, and leaned forward, smiling.

"Are you girls going to quarrel this evening, or am I going to be disappointed?" he asked, mockingly.

Nona frowned. The other girl laughed. "I never quarrel," said she, "in the presence of gentlemen."

Nona favored her with a side-long glance. "You're always sweet, Lois—to gentlemen!" she said.

Lois settled herself comfortably. "Of course," she confirmed. "Aren't we all?" She considered a moment, and added: "But not to anybody else."

"I always love to see the ladies hostile," Morton said. "If they were any other way, I'd know there was something wrong."

The waiter was standing at his elbow, and conversation ceased while Morton ordered dinner for the three of them. Considerately, he avoided starches and sweets in his order for the girls, as being productive of fat. For himself, he selected only half of a broiled chicken, and a grapefruit.

"And bring three bottles of water," he added.

The girls accepted as a matter of course his offer of liquor from the silver flask he carried. He took none for himself.

"Don't you ever drink, any more?" Lois asked.

"Seldom," said he. "It's still too easy to get to arouse my interest."

The girls addressed their remarks to him, each carefully ignoring the other. His eyes twinkling, Morton led them into an indirect debate on dress, Lois freely admitting that she wore more clothes than fashion directed, and defying the world to criticize her.

Nona had not smiled since Lois' coming. Looking steadily at Morton she said: "Yes, it's a good rule, if you haven't anything worth showing, to cover it up."

"Time!" Morton said. "You girls stop fighting, and we'll eat."

Lois chattered gaily through the meal, but Nona's remarks were few and very brief. From time to time she looked darkly at the other girl, and watched Morton's face as he responded to Lois' badinage.

"Nona called me on the telephone, and said she had something to tell me," said Morton, as they ended the meal. "Do you mind telling what it was in front of Lois?"

Nona shook her head. "I don't want to talk in front of Lois, about anything, anytime."

Lois raised her eyebrows. "It will be perfectly all right with me, then, if you go home," she suggested.

Morton looked amusedly at Nona, awaiting her reply. Her face was white beneath its rouge. "Do you want me to go home?" she asked Morton, her voice very low.

Morton grinned teasingly. "No, indeed. I'm a fight fan, you know. You girls go ahead and amuse yourselves."

Nona started to her feet, shaking with anger. "I'm going!" she snapped.

Morton lazily arose also, and walked around the table. Putting his hand on her bare shoulder, he slowly forced her to her seat. "Fight fair," he advised, still smiling. "You mustn't hit the referee."

Nona remained in her chair, staring at her plate. Her hands twitched, and her cheeks and throat were flushed. Lois looked at her critically. "I'll bite and scratch as well as any other woman," she said, "but I'd hate to do it in front of a man." She drained a liquor glass that the waiter had placed before her, and nodded assent to Morton's invitation to have another.

"You know," Morton said, genially, "every time I go out with Nona lately, there is a battle. Sometimes it's with me, and sometimes it's with some woman, but she has surely declared war, for keeps."

He paid the waiter, as the three of them arose.

"Sure sign she's in love," Lois said.

Nona gave her a venomous glance, but was silent as they passed through the house, and down to the reception-room.

Morton's car was waiting, and the three of them entered it.

They drove to Lois' home first. When Morton helped her from the car, she stood on tiptoe and kissed him on the chin. He was rubbing the spot reflectively when he re-entered the car.

"I believe there is more kissing being done, here and there," he observed, "than there ever was in the world before."

Nona remained wordless. She crowded into her own corner of the thickly cushioned seat, her hands clasped together on her lap. Morton ventured a light remark or two, but she turned from him.

Accepting the situation philosophically, he lighted a cigaret, and gazed out the window at the brightly lighted theater district through which they passed.

At her apartment house, he walked with her to the door. With her face set, her lips compressed, and her eyes wide and blazing, she avoided his hand, and entered the door without saying good night. As she walked toward the elevator Morton could see that her hands were clenched, and her arms rigid.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 17—QUICK AND QUIET, SAYS SCOOTER LIZARD.

"We shall go to Scotty Lizard's house next," said Mister Tingaling, the fairy landlord, to the Twins.

"Where does he live?" asked Nick.

"Don't you know!" said Mister Tingaling in surprise. "He lives over in the meadow under a big gray stone."

"Then he won't have to pay you any rent, will he?" said Nancy. "If he just lives under a stone."

"Why, of course he will," said Mister Tingaling. "The stone is just his roof. When it's cold he wiggles down into the ground ever so far to keep warm. Besides it's a nice stone, I guess, so it is! And if he didn't live there, most likely someone else would. Besides—I Oh! But here we are now, children. Right at Scooty's front door."

"His front door!" cried Nick. "Why it isn't big enough for a fly to crawl into. The big stone is lying flat on the ground."

Mister Tingaling scratched his head.

"That's so!" he nodded. "It does look pretty flat! And as I'm pretty round for a fairy, I don't believe I could get in. I'll just rap and have Scooty come out here."

So he went tap, tap tap! with his knuckles on the big stone and before a frog could catch a fly, there was Scooty Lizard looking at them with his tiny black beady eyes.

"Hellow there, old fellow!" said Mister Tingaling in surprise. "You don't make any more noise when you walk than a bunny that comes out of a silk hat in a trick show. You must wear rubber shoes!"

Scooty smiled and blinked his black beady eyes. "I guess I'm getting pretty good," he said. "That's what Ma always tried to teach me. She said to be quick and quiet. All lizards learn that lesson first. But what can I do for you, Mister Fairyman?"

"Why, you see," said Mister Tingaling, looking at Nick and Nancy, "it's the thirty-second day of the month, and it's rent day."

Nancy opened the big pocketbook and held it out. "Yes, we came for your rent," she said. "Put it in here and I'll give you a receipt for it."

But suddenly Nick cried out, "Why, he's gone! You're just talking to the air, Nancy."

"So he has! Where do you s'pose he went to?" said Mister Tingaling in a worried voice.

But they did not have to guess very long, for they heard Scooter say, "Aha! I'm getting pretty good, I think! How was that for 'quick and quiet'? You never saw me go even."

"Where are you?" said Mister Tingaling sharply. "Come here this minute, Mister Lizard, and pay me your rent. It's ten cents in fairy money."

"Catch me if you can," called Scooty. "I'll bet you, do don't even know which stone I am under now."

Mister Tingaling and the Twins looked hard. There were five stones all alike. "We'll find you!" shouted the fairyman. "We'll turn every stone over until we find you."

But although they turned every stone over, there was no lizard to be found, and they had to leave without the rent money.

"How's that for 'quick and quiet'?" called Scooty after them.

They turned and looked and there he sat on the very stone where they has first seen him.

But they didn't go back. What was the use.

No! I don't know where he was either. He's too quick for me, too.

"POSITIVE AGITATION"

The New "Hoover" Suction Sweeper

"POSITIVE AGITATION" as accomplished in the new Hoover is beating — the time-tested requirement of thorough rug-cleaning — reduced to an exact scientific process. Such beating, instead of being concentrated in a few violent strokes as with the carpet-beater or broom, is modified by The Hoover into a series of swiftly repeated, air-cushioned taps. This is achieved by means of a totally new appliance — the exclusive and patented Hoover Agitator illustrated here. Suction lifts the rug from the floor and floats it on a cushion of air while the Agitator gently flutters out all the embedded grit as the strong suction draws all the dirt into the dust-tight bag.

Come and see it.

VILLAGE WIPED OUT BY VOLCANO

All Houses Engulfed Under 50 Feet of Molten Rock.

HAWAII ISLAND.

KONA, Territory of Hawaii, Apr. 19 (Canadian Press).—The village of Hoopuloa, on the south-west shore of the Island of Hawaii, was completely wiped out Sunday morning by an avalanche of lava that burst forth from the volcano, Mauna Loa. Ten to fifteen homes were engulfed but there is no report as to what became of the inhabitants.

A flood of molten rock pouring out of the crater struck the sea at 6.21 a.m., starting the ocean boiling several hundred feet out at sea.

Plunging into the water just south of Hoopuloa, the lava turned in the direction of Kona, filling the bay and completely burying the landing and from ten to fifteen homes located in the vicinity.

All houses and the wharf at Hoopuloa were engulfed under fifty feet of lava, the post office being the last building to go. It burst into flames at 8.30 p.m.

Breakfast—Grape fruit sections, boiled bacon, poached eggs with spinach on toast, rolled oats muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Mock oyster cream soup, croutons, date graham bread and butter sandwiches, sliced oranges, milk, tea.

Dinner—Tomato bouillion, mock sausages, potatoes au gratin, buttered cauliflower, jellied fruit salad, rye bread, milk, coffee.

The date bread and butter sandwhiches are served with the oranges suggested in the luncheon menu. The term "sliced" oranges is rather misleading since oranges properly prepared in this manner are not really sliced at all. The fruit is carefully peeled and then each section is freed from skin. These smooth sections of orange are the "slices."

Mock Oyster Cream Soup.

One bunch salsify, 1 cup chicken or veal stock, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-4 teaspoon celery seed, 1 egg, 1 cup thin cream.

Wash and scrape salsify and slice into acidulated water. Drain and put into sauce pan with 2 cups cold water. Bring to the boiling point and simmer until vegetable is soft. Rub through a colander and return to sauce pan with stock. Rub butter and flour together until perfectly smooth. Work in salt, pepper and celery seed. Add to soup and stir until mixture boils. When ready to serve and cream and egg beaten together. Stir over the fire until very hot but do not let boil. Serve at once.

DO THIS AFTER SEVERE ILLNESS

How To Speedily Gain Strength and Put on Needed Weight.

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines extracted from the livers of the common codfish to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

So nowadays, medical men who keep up with times are ordering a tablet containing the vitamines that give to frail folks vigor, strength and weight—a tablet that is known as McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablet — and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped of their natural strength after any severe illness.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy solid flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on five pounds in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist will return your money if you don't take on 5 pounds in 30 days.

Great for weak, skinny, backward, run-down children, too, and gives them a hearty appetite.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Extract Tablet. Warne Drug Co., McDermid and Jury, and Bond's Drug Store have a big demand for them and millions are sold monthly all over North and South America. They are sugar coated and as easy to take as candy. 60 Tablets—60 cents.

Important Is The Plaited Frock

"The importance of being in earnest"—at least about plaits—is emphasized in this one-piece frock of navy flat crêpe. It is a youthful frock which correctly and distinctively fits many occasions. The long sleeves and narrow string belt tied to create fulness above the hips, indicate its last-minuteness. There are groups of side plaits extending from the shoulders to hem in front, and one inverted plait in the center back. The collar is versatile and may be worn high or low. No. 1304 is for misses and small women, and is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years (or 34, 36 and 38 inches bust only). Size 18 years (36 bust) requires 3¾ yards 39-inch material. Price 20 cents.

The secret of distinctive dress lies in good taste rather than a lavish expenditure of money. Every woman should want to make her own clothes, and the home dressmaker will find the designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book to be practical and simple, yet maintaining the spirit of the mode of the moment. Sailor Collar, Saddle Shoulder and Plaits Are New

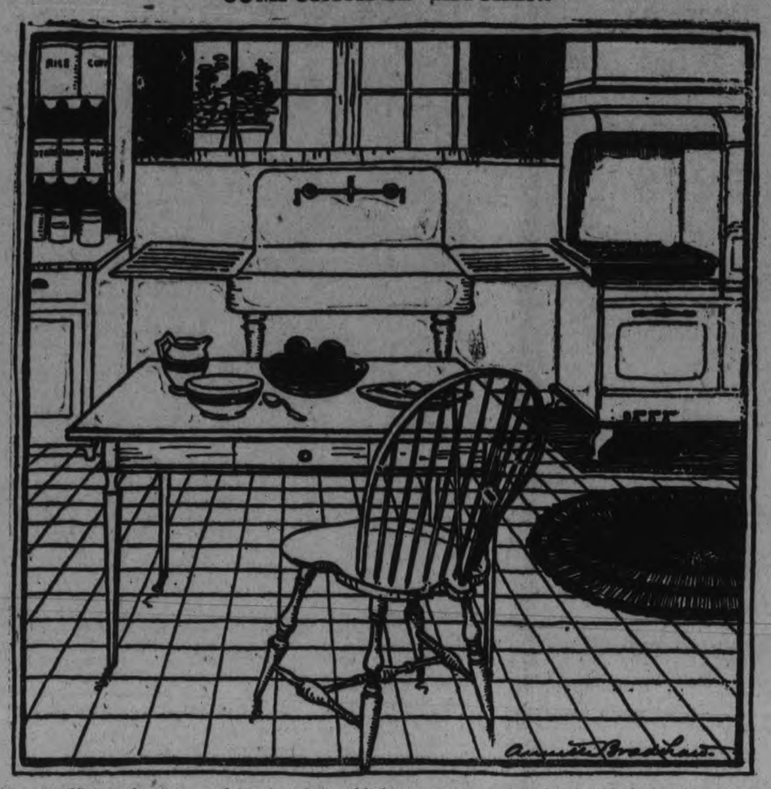
If hats and skirts keep on getting shorter, and styles continue to grow more youthful with every passing season, we may expect to find ourselves in rompers and layettes. The sailor collar and the box-plaited skirt, so brief that it looks almost like a kilt, are the latest rejuvenating fashions. One of the best-known French dressmakers uses shantung for the skirt and light-weight wool jersey for the blouse. The new shantungs come in lovely soft colors and are also smart in their natural honey shade. For the country, the sleeves may be short or long. For the city the long sleeve is correct.

COMFORTABLE KITCHEN.



With an efficient kitchen, such as the one shown above, the preparation of meals becomes a pleasure. The keynote of the pretty white and yellow kitchen is convenience, and the convenience centres around the big, white sink that stands just between the stove on one side and the cabinet on the other. There are enamel drain boards on either side of the sink—easy to keep clean. The window, admitting the sunlight so necessary to keeping a kitchen sweet and healthful, may be artistically curtained and further adorned by flowers. This makes that particular spot a most attractive one. Yellow curtains, with a touch of black, may appeal to a woman's artistic taste.

The tiled floor, the enameled top table, and even the plain painted chair breathe cleanliness and cheerfulness. Not the least of the room's charms is the hand-woven rug on the floor.

In the kitchen cabinet there is a place for everything that any cook needs, and she has to move but few steps in preparing any dish. The stove is equipped with a scientific vent, so that all odors of food may be carried away instead of being spread throughout the home. Plenty of drawers, plenty of pretty utensils and plenty of hot water, combined with the other advantages, make of this small room a veritable dream kitchen.

The arrival of Charlie Chaplin's second boy reminds us that no picture has ever been seen of Charlie's first boy, now more than a year old. Charlie Chaplin is only one of the many famous parents who insist that their children remain out of the limelight, and refuse permission to photograph them. Gloria Swanson is another. So zealously does she shield her child from the public that few are aware of its existence.

Comes yet another college beauty to declare that iniquitous powder, paint and lipstick have ne'er touched her physiognomy. We'd like to take a dozen or so of these beauty winners to a creek and scrub 'em and see for ourself, quite atune with the well-known truism that "seein's believin'."

JUST A QUOTE!

"I wonder why veteran educators like Dr. Charles W. Eliot feel it necessary to urge college women toward matrimony. From my experience with them, I should say that never was such advice less necessary. The desire to marry and the fear lest one fail to do so is in my opinion the principal reason why petting is so prevalent and so unashamed on the campus today."—Wembridge.

THE PRETTY HOME!

A few days ago I took my pen in hand to write of the beauty of theatrical gauze for window curtains. Comes this bomerang "Theatrical gauze is not one bit prettier than plain mosquito netting dyed with one of the dye soaps. You should see my 'arty' living room curtains of soft green with a scalloped border of black, all made in my little dishpan with dye and six yards skeeter netting."

BRIDGE PARTY

We've been hearing a lot of chatter about perfumes to match dress colors, moods and personalities. Now it seems we must have foods match the season. At least I have a note wherein "Bride" yearns for knowledge as to a bridge party food that will "match the spring." My offering would be mint jelly. Brewed and concocted thus: Two tablespoons granulated gelatine, 2 1-2 cups boiling water, 1-2 cup cold water, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup lemon juice, 1 bunch fresh mint, mint flavoring. Chop and cook the mint in boiling water 20 minutes. Add sugar and gelatine dissolved in cold water. Cook and add lemon juice. Strain and let harden in molds. Serve with whipped cream.

THE BOOK

All women are bad, unfaithful cheats and liars. So Tom Strayton taught his son, Torquay, because Torquay's mother had run away. He drove the lesson home by flinging a handful of apples against the fences until they smashed to show their rotten cores. The first words baby Torquay ever said to a woman were "go to Hell." In "Man Alone," by George Chamberlain.

THE MODE

Hose in chiffon, lace, and silk are fairly encrusted with embroidery this year. Not one but six "clocks" may surround it. Just why "clocks" are on stockings at all is interesting. In Queen Elizabeth's time and up until 1675, stockings were made from pieces of cloth and "the clock" hid the side seams.

HER OWN WAY

by A GIRL of TODAY

HOW IT HAPPENED.

"I noticed, Mamie, that while I was telling about losing my bag, Mr. Hathaway kept getting more and more angry. At last he interrupted me with:

"The fools! I think I'll go down there and punch their heads.

"'I think you and I, Jim, could clean out the place and if anything like this happens again we will have to do it. The idea of suggesting such a thing to a girl like Miss Dean!

"'Your money was stolen and I wouldn't put it past some one of that rotten crowd that was accusing you of all kinds of pan-handling games to have done it himself.

"'One thing that is certain. The Beaux Arts restaurant will have to pay you that money back and it can get the money away from that bandit crew if it wants to.

"'Have you an idea, Jim, that any question would have been made about it if Miss Dean had not been found alone and friendless in this city?'

"'Not the slightest, Jerry.'

"'Well, you just watch me put the fear of God into them.'

"I confess, Mamie, I did not see just how that determined young man was going to bring all his plans to pass and when he left me I told Jim as much. Then I learned he was the son of Hathaway who owns the restaurant.

"'You are in luck, Judy,' said Jim, and Mamie perhaps this is the beginning of something fine for both of us.

"I know one thing. If I do get the money and a job both at once, we'll look up the best voice teacher in town and ask him how long two hundred and fifty will last."

Mamie turned toward me with a little happy gurgle.

"Do you know, Judy," she said. "It's all the bunk about girls not helping each other. They are much better to other girls than men are to each other."

With this she flopped back on her pillow and prepared for sleep.

I was just dozing off when she awakened me with a little shake.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

GREENSTAIN.

You are anxious that your child should have nice white teeth and you are endeavouring to get him to form the habit of daily care with perhaps good success.

But you notice a dark greenish stain on his teeth right next to the gum, and which persists in spite of careful brushing.

So you wonder what it is and how it may be removed.

This, then "is greenstain," and is commonly found on both the temporary and permanent teeth of children, being generally confined to the anterior upper teeth well up towards the gum.

The greenish color is due to bacteria present which find lodgement in these areas afforded by the remnant of a dead cuticle which often persists after the eruption of the tooth.

Where "greenstain" is permitted to remain for a considerable time upon these surfaces, the enamel will be found to be 'etched' or roughened by dissolution, due to an acid which these bacteria produce. Unfortunately, this injury to the tooth substance is permanent.

Now, you can readily understand that these roughened areas will hold food particles and epithetial matter such as are found in a mouth where brushing is neglected—and with resultant decay.

The removal of greenstain had better be left to your dentist, who, by employing some abradant such as pumice, would be able also to smooth and polish these areas and thus check further deposits of this nature.

So, not only, as you see, should greenstain be removed for appearance sake, but also as a prophylactic measure in the prevention of decay.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

THAT the soundness of any city depends upon its assets.

THAT a loyal citizenship is the greatest asset any city can have.

THAT it takes co-operation and good management to give a city its rightful place in the sun.

THAT when a city has safe, sane and vigorous co-operation it grows into a bigger, better city.

THAT faith and efficiency increases development. Your city merits the good-will, hearty co-operation and support of every citizen. It is worthy of their every effort.

THAT pessimism, misunderstanding and distrust are what hold some cities back.

THAT optimism will replace misunderstanding with confidence and faith.

THAT an optimistic mind cannot live in a head that is constantly calculating profits on some commercial transaction and never giving a thought to the home city.

Your city is on the threshold of greater development. Never forget the fact that "The early bird catches the worm."

Prosperity has returned and the period of depression is over. Signs of improvement in business are so clear that they cannot be mistaken.

Now is the time to get busy and boost your business, your neighbor and your city.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am writing to you for just a little advice. I am a girl of fifteen, and am going with a young man. Although he is a perfect gentleman, so to speak, I have a certain respect for him but my mother seems to have more than respect.

When this young man comes to call, which is generally every night of the week and Saturday afternoon and Sunday. My mother certainly goes to extremes over him; she has given my brothers and sisters to understand that they are to leave the room and leave us alone as she believes in giving young people a chance with their own love affairs. I can't help but think that my mother is holding me very cheap and would like your advice on this matter. If in helping me you may help others in the same embarrassing position, I will be watching patiently for your answer.

—One Who Cares.

One Who Cares: Your problem is rather a peculiar one. Most young people suffer from a contrary attitude on the part of parents. Possibly your mother realizes that you would be happier to marry young, rather than face the world for years to come. But fifteen seems rather previous, even at that. However, as it is you that the young man comes to see, it is up to you to let him know if you think his visits too frequent. As for your mother's habit of trying to advance your love affairs, why not speak to her and let her know that she is making her wishes too apparent?

KIWANIANS BUILD NEWS STAND FOR WELL KNOWN BASKET MAKER

J. R. Brownlee, "the Blind Man," Assisted By Local Club.

"WE BUILD."

Members Give Their Spare Time To Task on Saturday Afternoon.

"A jolly good bunch of builders we,
A merrier lot you never see;
To work and to play and boost affairs,
Boost to the sky and no one cares.

For we are only helping along the way,
Making it just a little easier ev'ry day,
To scatter sunshine while we are making hay,
And boost, boost, boost, every builder."

—Kiwanis Song.

Peterborough Kiwanis Club on Saturday lived up to the high standards of the organization when its members erected a news stand and workshop for J. R. Brownlee, the blind basketmaker. The framework was completed on Saturday, and only the tin sheeting required by the fire by-law remained to be done.

It was indeed a jolly bunch of builders that reported for work. Herb. McCannan arrived in company with a huge cross-cut saw, evidently under the impression that the lot had to be cleared of standing timber. John Craig appeared in very becoming khaki overalls. Art Blade was here, there and everywhere about the job, and Harry Huffman had his work cut out to restrain over-zealous Kiwanians, who would have nailed up any hole they saw.

A diversion was created by Herb. McCannan, who treated the working men to four gallons of buttermilk, served wherever they were working, from sills to ridge. Jack Mc Kone holds the record, drinking nine glasses. Charlie Cook could not be separated from the inside of the building, even when an attractive-looking young lady called her companion's admiring attention to "C. D. Cook." Hugh Niven did good work sheeting up the inside of the box. Art Moffatt showed that he is well insured by performing daredevil exploits on the roof. Frank White, too, took the sporting chances, and he and Carl Brown were rescued when Charlie Elliott braced their scaffold just as it was tottering for a fall.

In all the day's activities, J. Wells Fraser was the only casualty, and a fine awaits Ed. Wood on Friday for not being on hand with first aid equipment. "Wells" left the scene of operations with a thumb dripping gore, the result of a saw slipping.

Others Help.

The building, provided by Kiwanis Club and erected by the members, is on land loaned by the Imperial Oil Company at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte Streets. The locks were donated by the Peterborough Lock Company.

The shingles, multiblend asphalt slate brand, manufactured by Bird and Sons, were put on free by F. H. Rowan.

J. R. Brownlee, who will sell newspapers and magazines in the building, stood smilingly by during the work. A friend told him of the progress being made, assuring him there would be lots of room. "There are seven of them working inside now," he said, "so there should be room enough for you."

Not Carpenters.

It was suggested by a passer-by that the Club sent its members who are carpenters to do the work. While there are members who know something about carpentry, there is no classification of that title filled. The Examiner found the names and occupations of the men using hammers and saws on the actual building operations to be: President John J. Craig, dentist; John A. McKone, Principal Peterborough Business College; Hugh Niven, manager, Peterborough Paper Box Co.; Art Blade, district agent, Imperial Oil Co.; Harry Huffman, contractor; Art Moffatt, agent, Prudential Life Insurance Co.; Frank White, cycles and sports outfitter; Herb. J. McCannan, real estate dealer; Carl Browne, school teacher; Charles Elliott, automobile dealer; Harry Dickin, managing director, English Clothiers, Ltd.; Charles D. Cook, advertising manager, De Laval Co.; John R. Heron, city editor, The Examiner; J. Wells Fraser, manager, Bank of Nova Scotia; and Bill Welbourn, wire chief, Bell Telephone Co.

Among the Kiwanians who gave moral support by their presence were Carl Webber and Jack Marshall.

WEST IS SOUND SAYS SPEAKER TO ROTARIANS

Mr. A. J. Reynolds Gives Interesting Address To Local Club.

WILL BE PUBLISHED.

Rev. Father O'Leary, of North Bay, a Visitor To-day.

"In spite of the talk of the Radicals, the West is thoroughly sound socially," declared Mr. A. J. Reynolds, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Commerce in a most interesting address to the Peterboro Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon at the Empress today. Mr. Reynolds spoke on "Impressions of Western Canada," and his remarks were followed with close interest by the members of the club.

Rotarian A. L. Killaly presided at today's meeting, which was well attended, among the guests being Rotarian Rev. Father O'Leary of North Bay, who brought the greetings of the North Bay Club to the local organization.

Three cute little tots—Bertha Belleghem, Evelyn Hill, and Ruth McNeeley—appeared as advertising heralds for the Y.W.C.A. Pageant, and the charming little drill they put on was very successful propaganda for the big event. The little ladies were warmly applauded by the Rotarians.

Mr. Reyonlds, who was introduced by Rotarian John Crane, covered Western history and conditions in most interesting fashion, and his address was so full of information that The Examiner has made arrangements to publish it in full later on in the week.

The speaker received a hearty vote of thanks for his splendid effort.

TORONTO, April 19.— (Canadian Press.)— The Durant Motor Car Company of Canada will reopen its Toronto plant to-morrow for the purpose of liquidation of stock. The Dodge Motor Car Company of Canada remained closed to-day.

At the Willys Overland plant, the manufacture of Willys cars was today discontinued, this making necessary a reduction of about 100 in the number of workmen employed.

The services in connection with this devotion will continue until Tuesday evening, with special evening devotions, and morning Masses at half past five, seven and eight o'clock.

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN.

(Contributed.)

The large audience which usually attends St. Paul's church on the Sabbath evening was again in evidence last night, when Rev. William Allan, pastor, had as his theme, 'The Next Great Event in the World's History"—the prophecies already come to pass and many others which are mentioned is the Bible, and which he said will in Gods good time, be accomplished.

Proceeding, Mr. Allan remarked that men have always wanted to pry into the future, to see what is in store for us all. That is one reason why fortune tellers and fakirs get so much business. Any man or woman who claims to speak with authority on the future will always command attention! Apart from God's Word all is guesswork. When we see how certain great predictions have been fulfilled in the past we ought to regard with reverence and interest what it has to say regarding the future.

Among the predictions which were fulfilled mention might be made of the Fall, (Gen. 2 and 3). The Flood (Gen. 6 and 7), The First Advent, (Isa. 7, 14; Micah 5, 2), Our Lord being born of a Virgin, and in Bethlehem; this was prophesied many years before fulfillment. Then there was Christ's crucifixion (Psalms and Isa. 53); His Resurrection; (Destroy this temple and build it again in three days): Pentecost; the destruction of Jerusalem, when the Romans laid siege and caused its fall; and the dispersion of the Jews (and we all know how true this latter prophecy is; the Jews are scattered over the world, without land or king, just existing until the time comes when they shall recognize the Christ risen as their Lord and King, and return to the land promised by God, to Abraham and his seed for ever.

These were incidents foretold centuries before their happeing, and many others are due to be fulfilled in the days to come. And I believe God's word sufficiently to know that these prophecies will come true in His good time.

For 2000 years events have been moving on, and some people have the idea that God is working to convert the world by preaching the Gospel! Ask for Scriptural proof and there is none. God creates new hearts within us, and gives us right spirits. Let us suggest that the world is getting worse, and we are called pessimists! To Christ was put the question: "Are there many that be saved?" His answer was: "Broad is the road and wide the gate that leadeth to destruction, and many there be that go therein. But narrow is the path and straight is the gate that leadeth to eternal life, and few there be that enter therein." The days of Noah were haunted by sin. He was not morally clean, but the race had to be saved, and his seed was used to this end. Lot was even more morally wrong—there was corruption and rottenness everywhere. The words of the Apostle Paul as set forth in 2 Tim. 3, 1-7 and 1 Tim 4, 1-2, the former telling how the bishops, deacons and their wives should be qualified for office, with honor to God and themselves; the fourth chapter foretelling how in the latter days there shall be a departure from the faith. It is impossible, said Mr. Allan to reconcile these with the belief that the Gospel was given to convert the world. And it is not because God wants it to be so it is because of human nature and the workings of sin! God's purpose is one of selection now going on. He has said, "I go away to prepare a place for you, and if I go away I will also come back." Quoting passages in Acts 1, 10-11, 1 Cor. 15, 51-52 and 1 Thess. 4, 13-18, Mr. Allan showed promises and prophecies foretold by Paul where we are told we shall not all sleep, but the dead in Christ shall rise first, and we who are alive and remain shall be transfigured. What a blessed hope and glorious appearing when we shall meet Him in the skies. The late Queen Victoria on hearing during a sermon by her chaplain that Christ would come into this world again, said she hoped He would come during her reign — she would lay her crown at His feet.

The concluding sentences of Mr. Allass stirring and appealing sermon was that we all might be ready at His coming, and lay ourselves at His feet to do His will.

Music of an appropriate character was furnished by the choir under Mr. M. B. Chenhall, and was enjoyed.

Toronto Market Weak In Spite of Late Rallies

TORONTO, April 19 (Canadian Press).—Despite rallies shown during the late part of the morning session, the market on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning was weak. Smelters and Brazilian absorbed the bulk of the trading. Brazilian touched a low mark of 86, but recovered to 87 1-4 at noon, a loss of a quarter point. Smelters touched a low of 191 but sold up again to 196 1-2, a gain over last week of a point and three-eighths. Winnipeg last 5-8 at 46 5-8, British Columbia Fishing 1 1-2 at 62 1-4, and Steel of Canada 1 at 98 1-2. Noranda was the feature of the mines, advancing 76 cents at 15-76.

Tough Oakes Most Active Market Dull On Standard

TORONTO, April 19 (Canadian Press).—Strength and activity of Tough Oakes was one of the features of this morning's session on the Standard Mining Exchange, when the stock touched a high of 45 and closed at noon at 43, a gain of 7 points. Noranda was another strong spot in a generally dull and soft market, advancing 65 cents at 15.75. Argonaut gained 2 at 29, and Barry Hollinger lost 2 at 37, Hollinger 15 at 18.05, and Kirkland Lake 4 at 120. McIntyre eased 5 at at 24.80.

New York Market Shows Tendency To Move Upward

NEW YORK, April 19 (Canadian Press).—Constructive operations became more pronounced in today's market, which showed a tendency to break out of the narrow trading area in which it has been fluctuating for the past three weeks on the upside. Bullish enthusiasm was created by the first definite check to the declining trend of commodity prices shown in the Irving Fisher index and by the lowering of call money rates to four per cent after renewing at 4 1-4. An attempt by bear traders to force the renewal of liquidation in motor shares on publication of a report that the Hundson Company had temporarily curtailed production met with little success.

PRINCESS OF CHURCH TO ATTEND CONGRESS

Papal Secretary and Ten Cardinals Will Participate in Great Gathering.

For the first time in history the International Eucharistic Congress will be held in the United States. In 1910 the Congress was held in Montreal but with this one exception all former congresses have been held in the capitals of Europe. Chicago will be the scene of this vast cosmopolitan assemblage, June 20 to 24, and the proximity of Toronto, and through Toronto practically the whole of Ontario, to this city will enable many thousands of Canadians to participate in the inspiring ceremonies and witness what will be the greatest religious demonstration in the history of the continent.

Organizations of the prospective visitors to the Congress from the district of Ontario is in the hands of the officers of the Holy Name Society. Joseph Smith, secretary of the Archdiocesan Holy Name Union has already circularized the societies of the diocese inviting them to attend the Congress and arranged with the Canadian Pacific Railway for special train accommodation. Special trains originating in Toronto will leave on the night of June 19, arriving in Chicago in time for the opening. Through the same agency arangements have also been made for suitable accommodation for the Ontario visitors in Chicago, and Mr. Smith anticipates that being assured of ample train and hotel accommodation, the Ontario party will number many hundreds.

Featuring the opening of Congress will be the reception of Cardinal Gasparri, secretary of State for the Vatican, who will attend, with ten cardinals, and a retinue of the most important ecclesiastics of the Church, as the official Delegate of His Holiness Pope Pius XI. Cardinal Gasparri will carry the message of His Holiness. Special services will be held this day in all the churches of the city with a million confessions and communions as a spiritual bouquet to His Holiness the Pope. General and sectional meetings will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and will be addressed by prominent church men and laymen from foreign capitals. In the case of the sectional meetings the audiences will be addressed in their native tongues. Fifty thousand school children will sing the Mass of the Angels at the general meeting on Monday.

The Twenty-eighth International Eucharistic Congress will be brought to an end by a Eucharistic Procession at Mundelein, twenty-six miles from Chicago.

Strong Advance In Wheat Heavy Buying At Winnipeg

CHICAGO, Ajril 19 (Canadian Press).—Wheat scored a sharp advance early today, prices wavering at the start. The advance resulted from reports of big European buying at Winnipeg, both for immediate shipment as well as for future delivery.

The opening, 1-4 off to 1-2 up, May (new) 1.67 7-8 to 1.68 1-4, and July 1.44 7-8 to 1.44 7-8, was followed by a further setback in some cases and then by a general rise that carried May to 1.70 1-2 and July to 1.46 1-4.

Better weather tended to ease corn and oats. After opening 1-8 to 3-8 up, May 74 7-8, corn receded to below Saturday's finish.

Oats started a shade to 1-2 higher, May 42 3-4 to 43. Later the gains were wiped out.

Provisions developed firmness, folowing lower quotations on hogs.

FRANC AGAIN A STEP LOWER

At Opening of Bourse This Morning 1$ Brought 30 Francs.

SLIGHT RISE.

PARIS, April 19. (United Press.)—The franc momentarily established a new low record to-day when the Bourse opened but recovered somewhat due to the slight improvement in the general situation over the week end.

To-day was the fourth consecutive business day on which the franc set a depreciation record. For a time 81 would buy 30 francs, compared to Saturday's close of 29.75. Later the franc rose to-day to 29.60, a slight increase from Saturday's low.

Fears of an approaching politico-financial crisis held over the week end in somewhat decreased intensity causing the Bourse to open with most brokers nervously ready for almost anything. Failure of the peace negotiations in Morocco to progress as had been expected, contributed to the pessimism.

SECOND NEW YORK HOCKEY CLUB ADMITTED BY N.H.L. AND EIGHT OTHER FRANCHISES APPLIED FOR Five Applications From Detroit Syndicates and Three From Chicago.

MEET IN MONTREAL.

Committee Appointed To Report on the Bids Received Saturday.

MONTREAL, April 19 (Canadian Press).—Admission of a second New York team to the League; a percentage of gate receipts for visiting clubs in scheduled games, and consideration of eight different applications for franchises from New York and Detroit syndicates, all of which were tabled for further information, comprised the business transacted at the semi-annual meeting of the National Hockey League here Saturday.

Colonel J. S. Hammond and Tex Rickard head the New York team, to be known as the Rangers, which was granted a berth in the major hockey loop, though official confirmation of the award of the franchise cannot come before the annual meeting in the fall.

Of the five applications from Detroit and three from Chicago, the League officers heard the plans of the different syndicates as outlined by their representatives and then formed a committee consisting of President Frank Calder, James F. Strachan, of the Montreal Maroons, and Leo Dandurand, of the Canadiens, Montreal, who have been delegated to visit the different localities and study conditions there. The three will leave probably Tuesday and will have a report available for the meeting which will be resumed here one week from Saturday.

There is a possibility of some of the groups bidding for berths combining their efforts. Two of the three Chicago interests are stated to be ready to centralize their application as are two of the Detroit syndicates.

The Detroit Bids.

B. C. Whitney, of Detroit, it is stated, is ready to align with B. H. McCreath and Percy Hambly, the latter formerly with the Toronto St. Patricks, who are also bidding strongly for a Detroit franchise. They are backed by prominent financial interests in the automobile city, and are ready to proceed with extensive artificial ice rink plans. Other Detroit representatives who filed applications were P. R. Bierer, W. J. Miller and Percy Lesueur, the latter a former Ottawa goalkeeper, and at present operating an artificial rink in Windsor. It is believed that Lesueur, if successful in his bid for a franchise for Detroit, would operate for a year or so in Windsor, though no official confirmation of this fact could be obtained.

Included in the Chicago party were Mr. Gary, New York lawyer, who represented a Chicago syndicate in which Tex Rickard is interested; "Tack" Hardwick, ex-Harvard football star, and Paddy Harmon, well-known Chicago sportsman. Rickard's interest in the Chicago end is purely in the matter of an arena, and it is likely that his bid for a franchise will be coupled with that of another syndicate from Chicago, the Rickard interests building the rink and the other group operating the club.

Aid For Visitors.

Clubs operating in small rinks will benefit by the adoption of the proposal to give visiting teams five per cent. of 75 per cent. of the gross receipts at League games. The amount is designed to more or less cover the expenses for travel, but it will also be of assistance to those clubs which have a great drawing power on the road.

The Canadiens, of this city, are a group which will probably benefit most under the new arrangement. In the past Canadiens have played to small crowds with some of the teams here, but in return games have packed the foreign rinks.

Meeting Private.

The meeting Saturday was conducted behind closed doors. There was considerable discussion through out the day in the crowded lobby adjoining the conference room, and the main interest centred chiefly around the possible chances of Chicago and Detroit to land berths for next season. An unofficial canvass showed opinion among the delegates about evenly divided, though the alignment may be considerably changed following the submission of the report of the committee named to investigate conditions in the two cities. Cleveland and Jersey City also had tentative applications by letter before the meeting Saturday, and the committee will look into their propositions while across the border.

No Deals Effected.

Outside the conference chamber was a rare assembly of hockey moguls, including Frank Patrick of Vancouver, Newsy Lalonde of Saskatoon, and Kenny Mackenzie of Edmonton, Western Hockey League team owners, who were holding a watching brief and taking a close interest in developments.

Trade talk was in the air, but the only two possibilities which crept to the open was New York's desire to land Howie Morenz from Canadiens—a questionable sale; and a bid by a National Hockey League club for Bill Cook, of Lalonde's Saskatoon team of the Western League.

RICKARD PLANS CHICAGO ARENA

Will Seat More Than 20,000 —Like New York Garden.

DEAL FOR SITE.

CHICAGO, April 19 (Canadian Press).—A huge sports arena, seating from 20,000 to 22,000 persons, and costing from $5,000,000 to $13,000,000, depending upon the style of structure to be erected, will be built in Chicago by Tex Rickard, the New York boxing promoter, has announced. It will be called Madison Square Garden, and will be similar to Rickard's arena in New York City.

Rickard said the deal for the site, which will be in the downtown 'loop' district, would be closed within ten days and that work on the structure would begin within two weeks.

In addition to boxing, the building will be used for hockey, six-day bicycle races, conventions, circuses and other affairs.

AUSTRALIAN TEAM REACHES LONDON

Cricketers Will Tour England During the Summer.

LONDON, April 19 (Canadian Perss Cable)—The sixteen Australian cricketers who make up the team which is to tour England this summer and engage in a number of test matches arrived at Victoria station last evening from Dover and were greeted by thousands of cricket enthusiasts who crowded the precincts of the station platforms. Special barriers were erected and a large force of police were required to restrain the crowds who overwhelmed the visitors with deafening cheers. School boys managed to secure front places along the barriers and climbed to various other vantage points. Sir Joseph Cook, Australian high commissioner in London, and many prominent English cricketers welcomed the visitors.

The Australians all agreed that a warmer greeting could not have been given if the crowd had been welcoming home an English team. The unexpected exuberance of the crowd plainly embarrassed the visitors. A. A. Bailey made the first dash from the saloon and cleared the way for his colleagues who followed. A. J. Richardon, conspicuous with his spectacles, towering above the rest. All the team were in good condition and the best spirits. A few minutes were spent in hearty handshaking, members of the team finding many old friends in the crowd, and then the party proceeded to the Hotel Cecil were H. L. Collins said that they were really overcome with the welcome at Victoria. He had never seen anything like it before. Some of the players were unable to speak so touched were they.

Sidney Cook, who was a member of the Australian team which toured England in 1921, said that he hoped he had brought his 1921 weather with him. He considered that the test matches should be played to a finish, as when men came 15,000 miles to play cricket there should be some finality to it.

SOCCER CROWN WON BY SCOTS

Jackson Scored Only Goal in International Match With England.

CROWD OF 48,000.

MANCHESTER, England, April 19 (Canadian Press Cable). — The International soccer season was rounded off Saturday when Scotland administered a one goal to nil defeat on England at Old Trafford Park here before 48,000 spectators. This was the last of the 1925-1926 intercountry engagements.

Scotland's score came in the first half, being registered by Jackson, Huddersfield Town's outside right, who was obtained from Aberdeen, of the Scottish League, at the commencement of the season. The game was played on a slippery pitch which tended to militate against good football. Despite this handicap, however, play was keen and fast, with the Scottish forwards, led by Gallacher, of Newcastle United, and formerly of the Airdrieonians, making ceaseless inroads on England's defence. Troup of Everton, playing outside left for the victors, was prominent at all times and received good support from Cunningham of the Rangers.

The visitors' intermediate line, Gibson, Summers and McMullen, were effective in squashing the English attacks and served their forwards well, while Hutton and McStay were safe at back. Harper, in goal, was not severely tested.

For England, Puddfoot of Blackburn played well up to Harper, his team-mate at centre forward, and at times the ex-Falkirk player gave the Scotsmen considerable to worry about. The English quintette appeared at times to lack the combination of their opponents, particularly when Harper failed to come up to get centres from both York of Aston Villa and Ruffell of West Ham.

Green, Edwards and Hill were given a great deal of work which they handled well, while at back both Goodall and Mort played a stout defensive game. Taylor was busy in goal, but handled his part satisfactorily.

The game gave Scotland football honors in both soccer and Rugby, the Caledonians having defeated England in the latter code at Twickenham two weeks ago.

FINAL CUP TIE.

Will Be Played at Wembley Next Saturday.

LONDON, April 19 (Canadian Press). — Two Lancashire soccer clubs will contest the final tie of the Association challenge cup, the blue ribbon of English soccer, at the Wembley Stadium April 24. They are Manchester City and Bolton Wanderers, two of the oldest clubs in the country. It was expected that for the second successive year Wales would have a representative in the final in Swansea Town, but they cut up rather badly before the Bolton Wanderers in one of the semi-final rounds and lost by three goals to nothing.

This is the second time the Wanderers and the city teams have reached the final, the previous occasion being twenty-two years ago, when Manchester won by one goal to nothing. The Bolton Wanderers have reached the final on four occasions, and they were the first winners of the trophy in Wembley in 1923, when the gates were rushed, and a quarter of a million persons invaded the playing pitch.

WEAKENED HUDDERSFIELD TEAM WERE DEFEATED BY ARSENAL 3-1

Champions Provided Three Players To International Match—Saturday Results.

STOCKPORT DOWN.

LONDON, April 19 (Canadian Press Cable).—Considerably weakened by the contribution of their three outstanding players in the national cause that was being fought out at Manchester Saturday, Huddersfield Town, champions for the third season in succession of the English Football League, succumbed at Highbury before their runners-up when Arsenal defeated them by 3 goals to 1. The champions were without the services of Taylor, their goalkeeper; Goodall, their right back, who were playing for England, and of Jackson, their outside right, who was assisting Scotland. Arsenal's team was minus Harper, their International custodian, who was defending the nets for Scotland.

Arsenal played a keen game, despite the fact that the result could have no effect on their position in the league. Hulme, Lawson and Parker registered goals for the winners, with Devlin, Huddersfield's recent acquisition from Cowdenbeath, responding for the champions.

Only two teams gathered in points away from home, and of these the most important and most necessary win was that obtained at Leicester by Manchester City. The cup finalists dragged themselves a little further away from the danger zone of relegation by scoring three goals to Leicester's two. Browell accounted for one and Roberts for two of the Manchester's goals, and Leicester's comeback was from Hine and Chandler.

Demotions at Stake.

Interest in the league battle has descended the scale, from the top to the bottom. The question of the winner having been disposed of, the problem of which two teams will be demoted to the second division, remains to be solved. In the running are Notts County, Burnley, Manchester City and Leeds United. Notts County remained stationary as a result of their defeat at home by Cardiff City. Stansforth and Davies registered for Notts, but Ferguson's three goals for the Welshmen, added to one scored by Keenor, were too much to overcome. Burnley gained a point by dividing the issue with Bury, each side obtaining two counters. But Burnley were unfortunate. They should have won but for the mistake of Heap, who assisted Bury by kicking the ball through his own goal. Should Burnley get relegated, it may not be too much to say that this disaster may be the cause. Page, who scored six goals against Blackburn Rovers last Saturday, recorded one yesterday, while Bury's one legitimate goal came from Bullock.

Leeds United also split the points, being played to a goalless draw by Birmingham.

Other First Division scorers were: Aston Villa (Capewell 2, and Stephenson); The Spurs, 0. Bolton (Butler and Joe Smith); Sheffield United (Tunstall); Liverpool Chambers and Forshaw), Blackburn (Holland 2); Newcastle United (Loughlin, Urwin and Hudspeth), West Bromwich, 0; West Ham Campbell), Everton 0.

Second Division

In the Second Division the three leaders, Wednesday, Derby County and Chelsea won their games, while the two tail-enders lost. One issue resulted from the contests in this division and that was the definite relegation of Stockport County. They will go down to the Third Division as a result of their defeat Saturday at the hands of Darlington. It might be added that Darlington, who were responsible for Stockport's demotion, were themselves promoted from the third to the second string last season.

Whether Stoke or Fulham will accompany them is not yet decided, but the chances are that it will be Stoke. Fulham added a precious point to their aggregate when they drew with Blackpool, while Stoke stayed "as you were" by succumbing to the Pensioners.

Second Division scorers were:

Darlington (Dickson, Little and Hooper); Stockport (Scurr and Jones); Fulham (Craig), Blackpool (Busler); Middlesborough (McClelland), Derby County (Bedford and Thornewel); Oldham (Kirkpatrick and Watson); Hull (Whitworth); Portsmouth (Mackie, Haines and Martin); Bradford City Gallagher); Preston North End (Aitkin 2); Notts Forest 0; Stoke City (Wilson); Chelsea (Turnbull 2, McNeill); Swansea Town (Nicholas, Thompson and Deason); Barnsley 0; The Wednesday (Wilkinson, Williams and Trotter); Orient 0; Wolverhampton Wanderers (Mitton and Phillipson 2); Port Vale (Briscoe).

HOLLYWOOD, April 19.—Esther Ralston has "got there," too.

Following the recent announcement of Paramount Pictures Corporation that Florence Vidor has been made a star, comes word that Esther Ralston has been elevated to the same position.

The biggest role of her career, the leading feminine part in "Old Ironsides," has just been assigned to her. Heretofore she has been known as a "featured player," being forced to adapt herself to all sorts of stories. Now the scenarios will be built around her personality.

Miss Ralston won the role in "Old Ironsides" over a field of 16 candidates of whom screen tests were made.

"Miss Ralston's role is one of the biggest parts I have ever directed," declared Cruze. "Only an actress of extremely delicate sense of reaction to direction is capable of doing it the justice it deserves."

Since coming to Paramount a little more than a year ago Miss Ralston has appeared in 10 pictures that have steadily built her popularity with the play-going public. Among them were "Peter Pan," "The Lucky Devil," "The Trouble With Wives," "Woman-handled," "The American Venus," "A Kiss for Cinderella," "Beggar on Horseback" and "The Blind Goddess."

Other players who have been chosen for important roles in "Old Ironsides" are Wallace Beery, George Bancroft and George Godfrey, heavyweight champion of the Pacific coast.

CANADA—MATCHLESS VACATION-LAND — PROVIDES A WIDE CHOICE OF LOCALITIES FOR THE VACATIONIST OR TOURIST.

Those who most enjoy a holiday are those who truly earn it—earn it by attention to business detail or household cares, earn it by planning and saving for it. Canada is the greatest vacation land on the globe—from Halifax, guardian on the East, to Victoria on the Pacific, there is scarcely a mile of country but has its own charm. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, "The Grey Old East" with their lakes and rivers, their modest hills and valleys, pleasant farms and comfortable homes, where life is easy and rest and peace.

The Province of Quebec, simply another spelling of romance, with its tiny strips of farms, running back from the Road in the old French fashion, its great churches with gay roofed cottages grouped round about to form a village—its great elms, noble river and unguessed possibilities for development along many lines. A leisurely jaunt through the Province will well reward the traveller.

Farther on, Old Ontario, where almost every river or lake means pleasure. Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, London, hundreds of towns familiar by name since childhood, and in the newer Ontario, Sudbury, North Bay, Port Arthur and Fort William, any and all of them worth discovering. By rail or lake get acquainted.

On west across the spreading prairies, Winnipeg and Calgary, then on into the mountains, Banff with its thousand and one points of interest, lovely Lake Louise, and Lakes In the Clouds, side trips by motor to Windermere and the Okanagan and the Kootenay, visits to charming bungalow camps and magnificent hotels, Field with the floating glaciers, in the vicinity and fairy like falls, the noble range of the Selkirks, and down the slope to the Pacific. Vancouver, the great gate of the West, by boat to Victoria, regal in situation and dignity, Vancouver Island. The whole a journey of never-ending interest and new delights.

And from Vancouver by splendid steamer up to Alaska the Land of the Midnight Sun, through the sheltered seas, where sheer precipices frown down upon one, and gaudy totem poles make a dash of color and romance. Such a trip can only be realized by the taking. Any Canadian Pacific agent can map it out for you, give you details, fares, train schedules, any of the many little matters which make the trip a pleasure.

Summer tourist fares are effective from May 15 to September 30, and by planning early the trip will be a possibility, and then anticipating the wonders and pleasures of it all makes it doubly dear. Get hold of some of the charming folders the Canadian Pacific publishes, see the photographs, then make your call at the office.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

Judging from the following review of "The Corsican Brothers" in the Winnipeg Tribune of February 9th, the romantic drama still has a strong appeal to the theatre-going public of the present day:

"After seeing Sir John Martin-Harvey and his London company in Alexander Dumas' old drama "The Corsican Brothers", one marvels, first at the excellence of the production, and, second, at the boldness of the older dramatists. With an audacity few later playwrights would dare to give rein to, Dumas has in his play rushed into the realm of metaphysics, and has got away with it in a manner which must cause modern dramatists in this more analytical age to turn green with envy. Thought-transmission, communication with the dead- pre-ordination are all combined to make "The Corsican Brothers" impart a real old fashioned thrill from start to finish.

The drama deals with incidents in the Island of Corsica and in Paris many years ago. It is the story of twin brothers, who, by some mysterious power, experience the same emotions at the same time, wherever they happen to be. We see Fabien de Fanchi at home in the Corsican hills laboring under a relentless fear that all is not well with his brother Louis. That morning at a certain hour he had felt a pain as though he had been stabbed. That night he sees the apparition of his brother in death.

The scene changes and we follow the incidents that happen to Louis. There is the question of a lady's honor—and the death of Louis at the hour his brother had been foretold. Fabien then comes to Paris and the last act clears the matter up in true Corsican style.

Sir John gave a striking performance in the dual parts of the brothers, Fabien and Louis, and lifted the play to heights which but few other actors could hope to attain.

The play is beautifully staged. There are many rich and entrancingly colorful scenes which are a feast to the eye as well as a stimulation to the senses. In fact "The Corsican Brothers", is one of most sumptuously mounted and spectacular dramas in Sir John's repertoir.

An exceptionally able company supports the principal actor. First among these should be mentioned Gordon McLeod as M. de Chateau-Renaud and Fabien was magnificently done. Miss Marie Linden, as Madame de Franchi brought a gracious presence and a fine intelligence to the part of the brothers' mother. Lady Martin-Harvey gave an effective interpretation of Emilie de Lesparre. The work of Reginald Tippett as Baron Martelli (Louis' friend) was particularly sympathetic and pleasing.

Our special friends, Fred Grove and Alfred Ibberson, as Colonna and Orlando, two quarrelsome Corsicans, injected some delightful comedy into the first act. The many other members of a very long cast all fitted admirably in their places. R. H. Winnipeg Tribune."

"The Corsican Brothers" will be presented by Sir John and his London Company at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, April 26th.

A BIT OF TRUTH ABOUT WAR

(Toronto Evening Telegram)

A bit of Blighty has come to town. Blighty that is not a place but a spirit—a period of time, not a local name. So it seems to one looking on at scenes that seem to have been resurrected from the past, collected from a continuous pageant and thrown on the screen to make the picture called "Ypres" at the Regent theatre.

"Ypres" started last night and its setting was impressive. The attendance was to capacity. Seats were sold out before the evening started. Sold to boys scurrying along on crutches, to officers in khaki uniform, a brigadier-general in uniform, to a row of fresh-faced young officers with tiny medals. Red coats, blue coats, khaki and crutches sprinkled the audience with their wives, a few of the mothers of the war, those who have not forgotten.

"Why should they show these to Canadians?" asked the "deaf old lady" of her uniformed son. The age of Victoria knew a Canada that was different. The veteran of Passchendale can return a former taunt when he sees the heart of the Empire. He feels "he owns it," just as surely as a British-born Canadian. In his heart he is jealous of the only Strand he ever knew.

A Quick Response.

The first notes of the anthem proved the audience. They shot right up and stood there. No one stuggled up to a hestitating crippled attitude, and slipped down half ashamed to his seat. If you didn't have your heart in the war "Ypres" will not appeal to you. You had better stay away. It is a story of a nation and an Empire that was hard pressed and in which human life was seco d to duty. It is not the intention of the authors to show the whole war, or even a big fraction of that which centred round the ancient town of "Wipers."

"No, it can't be, but still—"

That is how true it is. Old soldiers can't make up their minds that the film is not an actual picture of engagements. They look to see if they are anywhere in it. The "Contemptibles" are coming; the old guard of iron. They throw out their line beyond Ypres in those fateful early days, day and night and again many days and nights; winter, spring and summer, and the Old Army has passed to the Great Beyond. The Cloth Hall has gone, battered with them, in a nation's agony.

It is a great pity that films of the "Ypres" variety are so few. It gives a glimpse of the tremendous power they could wield in the telling of truths to an Empire which is disgusted with sham, and with propaganda that is inspired by liars.

"Ypres" represents the truth of the British Empire at war in the same measure as foreign films misrepresent the truth of almost every feature dealing with the British Empire either at peace or at war.

This soul stirring picture opens a four day engageinent at the Capitol today, with a special "Military Night" to-night. Thursday is the Anniversary of the commencement of the second battle of Ypres.

AT THE REGENT

LEW CODY GREAT IN "MONTE CARLO."

Emerges Triumphantly as an A-1 Comedian in New Production.

Lew Cody, long distinguished on the screen as a sophisticated heart-breaker and home wrecker, emerges triumphantly as a first-water comedian in his latest vehicle, "Monte Carlo," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production directed by Christy Cabanne, now on the screen at the Regent.

"Monte Carlo" is a frothy comedy, smooth moving and well constructed, with more of a plot than is afforded most comedies, and Cody's distinguished performance as the American scion of wealth, who, estranged from his father, suddenly finds himself receiving the adulation of a prince because he accidentally acquired the prince's clothes, gives its hilarious situation a delicious flavor.

Cody's place in comedy of this type seems assured after his work in "His Secretary" and "Monte Carlo."

The romantic theme and the fun making march side by side through the film. There is a brilliant fashion show done in true colors, which shows a tremendous advance in this branch of film technique.

MONDAY, APRIL 19. Published Daily for Three Weeks

Special.—Subscription Campaign opens on Wednesday, April 21st, with the Quaker Oats Company plant in possession of the Subscription Lists for that day.

Watch carefully for the results.

PARTICULAR OF THE CAMPAIGN

In order to expedite the campaign for subscriptions for the new rink, the canvass is being classified into five principal classifications, viz.: Industrial (all citizens employed by any factories), Mercantile (all owners or employees of stores), Professional (all doctors, lawyers, dentists, civil, mechanical or electrical engineers), Rural, and Residents not within the foregoing classifications.

It is expected by those behind the enterprise that in this way each citizen will recognize his classification, look for the day upon which the subscription list will be available for that classification, and subscribe voluntarily.

A voluntary subscription will mean that that citizen feels that a new artificial ice rink is necessary to Peterboro, that by voluntarily subscribing for shares, he is entering into a partnership with the other citizens in an effort to build up the city.

If the effort to secure subscriptions is only partially successful, then it will be necessary to employ salesmen to sell stock, and the payment for their services must of necessity be deducted from the amount subscribed by the voluntary subscribers.

Watch the papers carefully for the announcement of the date upon which the subscription list for your particular classification and where it is to be found, sign it, and have the satisfaction of feeling that you were a party to the forward development of this city.

MUSSOLINI SEEKS ARAB FRIENDSHIP

Westminster Gazette Says He Is Preparing For Expansion.

LONDON, April 19 (Canadian Press).—The Westminister Gazette says that Premier Mussolini's visit to Tripoli was a bid for leadership in the Arab world, as a preliminary to his programme of expansion in Northern Africa and Asia Minor. Secularized Turkey can no longer appeal to the Arabs on the basis of Islam, says the paper. Mussolini, however, is both cautious and astute, and will not embark on an Asia Minor adventure until the final issue of the Mosul dispute (between Turkey and Great Britain) presents him with a propitious moment and he will not make a bid for Italian mandates where French ones already exist, until he has successfully installed himself in Asia Minor.

J. L. Garvin Takes Over the Direction of Encylclopaedia Britannica.

Mr. Garvin announced he would aim for closer intellectual co-operation between distinguished scholars and experts of all kinds and in many lands, thus restoring the international unity in this regard which was broken by the war and which has since remained interrupted in many respects.

This stock is now at its peak, and there is a bewildering display of lovely fabrics. It comprises the most beautiful showing of these lines it has been our privilege to show, in years. Charming designs and colors in the new bordered goods, were obtained direct from France, Switzerland and England.

They are principally Voiles and Rayon materials. While the goods themselves are unusually attractive, the most pleasing feature about the 1926 goods in this section is the extremely moderate prices.

At this season it is timely to mention the very comprehensive display of

CARDINAL SAYS CATHOLICS HOLD MONEY WRONGLY

Sudden Wealth Leads Them To Silly Pride and Vanity.

TELLS CONFERENCE.

Has Ceased To Hope For Material Prosperity For Catholics.

BOSTON, Mass., April 19.—(Canadian Press.)— "The sudden attainment of wealth often leads Roman Catholics to the silliest kind of pride and vanity," Cardinal O'Connell believes. Riches for Protestants on the other hands means greater opportunity for charity, and in the end, divine blessing.
The cardinal yesterday told a conference of the St. Vincent de Paul Society that he had ceased to hope for material prosperity for Catholics because too often they were not ready for it.
"I wish I had not to say it, but it is common sentiment of all us, who know, that some Catholics had much better have remained poor than have acquired large fortunes; much better for their own lives, for their prospects of heaven, better for their own characters.
"Our people get suddenly rash and lose their heads and hearts. The Protestant people of to-day, if they seem to be lacking in external —what shall I say, demonstrations —of religion have become wonderfully charitable. If they do not go to church they give to every worthy cause and do not close themselves up, and hold tight to every dollar that is coming to them."

During intermissions in the performance, a very enjoyable musical programme was rendered, with selections by the De Laval Orchestra, vocal solos by Mrs. E. Kitney and Mr. Frank Pratt, and a guitar and mouth organ duett by the Misses L. Naish and Cranham.

CHURCH BURNS.

Overheated Stovepipes Are Blamed For Destruction of Building.

GANANOQUE, Ont., April 19 (Canadian Press). — Pine Grove United Church, ten miles from here, near Brewers Mills, on the Pittsburgh North Circuit, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. Overheated stove pipes are believed to have caused the fire.

AROUND THE CITY.

The employment bureau reports for the week ending April 17, new applicants 43, placements 32, and 136 still on the list.

The bureau is swamped with applications from farmers for farm hands, but finds it a very difficult task to get the unemployed in the city to go out on a farm.

The fire department received two calls to fires on Saturday afternoon in East City. A chimney fire at 333 Burnham street and a grass fire broke out at the corner of Concession and Hunter streets. At 12.58 p.m. yesterday they were called to a chimney fire at 33 Cricket Place.

Illustrated Travelogue.

A Scotsman in the Land of the Kangaroo, By Rev. W. Allan.

This is the title of an Illustrated Travelogue which will be given tonight in St. Paul's Church. The lecturer is Rev. William Allan, minister of the church; and judging by press reports, it should be of more than ordinary interest.
The New York Evening Mail says "The greatest speaker in the Southern Hemisphere."
"The pawky humor of his native land is to be found at every turn of the way in his 'A Scotsman in the Land of the Kangaroo'."
"Wanderings in Australia, the Land of Sunshine and Hospitality, will make you forget all about time and create within you a longing to see the land where legend says 'The flowers have no scent, the birds no song, and the bees no sting'."
The Central Baptist Church, New York says, "The delicate touch of a master is here shown in describing the Land of the Kangaroo."
Dr. Gabriel Reid Maguire, F.R.G.S., says: "Rev. Wm. Allan is a Scotsman of the purest type. His lecture on Australia was an intellectual treat, entertaining, instructive, and calculated to stimulate. He captivated the audience from the very beginning. His description of his life in the Southern Hemisphere was without a parallel. If the opportunity offers itself, be sure to hear him.
The late Dr. Robert Stuart MacArthur, New York, say: "Mr. Allan speaks with all the fervor of the warm Scottish blood which fills his veins, and with the rich Scottish brogue which marks his speech. He has travelled widely in many lands, has observed carefully and relates accurately his wide observations. He is one of the most forceful and pleasing speakers of the day."
Mr. Martin B. Chenhal, A.R.C.O., will preside at the organ, and Mr. Jack Smith will be the soloist. The chair will be occupied by J. W. Anderson of the C.P.R.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF COAL AND WATER POWER DEBATED IN HOUSE MOTION IS FINALLY WITHDRAWN

Natural Resources Falling Into Hands of Private Interests, Woodsworth Says.

SHOULD BE PUBLIC.

Montreal Member Sees Efficiency of Ontario Hydro on the Decline.

OTTAWA, April 20 (Canadian Press).—In the House of Commons Monday, J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre) asked for approval of his proposed resolution: "Measures should be taken to regain for the use of the people the coal mines and water powers which are now being exploited in the interest of private corporations rather than for the needs of the people."

The House discussed the resolution for about a couple of hours, when the motion was withdrawn.

Mr. Woodsworth declared that our natural resources did not amount to a great deal, if they were used by private corporations. Especially was this so, if these corporations were foreign ones. If the Dominion's power resources were under the control of a foreign nation, then Canada was virtually under the control of a foreign nation.

That the situation in Canada was somewhat complicated because of Provincial control over water powers, was admitted by Mr. Woodsworth. He pointed out, however, that the British North America Act contained a clause under which the Dominion could declare works to be for the general advantage of Canada. Such a declaration meant that the works in question passed under the control of the Dominion Government.

"Why should Canada be hampered forever by legal technicalities?" he said, referring to the B.N.A. Act. "We cannot be held down forever by obsolete legislation." If the British North America Act interfered with steps toward progress in Canada, it was time this Act was revised.

He mentioned that Canada was possessed of the second greatest coal resources of any country in the world.

Water Power Leases.

Utilization of water power in Canada should be placed under one centralized board which would operate and develop it for the general advantage of Canada, said Mr. Woodsworth. He deplored the practice of giving thirty-year leases on water power and thought that the general practice of giving leases at all to private citizens was bad, because it meant that the control of one of the greatest national assets passed into the hands of private individuals, some of whom were resident in another country. In considering this matter of water power, Canada should look not so much to the immediate future, as to the more distant future, he said.

W. F. MacLean (Conservative, South York) regretted that Ontario recently had to buy power from another province. He did not know just how the question of coal transportation was to be solved, but he was ready to support in the House a Federal subsidy to promote the founding of coking plants in Ontario. He would not object to granting a subsidy to assist private enterprise in such plants.

Mr. MacLean said he was ready to back up Nova Scotia in a publicly owned development of her coal mines and the distribution of power generated by steam plants.

Montreal Opinion.

C. H. Cahan (Conservative, St. Lawrence St. George) observed that the right to enact legislation respecting property and civil rights was, under the British North America Act, given to the various provinces. This was quite proper as it gave to each legislature, the right, through legislation, to represent "the mentality of the people of that province." The people of the Province of Ontario were satisfied with the Hydro-Electric development. In Quebec, however, the sentiment strongly favored private ownership.

"Is there not in the Province of Quebec public ownership in respect to the supervision of the sale of liquor?" enquired Mr. MacLean.

"Certainly," replied Mr. Cahan. "It suits our circumstances and our mentality." There was less drunkenness in the city of Montreal than in any city on the continent where liquor was sold under those conditions.

He believed that water power and coal mines should be operated for the use of the people; but this was being done now. As soon as the Government undertook to develop the water power and mines of the country under Socialistic laws, just so soon would there be a service marked by dishonesty that did not prevail under private ownership today.

POLICE OUTNUMBER PASSAIC STRIKERS

Straggling Groups of Workers Return To Seven Mills.

PASSAIC, N.J., April 20—Police outnumbered the strikers in the New Jersey textile mill area today and straggling groups of workers returned to the seven mills without being molested. The mills had announced that they would take back strikers today.

Ragged children trembling in the breeze which swept the Passaic valley, little knots of men and women with drawn, hungry faces, were in sorry contrast to the stalwarts wearing badges, on motor cycles and horses, and on foot, who patrolled the district, prepared to halt any demonstration.

Meanwhile, Albert Weisbord, 25-year-old Harvard student, leader of the textile strike, prepared to prove his assertion that:

"Workers who have been stoppd by Cossacks will not be halted by appearances of paper."

Weisbord resumed his activity following his release on $5,000 bail from the Passaic jail, where he had been held on a charge of "inciting a riot."

The piece of paper to which he referred is the injunction obtained by the Forstmann Huffman mill. This mill was guarded by men with sawed-off shotguns today, and strikers have as yet made no attempt to approach it.

Council Meetings To Open With Prayer In Montreal

MONTREAL, Que., April 20 (Canadian Press)—Opening of council meetings with prayer is one of the innovations which Mayor-elect Mederic Martin will introduce, he stated in the course of an informal visit to his new offices Monday. Following the customs that obtain at Ottawa and Quebec, in the Federal and Provincial Houses of Government, the first magistrate said that he would follow the ritual to the letter.

OSHAWA ISSUES APPEAL TO ALL

Citizens Say Their Homes Are at Stake—Seek Delay.

READY FOR TRIP.

OSHAWA, April 20 (Canadian Press).—Prominent citizens of Oshawa, fearing that disaster is about to overtake the motor car industry here through tariff reductions, today issued an appeal to "The People of Canada" to support their proposal for a delay in the inauguration of the new schedule until the advisory tariff board has had an opportunity to go thoroughly into the question of tariff adjustments.

It is pointed out that the appeal is not made on behalf of the automotive industry, but comes from business and municipal interests, and from the owners of homes in Oshawa. Under the reduced tariff, it is said, thousands of citizens will lose their jobs, also their homes in which they have staked all their savings and are now trying to clear of debt

Delegation Ready

OSHAWA, April 20 (Canadian Press).—Delegates representing the automotive industry, Labor, War Veterans, and municipalities in Ontario will meet the cabinet in Ottawa on Friday at noon.

Arrangements for special trains were made yesterday.

The City of Oshawa is aroused over the suggested possibility of the huge motor industry here having practically to close as soon as present stocks are liquidated, and all classes intimated that they will be represented in the delegation.

CHARGE IS CHANGED GIRL BREAKS DOWN

Thought of Going Back To Cobourg Jail Proves Too Much.

(By a Staff Reporter).

BRIGHTON, April 20. — Norma McDonald, the 17-year-old girl, the remains of whose infant were found under an old building on April 8th, has since her arrest been held on a charge of concealing the birth of a child. When the court convened here on Monday morning for the preliminary hearing of the case the charge was changed to one of murder, the change being made on the strength of the medical testimony taken at the inquest Friday night. When Magistrate Floyd read the charge to the defendant she appeared unmoved. Her counsel, George Drewery, of Brighton, asked if the Crown would accept bail. Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr replied that such a proposition could not be considered. The defendant, on hearing this, appeared to realize that she would be taken to Cobourg Jail, and again separated from her mother, who has been at every session of the investigation, and commenced to sob, her counsel trying in vain to comfort her. The unfortunate creature was still sobbing convulsively when she started for Cobourg in custody of Inspector E. C. Gurnett of Belleville.

The hearing was adjourned until 10.30 next Saturday at Brighton. A doctor will be called from Cobourg to give expert testimony as to whether or not the child was born alive, and if its death was due to the fracture of its skull.

MOVIES FOSTER CRIME PREMIER OF QUEBEC SAYS

Hollywood Can Keep Its Product—Censorship Will Not Be Relaxed.

REPLY TO COOPER.

Hon. Mr. Taschereau Supports Board of Motion Picture Censorship.

QUEBEC, April 20 (Canadian Press).—Premier Taschereau yesterday made known the stand of his Government in the argument now proceeding between the Provincial Censor Board and the United States producers of moving pictures. The Prime Minister asserted emphatically that the Government fully approved the stand taken by the Censor Board and declared that if the producers were not prepared to abide by the rulings of the Board they could stop shipping their films into the province.

"If the American producers believe," said the Premier, "that we are going to change our regulations in order that their films may enter the province more easily, they are making a grave error. We have a Censor Board that knows what is suitable for our province and for our population. We believe that they fulfill their duties well and they have even been reproached for lack of severity.

Movies Foster Crime.

"If the producers of moving pictures threaten us with deprivation of their films unless we are ready to renounce our censorship, they can keep their films. We will not renounce our censorship or our right to censor.

"There are magistrates who tell us that objectionable pictures are the cause of much of the crime committed by young people, and this is also my opinion. That is one more reason for not relaxing our censorship regulations

"Besides, I believe if American producers take this stand, independent and European companies will bring their films here. I will go farther. If it is possible to boycott the province of Quebec, for a moral reason, we will take up with the Federal Government the question of not permitting the other provinces to have the films which cannot enter our province, and I believe that Ottawa will grant our request."

Nudity and Divorce.

"If the motion picture people put their threat into execution, do they think that we will give into indecencies, nudities and divorce scenes? Can these things be admitted?" said the Marquis R. de Roussy de Sales, chairman of the Board of Motion Pictures Censorship.

"How can they expect that a self-respecting government will change its code of morals at the dictation of outsiders?" he continued.

"We have to consider the special mentality of our people, which, I say in all justice, is severe. Divorce, for example, is not accepted by the Catholic Church, which is the religion of the majority here. They therefore do not want it shown on the screen. The mentality of Quebec wants us to be severe, there is no getting over that."

Questioned as to the age average of the members of the local board, Mr. De Sales said: "Col. Cooper has set our average age at 70 years. For a post of this sort, after all, what is most needed? Is it not true that experience is more often found among the old than among the young?

Cry For "Pep."

"They say that we are not abreast of modern times, but after all, we are not shut in. We lead our lives in common with our confreres. We have young people round us. I have eleven children, all modern, and all in Montreal.

"While one appreciates that one must march with the times, there must necessarily be someone of experience to cry halt to the young in times of danger."

"We never touch a good picture. It is only indecencies, suggestion and crime that we are after," said J. C. MacDairmid, a member of the board, when interviewed in the projection room at the censorship offices.

"It is also remarkable that we never have to touch a film dealing with the Jewish people, for these are always clean." This was concurred in by the Marquis De Sales, who added that the Jews always seemed to know how to lay stories of themselves before the public in a proper manner.

"The cry to-day seems to be for 'pep'," Mr. MacDairmid said. "And the 'pep' seems to synonymous with suggestion."

When the mind is in a state of uncertainty the smallest impulse directs it to either side.—Terence.

PLAN TO SAVE MONEY FOR CITY IS DISCUSSED

Utilities Commissioners Suggest Payment of $200 By City.

TO OFFSET LOSS.

Inspection of Plant Made and Everything Found in Order.

The regular meeting of the Utilities Commission took place yesterday afternoon. Alderman Phelan, the chairman of the finance committee of the city council was present and asked the members of the commission if some agreement could not be reached between the two bodies as to the new rate of interest which the Bank of Montreal has agreed to charge on borrowed money and pay on money on deposit in the bank.

The commission at its previous meeting had decided to remain at the old rate of interest as it meant money for the Commission which usually had a credit balance in the bank. The city, on the other hand, borrows large sums of money for nine months of the year and it was estimated that this new rate of interest would save the city around $2000 each year while the commission on the other hand has had $5460 paid to it by the bank in the last three years, or about $1800 annually.

The bank, it seems, is not willing to separate between the two accounts as to the rate fo interest, so Mr. Bradburn suggested that the City Council pay the Utilities Commission the extra one-quarter of one per cent which would mean about $200. By this agreemnt the Utilities Commission would not lose anything and the city council would still be about $1800 ahead over the old rate of interest. This suggestion met with Alderman Phelan's approval and he promised to bring it up at the next meeting of the finance committee.

Mr. Mason stated that so far as the commissioners were concerned they did not want the council to think that they were trying to oppose it but the commission wanted to finance its way in the best interests of the city.

Mr. Dobbin was instructed to make a survey of the western part of the city as to new street lighting.

It was decided to charge the Dufus Motor Sales $40 for the removal of two electric light pols which are in the way of the new story which they are building on their garage.

The Trent Canal authorities had asked for power at their work shop which is situated on Little Lake and it was decided to furnish them with the power if they would pay the cost of putting the line up over their own property or the commission would put the line up if the officials of the Trent Canal workshop would sign a ten year contract for power.

The commissioners then went on the quarterly inspection of all the buildings and works under their supervision. Everything was found in first class shape and very tidy and cleanly kept which reflects great credit to the Utilities Commission and to those in charge of the buildings. It is planned to set out a large flower bed on the lawn in front of the filtration plant.

100 EMPLOYEES OF BROCKVILLE HAT CO. TO LOSE JOBS UNDER ROBB'S NEW TARIFF

Cheaper For Wolthausen Company To Import Hats In the Rough From Italy, President Affirms.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., April 20. — (Canadian Press). — Fred Wolthausen, President of the Wolthausen Hat Corporation, Ltd., manufacturers of men's hats, estimates that the effect of the adoption of a reduction in duty on felt hats in the rough included in the budget proposals, will be materially to lessen the operations of the local factory and to reduce the working staff by 100 hands.

He claims that the reduction in duty will make it profitable for his company to import hats in the rough from Italy instead of making them here from the raw material.

This would do away with all necessity for several departments of the business, lead to a saving in fuel and power and would mean money for the company, but it would deprive men and women of work, since the operations of the company would be confined to the finishing processes.

OSHAWA'S MAYOR PLANS TO LEAD 5,000 CITIZEN TO PREMIER KING WITH PROTEST AGAINST TARIFF

Every Store and Factory Closed Friday For Hegira To Ottawa.

CITY FACES RUIN.

Burden of Taxes Would Smother Remaining Industries, Says Mayor.

OSHAWA, Ont, April 20. — The town hall was filled to capacity by all the business men in the city to deal with the situation that has arisen over the cut in the tariff on motor cars. Mayor R. D. Preston stated that the meeting was non-political and that the question to be considered had come down to an economic condition.

A mass delegation to Ottawa was one of the methods suggested for influencing the government. For two months, said the Mayor, city officials had lobbied at Ottawa following the rumor that there was to be a cut in the tariff. They were advised by the government that there would be no radical change; the radical changes had come however, and it spelled calamity for the city.

Affect all Industries.

"If the General Motors close down every other industry would be affected and the few that would be left would be so overburdened by taxation that they would not be able to carry on," said the Mayor.

The chairman read the telegrams that had been received from Ontario municipalities and firms outside the province, after which a committee was selected to appoint a general committee which will deal with the appointment with Premier King and his Cabinet, possibly on Thursday afternoon, the appointment of speakers to present the city's case, the handling of the traffic so that everyone could get to Toronto in two hours and to secure as cheap a rate as possible.

Close Everything.

The Mayor said that steps would be taken to have every store and factory in Oshawa closed on Thursday so that no one would be detained from going to Ottawa. He thought that the railways should draw everybody to Ottawa and back free of charge, because the loss to the railroads would be small in comparison to Oshawa's loss.

Keep Flag Flying.

President A. C. Young of the Rotary Club, intimated that they had just appointed a speaker to address as many other Rotary clubs in the province as possible during the next two weeks to explain what the tariff cut means to Oshawa.

G. D. Conant, ex-Mayor and a Rotarian, said they had been singing: "Pack up your troubles, and smile, smile, smile."

"That was not the spirit that should animate us," said Mr. Conant. "Keep your flag flying, and fight like hell!" Applause.)

Victims of the West.

Mr. Conant said they were the victims of political expediency. "We are being sacrificed on the altar of Western aggrandizement. (Applause) The Western members were undoubtedly the predominant influence in the House of Commons. It was the influence that had forced the government and us into this position. It was a question of industrial Ontario against the agricultural west, and the district with no industry at all.

Asked how many present were willing to close their stores and factories on Thursday the whole audience shouted "everyone."

Many Returned Soldiers.

The mayor read a telegram from Toronto pointing out that a canvass of the motor plants showed a large proportion of returned soldiers. It was pointed out that in the General Motors plant there were 730 returned soldiers.

Mr. Beer of the C. I. R. detailed what could be done in the matter of handling the traffic and rates. "We have not had a movement of 5000 people in Canada all wanting to get into Ottawa within a short time," said Mr. Beer.

To Make History.

Mayor Preston: "We want to make history."

Mr. Beer said that application to the passenger association might result in an extra cheap rate.

Restaurant Service.

The representative of the Canadian National Railways also gave assurance that they could handle 5,000 or 6,000 people and get them all into Ottawa within two hours from the first arrival to the last, and he thought that some restaurant service could be given too.

Committee of 16.

A committee of 16 was appointed to deal with the details of the trip to Ottawa. The committee will cooperate with the Rotary Club's committee announcement was made of the opening of a registration booth in a vacant store loaned by Mr. Conant. Protest declarations will be signed here by the citizens. This work will be looked after by the women of the city and the place will be used as propaganda headquarters.

The people of Oshawa do not believe that General Motors is putting up a "bluff."

Mayor Preston in regard to that assertion says the city has had experts go into this matter thoroughly for several months and their findings have been such as to prove to the city council that auto manufacturers and subsidiary manufacturers are entitled to consideration.

General Motors Pleased.

It is a well known fact in Oshawa, that the plant of General Motors at Oshawa has not been a paying proposition, and none of the higher officials who know conditions, while refusing to speak for publication, have any doubt but that the General Motors Corporation will be tickled to death if the budget as framed does go through. It may be two three or more months before the event happens but the higher-ups are confident that the plant will be closed down if conditions remain the same as they are now.

HEAR TELEPHONE RATES.

Bell Company Continues Presentation of Case For Increase.

OTTAWA, April 20 (Canadian Press).—The Bell Telephone Company continued today to present its case of increased city rates before the Board of Railway Commissioners. C. F. Sise, President on the company, was on the witness stand.

'No Smallpox In City' Says Health Officer

When asked this morning regarding the prevalence of small pox in Peterborough, Dr. T. W. H. Young, City Medical Officer of Health, said "there is not a single case of small pox in the city but we are taking all necessary precautions as there have been cases reported from other towns in the surrounding country."

Dr. Young states that the number of cases of contagious disease in the city at present is divided as follows:

Chicken Pox	5
Scarlet Fever	2
Small Pox	0
Diptheria	0
Measles	0

TO SETTLE DEBT.

Finance Minister of France Says Escape NNever Contemplated.

PARIS, April 20 (Canadian Press) — The French franc steadily declined today and when the Bourse closed it had reached a new low level of 30.32 to the dollar, as compared with yesterday's closing figure of 30.27.

No Escape Sought

PARIS, April 20 (Canadian Press)—M. Peret, the French Minister of Finance, speaking on behalf of the government of France at a banquet given here last night to the international hotel alliance, explained that the French government never had thought of trying to escape from paying her debts to United States and Great Britain. The settlement of the debts, he said, was now being actively pursued.

No Budget Modification: And Premier King Smiles

OTTAWA, April 20.—(Canadian Press.)— If there were any widespread expectations of a modification of the budget pronouncements, these expectations were dispelled at the adjournment of the Commons at 11.45 last night.

"Will there be any budget modifications?" asked the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Premier King: "My honorable friend can rely upon there not being any."

Mr. Meighen: "To-morrow?"

But the Premier merely smiled.

MUSKRAT SEASON EXTENDED 10 DAYS

Trappers Given Until April 30 For Their Annual Springtime Catch.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., received a telegram this morning from the Department of Game and Fisheries, stating that due to the backward season the time for trapping muskrats has been extended until April 30. This is an extension of ten days.

Trappers have been complaining recently that owing to the backward spring, they have been unable to get on the marshes and that their investment in licenses and traps would be a total loss this year. This action will alleviate their distress somewhat.

GRAIN FREIGHT RATE DISCUSSED

Progressive Member Brings Up Matter in House.

DEBATE ADJOURNED.

OTTAWA, April 20 (Canadian Press). — The question of freight rates on grain from the head of the lakes to eastern Canadian ports came up unexpectedly in the House of Commons yesterday. Milton Campbell, Progressive member for Mackenzie, Sask., moved that the rate basis from Fort William and Armstrong respectively should be the same as that from prairie points to these points. There was a five-hour discussion, during which the new Minister of Railways, Hon. C. A. Dunning, expressed willingness to have the subject referred to the House Railway Committee, but did not think there was much to be gained by such committee passing on the matter while it was under review by the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada. Finally the debate was adjourned just before midnight by Thomas McMillan, Liberal member for South Huron, Ontario. It is not likely that the House will get round to the motion again this session unless it is given precedence by common consent.

AT CUSTOMS PROBE.

William Duff, Deputy Speaker, is on Stand For Captain Zinck.

OTTAWA, April 20 (Canadian Press). — William Duff, Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons and member for Lunenburg, N.S., took the witness stand before the Customs Investigating Committee this morning to testify on behalf of Captain J. D. Zinck, of Lunenburg. On Friday last the committee listened to evidence suggesting that Captain Zinck had attempted to defraud the customs department out of sums of money collected from vessels which put into Lunenburg with liquor cargoes.

Today F. Wilson, chief of the preventive service department of customs, informed the committee that he had recommended the dismissal of Captain Zinck.

MAKE SURE YOU GET THE RIGHT MEDICINE

People who are suffering from constipation, biliousness or sick headache are sometimes at a loss to know what remedy to take to correct these ailments.

Mr. Arthur Couzens of Smith Township, Ont., said that he tried various remedies but got no relief until he was advised by a friend to take Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets. When he had finished one bottle he felt like a different person and takes pleasure in recommending Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets to anyone sufering from constipation or biliousness.

Mr. H. V. Mercer, Druggist, of Lindsay, Ont., recommends Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets because he considers he owes it to the public to recommend what will give the best results.

If you have any doubt of the merit of Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets ask your local druggist ask your neighbor, try them yourself, and then you will be convinced that as a tonic and laxative Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets have no equal.

GREAT ISSUE IS TO BE BETWEEN WET AND DRYS

At Next Political Struggle in Ontario, Says Speaker.

NO POLITICS.

Election of People, Regardless of Party, Who Will Vote Dry, Is Sought.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20.—Rev. John Bailey, secretary of the Prohibition Union of Ontario, speaking at a mass meeting held in the Regent Theatre Sunday evening said that the great issue in the next political struggle in this Province is to be between the wets and the drys.

"Don't be afraid that I am going to talk politics," he continued, "even though all the great reforms of the past have been achieved through political action. I do not care the snap of my finger which party is elected and the Prohibition Union does not care either. Our object is to elect a sufficient number of men and women to assure the maintenance of the Ontario Temperance Act and the strengthening of it."

Mr. Bailey said that some of the best lawyers in Ontario had given it as their opinion that if the question ever came before the Privy Council that body would decide that every province in the Dominion of Canada had the right to stop the manufacture of liquor within its borders. For his own part he was not a lawyer and would not assume to say that this right existed it was important, if it did exist to elect a sufficient number to the Legislature to use that power.

The policy of the Prohibition Union is to elect men and women who will uphold the cause, to support them regardless of the party to which they may belong. The members of the executive committee of the Union have been instructed not to use their influence in a political way. These members are not working in the interest of any party. The executive committee has decided that it will identify itself with no political party but will support men and women who are prohibitionists.

The speaker said that no one has a right to ask a political candidate to take a particular stand unless he, himself, is willing to take it. When the people of Ontario want prohibition more than they want anything else then they will get it and not before.

The speaker said that the Union would send out representatives to organize thoroughly the temperance forces in the Province. All through his address he never used an expression that the most prejudiced could twist into political propaganda and never once even mentioned the word "election", always speaking of the coming "contest" between the wet and dry forces.

When Victory is Complete.

The victory of the temperance forces, the speaker said, will never be complete until prohibition is world wide. Citing some of the advantages of the O.T.A. the speaker said that Ontario is better off financially as well as morally and socially, than it would have been without the measure of prohibition that it has had for the past 10 years. Financially this province is up to Quebec and British Columbia, where they have Government control, and the tourist traffic in Ontario was greater last year than it was in Quebec.

A New Definition.

Mr. Bailey has a new definition for Government control. That term, he said is a misnomer, as experience has shown that what is called Government control of the liquor traffic is really control of the Government by the liquor interests.

Defence Of the O.T.A.

The speaker put in a vigorous defence for the Ontario Temperance Act. Nine out of ten persons, he said, who criticize that measure base their objections on something they have heard, even though their own personal observation may have led them to the conclusion that condition have improved under prohibition.

"We must not delude ourselves, the fight is not yet over. There are those who are striving to restore the traffic and the wine growers of France at a recent convention predicted that in a short time Ontario would be in the same class as the rest of the Dominion so far as the liquor traffic was concerned.

"The High Commissioner to England, although neither a prohibitionist nor a total abstainer, says that prohibition has been a good thing for the country. President Coolidge of the United States, says as much for the supression of the traffic in that Republic where the working people are fast making their way into the capitalistic classes." The speaker laid special emphasis on the fact that the teachers of Ontario at their recent convention, endorsed the Ontario Temperance Act.

Bootlegging prevails even where there is Government control. The most of the liquor sold in Ontario today is brought in from Quebec contrary to law.

At the close of his address, Mr. Bailey called for contributions to support the cause and envelopes were distributed among the audience the request for funds meeting with a ready response.

Mayor Kingston presided and opened the meeting with a short address. Only two local ministers, Revs. Wesley Elliott of St. John's and Edmund D. Ford of the Baptist church, occupied seats on the platform. The audience enjoyed a rare treat in the singing of Russell Howard, the well known baritone of Toronto, who rendered several selections. Albert Hazell, the new organist and choir leader of St. John's United church, played the accompaniments.

SUBURBAN AREA TO BE SET APART

Special Levy For Street Purposes To Be Made By North Monaghan.

FIRE PROTECTION.

North Monaghan Council held its adjourned meeting on Saturday last.

The treasurer was instructed to pay W. J. Grady by cheque the sum of $16.85 and cash balance from pay sheets to settle up the charity accounts.

Mr. Middleton, the Reeve of Smith Township, was present, and objected to the deduction of $29.80 from the Smith Boundary account re work done by North Monaghan. A resolution was passed that Smith Township be paid $14.90 in full for Boundary account 1925.

The Township road question came up again and the following resolution was passed: "That the special area to be set aside for the special rate of levy for road purposes in the Township of North Monaghan for the year 1926 shall be as follows: Bounded on the north and west by the Provincial highway and on the west from the Provincial highway to Lansdowne Street the dividing line between lots 11 and 12. This means that all the property on plan 40 shall be included in this area. Thence from the south east corner of lot 11, concession 11, or Lansdowne Street jogging easterly to Erskine Avenue and south on Erskine avenue to concession 10 and thence easterly to the Otonabee river. The easterly boundary shall commence on the south of concession 10 and Monaghan road and the easterly boundary shall be the Otonabee river as far north as the city boundary. Thence westerly on the city boundary (Lansdowne Street) as far west as Monaghan road, thence northerly on Monaghan road north to the Provincity highway; the point of beginning. That the basis of levy for both the country and the special area shall be struck in both the country and the special area at a rate of levy high enough to raise enough money to equal the amount that would be raised under the old system of commuted statute labor at a rate of $1.50 a day."

A resolution was passed that the Clerk take up the question with the Council Solicitor of the preparation of a bylaw defining the special area and that the clerk advertise for a township roads superintendent, the wages to be $5 per day or 50 cents an hour for any part of a day for the actual time employed on the road. Applications to be in the hands of the Clerk by Friday, April 30 at 9.00 o'clock p.m.

Reeve Rye brought up the question of fire protection. The following resolution was passed: "That the council of the township of North Monaghan thinks that the suggestion made by the Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City, that residents of North Monaghan who desire fire protection shall sign an agreement with the City guaranteeing payment by the individual and that the rate as set by the City, namely $100 for the first hour and $15 for each additional hour is excessive, and suggest that the rate for the first hour shall be $50 and $15 for each additional hour, on account of the township of North Monaghan not being in a position to receive the benefit of the city hydrant system."

A resolution was passed that the Clerk write to the Township of Smith and state that North Monaghan was willing to assume the easterly path of the Smith boundary under a new agreement terms of the agreement to be the same as the old agreement governing the two municipalities.

The next meeting will be held on Saturday, May 1, at the Court House.

SKIM MILK AND ADD LITTLE CREAM

Just Enough To Beat Law, Is Allegation in New York.

NEW YORK, April 20 (Canadian Press).—Allegations that it is a common practice of creameries before bottling or canning milk for this city to separate all the cream and then add the minimum amount of cream required by law to the skimmed product will be investigated by Louis L. Harris, Health Commissioner of New York.

The inquiry which will involve 10,000 creameries in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Maryland, and the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, will take months to complete, Dr. Harris says.

THE ANNIVERSARY OF YPRES.

The anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres, the engagement in which the Canadian troops had their first baptism in modern warfare, and in which the gallant stand of the 1st Canadian Division against overwhelming numbers made the name of Canada ring round the world, is to be observed by the Peterboro branch of the Great War Veterans on Sunday.

A church parade to St. Paul's Church for the morning service has been arranged, and all ex-service men are cordially invited to take part.

It is well indeed that there is such an organization as the G.W.V.A. to see to it that such important anniversaries are not allowed to go unmarked, especially this one, which marks the eleventh anniversary of the battle in which "the gallantry and determination of the Canadians saved the situation," to quote from the official British communique.

Ex-service men have shown their willingness on other similar occasions to co-operate in the observance of the anniversary, and on Sunday it is hoped that the attendance will be even larger than usual.

Members of the militia units will also, it is expected, participate in the church parade.

A PROVINCIAL ELECTION?

Rumours still persist that Ontario is to have a Provincial election, if not within the next couple of months, at least early next autumn.

With some of those making the prediction the wish may be father to the thought, but at least the stories are still circulating, and there may be some fire behind all this smoke, although Premier Ferguson maintains silence on the subject and his followers are apparently in the dark.

The Toronto Telegram makes the statement that a dissolution of the Ontario Government will be announced within ten days, that an election will be held in June, and that Premier Ferguson will appeal to the people on a policy of Government control.

While the Telegram has no authority, of course, to speak for the Government, it professes to be in touch with what is going on in Government circles, and therefore its prediction is of interest as a hint as to what may happen in the near future.

On the other hand, your own guess as to the development that may be expected is likely to be just as accurate as that of the Telegram.

NO, IT'S NOT "BUNK."

"What's all this 'bunk' about saving the forests," was the way one Peterboro citizen referred to this week's "Save-the-Forest" campaign, and unfortunately there are far too many other people who are equally indifferent in regard to this question.

An effort to arouse Canadians to a realization of the fact that they are needlessly each year burning up millions of dollars is not "bunk."

The vast majority of forest fires, according to the experts, are the result of carelessness on the part of somebody; perhaps a settler burning "slash" on a windy day, or a camper who goes off and leaves his fire unextinguished, or a hunter who thoughtlessly tosses away a lighted match or a burning cigarette stub.

All that is required to greatly reduce the waste caused by forest fires is for everybody to exercise just ordinary care and common sense.

No big effort is required of any one; no cash donations are asked for; the campaign merely seeks to secure from Canadians generally a promise that they will protect their own interests by being careful in the woods.

Canada's timber wealth will not last forever, although, judging by the careless way in which we allow millions of dollars of forest lands to be burned over, would suggest that many people really believe it will.

PASSPORT NUISANCE.

Among many other matters of immediate practical importance which the League of Nations is taking under its consideration is the question of abolishing, or at any rate greatly modifying, the present passport system, which, though the war has been over for nearly eight years, is almost as strict in its provisions as during the years of conflict, says the Hamilton Spectator. The measures then instituted for regulating the passage of travellers from one country to another were necessary, irksome as they were; but there is no excuse for continuing them in these times. A special committee of the league appointed to deal with "transit and communication" has brought in a report to the following effect: "The assembly of the League of Nations draws the attention of all the Governments to the special importance of the conference on passports to be held in 1926, which public opinion, particularly in economic circles, undoubtedly expects to take at least a step towards the abolition, to the widest extent possible, of the passport system and to mitigate considerably the disadvantages and expense that system entails for the relations between peoples and for international trade facilities." This conference meets next month, and there is every hope that from the deliberations an agreement will be reached which will result in welcome action in the direction indicated.

If travel between foreign states is found irksome through these superfluous transport regulations, what is to be said of the absurd requirements whereby a Britisher cannot proceed from this Dominion to the Mother Country without first submitting to the formality of obtaining a passport from the Government and incurring the delay and expense involved? There is absolutely no justification for retaining this tiresome regulation, except as a revenue dodge. It is an unfair impost, in any case, and an annoyance which should be promptly removed.

NATIONAL TRAITS.

In the April number of Harpers Frank Swinnerton has an article entitled "English Pots and American Kettles: A Study in Mutual Understanding." His view is that the English and the Americans ought to be friends, but that they should refrain from asking or expecting sentimental treatment. Friendship must be based upon mutual confidence and admiration for qualities outside our own range. Both peoples, he says, are fundamentally and incurably Puritan in morals; and both have the faculty of humorous self-criticism. They make fun of pretentiousness and of vanity and humbug in themselves. "They are more afraid of seriousness than they are of death, and so they joke in the face of despair." This is rather strong language, but may contain an element of truth. To be able to laugh at one's own errors and peculiarities is certainly a valuable quality. Mr. Swinnerton goes on to say what are the difficulties in the way of a good understanding. In the first place, there is shyness. In the American this takes the form of oversensitiveness to the opinion of others; in the Englishman of stony silence. Then there is the traditional American and the traditional Englishman:

"The traditional American (for the English) is a lanky yellow-faced man with a goatee beard, who says, 'Wa-al, I guess,' and spits everywhere. He has a drawl and a nasal whine, has a six-shooter at his hip, and is always bluffing, particularly at poker. The traditional Englishman (for the American) wears a monocle, Dundreary whiskers, is exceedingly supercilious, talks with a 'Bah Jove' affectedness, has no sense of humor, and is a thoroughly objectionable cad. So much for tradition."

Both English and Americans, he says, ought to censor those who travel and represent or misrepresent their country. Perhaps it would be better to impress upon travellers the fact that they are regarded as representatives of their country, and that they therefore ought to behave with diplomatic dignity and courtesy. Criticising the habits of a country which one is visiting is a practice that ought to be indulged in, if at all, with caution. Quite often the sole ground of criticism is that the custom is different to that with which the traveller has become familiar at home. The new and strange things ought to be welcomed as part of the education of travel. It does us all good to be shaken out of a rut.

It is very commonly said that war between the British Empire and the United States is out of the question. It ought to be, because it would be a greater calamity than the Great War in Europe, and might bring down the whole fabric of our civilization in ruins. It would be a grand opportunity for all the troublemakers in the world. But there are people who, while they would not seriously consider such a disaster, cannot refrain from the luxury of saying nasty things, which, while they might not bring about war, do hinder the good understanding which is essential to the welfare of the whole human race. It ought to be understood that democracy carries with it a tremendous responsibility in this respect. International relations were once in the hands largely of a few exalted personages and trained diplomats. Now they are largely controlled by the press and by the people, and tremendous results, good or evil, may flow from the tone of newspaper articles and familiar conversation. This should be borne in mind whenever a foreign country is the subject of discussion. A public man is at once taken to task if he uses language offensive to a foreign country and calculated to create ill-will. A private citizen has the same responsibility to maintain good relations, and the more seriously he regards that responsibility the better. We ought all to regard ourselves as volunteer members of the diplomatic service.—London Advertiser.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

The difficulty in the Cape Breton mining district arose from the fact that employment was not continuous and stable, Mr. Cahan said. By turning bituminous coal into coke, valuable by-products were obtained, and the sale of these tended to reduce the cost of coal materially.

Doubts Hydro Efficiency.

Government ownership and management of coal mines under present political conditions was practically impossible, he continued. Without casting reflections on the past or present management of the Hydro-Electric system of Ontario, he expressed the opinion that it was not so efficiently or profitably administered as was the private control system in the Province of Quebec.

"There is no need for a resolution such as this and it would be suicide if Parliament adopted it and put it into effect," Mr. Cahan declared in conclusion.

A. A. Heaps (Labor, Winnipeg North) objected to the argument that public ownership tended to destroy initiative in individuals. He pointed to improvements which Hydro had brought to Winnipeg. The charge for domestic lighting, which had been ten cents per kilowatt hour, had dropped to slightly over two cents under Hydro. He believed that the Canadian National Railway system was demonstrating that there could be lots of individual initiative under public ownership.

Provincial Rights.

Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of Interior, said that the provinces were naturally jealous of anything which they considered an infringement of their rights. He pointed to what had been done along the lines of developing co-operation between the provinces and the Dominion in the matter of forest conservation. It had now been arranged that there would be uniform cutting from one end of Canada to the other, he said.

There are fifty or sixty important investigations going on at present throughout Canada, said Mr. Stewart, all with a view to the conservation and utilization of natural resources. The Government could only go on doing its best in the administration of resources under the system obtaining now. It would require the co-operation and assistance of all the provinces to bring about the degree of control of coal mines and Hydro development suggested in the resolution.

The Deputy Speaker had put the question, when Mr. Stewart got to his feet again and asked Mr. Woodsworth to withdraw the resolution. He did not think the House could divide on the subject "without doing damage to the pleasant relations existing between the Federal and Provincial Governments," he said. There was a risk of interfering with some of the prerogatives of the provinces

Plenty of Opportunity.

Right. Hon. Arthur Meighen disagreed with him. If the Federal Government wanted to be "so ambitious" as to extend the present Federal scope of national ownership there were plenty of fields for such attempts without interfering with Provincial prerogatives. Surely, said the leader of the Opposition, we are not going into the provinces to expropriate public property? "We could start on something under our own jurisdiction," he added.

"It would be presumption, folly and madness for the Federal Government to indicate its intention of taking over coal mines owned by people of Nova Scotia," said Mr. Meighen.

Mr. Woodsworth said that was not his intention in bringing in the resolution.

Mr. Meighen asked how else could the Federal authorities "regain for the use of the people" these coal mines. The same thing applied to natural resources elsewhere in Canada. Without fear of offending anybody, Mr. Meighen said, he had no hesitation in saying that he would vote against the resolution.

EVOLUTION

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir.—When Evolution undermined the belief of people in the Biblical account of Creation they gradually began to come to the conclusion that there is no God in Creation at all. Women ignoring their own short comings decided that they would take God's place in the world. Hence they superseded the old Biblical idea of "persuasion" by the "more effective" one of Prohibition or Compulsion. "If God did not make the world right, we will," they cried, "and we will make it so good and so quickly that the old idea of a God will seem ridiculous." Of course no one pretends that if the Creator had thought this idea a good one (Wise to "prohibit" evil and the means of evil).

He could not have and would not have brought it on. Hence the introduction of Prohibition shows the complete loss of women's faith in God and His presence in the ruling of the world. Evolution declaring man to be an animal in his body paved the way for this animal policy of compulsion. But Prohibition demonstrates one thing more, viz.: That in the last analysis force is the best remedy. The ultimate condition of the world can, therefore, easily be imagined. Whither are we drifting? On the rocks of infidelity and stupidity. Woman ruined the world once, and she is about to do it again. Who was it that was thrown out for presumption? A man. Profit by his example.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 19.—Heavy export cattle were well represented, and H. P. Kennedy & Co. were in the market for from 200 to 300 head this week. Rogers & Maybee expect to export 900 and have 100 on hand. Trade in the Old Country is bad, however, and buyers are trying to lower prices here. Cattle which arrived at Glasgow last week had to be diverted to Liverpool owing to bad state of the Scotch market. Handyweight butchers' and butchers' cows made most of the early trade. Two loads of Western feeders were on sale and one of these went at $6.35 a cwt. These weighed 900 lbs. each. Three choice steers, 1360 lbs. each, were bought by a packer at $8.90 a cwt. Loads of good handyweight butchers' sold at $7 and $7.05 a cwt. Butchers' cows sold steady, all the good ones bringing $5.50 to $6 a cwt. Rogers & Maybee were operating very slowly on export steers and early purchases were about 25 cents a cwt. below last week, with their top load $7.65 a cwt. One choice load of steers averaging nearly 1,400 bs. each, shipped by J. Rudolph of New Hamburg, were held at $9 a cwt. but the market did not look as though this would be realized. Only a few handyweight butchers' made as high as $7.50 a cwt., and baby beeves sold from $7.50 to $9 a cwt.

More than half of today's calves were in the common class. There was scarcely a choice calf on sale, and the good ones were 11 to 12 cents a pound. Medium calves sold from 8 to 9 cents and heavy calves at 6½ cents a pound.

Choice sheep sold firm at 9 to 10 cents a pound. The only bunch of yearling lambs brought 13 cents a pound, but these averaged over 130 lbs. each. A few choice spring lambs sold at $15 each.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 19 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain on the Montreal market today was improved and exporters worked a moderate amount of business.

Prices for spring and winter wheat grades of flour were well maintained under a good enquiry.

The receipts of butter were 3,424 packages, as compared with 457 for the same day last week, and 1,023 for the coresponding day a year ago. Of the above total for yesterday there were 3,000 packages from Australia. In the early part of the day some business was done in Canadian No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter at 33c per lb, which price was 1-2c to 1c per lb lower than Saturday, but later in the day further weakness developed and prices were depressed still further and closed with a net loss for the day of 1 1-2c to 2c per lb. There was no further change in jobbing prices, and fair trade was done at 35c per lb. in solid packages and at 36c per lb for 1 lb. blocks of finest creamery butter.

The receipts of cheese were 169 boxes, as against 230 for the same day last week, and 473 for the corresponding day a year ago. At the opening of the board at Napanee for the season 1926 on Saturday, there were 250 boxes offered and all sold at 16 1-8c per lb. f.o.b. There was some business done in Quebec 20-lb cheese on spot at 15 3-4c per lb. and the indications were that the ruling prices for this week will be 15 1-2c to 16c per lb for fodder made cheese, f.o.b. country points.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 19 (Canadian Press).—Wheat values underwent a sudden setback today toward the last, owing largely to increased selling to realize profits. The fact that the market had climbed to 10 cents above prices which were current at one time last week was chiefly responsible for the reaction. Wheat closed irregular at 1c net decline to 3-8c advance, May (new) $1.67 3-8 to $1.67 1-2, and July $1.43 7-8 to $1.44, with corn 5-8 to 7-8c off; oats a shade to 1-4c down, and provisions virtually unchanged.

Contributing to the late weakness of the wheat market were estimates from railroad sources that the wheat yield of Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas and Nebraska this season would total 337,000,000 bushels, against 139,000,000 bushels a year ago. Indications that further amounts of wheat were being purchased in the northwest to be brought here for delivery on May contracts tended also to undermine the market in the late dealings. Besides, there were predictions of warmer weather and of welcome moisture for the wheat area northwest.

Falling of 1,826,000 bushels in the United States visible supply total failed to check the late downward trend of wheat. Earlier, however, a sharp new advance here had been scored, owing to Winnipeg reports of active buying for Europe, both for immediate shipment as well as future delivery. Subsequently, there appeared to be a lull in trans-Atlantic demand.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 19 (Canadian Press).—The wheat market today, after an early gain of 1 3-4c, was under heavy realizing pressure, with a resultant loss in quotations which at the close ranged from 1c to 1 1-2c lower—May $1.58 3-8, July $1.56 1-8, and October $1.35 7-8.

Active trading was recorded shortly after the opening, and the May future reached $1.61 3-8, making a new high level. Exporters were fairly active, and the speculative buying appeared to be broadening. Export trade, however, had requirements satisfied quickly, and with heavy selling by local interest the market fell away and there was little to hold prices on the bulges.

Egg Prices

OTTAWA, April 19 (Canadian Press).—Canadian egg markets show little change today. Ontario country shippers report receipts moderate and local arrivals in Montreal are light.

PURSE PRESENTED TO LOWES FAMILY

Surprise Party Visits Home in East Emily Before Departure.

EAST EMILY, April 19.—A surprise party took the home of Mrs. William Lowes and family by storm on Friday evening when about sixty of their friends and neighbours gathered for a social occasion with them before their departure to their new home.

A warm welcome was accorded the self-invited guests, and the evening passed rapidly and pleasantly with community singing, games and cards. Midway in the evening's enjoyment Mrs. William Lowes and her daughter, Miss Mary, and son, Earnest, were given a place of honor in the centre of the company. Mr. Kelly Mitchell read the following address and Mr. Wilfred Carroll, on behalf of a wide circle of friends, presented the hostess and family with a purse.

To Mrs. Wm. Lowes and family.

The old home of William Lowes and family will long live as a cherished memory with us all, and wherever you may be, you take with you the very best wishes of your host of friends of this community.

The evening was spent in games and cards until the wee small hours of the morning, when the guests went on their homeward way.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

There is no fate; and circumstance
Was never master, and by chance
We never live. This world and man
Live all along a well laid plan.
Who laid this plan? Why it was He,
Through whom I live, who lives in me,
Whose greatest work and deepest thought
Was love—and world and man He wrought.

FIRE DAMAGES ROOF OF HOUSE

Campbellford Fire Brigade Confines Blaze To Roof.

DAMAGE HEAVY.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20. — The fire brigade was called out about seven o'clock on Monday evening to the residence of Councillor John O'Sullivan on Battle street, the roof of which had taken fire, supposedly from a defective chimney. The firemen were delayed in reaching the scene owing to the lack of proper direction, and when they did arrive the flames were bursting out through the roof and neighbors had moved the furniture from the lower floor to the street.

The fire was confined to the space between the ceiling of the upper floor and the roof, and was not extinguished until a hole had been chopped through the shingles.

The damage to the house will be heavy but the loss is covered by insurance. This residence, one of the finest brick structures in town, was formerly the Colville homestead and was purchased by Mr. O'Sullivan about two years ago.

SEYMOUR CIRCUIT CHURCH YEAR ENDS

Claim of Stanwood Congregation Settled By Mutual Consent.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20— The final meeting for the church year of the general official board of the three charges on the Seymour United Circuit was held at the parsonage on Monday afternoon. The main business matter to be disposed of was the claim of the Stanwood congregation, which has been detached from the old and made part of the new circuit, comprising Springbrook, Rylstone and Stanwood, in the Seymour parsonage, situated in Campbellford, and which the Stanwood congregation helped to build.

The new circuit was represented by the pastor, Rev. J. F. Gardner, and three of her officials. A parsonage for the latter pastor will be erected at Springbrook.

It was decided to allow the Stanwood congregation $775 for their interest in the Seymour parsonage this money to be paid by June 15. The arrangement was by mutual consent and all parties to the agreement were satisfied.

The local fiance board raised $1010 and the ladies' aid $700. The allocation of $1200 for the maintenance and extension fund was raised with a considerable amount to spare. the total amount of income during the year was $4500.

Each of the societies reported a successful year with a surplus on hand and the circuit is entirely free of debt.

RUM WAR CAUSE OF 87 MURDERS

Casualties in Chicago's Liquor Strife Are Steadily Mounting.

23 THIS YEAR.

CHICAGO, April 20 — Eighty-seven men, including six policemen, have been killed by liquor gangsters in Chicago in the last two and one-half years ,it was revealed today by John Stege, deputy chief of detectives.

Captain Stege said that murders prompted by the traffic in illicit liquor had increased three-fold in recent months. His figures showed ten slayings in 2½ months in 1923; eleven in 1924; 43 in 1925, and 23 in the first three and one-half months of this year.

Seeking the slayers of two men who were killed last week, supposedly by rival bootleggers, police raiders yesterday uncovered a large whisky distillery and arrested eleven men. E. C. Yellowley, prohibition director, called it one of the biggest supply sources in the whisky producing business.

EXTENSION OF RAT SEASON SUGGESTED

Trappers in Scugog Waters Get Few Pelts.

LINDSAY, April 20 — Victoria County and district, which has long been famous as on of the most profitable muskrat preservers in the province, finds the trapping industry crippled this spring owing to the unusual weather conditions. Hundreds of men have been employed for years along the waters of the Scugog, including Scugog Lake, Sturgeon Lake, Pigeon Lake, Emily Creek and Pigon River, find these waters ice locked at present and their dreams of big catches shattered. Big money has been paid out each spring by a number of Lindsay merchants for the rat skins, but the trappers are idle at present, the ice being so thick and firm that it has prevented them from getting anywhere near the muskrats.

The season comes to a close on April 21st, and the men eugaged in the trapping business are hoping that the Department at Toronto will extend the season for a couple of weeks, so that thy may be able to of weather conditions.

It is understood that the trappers around Bobcaygeon have already make up for lost time on account petitioned the government for an extension.

TRUCE OF THREE DAYS FOR REPLY OF ABD-EL-KRIM

Riff Delegate Flies in French Airplane To Tribes' Headquarters.

PEACE OR WAR?

Present Discussions Only For Armistice To Enable Peace Conference.

OUJDA, Morocco, April 20 (Canadian Press) — The three days' recess in the Franco-Spanish-Riffian peace negotiation while Haddou Ben Hannou, the third Riffian delegate, is consulting with the Riffian chieftain, Abd-El-Krim, will be utilized by the French and Spanish to straighten out some details in which they still differ in their respective viewpoints.

Ben Hamou left early Monday for Targuist in a French airplane and he will lay before Abd-El-Krim the latest Franco-Spanish proposals, and return to the conference either with his chief's acceptance or refusal. At the first conference at Camp Berteaux Sunday the Riffian delegates refused to accede to these proposals.

Prompt Decision

It is expected that when the conference is resumed Thursday or Friday the negotiations will progress more rapidly; all concerned are definitely aware of the limit of concessions which can be made and the discussion will end promptly either with the signing of an armistice or preparations for an immediate resumption of hostilities.

General Mougin came to Oujda from Tsourit yesterday and conferr with General Simo, the chief French delegate. He informed General Simon that Si Mohammed Azerkane, brother in law of Abd-El-Krim, who has his headquarters at Taourit, was desirous of resuming the pourparlers for the ending of the Moroccan warfare at the earliest possible date.

The Camp Berteaux conference is merely a preliminary discussion, with the object of an armistice, so that the main peace conference to be held here may be in a position to settle the details of peace.

SPRING WORK ON WESTERN FARMS ONE WEEK LATE

Will Be General, However, During Present Week—Sufficient Moisture.

FIRST C.N.R. REPORT.

WINNIPEG, Ma ., April 20. — (Canadian Press.)—Spring work on the land will be general throughout the prairie provinces this week. A number of points reporting some seeding done, according to the first seeding report of the year issued by the Canadian National Railways here Monday. Farm operations are about one week behind last year, but when it does get started generally it will go ahead much more rapidly on account of the lack of water lying on the ground. There is, however, sufficient moisture now to ensure an early germination and good start for the new crop.

Manitoba.—The frost is not yet all out of the ground in Manitoba, although some cultivating has been done and a little seeding. A few points in the Brandon division would appreciate a heavy rain and the cold weather of last week retarded spring work.

Saskatchewan. — Plowing and seeding along the northern lines of the C.N.R. in Saskatchewan was held up last week by unsettled weather conditions and will not be general for a week or ten days. Farmers in the Regina division have been busy preparing their land and expect to be seeding this week. Saskatoon division reports rainfall late last week resulting in good condition of land; expects work to be general this week.

Alberta.— Snow is fast disappearing from the land in the Edmonton district and farmers are hoping to be busy on the land this week. There appears to be an abundance of moisture throughout the region. Calgary district is more advanced than Edmonton and some plowing has already been done. Preparation is being made for increased acreage in the Stettler subdivision. Expectations are that seeding will be general by the last week of April throughout the province.

TERMS OF PEACE DENIED MINERS

A. J. Cook Says There is New Feeling in Police and Army.

NEWPORT ADDRESS.

LONDON, April 20 (Canadian Press Cable).—Speaking at Newport Sunday about the present dispute between the miners and the mine owners over wages and hours of work, A. J. Cook, general secretary of the Miners' Federation, said that war had been declared against the miners who never yet had had the opportunity of hearing from their employers the terms of peace. He warned the Government that there was a new mentality in the police, army, navy and air force.

J. H. Thomas, M.P., general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, speaking in Monmouth shire, said that to talk at this stage as if in a few days all the workers in the country would be talled out on strike was not only letting loose passions that might be difficult to control, but was not rendering the best service to the miners or anyone else. He urged instead the encouraging of the feeling that while war was inevitable everyone should concentrate on finding an honorable and satisfactory solution.

TURKEY CALLS MANY CLASSES TO ENTER ARMY

New Men of 21 and 22 and Young Reservists Called Out.

FEAR ITALY?

Rumors of Alliance Between Italy and Greece Are Denied.

LONDON, April 20 — Canadian Press. — Turkey's new levy of army conscripts is causing general speculation and is regarded in various quarters as giving substance to recent rumours of contemplated Italian or Italo-Greek aggression at Turkey's expense.

Turkey is calling up the military classes of men of 21 and 22 years of age, and all reserve men of from 23 to 26. The urgent action of the Turkish recruiting bureau is said to be causing considerable nervousness among the people of Turkey.

Premier Mussolini's recent speeches and his inference in February to "Italy's Napleonic year," is being interpreted not only in Turkey as seriously aggressive and as suggesting an intention to achieve colonial expansion in Anatolia, which is declared to be the Duce's aim.

From Angora, the Turkish capital, come advices to the effect that everyone has been following closely Mussolini's voyage to Tripoli and the general situation and that Turkey has not failed to make proper preparations.

Foreign Minister Roupla today denied at Athens the report of the existence of an agreement between Italy and Greece against Turkey. Recently London newspapers have printed rumors of an alleged design by Mussolini to enlist the support of Greece of his imperial ambitions.

These rumors alleged that Greece, through long credit contracts with Italy, would purchase rifles, tanks and other munitions which could be used against Turkey in Thrace, while Mussolini was taking action in Asia Minor.

It is estimated that the men called to the Turkish colors yesterday, added to those already summoned in connection with the Kurdish trouble and the Irak dispute with Great Britain, will bring the Turkish army to about double its normal peace strength of about 120,000 officers and men.

JAPANESE WOMAN AND CHILD SLAIN

Brother-in-law Sought For Vancouver Murders.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 20 (Canadian Press). — Lying on the floor of the home of Fataro Furukuwa, Japanese saw mill employee, the bodies of Kimi, his wife, 29, and their small child were found at noon Monday with their throats cut. Police are seeking Soithu Furukuwa, 31, brother of Fataro.

Police learned yesterday afternoon that the two brothers, living at the same house, worked at the same mill. Soithu did not go to work Monday morning, saying he had a headache.

Two other roomers were leaving the house at 7.30 at the time when Soithu was returning. They came home again shortly before twelve o'clock and found the woman and baby on the floor with their throats cut..

No trace of Soithu could be found. The roomers immediately notified the police.

A note, whitten in Japanese, apparently by Soithu was hardly decipherable owing to its illiteracy. It was believed to refer to suicide.

The members of the Union are to be congratulated on the succes of their first effort along this line.

On Saturday evening the members of the former Presbyterian group W.M.S. of the United Church tendered a banquet to all who assisted in any way at the entertainment given in the Town Hall on Friday evening, April 9th, when the three-act play, "A Southern Cinderella," was presented. The members of the executive of the new society of the church and the Young Women's Auxiliary were also guests of honor. One long table and four shorter ones, prettily decorated and lighted with red and green candles held an abundance of good things for the sixty or seventy guests present. After the inner man had been satisfied, Rev. T. M. Wesley made a few remarks and then called on Mrs. Jno Weir, President of the Y.W.A. for a short account of the work done by that society which had sent $290.80 to the Presbyterial treasurer and two bales of new clothing, valued at $22.20 to mission fields. At the close of her remarks two life membership certificates were presented by her from the society to two of the members, Miss Ruth Harper and Miss Florence Burgess. Mrs. Hugh Robb was then asked to report for the W.M.S., which had sent $314.00 to the Presbyterial treasurer and two bales of clothing in the past fifteen months. Mrs. A. Patterson had made herself a life member and two other certificates were presented to Mrs. A. McNeil and Mrs. Kenneth Kempt.

Mrs. McNeil, in a few very well-chosen words thanked the young ladies of the Y.W.A., who had put on the play and had thereby made it possible for both societies to go over the top in their allocation. She said it was impossible to say which one had taken her part the best as there wasn't, (to use a slang term) "a lame dog in the bunch." To this complimentary address Mrs. (Rev.) T. M. Wesley replied very appropriately. Mrs. R. G. Lawlor, President of the new society then gave a short address as did also Rev. Mr. Stillman, the pastor and the evening closed by singing the Doxology.

Many Attend Delightful Social Gathering at Campbellford.

On Friday, April 16, about a hundred Oddfellows of District No. 44 representing Norwood, Peterborough, Springbrook, Campbellford, Stirling and the Local Lodge, participated in conferring the Initiatory and First Degrees.

A letter was read from the Grand Master, regretting his inability to be present.

One of the functions was the gift of Veteran Jewels to Bro. J. Armstrong and Bro. J. Waymark, Past Grand Bro. William Johnson making the presentation to Bro. Armstrong and Past Grand Bro. John Howe making the presentation to Bro. Waymark. In making the presentations, the gratitude of the Lodge was expressed to both for their twenty-five years continuous service.

Peterboro brothers demonstrated the First Degree in an excellent manner. The Past Grand's team of the Royal Lodge of Havelock exemplified the Initiatory Degree in a manner that could not fail to impress the candidate with the grand principles of the order.

District Deputy Grand Master Brother Frank Merritt addressed the large gathering in his official capacity.

Past Noble Grands and other visiting Brothers addressed the Lodge after which the good things provided by the refreshment committee, were enjoyed. The following toasts were proposed and replied to "The King," "The Grand Lodge," "Our Visitors," and "The Teams."

The short time remaining before the departure of the Peterboro brothers on train No. 33, was spent in games, singing and music, enlivened by the skirl of the bagpipes by Brother Thompson of Peterboro.

MEN HAVE MAJORITY.

By NEA Service.

BALTIMORE, Apl. 20.—The majority of radio fans throughout the country are men, according to indications shown by the correspondence received at Station WBAL here. About 8 per cent of the letters received at this station are from women.

Although some women are sufficiently interested in the age's newest entertainment of dial twisting, the letters appear to indicate that as a hobby, the radio is plainly a masculine affair.

DEACONESS TELLS ABOUT HER WORK

Mrs. E. Smith Addresses Young People of Welcome Church.

WELCOME, April 20.—On Thursday evening at the regular meeting of the Y.P.L., Mrs. Elsie Smith, Deaconess, Field Secretary for the Deaconess' Home and Training School, was the speaker.

She said deaconesses had been in existence since the time of Paul, when devout women were set apart for special work in the church. Through all the centuries different churches had used trained women workers.

In 1894, the Methodist church of Canada first organized deaconesses, and in 1897, the Presbyterian church did likewise.

Dealing with the work at the present time, the deaconess is engaged in many ways:

(1) The church deaconess, who is engaged as an assistant to the pastor of the church, in visiting, women's work and the social activities of the church.

(2) The deaconess at large, who is attached to a conference and is free to be used by any pastor, in organization, social work, etc.

(3) Nurse deaconess, who are trained nurses as well as deaconesses.

(4) Secretaries in hospitals.

(5) Travellers' Aids, at stations and at ports, where immigrants arrive.

(6) Visiting deaconesses.

There are three deaconesses of foreign birth in Canada. Two Finnish ladies and one Ruthenian, who is now employed in Oshawa.

Mrs. Smith, then spoke of how much they appreciated the help received from the circuits in donations, bales of clothing and fruit for the fresh air camps.

She gave some illustrations from her own work. She described the destitution of some of the homes visited and how they were able to relieve it by having these supplies of bedding and clothing on hand.

She said not only did she represent the deaconess work but also the National Training School of the United Church where deaconesses take a two-year course and missionaries take a one-year course.

The girls are able to take the same line of study and have the same professors as the theological students in the universities.

She spoke of the need of workers, giving as illustration that in Manitoba, there were 700 school sections, without preaching service or Sunday school.

Then she made a strong appeal to the young womanhood of the church to devote their lives to service for others.

Personals.

Miss Thyra Martyn was a visitor in Toronto for several days last week.

An epidemic of measles have broken out in the neighborhood and a number of homes are affected.

Mrs. Elsie Smith of Toronto was a guest at the parsonage while in the village.

Mr. J. C. Staples has been at Baltimore for the past two weeks, helping his brother complete his new house.

STATION AGENT LEAVING KEENE

Mr. Pollard Has Been Transferred To Madoc Station.

PRESENTATION MADE.

KEENE, April 20.—The people of Keene and vicinity were suddenly surprised, and shocked last week by the news that Mr. Pollard, who has been the agent for the Grand Trunk and Canadian National Railway here for the past ten years was about to give up his post. Immediately they took counsel as to how they could give the family the heartiest send-off possible and the best assurance of their appreciation of the position the Pollard family had filled in the community life.

Since Mr. Pollard was required to report for duty in Madoc within four days it was decided that a reception in the Town Hall was the best way the people could take.

Accordingly Mr. and Mrs. Pollard and their family were invited to the Town Hall on Wednesday evening last, where in spite of the weather man obviously mistaking April for November, a large party of friends awaited them. The evening began with a small programe. There were several jolly selections of old time songs by an impromptu "orchestra" composed of Mrs. MacFarlane, Alf Fletcher, Peter Gillespie and Jimmy Wilson.

Mr. John Renwick acted as chairman: Mr. Will Renwick made a short speech, followed by a solo by Hugh Renwick, "Mother Machree."

Then came the presentation. Mrs. Harry Short read the address while little Miss Daisy MacFarlane and Miss Agnes Cameron presented Mr. and Mrs. Pollard with a lovely bouquet of pink roses and a purse. Mr. Pollard made a reply, expressing his gratitude to the people for their attitude towards him and his family during their sojourn here, and complimenting them in warmest terms on the spirit he had found pervading their whole neighborhood. The party then broke up into groups to partake of the delicious confections that emerged from the ladies' baskets, while Mr. Peter Gillespie kept the spirits up by his rousing violin music. There were many expressions of regret at the loss the village was sustaining but the prevailing sentiments were those of heartiest congratulations for the advancement of Mr. Pollard and hope for his continued success.

Mr. and Mrs. Pollard stood to receive the handclasps of their friends who hoped it was not farewell but au revoir and thanked them for the assurance that Keene folks would always find theirs' the "House with the open door" in Madoc.

The following is the address read to Mr. and Mrs. Pollard.—

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. Pollard and family

"It was with a sense of person l loss felt by everyone in Keene and the neighborhood that the news was lately received that you were leaving us for another field of labor. When I tell you that the unwelcome tidings gave us a distinct shock I am sure you will realize how very much indeed we shall feel your removal from amongst us. You and your family have been for many years past residents here and you have always been in the forefront in any matter which promised to be of advantage to the community.

"Your genial face was in itself an inspiration to your neighbors. Every one knows that a cheerful friend is like a sunny day, shedding brightness all around.—"A merry heart goes all the day: sad tires in a mile-a."

"May we confess that our curiosity has been often intrigued by that gleam that lurked in the corner of your eye as if you and life had some secret joke between you.

"It mattered not in what direction your efforts required to be directed, a man of varied interests and versatility. On Saturday night we find you in grey and red, exhorting our boys on the baseball diamond. On Sunday afternoon in decent black we find you superintendent of a neighboring Sunday school. During the week it is a meeting of the curlers association or regatta committee and in all lines of endeavor you have always proved yourself straight forward and above reproach. "A model, not a critic: wise in counsel, strong in action and cheerful in everything," is your motto, found in the one word, Service. It is for these reasons we are sorry to lose you and your family, more sorry indeed than words can tell, and small as the offering is we ask you to accept this small and most sincere token of our regard in the trust that in days to come it will serve to keep our memories green in your minds as you will assuredly be kept in ours, and, although you are changing your place of abode yet, we hope, Keene will always spell H-O-M-E to you that you may say with Oliver Wendel Holmes

"And where we love is Home—
Home, where our feet may leave but not our hearts,
The chain may lengthen but it never parts."

"Signed on behalf of your friends,
Agnes Lumsden,
Mrs. John Renwick,
William Campbell,
William E. Renwick."

Marks the beginning of a new Era in Motor Lubrication

The first step in creating Marvelube was accomplished when Imperial Oil Limited secured exclusive Canadian rights to a grade of Peruvian Crude Oil which contains so little carbon and which remains fluid at such remarkably low temperatures that scientists acclaim it as the richest base for lubricating oil in the world. Imperial Oil Limited has sole control of Peruvian Crude Oil.

After four years of diligent scientific investigation entailing thousands of experiments, both chemical and mechanical, the Marvelube Process has been developed. By this special process it was found that selected Peruvian Crude Oil could be refined into a motor oil that would successfully combat carbon in the modern automobile motor.

The final development and perfection of the Marvelube process marked the triumph of lubricating oil refining science over carbon. No other oil company can produce a motor oil that will meet the standards set by Marvelube, because Imperial Oil Limited controls Peruvian Crude Oil and is sole owner and operator of the new process by which it is refined.

Today Marvelube, the new process motor oil, the only oil that will successfully combat carbon in your motor, is on sale at every Imperial Oil station and good dealers everywhere in Canada.

TODAY you are offered a new and entirely different lubricating oil for your motor--MARVELUBE MOTOR OIL.

Here is a lubricant made by an entirely new process from Peruvian Crude Oil--the world's finest crude oil.

Four years of research, of rigid tests and comparisons in laboratory and on the road, have proved Marvelube superior in every respect to any other motor oil ever produced.

Marvelube surpasses all the old standards that have, for so long, stood as the measure of lubricating value--sets new standards all its own. Outstanding among these is its proven ability to successfully combat carbon deposits in your motor.

It is made in six grades, including Marvelube "F" for Fords, to lubricate properly every make and model of automobile, motor truck, tractor, motorcycle and motor boat.

Marvelube is now on sale at Imperial Oil stations and by good dealers everywhere in Canada.

PETERBOROUGH MILLBROOK NORWOOD

CROSSES BURN AT MILLBROOK

Flaming Evidence of Klan Late Saturday Evening.

CHILDREN ILL.

MILLBROOK, April 20.—Practical evidence of Ku Klux Klan activities in this community was given on Saturday evening when two fiery crosses were burned in the village, one at the west end in the field in front of Rev. Jos. Wilks' residence, and the other on King Street, in the field east of the creek and just over the bridge.

Charred remains of the crosses were seen by church-goers on Sunday morning as they passed the fields on the way to their respective places of worship. The fiery emblems were first noticed about 9.30 on Saturday evening, and they continued to burn for about two hours. The significance of the symbols, except to members of the Klan, apparently remains a mystery.

Scarlet Fever Cases

Scarlet fever cases were reported in the village on Saturday, three families so far being quarantined. Dr. Sutton, Medical Health Officer, of Peterborough, was in town on Saturday and with Dr. H. A. Turner visited the public library during the children's story hour, examining throats, etc. This community has escaped any epidemic of children's diseases during the winter months so far and it is regrettable that this late in the season an outbreak of this kind should occur.

Mission Band

The Sunshine Mission Band held its regular meeting on Saturday afternoon, the President, Jean Stinson, being in the chair.

The superintendent, Mrs. O. Williamson, was unavoidably absent on account of illness so the usual talk was dispensed with. The Heralds reported for the Watch Tower, and readings were given by Bernice Smith, and Mary Burnham.

The president extended the hearty thanks of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary to the officers and members of the band for their generous donation of $25, this amount making their superintendent a life member of the Auxiliary.

A treat of candy was enjoyed the close.

Cadet Inspection

The annual inspection of the local Cadet Corps, No. 403, will take place on Wednesday, May 5, at 2.30 p.m., on the school grounds. Captain V. W. S. Heron, D.C.O., will be the inspecting officer. The public is cordially invited to attend. B. B. Dawson is the local Cadet instructor.

Rev. Jos. Wilks took charge of the United Church Sunday School on Sunday afternoon, the superintendent, Mr. W. Fred Fallis, being absent through illness.

Mrs. J. R. Eakins received word on Saturday that her neice, Mrs. Wellington Pickup of Toronto, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, had safely pased the crisis and is making slow progress toward recovery.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK.

Marvelous beyond conception inaptly describes the glories of Canada's Rockies. To be fully appreciated they must be seen. To start out on a trip by one's self into this unfamiliar but far-famed paradise-on-earth, to many appears quite a task. Realizing this, Dean Sinclair Laird of Macdonald College, an experienced Rocky Mountains Traveller, for the third year in succession, has undertaken to conduct a party through this glorious wonderland.

A special train of dining, standard sleeping, and observation compartment cars has been chartered, to leave Toronto on July 19th via the Canadian Pacific Railway. Stops will be made at Port Arthur and Fort William, which together form Canada's greatest grain port; Winnipeg Beach, the popular summer resort for Winnipegers; Winnipeg, Canada's third largest city; Indian Head, the chief tree distributing centre of the Federal Forestry Branch; Regina, the capital of Saskathewan; Calgary, Alberta's largest city; Banff, the world-famous mountain ersort; by automobile for 104 miles over the Banff-Windermere Highway, the most spectacular drive in Canada; through Kootenay Lake to Nelson, the commercial centre of Southern British Columbia; then through the Doukhobor country to Penticton; along lovely Okanagan Lake, and to Vancouver, thence by steamer to Victoria.

Returning, the trip will be by the main line of the Canadian Pacific, through the great canyons of the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, and through the Selkirks, and Rockies, affording scenery such as can be found nowhere else on earth; Lake Louise, the Pearl of the Rockies, the most perfect gem of scenery on the world; another day at Banff, Edmonton, the Capital of Alberta; Saskatoon, the city of optimism; Devil's Camp, on the Lake of the Woods, near Kenora, thence to Fort William, where one of the fine Canadian Pacific steamers will be used across Lake Superior and Huron to Port McNicoll, then rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate.

Everything is included in the price of $330.00, from Toronto; transportation, sleeping cars, accommodation in hotels, and bungalow camps, meals in diners, hotels and on steamers, and sight-seeing tours at points visited.

The trip is open to all, and applications for accommodation are being received.

Fares from other points than Toronto will be named, and descriptive illustrated booklet sent on application to Dean Sinclair Laird, Macdonald College Post Office, Que.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Child's Hair With

If you want to keep your children's hair in good condition be careful what you wash it with.

Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is purely and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can not possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive and a few ounces will last for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

Hemorrhoids

Or piles are quickly relieved by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

It is a serious matter to have piles and one person in four has them at one time or another. The annoyance and distress is great. It is difficult to obtain lasting relief. So much so that your physician may tell you that a surgical operation is necessary. That is unless he is familiar with Dr. Chase's Ointment for many doctors recommend this treatment to their patients.

For nearly half a century Dr. Chase's Ointment has been the never failing relief for itching, bleeding and protruding piles. It is now very generally known by the medical profession, and the public generally, as the standard treatment for this torturing ailment.

Ask your friends about Dr. Chase's Ointment for "users are boosters" in this case. Relief comes quickly and you can obtain the ointment at any drug store.

CARRY GRAIN TO QUEBEC PORT ON TRANCONTINENTAL RAILWAY

Removal of Freight Rate Discrimination Urged in House of Commons.

CATTLE AND GRAIN.

OTTAWA, April 20 (Canadian Press). — A motion that "freight rate discriminations against the port of Quebec should be removed and grain should be transported over this particular route on the same mileage basis as that applying from prairie points to the head of the lakes" came up for discussion in the House of Commons Monday.

It was introduced by M. B. Campbell (Progressive, Mackenzie).

The resolution submits that the Transcontinental Railway was built for the purpose of providing the shortest possible route to the sea for the purpose of the prairie as well as to develop the ports of Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. The fulfillment of this purpose has been prevented by "the imposition of exorbitant and unjustifiable freight rates," says the motion.

Mr. Campbell declared that the prevailing rates from Armstrong, north of Fort William and Port Arthur, to the port of Quebec, were working an injustice to one of Canada's greatest industries. He believed that a fair rate from Armstrong to Quebec on grain would be eleven cents. Under present conditions the only time the grain was shipped through to Quebec was at the close of navigation or when congestion existed at the head of the lakes.

In 1921, if an equitable rate of eleven cents had been in use, from Armstrong to Quebec, Western farmers would have saved approximately seven million dollars. In 1922, they would have saved about eight million dollars.

Rates Profitable.

The question had often been asked, said Mr. Campbell, whether present grain rates paid a profit to railways. In his opinion, there was no doubt in the matter, as he honestly believed that railway corporations received substantial profits through the transportation of grain.

A fair rate would result in the shipment of millions of dollars worth of business over Canadian territory and to the ports of Quebec and those in the Maritimes.

No considerable cattle trade could be built up under the prevailing tariff. If the rate were made equitable grain could be shipped through to these Canadian ports to a large extent and utilization could be made to the facilities for handling cattle at Quebec.

J. R. Fleming (Conservative, Carleton - Victoria) said that the question was one of national importance which would be considered with a view to establishing a sound, sane, Canadian policy. He referred briefly to the conditions which had led up to the building of the various railway systems in Canada.

Original Condition.

Mr. Flemming quoted the agreement entered into by the railways at the time the Transcontinental was built. It imposed an obligation to bring the grain of the west to eastern Canadian ports and also to provide steamship service for its export, he said. That obligation was as binding upon the Canadian Government as operators of the Canadian National Railways, as it was then upon the Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Pacific. There had been a "lamentable failure" to carry out this obligation.

The Canadian National lines had never carried this business over this route and never would because the freight rates were prohibitive. He would prefer to use the word "prohibitive" in the resolution rather than the term "exorbitant and unjustifiable" used in the resolution. Otherwise, he agreed with Mr. Campbell in his remarks about the freight rates.

Mr. Flemming said that if the Transcontinental Railway section of the Canadian National Railways was made to do the work it was built to do, it would provide a handsome surplus to take care of any loss which might occur west of Fort William.

In Peterborough Churches

At the morning diet of worship of the Gilmour Memorial Church, the Rev. W. S. Edgar spoke on "Spiritual Culture," the text being from 1st Timothy, chapter 4 and part of verse 7, "Exercise thyself unto Godliness."

"Paul's epistles to Timothy," said Mr. Edgar, "are the most intimate and personal of all his writings. Timothy had become a personal friend and companion of the great apostle, and Paul speaks of him with affection as 'my son.' These letters then have about them all the charm, the intimacy and the frankness of a father's letters to his son. They touch on the most intimate and sacred matters of the soul, indeed they are nothing less than manuals of personal religion and public worship. The apostle writes of matters of private life and public conduct, of the things of Timothy's own soul and its relationship to God, as well as of the organization and worship of the church. And it is surely significant that the apostle speaks first of the things on personal religion as a background for public service. The apostle speaks of Timothy as being a good minister of Jesus Christ, nourished up in the faith and sound doctrine. There we have the public service, the outward aspect of his life. But the good minister must first of all be a good man. 'Exercise thyself unto Godliness.'

"Now this word 'exercise' has a strangely familiar ring about it in these days. One of the features of our present-day life is the emphasis thrown on exercise, especially of the limbs and muscles. Physical culture is often extolled as the remedy for all the ills of the body, and we all readily admit that the body needs exercise, if it is to be kept at the highest pitch of efficiency. The ancient Greeks made athletics a part of their religion. It is certainly a religious duty to keep the body as fit and strong as possible. We have a treasure in earthen vessels, and it is our duty to keep the vessel from being marred and broken. And the apostle recognizes the value of physical exercise, for he says in the next verse, 'Bodily exercise profiteth for a little time.' This is the real meaning of the verse wrongly translated, 'Bodily exercise profiteth little.' While we are here in the body physical exercise is good. But Godliness is profitable for all time and eternity.

"Godliness is fitness of soul. The body is in perfect health when every organ performs its function with efficiency. So a man or woman is in perfect spiritual health when every faculty of the soul is alive and keen and performing its function. And that state is Godliness. For that, exercise is necessary; it does not come of itself. Let us consider the principles and methods of spiritual culture.

"The first principle of all culture is that it should aim at all-round development. So the goal of all spiritual exercise is a well-rounded, fully-developed character. The ideal we strive towards is that of the perfect man in Christ. Some Christians seem terribly one-sided in their character; they do not seek the cultivation of all the graces; they are remarkable for having one grace, faith, for instance, or meekness, or zeal, on the development of which they concentrate their efforts to the exclusion of other qualities. The best Christians are those in whom all the graces, like the strings of an angel's harp, are in perfect harmony.

"The methods of most culture systems aim at assisting nature and giving her a chance to do her work. They seek to draw out latent powers and possibilities. And the same is true of religion. It is the workings and activities of divine grace and the operation of the holy spirit that brings out the hidden possibilities of the human soul.

"Culture again seeks to develop those powers and organs that are least used or not used at all. Instructors of physical culture tell us that the tendency of all students is towards using the muscles that are already developed. They follow the line of least resistance. This tendency is also evident in mental culture. It also tells acutely in the spiritual life. There are certain lines of action that we always follow, a certain routine of duty we always obey. These are the habits that are fixed and easy. Psychologists point out that these habitual activities have made for themselves well-worn pathways through the brain, and that we perform the actions almost as a matter of course. And just as some muscles are weak and flabby through insufficient exercise, so there are immense tracts of our spiritual nature which lie fallow. We have never explored the fullness of the possibilities of our hearts, nor realized the untold wealth of our manhood. Let us exercise ourselves and our nature will blossom into the flower of a blameless life and mature at last into the rich fruit of Godliness.

"The test of success in exercise lies in the powers of endurance achieved. Here we have the true test of spiritual culture, 'He that endureth to the end shall be saved.' Not the fitful struggle of an occasional day, not the easy contentment that takes things as they come, but the determination of the struggler; the fighter to the end gains the crown of victory and glory. 'Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life.'"

Ice Carried Boy Into Swift Current.

EDMONTON, April 20 (Canadian Press).—The first city drowning accident of the season on the Saskatchewan River occurred Sunday, when a 9-year-old boy named Phillip Forchynuk, lost his life.

According to the story told to the police by his companions, the lad had gone out on a cake of ice which was touching the shore. The others, fearing danger, pulled him off but he persisted and took another venture. Just then the ice moved off with the current, which was running rapidly and before he could do anything to escape he was far from the shore. A minute later he slid off the ice into the water. The body has not been recovered.

"THESE WOMEN"

By MALCOLM DUART

COPYRIGHT 1926

The Characters and Situations in this Story are entirely fictional.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Harry Morton, rich, middle-aged, attractive bachelor, is a center of interest in Peterborough, where he lives with his adopted daughter, Audrey. The town gossips have not been able to learn what his business is, or why he goes regularly to Toronto, where he maintains an apartment as well as an expensive house in Peterborough.

A man known as Smith, claiming to be Audrey's stepfather appears after an absence of 18 years. Morton sends him to South America, securing a position for him by cable.

With Audrey, Morton goes to Toronto, where he takes dinner with Nona, beautiful young woman who is in love with him, and Lois, of whom Nona is jealous. The girls quarrel, and Nona, angry over Morton's attentions to Lois, refuses to tell him good-night.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V

Audrey was playing the pipe organ when Morton came in. She was in evening dress, and her opera coat lay on a chair beside her.

"It's only nine o'clock," she said, rising. "Would you take me over to hear the last half of the opera? I have some tickets."

Morton glanced down at his clothes. "I ought to be more festively dressed to go around with a vision like you," he said, "but I'll chance it. Here."

He threw the coat over her shoulders, and, with the girl clinging to his arm, he descended to the street again. "Have to call a taxi," he told her. "I sent the car back to the garage."

It was only a few moments until a cab wandered into sight, and Morton hailed it.

"Did you have a nice time at dinner?" she ventured.

Morton considered. "Not so very," he concluded. "I was willing to be happy but I didn't get the chance."

Audrey's brows were puckered in thought. She leaned against Morton and once or twice glanced upward at his face.

"What is it you are really hunting for when you go out to dinner with those—those ladies?" she asked, finally.

"Oh, amusement, I suppose," he said. "It is a little bit like going to the theater. It gives one a chance to escape one's own thoughts; something bright to look at; something to laugh at, maybe.

"Really, the chances are that what most of us are seeking is peace of mind—contentment. Some of us seek it one place and some another. None of us ever finds it anywhere except in the only place where contentment can exist—that's in one's own mind. You have to carry it with you."

They were fortunate in arriving at the playhouse between acts, so they were shown to their seats at once. They glanced over their programs, and, as the curtain rose, settled back to listen to the two great singers who were on the bill that night. Morton sat with his chin resting on his breast, incessantly beating time with his fingers upon his knee. The girl listened with her head thrown back, her eyes star-like as the strains of the world's greatest music master filled the auditorium. Both of them were quiet, filled with the music, as they rode back to their apartment.

"When a man listens to music like that he knows he has a soul, doesn't he?" Morton said, as he kissed the girl good-night.

A note, delivered by messenger, was awaiting Morton when he arrived at his Toronto office the next morning. It was from Nona.

"Dear," it began. "I simply must see you. I'll be rehearsing this afternoon and tonight, but I'll be at my apartment surely at ten o'clock this evening. Please come. It is as important to you as it is to me. Nona."

Morton shrugged his shoulders, tore up the note and threw it in the waste-basket. A clerk came in with a heap of documents and laid them on the desk.

"If anybody telephones me, except Miss Morton, tell them to call me tomorrow," Morton ordered. "I'm not in to anybody."

For the remainder of the day he buried himself in the mass of statistical reports the clerk had given him. There were columns upon columns of figures, in dollars and weights and percentages, with marginal notes in the fine, legible script of a trained engineer. As Morton finished with each report, he laid it in one of three baskets that lay before him, labeled "Mines" and "Transport" and "Personnel." Toward evening, with a pad of notes before him, he talked into a dictating machine for an hour or more. Then, leaving the cylinders of the apparatus in their paper cartons, he went home.

He dined with Audrey, talked over the evening paper with her, and at nine-thirty bade her good-night. He watched until her door was closed and took up his overcoat and hat, leaving the apartment quietly.

It was only a half-hour's walk to the apartment house where Nona lived and Morton did not call a car. It was just ten o'clock when he sent up his name by the telephone operator in the hallway. In another minute the door of Nona's apartment opened to admit him.

He stood in the doorway looking around. The room was a bright one, done in shades of rose and gold. A small upright piano stood against the wall. On top of it were the portraits of two or three girls, made by theatrical photographers, and Morton's own picture. A long table, opposite the piano, was covered with moving picture and theatrical magazines. There were three or four gilt-legged chairs, two deep armchairs upholstered in rose silk, and a lounge, covered with stiff gold brocade.

Nobody was visible in the room. Morton took another step forward, and looked behind the door, which still stood open. As he did so, the door closed. A strange young woman stood there.

"I'm sorry," she said. "Nona will be here pretty soon. She said for you to wait."

Morton inspected her. She wore a long fur coat, which she had fastened closely about her throat, but from beneath the coat peeped the lower edge of a kimono. A pair of "mules" was on her feet, and her ankles were bare.

"I was going to stay with Nona tonight," she explained. "Won't you take off your overcoat?"

Morton shook his head. He had not taken his eyes from her. "I don't think I'll stay," he said.

The girl moved away from him a little. "Please stay," she said. "Nona told me that she wanted to see you about something terribly important, and she is in a dreadful frame of mind. Really, I think it would be better if you stay."

"All right."

Morton took off his overcoat and scarf and laid them, with his hat and stick, on the lounge. The girl picked them up and carried them into another room. Morton watched her, thoughtfully.

"Wouldn't you be more comfortable in this big chair?" she asked when she came back. Morton was sitting on the light gilt piano stool.

"You'd better," she persisted, as Morton made no move. "That stool broke down yesterday, and it may do it again."

Morton moved over to the large chair and sat down. He lost sight of the young woman for a moment, as she stepped behind him.

When she reappeared her fur coat was off and only her kimono covered her thin shoulders.

Morton started to arise but she perched herself on the arm of his chair, pushing him backward with the pressure of her palm upon his forehead. Bending over, she laughed into his face.

The light in the apartment went out and as suddenly flashed on again.

A huge young man was coming into the room.

Morton leaped to his feet, thrusting the young woman from him. The young man towered over him.

"So you're the guy, eh?" he roared. Turning to the girl he seized her by the arm. "So this is what you're doing!"

He jerked her around until they were facing Morton side by side.

Morton took a step backward and then another. After a moment's survey of the couple before him he smiled, slowly. Deliberately turning his shoulder to them, he felt in his pocket for his cigaret case, opened it, took a cigaret and lit it.

"Now go on with the story," he told them.

The young man hesitated. The girl, though, threw her arms around her companion and hid her face.

"Oh, Joe, I'm so sorry," she wailed. "I'm so sorry. How did you know I was here?"

"I've been following you every night you went out," the young man said, fixing his eye on Morton. "Now I've found out who you've been meeting. I'm going to have you both pinched."

Morton, puffing at his cigaret, eyed them quietly. The girl stole a glance at him and then clung closer to the large young man.

"I'm so sorry! I'm so sorry!" she repeated.

The man took her by the arm and set her to one side. Then he advanced menacingly upon Morton.

"You've got to pay for this or you're going to be in dutch right!" he said menacingly. Morton tilted back his head and laughed. The young man was so near him that there was not room for a forward step, but Morton placed his fingers lightly on the other's chest and the man moved backward. Morton strolled to the end of the room, ran the shade curtain up, and stood looking into the dark street below. "When you folks have finished with your little melodrama just let me know," he said over his shoulder.

The man and woman looked at one another uncertainly. "Tackle him again, Joe," she whispered.

He advanced toward Morton. "Are you going to come across or am I going to call a cop?" he said, his voice raised.

Morton turned. "I'm not going to come across, and you're not going to call a 'cop.'" Morton flicked the ash from his cigaret and continued. "I believe they used to call this the 'badger' game," he continued. "You pretend that this lady is your wife. You both pretend that I've been caught with her. The idea is to get some money. Well, you don't get it."

His ear had caught a rustle from the inner room. Turning, he took a few rapid steps through the door. He was in a bedroom now. The lights were out and he could only distinguish the outline of a canopy bed and of a dressing table close beside the door. There was a movement in the corner. Quickly he reached toward a shrinking figure that was huddled behind a hanging. His hand fell on a garment and pulled the wearer toward him.

"I thought so," he said.

He led a girl, dressed in her street clothes, into the lighted drawing-room. It was Nona.

She covered her face with her hands. Morton looked at her a moment and then turned to the two others in the room.

"I think that will be about all for this evening," he said.

Without hurry he picked up his overcoat and put it on. He took his stick and hat and turned to the three who were watching him.

"It was not a good job," he said. "Actually, it was very poorly done. I'm afraid none of you are professionals. Nona, shall I say goodby?"

Nona tottered forward a step and slowly collapsed upon the floor. Her head was on her knees and a wrenching sob escaped her.

"I did it! I did it!" she jerked out.

"I know it," said Morton. "Goodnight."

He was on his way out the door when there came a sharp tug on his coat.

COWS ILL FROM SWEET CLOVER

Stanley Farley, of Douro Saved Herd Affected By Fodder.

UNUSUAL CASE.

DOURO, April 20.—A case that has aroused lively interest among local farmers, is the illness in the herd of cows belonging to Mr. Stanley Farley. On the morning of April 6, Mr. Farley noticed two cows panting and looking ill. A veterinary from Lakefield was called and pronounced the trouble to be sweet clover poisoning, that is a sort of anemia caused by sweet clover hay. By the time the veterinary arrived another was affected and next day three others were also ill only two of his herd escaping. Mr. Farley had only moved to the farm a week previously and began to feed hay purchased from the owner. The cows had previously been fed sweet clover bu t the new feed seems to have caused the trouble. Professional advice was obtained from Peterborough, but all had the same opinion—no chance of recovery and nothing to be done but feed to build up the watery blood. The cows ate almost all through their illness.

All but one (the first affected) is recovering rapidly, thus making the case a unique one, the first case known where a recovery occurred.

Mr. Reed, Dominion Government veterinary visited the farm on Thursday, April 15, and agreed with the diagnosis of the Lakefield and Peterborough men and also pronounced the case the first he had ever known where recovery took place. He also stated that the cow which may not recover may also have congestion of the lungs. Mr. Reed was very interested in the case and asked to be kept informed of the progress of the cows. As the financial loss would have been large, friends of Mr. Farley are glad to hear of the recovery of the animals.

The funeral of the late Francis McMurray was held on Thursday morning, from the residence of his father, Mr. John McMurray in the second concession, to St. Joseph's Church and cemetery. Rev. J. J. Garvey, of Lakefield sang the funeral Mass. The condition of the roads kept many from attending.

The pall-bearers were Mr. John McMurray, a brother, Messrs. Clarence, Leonard and Joseph McMurray and Patrick Allen (cousins), and Mr. Max McKeever.

Among those from a distance who attended were four sisters of deceased: Miss Emma, R.N., of Windsor; Miss Margaret of Montreal, Mrs. Michael Cain and Mrs. John McMahon of Peterborough.

Messrs. Frederick and John Burston, who were employed by Mr. R. Staples, for several months, left Wednesday for Western Ontario.

YOUNG LADIES' CLUB WORK IS EXHIBITED

Many Gather to View Results of Recent Sewing Course.

HAVELOCK, April 20.—A large gathering assembled at the Belmont town hall on the afternoon of April 13 to view the work of the Girls' Garment-making Club.

This exhibit was held under the auspices of the Belmont Women's Institute and Miss Hopkins of Lindsay, the examiner, sent by the Institute branch, Department of Agriculture, Toronto, was present, and awarded certificates of achievement to the following girls: Irene McGowan, Gertrude McGowan, Mary Anderson, Marian McMillan, Ruth Menzie, Nellie Tinney, Luella Anderson, Lillian Anderson, Annie Toms, Hazel Hubble and Annabelle McQuaig.

Miss Hopkins, in her address, complimented the girls on the excellence of their work and suggested that this exhibit be displayed at the district annual meeting.

Mrs. Charles Macoun, of Seymour, Provincial secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Women's Institute, was also present, and spoke of the great value of this comparatively new branch of institute work.

The afternoon was enlivened by the club songs of the girls, who at the close presented Mrs. J. A. Sexsmith, their leader, with a beautiful silver casserole and the following address:

Dear Mrs. Sexsmith—We, the girls of "The Garment-making Club," assembled here this afternoon, wish to convey to you our appreciation and gratitude for your interest shown us during our sewing club course. You gave us your time and never spared yourself in your efforts and have been untiring in your zeal and we are not unmindful of the kindness and interest you have taken in us. You efficiency as our instructress and your unfailing patience and encouragement when sharing your fund of knowledge have made our classes a pleasure to be looked forward to each week and a memory to cherish in the future apart from the help and knowledge we have gained to carry with us all through our lives.

Will you please accept this little gift as a slight token of our gratitude, our appreciation, and our respect.

Signed on behalf of the girls of "The Girls' Garment-making Club":

Luella Anderson,
Nellie Tinney,
Irene McGowan.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour spent at the close.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT W.M.A. MEETING

Presbyterian Ladies Are Getting Bale Ready for Shipment.

MILLBROOK, April 20.—The April meeting of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace church was held in the church parlors on Wednesday afternoon, the President, Mrs. R. J. Doak, being in the chair.

The attendance was large and a marked interest in the work was manifested. During the discussion of business items, arrangements were made for the preparation of the bale to be sent away in August; a complete outfit of clothing for a girl will be included in its contents, some warm quilts, and a quantity of hospital supplies, the latter being intended for the new Presbyterian hospital recently opened at Porcupine, Ont.

The study book, "Prayer and Missions," was taken up by Mrs. H. Hutchison and Mrs. W. T. A. Deyell in a most helpful manner, and Miss A. Stewart gave a reading, "Bible Promises in regard to Prayer."

Each member responded to the roll-call with a Bible verse on prayer, and when the opening Scripture lesson was concluded, each person present had a prayer promise to read.

Miss Kennedy gave a most interesting and inspiring report of the annual Presbyterial meeting held at Port Hope last week, Mrs. J. R. Eakins and Mrs R. J. Doak being the other two delegates to attend this gathering from the Millbrook Auxiliary.

A sale by Mrs. L. C. Russell was much appreciated. The watch word for the May meeting is "Faith," the response to the rollcall requiring a Bible verse which contains this word. Last month it was "Love," and this feature of the meetings has been found both interesting and instructive.

The Presbyterian Auxiliary holds its regular meetings on the second Wednesday of each month, the usual plan being to have the gathering entertained in a private homer Mrs. R. J. Doak is president, and Mrs. J. R. Eakins secretary.

Mrs. E. Whyte was called to Toronto last week owing to the illness of her sister, Mrs. J. Fitzgerald. The latter is improving in health, her many friends here will be glad to learn, but her daughter, Mrs. Wellington Pickup, is seriously ill with pneumonia.

The funeral of John Arthur Louis, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd McMahon, aged 3 years and 6 months, who passed away on Wednesday, April 14, took place on Friday at 2 p.m., from the residence of his grandfather, Mr. L. R. Morton, Tupper street. Interment was at St. Paul's cemetery, Fourth Line, Cavan. Rev. Canon Allen had charge of the services.

The Cosmos Club is preparing to hold a big sports' day at Millbrook on May 24, when soft ball, baseball, horse races, etc., will provide a good entertainment for all. A dance in the armouries in the evening will conclude the day's events. This is the first time for some years that the 24th has been observed locally with a field day of sports, attractions in nearby towns, or private parties planning their own way of spending the holiday, usually taking the majority of citizens out of town for the day.

The usual summer half holiday will be observed by the local merchants, beginning Thursday, May 6, when the stores will close at 12 a.m., and keep open on Wednesday evenings until October 1st.

SPRING IS COMING.

Warsaw People Are Getting Roads Broken For Wheels.

WARSAW, April 20.—Bare fields show very plainly; the sun gets in its work during the day.

The truck got to Peterborough on Tuesday and returned to Warsaw about 4 p.m.; cars are frequently seen.

The south half of the boundary was broken on Tuesday, but the drifts are still quite high.

All kinds of spring birds are in evidence.

It is still impossible for the Warsaw mail carriers to make their rounds after the stage leaves Warsaw, and a few places are inaccessible for any conveyance except those drawn by teams.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE IS PLANNING PICNIC

Committees Appointed by West Seymour Branch to Take Charge.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20. — The regular monthly meeting of the Seymour West Women's Institute took place on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Roy Fleming. The meeting opened by singing the Institute ode, followed by the Lord's Prayer. The secretary read a couple of letters from members, thanking the Institute for flowers sent to them while sick.

The Institute decided to have its summer meeting take the form of a picnic, which will be held on the grounds of Mrs. Charles Macouns home on June 17. Instead of the usual forms of invitations sent out other years, the Institute will send notices to the papers.

It was moved by Mrs. Thomas Dunham, and seconded by Mrs. McKee, that Mrs. Roy Fleming, Mrs. Marshal Longmuir and Miss Jessie Brown arrange for the programme of the picnic. Moved by Mrs. George Longmuir, and seconded by Mrs. Roy Fleming, that Mrs. George Brown, Mrs. Thomas Dunham and Miss Mary Stevenson be appointed as a lunch committee. Mrs. Ray McCulloch, Mrs. Douglas Rutherford and Miss May McArthur were chosen as the decorating committee.

A letter was then read by the president regarding the Girls' Conference to be held in Guelph the first week in May, and any girls wishing to go could apply. Moved by Mrs. Marshall Longmuir and seconded by Mrs. Roy Fleming, that Mesdames H. Clark, Macoun, Rutherford, McCulloch and Stillman and Miss Jessie Brown be appointed as a committee to arrange for the printing of the programmes for the coming year.

Mrs. Thomas Dunham gave a splendid paper, entitled, "Say No." Mrs. Reginald McCulloch gave a reading, "Girls' Problems." A prize had been offered for the best home-made paper flowers and Miss Rita Longmuir won the trophy, which was a nice china plate.

After the programme, the ladies joined in community singing, after which the hostess served a dainty lunch. Sixteen ladies answered the roll-call. The annual business meeting of the Institute will be held on May 20 at the home of Mrs. George Longmuir.

ANTI-PERUVIAN RIOT IN BOLIVIAN CAPITAL

Bolivians Think Peru Opposes Seaport For Their Country.

BUENOS AIRES, April 19.—(United Press).—A great anti-Peruvian demonstration occurred on Friday in La Paz, Bolivia, according to dispatches received here. An unconfirmed report emanating from La Paz says that two Bolivian soldiers were assassinated near the Peruvian frontier. Public excitement is high. Considerable ill feeling is said to have been caused by the belief in Bolivia that Peru is opposing a settlement of the Tacna-Arica controversy which would provide a Pacific port for Bolivia.

Chili and Peru claim Tacna and Arica, two provinces lying between those countries which are now controlled by Chili. Efforts to settle the dispute by plebiscite of the inhabitants have been unavailing so far and a diplomatic settlement is being sought in Washington. Cession of part of the territory to Bo-

RAILWAY BOARD WILL HEAR BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY'S PETITON FOR AN INCREASE IN LOCAL RATES

Toronto and Montreal Protest That Information Withheld By Company.

TO PRESENT FACTS.

President C. F. Sise on Stand at Hearing on Monday.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 20.—(Canadian Press).—The hearing of the application of the Bell Telephone Company for increased local rates in Ontario and Quebec will be proceeded with before the Board of Railway Commissioners. The decision to hear the case was only reached late Monday afternoon.

Throughout the morning G. R. Geary, M.P., counsel for the City of Toronto, and W. H. Butler, counsel for Montreal, had protested against going on with the case at the present time. The Telephone Company was, they claimed, witholding information to which they were entitled and which was essential to their case. While this information was not forthcoming, they could only ask an adjournment and an order from the Board for the production of the required facts.

Bring Out Facts.

F. H. Phippen, counsel for the Bell Telephone Company, defended the Company by saying that all the facts asked for by the municipalities would be brought out as the case for the companies was made before the Commission.

Late in the afternoon, the Commission unanimously ruled that the hearing should proceed. The Company then agreed to place their entire case before the Board and then the municipalities could, if they wish, seek an adjournment in order to prepare their reply. The first witness to take the stand not long before adjournment was C. F. Sise, President of the Telephone Company, who gave evidence regarding the financial administration of the firm.

The business in the West and in the Maritimes had been sold and today its activities were only in Ontario and Quebec.

The Company believed that 8 per cent. was a fair return to shareholders.

13,300 Shareholders.

"Bell Telephone securities have been made safe and non-speculative," said Mr. Sise. There were 13,300 shareholders, 88 percent. in Ontario and Quebec. Fifty-one percent. of the shareholders were women. Only five percent. lived outside Canada. The Company sought to protect the investments of these shareholders.

An 8 percent. dividend had been paid since 1891, shareholders had received rather less than that because $11,950,000 of the stock was sold at a premium. There had been no bonuses or extra distributions in the Company's history. Profits had been invested in the plant or invested for the support of the Company's credit. The value of the Company's property was $137,000,000.

"Had the rates now proposed been in effect for the whole year 1925, they would have produced a return of 4.5 percent. on the fair value of the property; or if book value be taken, a return of 6.25 on actual cost. This would have provided, under the Company's very conservative capitalization, sufficient for operating expense, proper depreciation, dividend and bond interest, and a surplus for contingencies of 3.3 percent. on the capital stock. If the new rates were in effect for the full year of 1926 they would produce, we estimate, a surplus of 2.4 percent. on capital stock.

Fell Short in 1925.

"In 1920 the Company not only failed to earn its dividend by over one million dollars, but fell short by $31,961.00 of earning interest due on bonds. In 1921 we failed to earn dividends by $776,000, and again came short in 1925 of fully earning them," said Mr. Sise.

It was shown by exhibits filed that while from 1917 to 1924 population increased by 17 percent., telephones in service increased 149 percent., or from 237,068 to 589,321.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE EXPLAINED

For Purpose of Co-ordinating Interests of Britain and Italy.

IN ABYSSINIA.

ROME, April 20. — (Canadian Press.)— The semi-official Stefani agency yesterday issued a statement concerning the negotiations between Great Britain and Italy with regard to Abyssinia. The statement is made, it says, to clarify the situation in view of the erroneous comments published in some of the English and French newspapers.

"These negotiations," the statement says, "have been for no other reason than to co-ordinate developing the economic interests of the two countries in Ethiopia, eliminating such differences as have existed among those concerned, so as to result in the realization of their interests by friendly collaboration."

PRISON TERM REDUCED.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 20. — Masyl Podoma, who was sentenced to 18 years imprisonment for manslaughter at the last assizes court, had the term reduced to ten years in the Court of Avveal Monday.

ENGINEERS DEMAND INCREASE IN WAGES

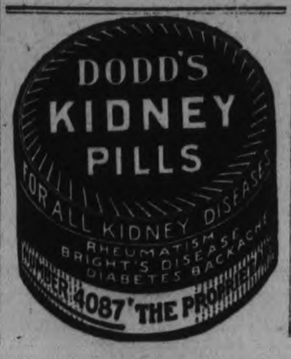
Another Strike Threat in British Industry.

LONDON, April 20 (Canadian Press).—Just as the crisis over coal was believed to be near some settlement, there appeared last night another storm-cloud on Britain's industrial horizon.

The deadlock in the engineering industry, ranking in national importance with that of coal, became most threatening when 17 engineering unions decided to issue strike ballot papers which are returnable May 31. The unions are demanding a 20 shillings weekly increase in wages.

The coal dispute is marking time, pending Prime Minister Baldwin's talk with the mine owners today.

There is reason to believe that the owners have been won over to consent to a national settlement of the question of minimum wages, provided the miners are willing to make a concession on the amount of the percentage of profits to be devoted to wages.



LASH FOR PEDDLERS OF NARCOTIC DRUGS

Proposed in Bill Introduced at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, April 20 (Canadian Press). — Professional peddlers of narcotic drugs may be given the lash in addition to any other punishment on conviction, if a bill introduced Monday by Dugald Donaghy (Liberal, North Vancouver) is adopted. The bill was given first reading.

Mr. Donaghy explained that the object of the bill was to put within the discretion of the judge the right to inflict the whipping penalty upon those who were convicted of habitual illegal trade in drugs. Under the present Narcotic Drugs Act the whipping penalty is provided only in the case of sale to minors.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen commented that it was really a matter for the Criminal Code, and the bill should have been brought in by the Government and not by a private member. There was no further debate on the initial stage of the bill.

Through With Politics Says Former Candidate

NEW YORK, April 20. — (United Press).—Because he believes this is "an era of intellectual dishonesty and hypocrisy," James M. Cox, who carried the democratic presidential banner in 1920, said he is out of politics for good.

In support of his contention that hypocrisy rules in politics, Cox cited the prohibition controversy with the drys claiming they ought to conserve the morality of the nation and the wets claiming prohibition was responsible for an increase in crime and disrespect of law. Cox also pointed to certain Senators who, he said, were playing for various racial votes.

Meanwhile Cox saw the "whole world laughing at us" over the Countess of Cathcart case, and predicted America might next expect an attempt to regulate the styles of hair cut, male and female.

HIGH PRICES PAID FOR POTATOES

Orland Man Gets $4.00 a Bag For Over 100 Bags.

APPLES PLENTIFUL.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20—Farmers who kept their potatoes over the winter are realizing fancy prices for them now. W. G. Latimer of Orland has disposed of his entire stock to a Colborne dealer and received $4 a bag for over 100 bags. Farmers in this vicinity are getting that figure for all they offer. In the stores here the price of the tubers has in the past week increased from 60 to 80 cents a peck.

Apples are almost a drug on the market and the best quality brings only 25 cents a peck in the stores. Some of the big dealers in apples will be heavy losers as a result of their investments during the past year. One of these who resides in Brighton bought thousands of barrels of No. 1 Spies last fall and kept them in storage all winter, hoping for an increase in price in the spring. That season arrived and he found his apples so much dead stock on his hands. He has been obliged to dispose of the entire lot to the evaporators at a heavy loss.

With the exception of potatoes there have been no changes to speak of in the price of farm produce during the past week. Eggs are 28 to 30 cents a dozen; dairy butter is 45 and creamery butter is 50 cents a pound. Hay brings from $10 to $12 a ton.

The prices for live stock shipped from this depot Monday was as follows: Hogs, 12½ cents; calves, 5 to 8 cents and fat cattle, 4 to 7 cents a pound live weight.

There will be an increased acreage of alfalfa sown this year but the farmers are awaiting the opening of the season before making their purchases.

CANADA MUST SAVE HER FOREST WEALTH

E. W. Beatty Makes Statement in Connection With "Save the Forest Week."

MONTREAL, April 20.— (Special.)—In connection with "save the forests week" held annually from April 17-24, E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, issued the following statement at the headquarters of the company:

"The conservation of the country's natural resources in line with their industrial development is of paramount importance to the Canadian people, although we have not much more than entered upon our heritage of tremendous production of forest products, the amount of money already employed in this branch of industry is well over five hundred million dollars. Canada's future prosperity will to some extent be governed by the way in which the present generation practices wise conservation of her forest wealth. We must learn by the experiences of older countries that now regret past prodigality in this respect and in line with the profitable development of our forest consuming industries we must take such measures of conservation and reafforestation as will maintain this country's place as one of the world's richest in these resources.

"Many thousands of Canadian citizens now gain their living from the lumber and kindred industries and such precautions as will prevent fire wastage is imperatively necessary for the coming welfare of Canada. The railways and the forest working industries do all they can to further this cause, but the immense sums of money they annually spend for that purpose cannot save the forests of Canada from unnecessary wasteful destruction unless the general public understands the full significance of these losses and takes an intelligent and active interest in conservation measures."

REV. MR. ALLAN TELLS OF LIFE IN AUSTRALIA

Journey To Island Continent and Scenes There Are Aptly Portrayed.

BEAUTIFUL VIEWS.

Lecture Given in St. Paul's Is Illustrated By Many Slides.

Several hundred citizens of Peterborough were taken on a most interesting journey to the most British of all the Dominions, the "Land of Sunshine and Hospitality," by the Rev. William Allan, in an illustrated lecture given in St. Paul's Church last night. The talk was entitled "A Scotsman in the Land of the Kangaroo," and described the scenery in Mr. Allan's trip to Australia and at his first charge there, at Mount Morgan, Queensland. Given in his own inimitable manner, and sprinkled with humor, the entertainment was most interesting.

Starting from Liverpool, Mr. Allan took his audience down the west coast of Africa to Capetown and thence east across the Indian Ocean to Albany in Western Australia. Scenes here, showing the city surrounded by beautiful pastoral lands, were the first shown. From here the trip was made across the great Australian Bight to Port Adelaide, and inland to Adelaide, capital of South Australia, and a beautiful clean city.

Melbourne was the next city visited and this modern city, with its splendid buildings and wide streets, was the subject of a great many slides. Pictures were shown of the race track, famous the world over, the cricket fields and business section, with its wide busy streets and fine buildings.

Sydney harbor, one of the greatest in the world, appeared in almost every picture shown of the capital of New South Wales. With its many bays and inlets, it penetrates for into the city and no portion is far from water. The great swimming beaches, the botanical gardens, Botany Bay, the convict settlement, all were scenes of great beauty. A view was shown of the harbor entrance, a mile and a half across and at no place less than 90 feet deep.

The next port of call was Brisbane, capital of Queensland, and another beautiful city, with a great botanical garden. After a short stay here the journey was continued to Rockhampton, a town noted for its flatness and its great heat, and where Mr. Allan became really acquainted with the Australian mosquito. From Rockhampton he went inland to Mount Morgan, a mining city with hardly a level stretch in its whole area. In fact, so much is it on the up and down that the people of the rival city of Rockhampton say that its inhabitants are always either leaning forwards or backwards. Many views of this city, which is reached by a saddleback railway, were shown. The dominating feature is the great mine, discovered by the Morgan Brothers, who bought the five hundred acres composing it from a squatter, who didn't know its value, for five hundred pounds. Noted first as a gold mine, it is now a great copper producer.

It was among the workmen of this mine that Mr. Allan was located for the first year of his stay in Australia. Views were shown of his manse, which was built in six weeks, and of many of the buildings of the city.

Mr. Allan concluded with a number of pictures of the plants, animals, and men of Australia, and wound up with a picture of the ship which took him from there to Vancouver on his way to New York, from where he came to Peterborough.

J. W. Anderson was chairman for the evening. Jack Smith sang two solos, which were much enjoyed. M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., was the accompanist and also gave several organ selections.

VISION AND TASK OF CHURCH ARE WELL TAKEN UP

Rev. Dr. Wilson Speaks at Meeting at St. Andrew's Church.

INSPIRING ADDRESS.

Occasion Was Ladies' Night Meeting of Men's Association.

Over two hundred members and friends attended the meeting of the Men's Association Church of St. Andrew's Church last night. The night was known as Ladies' night and was one of the most successful ever staged by the Association. Mrs. Doig and Douglas Carlisle rendered several very acceptable numbers and were heartily encored by the large crowd present. Miss Muriel Bridges and John Crane acted as accompanists.

The main speaker of the evening was the Rev. Dr. R. J. Wilson, Secretary of the Church Union Committee and the efficient manner in which he handled his subject "The Vision and Task of the United Church" was a source of inspiration to the whole gathering.

"This new thing" said Dr. Wilson, "is only possible because we are our father's sons and it is because of what our fathers did in 1875 and 1884 that their children were able to take the next great step forward and visualize the United Chuyrch."

Describing the wonderful scene that took place at the consummation of the United Church, when over 9,000 men took part in the ordinance of the Lord's supper and the breaking of bread Dr. Wilson said htat the supper was not for Presbyterian, Methodist or Congregationalist but was for all, irrespective of creed or color. This same spirit actuates the new spirit and temper that is in the Churches today. "Some," he said, "think it won't last and others hope it won't, but it is a tremendously wonderful new spirit and whether it will last or not is up to every member of the United Church and the spirit of the new Church is expressed in the verse 'He who is greatest among you is the servant of all'."

The people have tasted this new spirit and it is no mean vision that we should be the eye, hands, feet and heart of Christ.

"The task is ours," he said, "for weal or woe you're here—God put you here, these Churches are yours and by being good neighbors, citizens, business or professional men, the spirit of 'the love that wilt not let us go" will articulate itself and will finally resolve into your task," he said.

"Some people have not got beyond the perambulator stage, they can't walk and there was a time in the churches that we were afraid to offend lots of people but today it is just a question of people doing their task. This thing if it is alive will articulate itself in some manner and if your Church does not articulate the love of Christ and make men come to Church we must work in some other way until the last man within the sweep of our horizon is brought in.

"That," said Dr. Wilson, "is the task that is ours today. The words of the old hymn 'the sun that bids us rest is waking our brethren 'neath the western sky' is literally true of the United Church today, for the sun never sets on the work of the United Church as its missionaries are spread over the surface of the earth. It will strain our ingenuity expressing the 'love that wilt not let me go' spirit," he said, "but it is worth the strain and where there is no strain there is the activity of corruption."

Wheat Values Soar Upward Dry Weather Along Border

CHICAGO, April 20. — (Canadian Press.)— Wheat prices here took a decided upward swing early to-day, influenced by exceedingly dry weather both south and north of the Canadian boundary and by the fact that the Liverpool quotations on July wheat are at a full shipping difference compared with Chicago.

Chicago opening prices, 1 to 3-4 higher. May (new) 1.16 1-2 to 1.69. And July 1.45 to 1.45 1-4, were followed by a material further advance and then by a reaction in which part of gains were wiped out.

Corn and oats were responsive to wheat strength. Despite fine weather for field work. Opening 1-4 to 1-2 higher, May 74 1-8 to 74 1-4, corn market rose a little more, then eased down somewhat. Oats started 1-8 to 1-4 to 1-2 up, May 42 7-8 to 43 and held near to the initial range. Provisions were firm.

TORONTO, April 21. — (Canadian Press.)—Trading was scattered over a broad list on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, but the turnover was not particularly heavy. Brazilian and Smelters, the leaders, were both firm and the whole list showed strength. Brazilian advanced three-quarters at 87 1-2 and Smelters closed the morning 2 3-4 higher at 196. British Columbia Fishing recovered a point and a half at 32 1-2. Atlantic Sugar, which was fairly active, strengthened a quarter and half and Massey-Harris preferred improved one point at 94. Dome Mines eased 30 cents at 13.:.

Ewe Holds Lamb On Back While Standing In Sea

GERRAN, England, April 20 (United Press). — Hearing the bleating of a lamb, Charles Collins, a farmer, investigated and found the lamb, apparently standing on the water at the edge of the seashore.

He discovered it was perched on its mother's back. The ewe was completely submerged and dead but her legs were still and braced far apart, her feet buried in the sand to form a support for her offspring. Both, it was learned, had sought refuge in the water from an attacking dog.

SUB ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Chicago Banker Finances Outfit Under McMillan This Summer.

CHICAGO, April 20 (Canadian Press).—The Field Museum of National History announced an expedition to the sub-arctic this summer, led by Captain Donald E. Macmillan and financed by Frederick H. Rawson, Chicago banker.

The expedition will leave Wiscasset, Maine, about June 19th, in MacMillan's famous schooner, "Bowdoin," and will carry ten men, all explorers and scientists, on a scientific venture which will occupy the entire summer. The expedition will collect zoological, geological and antropological and botanical specimens for the institution from the sub-arctic region, which is not now substantially represented in the museum's collection.

Mr. Rawson agreed to finance the expedition upon the assurance of Stanley Field of the Museum that "The enterprise will be of great benefit to science in extending a knowledge of products of unknown lands."

ELECTRIC BOILER IS WORKING WELL

Is Producing Steam at Great Saving of Coal and Wages.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20.—The new electric boiler at the paper mill is now in commission and is working satisfactorily. The 1,000 horse-power generated in the power house, the equipment of which was recently installed, is used to produce steam in the new boiler and the limit of the capacity of the latter is 75 horse-power. In other words, 1,000 electrical horse-power produces 75 horse-power of steam. The new equipment is used as an auxiliary unit in the immense plant and it is estimated that the substitution of electricity for coal in heating will save about six tons of fuel every 24 hours, besides dispensing with the labor of a number of stokers.

Percy Denzes of town, formerly an engineer in the employ of the Hydro Commission, had the contract for putting in the electric fixtures, and has had a gang of men employed for nearly three months. All but one of these, William Pogue, an expert electrician from Peterborough, were local workmen—William Easton, forman; Ray Dunk, Walter J. Lowe, Harold Nicholls, Bert Nicholson, Albert Dunk, Ray Phillips and George Thompson.

PROSPERITY INDICATED.

By Record Sales of Dodge Cars in Canada Recently.

"That prosperity is rapidly returning to Canada is indicated by the phenominal sales record established by Dodge Brothers during the month of March," states Milo D. Herron, Director of Sales for Dodge Brothers (Canada) Limited. "Sales in Canada during March greatly exceeded the best previous month, since Dodge Brothers Motor Car was first introduced into Canada eleven years ago."

In spite of the fact that the production capacity of the Canadian Works has been doubled by introduction of additional modern equipment, the factory at Toronto has been unable to meet the unprecedented demand for cars.

Actual retail deliveries during March as well as for the two previous months have attained a volume never before experienced, at the same time as orders for future delivery are piling up in spite of the efforts of the factory to take care of them."—Authorized for publication, Dodge Brothers (Canada) Limited.

HE WAS UNABLE TO BEND HIS BACK

So Says Saskatchewan Man Before He Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Olaf Hansen is One of the Many Who Found Immediate and Complete Relief.

STRASBOURG, Sask., April 19.—(Special).—"I used Dodd's Kidney Pills one year ago. I had an awful backache and tried nearly everything for it except your Dodd's Kidney Pills. I got a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and after the first box I could feel my back was getting better.

"Before I started taking them my back was so sore that I could not bend my back, but now I can."

This statement comes from Mr. O. Hansen, a resident of this place. Other sufferers tell of pains relieved and health restored through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They act directly on the kidneys. They strengthen the kidneys and put them in good shape to strain all the impurities out of the blood. This is absolutely necessary if the body is to be kept perfectly healthy.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have built up their reputation only on the work they have done.

CAROL MAKES PEACE WITH PARENTS MAY RETURN HOME AS CROWN PRINCE

Suit of Zizi Lambrino May Be Settled Out of Court.

QUEEN POWERFUL.

PARIS, April 20.—Prince Carol of Rumania, who last Christmas renounced his rights as heir to the throne, has made up with his family and it is understood he will soon return to Bucharest. He is still in Paris.

On his return to the Rumanian capital he will resume his rights as Crown Prince. This decision has been reached in correspondence between Prince Carol and his father and mother, King Ferdinand and Queen Marie, and the Prince's friends point out that the fact that Queen Marie has made peace with her elder son is most important.

It is said here that the King of Great Britain helped to bring about the reconciliation.

Prince Carol's friends here say the fall of the Bratiano Government, against which the Prince fought, makes his return feasible. The opposition to ex-Premier Bratiano, which now holds power, was supported by the Crown Prince, whereas his mother supported M. Bratiano.

Will Marie continue to hold the whip-hand in Rumania, eclipsing the power of the King, or will Prince Carol's return result in the King, through his son, becoming the dominating figure in Rumanian political life?

Prince Carol's return to Rumania and his rights as Crown Prince will probably dispose of the suit for 10,000,000 francs brought against the Prince by Mme. Zizi Lambrino. The basis of her case was that under her separation agreement with Prince Carol, her rights as his wife returned when he ceased to be heir to the throne. If he becomes again heir to the throne her suit is, of course, weakened.

However, Prince Carol's acquaintances in Paris predict that before he returns to Bucharest the Lambrino suit will be settled out of court by payment of a sum of money to be supplied by the Rumanian King.

BUCHAREST, April 20.—Queen Marie, it is authoritatively stated, has given up the idea of joining the Greek Orthodox Church.

Return to Rumania Expected Before.

The near return to Prince Carol to Bucharest with the resumption of his dynastic and political titles and prerogatives was positively asserted by Edwin L. James in a dispatch to The New York Times from Paris printed on Feb. 27. Just prior to this the royal, legal and parliamentary departments of the Rumanian Government had solemnly accepted and confirmed the Crown Prince's renunciation, which had first been made known on Dec. 31, 1925, after His Royal Highness had fled from Bucharest to Milan.

Meanwhile, the 4-year-old son of Prince Carol and Princess Helen, eldest daughter of the late King Constantine of Greece, whom he had married in the spring of 1921, was named Heir Apparent, with a potential regency consisting of King Ferdinand's younger son, Prince Nicholas, the President of the Court of Cessation, and the Patriarch.

Menus for the Family

(By Sister Mary.)

Breakfast—Cereal, thin cream, smoked country sausage, apple sauce, graham gems, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Macaroni with peanut butter, bran bread, rhubarb custard pie, milk, tea.

Dinner—Stuffed mutton chops, baked potatoes, turnips in lemon sauce, water cress and orange salad, whole wheat bread, crisp cookies, strawberry fluff, milk, coffee.

Children under school age should not be allowed to eat the sausage suggested in the breakfast menu. A breakfast of cereal, cream, apple sauce, crisp toast and milk is ideal for small stay-at-homes.

Rhubarb Custard Pie.

Two cups diced rhubarb, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 3 tablespoons water, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons powdered sugar, few grains salt, plain pastry.

Pour boiling water to cover over rhubarb. Let stand five minutes and drain. Put rhubarb into a smooth sauce pan, add sugar and flour thoroughly mixed, butter and water. Bring to the boiling point, stirring constantly and cook until thick and smooth. Beat one whole egg and one yolk slightly and stir into rhubarb mixture. Turn into a pie dish lined with plain pastry and bake until custard is firm to the touch. Beat remaining white of egg until stiff and dry on a platter, using a wire whisk. Beat in powdered sugar and salt and spread over pie. Return to the oven for eight minutes to bake and color the meringue.

The oven should be hot when the pie is first put in in order to bake the crust. Reduce heat after ten minutes to bake the custard slowly.

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Shredded fresh pineapple, toasted wheat biscuits with hot milk, omelet, crisp rye toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Corn loaf with tomato sauce, Boston brown bread, apple and sponge cake pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Stuffed pork chops, scalloped potatoes, buttered spinach with mushrooms, endive salad, rhubarb bread pudding, milk, coffee.

A lamb chop or scraped beef patty should be provided for small children in place of the corn loaf. No meat is necessary for their dinner if it is served at noon-time. Scalloped potatoes, spinach, finely minced endive with lemon juice and oil and the pudding supply an ample evening meal for small persons.

Corn Loaf.

One can corn, 2 cups mashed sweet potatoes, 1-2 cup cream, 4 tablespoons butter, salt and pepper into hot mashed potatoes and combine with corn. Add remaining butter and yolks of eggs beaten until thick. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry and turn into a well-buttered baking dish. Cover with grated cheese and bake in a moderate oven for thirty minutes or until brown and firm to the touch. Serve with hot tomato sauce.

The loaf can be turned out on a hot platter and cut in slices to serve or "spooned" out of the baking dish.

Attractive Style Tendencies Distinguish This Daytime Frock

Shirrings are entrants in the new mode, and are topping many of the draperies on frocks of soft fabrics, such as this model developed in plaid taffeta. The bodice is tucked at the shoulders, and the top of the long full sleeves extend into the neck, forming, as it were, a yoke effect. The dress slips on over the head, and has a convertible collar that may be worn closed to the neck, or open as pictured. The foundation of the frock is straight, the circular panels being shirred to the pockets, which in turn are set onto the skirt. A narrow belt ties at the back. No. 1226 is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 bust requires 5⅛ yards 36-inch; or 3⅝ yards 54-inch material. Price 20 cents.

BUTTERICK 6781

The Gipsy girdle does three fashionable things. It defines the hip, gives the smart up-in-front line and suggests the new bloused effect. It is a very smart style and extremely becoming to most women. If you are very long-waisted, wear the dress without the girdle, for with the short skirt the girdled frock would make you look all body. Bois de rose Georgette makes a frock that can be worn all Spring and Summer and in town or out. An old-rose-and-blue-lavender print would be charming with the sleeve flare of the plain blue.

Spring Styles in Colorful Combinations

Printed Georgette and Charteuse Green Fashion These Garments.

Underthings which have been worn for the past few seasons are so simple in cut, that you would think it almost impossible to devise new fashions in them. Yet the designers are always surprising us with new ideas in the lingerie field.

Here, for example, are two new Spring combinations that contrive interest and newness in their color and cut.

The model at the left is a colorful type to be worn beneath any simple frock. It is made of printed georgette, of colorful flowers on a pale background. Black georgette binds the bodice and waist, and a pleated flounce of black georgette finishes the diagonally cut bottom.

At the right is a youthful affair of chartreuse green crepe, which follows the French plan in its use of cherry colored trimming against the pale green. The combination has an inset belt at each side where the fulness is confined, and uses binding of the cherry color to finish top and bottom.

For the women who prefer white combinations for warm weather wear, the shops are showing dainty affairs of white batiste, very simply made and finished with Irish or filet lace. Still others are rather tailored, being made without lace and using dainty hand hemstitching for their only trimming touch.

Most of the combinations of the moment have rather moulded bodices, following the lead of simple Spring frock to be worn over them.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A STRIKING OVERBLOUSE COSTUME

Pam and I have discovered an adorable little Frenchwoman.

She has a tiny shop on the Avenue and she spends her time creating gowns for a small list of exclusive clients.

Pam met her at luncheon with a friend one day snd she begged us to come in and see her any time we had a chance.

"I work all day alone and I grow lonesome for someone to talk to," she told Pam, in her adorable foreign accent.

So Pam has stopped by to call once or twice in the late afternoon after she has left the shop, and yesterday she invited me to go along.

"She has such good ideas, and is such fun to talk to," Pam explained.

I was glad to go and we found her busy sewing on a frock.

"I have to charge rather low prices, because I am not known," she explained to us. "When I grow famous, perhaps I can have a big modiste establishment like your Madame," she added, with a smile.

This little Frenchwoman who has such big ambitions was wearing such a smart blouse and skirt costume, that I am preserving a sketch of it here.

To begin with, she has dark hair which she wears drawn severely back from her face. She has lovely color and a touch of vivid lipstick as well. And she can wear vivid red to perfection.

That's the color of this graceful overblouse. Its material is crepe and the embroidery which traces slim panels on the crepe is done in heavy black silk thread.

Notice the ever so slight flare to the sleeves and the way the lower part of the blouse is split in front.

The short, rather tight skirt worn beneath it is of fine black broadcloth.

This is all, except for slim string sash of the red. This is tied at the side, for French people never seem to tie their belts in the good old-fashioned way at the back any more.

When we left, I confided to Pam that I was about to make an overblouse something like Madame's, to wear with a simple navy crepe skirt I have.

SPRING SALES.

By HEDDA HOYT

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, April 20 (United Press) —This year many shops are featuring after-Easter sales when nothing but new garments are sold at from one-half to one-third of the last week's price. A few years ago we were dubious about Spring sales that came so early in the season as many Winter frocks and garments were included among the so-called Spring stock.

Lately, however, women buy five frocks where they once bought one and so stores can well afford to offer vast reductions on new goods. Some frocks are placed on sale when they are shown since they are 'specials' sent out to establish a style.

It doesn't pay to wait for the mid-season sales and reductions these days. By the time Mid-season has approached most of the unusual models have been sold off and those remaining are soiled through handling. The frocks and suits shown early in the season are usually "picked" stock which has been selected to promote interest in the new season. Many such models are sold at very near their cost since their manufacturer finds that he cannot duplicate them to sell at a profit. Thus one gets an individual model at practically it's cost price.

Millinery departments always show their best hats just before and just after Easter. One can find shapes now which can't be duplicated later on. Some of them were made to sell to the fashionable Southern Resort trade and are distinct models.

Of course, imports and costly garments and hats are never sold below cost until the season for selling them is well over. By that time, few women are interested in purchasing them and holding them over for another year. One must be very cautious in buying the vastly reduced garment which originally was high-priced. Select a style that will be as good next season as it is this season. Its lines and colors can't be exaggerated and there must be sufficient material to allow for future alterations.

Fashion Notes.

By HEDDA HOYT

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, April 20 (United Press) —The "just right" hat of the moment is the little pastel felt shape with a spray of ostrich brush feathers of matching hue low at one side. Certain dust shades of pistache green, bois de rose, lavender-blue, etc., are exactly matched by burnt ostrich fancies. These bonnets can be worn for dress as well as for semi-sports wear. An unusual manner of using ostrich as a trim is where a turban-shaped felt has glycerined ostrich quills laid about the base of the crown with tabs of ostrich extending downwards over either ear after the manner of the Egyptian headdress.

Crystal beads are as popular as ever at evening time. However the price of real crystal chains has been so reduced that almost everyone can find a strand for about half their original price.

The newest sports scarfs are squares of heavy silk combining two shades of one color in stripe effect. Thus the background will be orchid and the stripe may be a deep violet. Heavy ribbed silks are much in demand of late.

Knitted sports frocks and coats will be extremely popular at resorts this Spring. Already we see the jumper frock made of lovely knit material. Straight-lined coats of knitted silk and wool are inexpensive and very smart. Usually two colors or shades of one color are combined in a pattern. That is, the pattern will be raised from the background of contrasting color. The waffle weave is quite popular and large diamonds or plaid squares are equally so.

HER OWN WAY

RESULTS

"Judy, you don't think Buddy saw me, do you, and did not recognize me! I'd die if he has forgotten me!" cried Mamie frantically as she shook me from sleep.

"Of course he hasn't forgotten you, silly. He did not see you at all," I comforted sleepily.

"But Judy," he came to get his hat after his supper was over and he handed me a dollar as he handed me the check."

This statement rather flabbergasted me, but I asked:

"Did he look at you, Mamie, when he gave you the dollar?"

"No. He looked right over my head. He seemed to be thinking of something that was quite foreign to anything in the restaurant. He wasn't there at all, and, Oh, Judy, he looked so sad. You know, I almost spoke to him. I think I would have if his wife had not come up and told him to hurry, that she was tired and wanted to get home. She said it had been a stupid party, that she hated parties without anything to drink.

"He didn't say a word, just turned to her mechanically with a sigh and followed her out.

"There's one comfort about it, Judy, if he didn't seem to see me, he didn't seem to see her either and she was right under his nose."

With a groan Mamie threw her hands over her head. I don't know whether she went to sleep directly or not but I'm sure I did.

The next morning before I was up —Mamie and I both slept until after nine, for when we both worked at the restaurant at night we didn't go back until noon the next day—a messenger brought me a package. In it I found a gorgeous new brocaded silk bag which I opened to see a vanity case, a small lipstick in a case, a bottle of perfume in a case, a lovely embroidered handkerchief and a brocaded purse in which were two one hundred dollar bills and one fifty.

Mamie forgot her own troubles at the sight of my treasure trove.

"Now, wasn't that splendid of Mr. Hathaway!" she exclaimed. "He has made those people come across with enought to fit that bag up with all those gorgeous things and the two hundred and fifty besides!"

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

TOOTH ACHE

As a child, you may have thought a tooth solid right through just as a piece of ivory which it resembled.

Then one day, you noticed that when something sweet got into the 'hole' in a tooth, it hurt a little, but this soon passed away.

So you kept 'mum' for fear you would have to go to the dentist.

Until, one night you wakened your parents with crying and announced between sobs that your tooth was 'hurting.'

Now, what had happened? Within each tooth is a chamber that is filled with soft tissue—blood vessels and nerve and the decay which is a disease process, had been steadily progressing towards the "inside" until the soft tissue had become infected by the disease bearing organisms.

Then Nature had rushed to the defense to combat them by sending into the tooth a greater supply of blood, containing millions of little warirors called 'phagocytes.' Some of these burst through the vessel walls to attack the organisms and with this increase of blood, there was a swelling of the tissue, causing increased pressure on the nerve endings—which signalled to headquarters—and so pain resulted.

And, just as in battle, as the fight wages, the wires grow hotter—so the nerves signalled more furiously, crying loudly—until, by and by the fight was over and the wires cooled off and the pain was stilled—and you were so glad that it was over, that you forgot to wonder—how it stopped.

BIT O' NEWS!

"It's a Woman!" Whenever the populace sights an automobile accident, this cry arises in a mighty breath! "The woman driver" has been synonymous of all that was careless and plain-darn-foolish in motor piloting. But this popular belief is even worse darn-foolishness according to a national survey just completed. With a mighty breath, state registrars of motor vehicles, insurance companies, police commissioners, declare that "women are much safer drivers than men!" Y-aa-a-h

* * *

Coal miners' strikes, carpenters' strikes, plumbers' and street car conductors' strikes, and now we are about to have husband and wife strikes! A forerunner, possibly, of children and parent strikes! In Russia an entire villageful of wives congregated in the town hall where they wrote up their terms. "We married women live under harsh conditions," they wrote. "Our men beat us, treat us like cattle. We shall not return until they agree to no longer lift their fists against us." The husbands promptly signed.

COLOR IN HOMES

The "lady" of the older vintage who was raised to believe that no "lady" wore colored underwear, is the same who believes that no decent table is covered with aught but a primly starched white tablecloth. Too bad! I have seen the entire tenor of homes change when mother dared spread orange linen on her lunch table and frost it with a bowl the color of sapphire.

CLOTHES

"The successful business woman" spends something like $525 a year on her clothes, according to a budget tale in a current woman's magazine. And even then the winter coat is but $65! Eighteen pairs of stockings a year contrasts with another magazine article quoting factory girls as saying that "a new pair every week are none too many if you keep your legs looking right."

WHAT WOMEN ARE SAYING

"Twenty years in the practice of medicine gives a real opportunity to see humanity in the raw. The veneer of social life is worn very thin when sickness enters the home. When I retired from practice I realized that among all my patients of 20 years there was only one married couple whom I knew to be entirely happy," said by Dr. S. Josephine Baker of the U.S. Department of Labor.

The Home Kitchen

TEMPTING WAYS OF SERVING MUSHROOMS

The mushroom has been a staple article in Europe and Eastern Asia for centuries, gathered and marketed daily. But no country is richer in this wholesome and palatable food than our own. Mushrooms may substitute for meat if properly prepared. They should be wiped with a clean cloth and peeled for cooking. Owing to their highly nitrogenous content they decay quickly and should be prepared and used when fresh and sound.

Mushroom Soup.

Heat a pint of carefully made white stock or chicken broth and a pint of milk. Add the juice of an onion, and a tablespoonful of finely minced celery. Wash, peel and add the chopped stems of a half pound of mushrooms. Cut the caps into four pieces each and saute them in butter until they are a delicate brown. Stew the stock for a half hour, then thicken with brown roux to the consistency of heavy cream and add the mushroom caps. Should the soup seem too heavy, add a small cupful of hot, light cream.

Stewed Mushrooms.

Wipe, peel and cut one pound of fresh mushrooms. Place them in a porcelain-lined saucepan with two heaping tablespoonfuls of butter divided into eight lumps, each rolled in flour. Cover heat slowly, and cook gently in their own liquor and the butter for fifteen minutes, then add two tablespoonfuls of thick cream, salt and pepper. Take from the fire and add a well beaten egg yolk and a tablespoonful of sherry flavoring or a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce. Serve at once. Garnish with toast sippets and parsley.

Italian Mushroom Stew.

Wipe, peel and cut one pound of mushrooms down through the top and stem. Put in a stew pan with a grated onion, salt, pepper, two tablespoonfuls of olive oil, a little chopped parsley, taragon leaves, sweet pepper, and sweet herb leaves. Stew until the juice runs freely, then dredge with enough flour to thicken slightly and add the juice of half a lemon. Serve in a hot dish garnished with toast sippets.

Mushroom Omelette.

Wipe, peel and chop a quarter pound of fresh mushrooms. Beat six eggs well, add pepper, salt and two tablespoonfuls of cream. Have a tablespoonful of butter melted in the omelette pan, turn in the omelette, stir in the mush rooms, stir one way for a few minutes until heated through, then cook lightly brown in the oven and fold in the usual way, serve on a hot dish garnished with sprays of fresh watercress.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

(By Edson R. Waite, Secy., Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.)

That you should sound your city's praises all the time. Her commerce and industries provide subjects galore.

That your city stands on the threshold of a new and sound prosperity. She has withstood the stress and turmoil of the past few years in a way that proves what she can do.

That you should get the peppy spirit of your city and boost it energetically and optimistically.

That the significance of your city's possibilities for development and growth is becoming more apparent every day.

That you should use every opportunity to present to the world the attractive features of your city.

That your city can have greater prosperity if you and your fellow-citizens are willing to work for it.

That you should boost with vigor—give your city the credit she deserves.

That the growth of your city should be an occasion of pride and profit to you.

You should be a great believer in your city and face every issue for your city's betterment with an open mind and a willing heart.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Nature provided a perfect covering for the body by giving it the elastic, firm and attractive skin. No matter how the body is bent or twisted, the flexible tissue takes up the slack and adapts itself to the unusual position.

The appearance and condition of the skin give the keen observer a very accurate idea of the state of health of its owner. One of the first things the doctors does is to survey the skin, to see if it is pale or flushed, parched or swollen, clear or in a state of eruption.

The earliest sign of many disturbances can be found here. The flushed neck is the first sign of scarlet fever, even earlier than the sore throat.

An eruption on the face or forehead may be a warning that measles have arrived. Fainting, apoplexy and other conditions give warning in the face.

Indigestion, intestinal fermentation, constipation, defective kidney elimination, and various food and drug poisoning may involve the skin. One common form of skin disturbance is known as nettlerash or hives. The doctors call it "urticaria."

When a mosquito bites you, it produces a swollen wheal or elevated spot. In urticaria there will be a number of such places. Every one is the center of a lot of itching and burning.

Without warning, out will come these spots. They may be limited to a small area, or the entire body may be involved.

If you have never seen a case, you will be alarmed by the looks of the skin. Round, hard lumps, white centered and surrounded by redness, are characteristic of urticaria. The victim cries with agony on account of the itching and smarting.

The frightful eruption disappears in a few hours. It is very real while it lasts.

Almost always it is easy to determine that some digestive disturbance is to blame for the skin symptoms. A few questions will settle it. Indiscretions in eating and the eating of articles known to be upsetting are the plain cause of the trouble.

Certain food stuffs are particularly troublesome. Shellfish, and other fish, too, and strawberries are particularly likely to produce nettlerash. Cream has this effect sometimes.

You may be surprised to know that nettlerash may be classified with asthma and other nervous disorders. Food poisoning or indigestion may produce one or all of these conditions. There is an unquestionable relationship between asthma and nettlerash.

The first effort in every case is to stop the terrible itching. For this purpose there is nothing better than hyposulphite of soda. If the area involved is small, dissolve a tablespoonful of hyposulphite of soda in a cup of water. Sop it on the itching parts.

If the whole body is involved, add a pound of the soda to a bathtub a third full of water. Get into this solution and soak. Repeat the treatment an hour later.

Permanent cure will be found only when the offending food is prohibited or when the digestive disturbance is overcome.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

I. J. G. Q.—What would cause a distress in the head similar to cold? I have had this condition for nearly two years.

A.—Due to a catarrhal condition. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

A SUFFERER. Q.—What would you prescribe for stiffness and inflammation in the joints due to arthritis?

A.—First of all determine the cause of infection. The teeth, tonsils, sinuses, intestines and kidneys are all possible sources of the trouble. Heat and massage should give relief. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

MRS. M. M. F. Q.—What causes the tip of my nose to be very cold as soon as I go to bed. As I breathe through my nose I cannot cover it up and it therefore keeps me from sleeping.

A.—Poor circulation is probably responsible. Improve your general health and your circulation will also improve.

G. T. Q.—1. What causes heartburn? 2. What causes me to have a headache? 3. What causes a metallic taste in my mouth all day?

A.—1. This condition may be due to hyperacidity, an acid condition of the stomach. This should be corrected. 2. Eye strain, infected teeth, tonsils and sinuses, intestinal disturbances, high blood pressure, kidney condition or catarrh. 3. Constipation is probably the reason for this and should be attended to. For further information send a self-addressed stamped envelope and restate your question.

MISS R. B. Q.—What do you advise for pimples?

A.—A restricted diet, avoiding an excess of sweets and starches and regular intestinal elimination should clear up these blemishes. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

MRS. MARIE W. Q.—What causes continual yawning?

A.—This is probably due to autointoxication. Correct your diet, and avoid poor intestinal elimination.

* * *

G. M. Q.—What causes cracking joints?

A.—This condition is due to lack of synovial fluid. Massage the parts with warm cod liver oil before retiring. This will probably help you.

* * *

O. N. N. Q.—What are the small lumps on the back of the tongue?

A.—These are probably the taste glands.

A CONSTANT READER. Q.—What can one do for an unpleasant breath?

A.—This is often caused by constipation and should be corrected by proper exercise and dieting. For further information send a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Corn
gone in half-an-hour

Thanks to Radox Bath Salts.

The true facts behind the picture above are best told in the customer's own words. Here they are:—

"My wife tried plasters, salves, "salts and soda to try and cure her "corn which has nearly driven her "mad the last three months. But "they moved neither the corn nor "the pain. We sent for Radox Bath "Salts at 6 o'clock and at twenty "minutes to seven my wife was "pulling the corn out, after years "of agony. Radox is worth $20 a "package."

When you put your feet in a foot-bath containing Radox the salts soften the hard outer layers of the corn and the oxygen which Radox liberates enters the pores, opens them, and penetrates further and further, carrying the corn-softening salts right to the root of the corn, which is thus loosened so that it can be lifted out bodily. This life-giving oxygen leaves the feet clean and healthy. Because it is the oxygen which carries the corn solvents to the root of the corn, and because Radox liberates, by test, more oxygen than any other salts, it is obvious that Radox is more efficient in removing corns than any other salts. Radox Bath Salts do not affect the living skin. It is only the corn which they dissolve. Your druggist stocks Radox Bath Salts. 60c. Half pound Pink Pkg.

WHERE A SHARED MEAL IS THE TOKEN OF AN ENGAGEMENT

Among the Fiji Islanders a girl rarely grows to the mature age of ten without being married. Very probably she will be betrothed almost as soon as she is born. In particular the daughter of a chief will be bespoken at a very tender age.

If the young man to whom she is betrothed should by any chance regret the choice that was made for him by his parents, he must nevertheless go on with the bargain at the risk of causing a serious quarrel, for his refusal to marry the girl would be considered a deadly insult.

In the case of a young man who makes his own choice, the procedure is very clearly laid out for him. The etiquette of the occasion demands that certain forms be carried out.

First the young man must make his wish known to the girl's father. When he has gained the parent's permission, he presents some slight gift to the girl of his choice.

The next step in the betrothal is the presentation on the part of the young man of some food prepared by his own hands. This food is sent to the home of his future bride. The ceremony is known as "Warming."

Then for four days the girl rests, amidst the admiration of the entire community. Arrayed in her best clothes, painted with tumeric and oil, she sits in state. At the end of the four days, she is taken down to the sea by the married women and is set to catching fish. The women help her to make her haul.

After the fish is cooked and prepared, the young man is sent for and the betrothed couple partake of the meal together. This is the final ceremony in the betrothal.

The Betrothal Dish Is of Fish.

Following this, the young man sets to work in earnest to prepare a home for his bride. And when the house is completed, there is a great feast to which all of the community is invited. That is the wedding ceremony. At the end of it the bride goes to her new home, amid the tears and kisses of her family and friends.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER EIGHTEEN—THE MONEY IN THE BREAD

"We'll go and call on Mrs. Woodchuck next," said Mister Tingaling to the Twins. "I saw her husband go away this morning, but I suppose he has left the money with her. He knows that I always come around to collect my rents on the thirty-second day of the month."

So off they went to the Woodchuck's house between the potato-patch and the fence.

Tap, tap, tap! they went on her front door.

Now Mrs. Woodchuck was baking bread when she heard the rap on her door. And she knew pretty well who it was.

She had been thinking as she worked. She was thinking. "Oh, dear! I wish I had a new silk dress! I'm so sick of my old gray wool! I wish I had a lovely dress like Mrs. Bluebird!"

And she was wishing more than that. She was wishing that she had a new hat. A new hat with lovely red on it, like Miss Yellowhammer's!

And she was wishing also that she had a shawl. A shawl of black and white, like Mrs. Woodpecker's.

Besides clothes, she was wishing that she had a new rug for the hall, and new dining room curtains, and a new set of bedroom furniture.

That's what she was thinking about as she kneaded her bread and made it into loaves to put into the oven.

When she heard the knock on the door, she said to herself, "Oh dear! If I could use the money that Wally left in the tea pot on the mantel I could have such a lot of things!"

Tap, tap, tap! came the knock again.

This time Mrs. Woodchuck took down the tea pot and shook out the money. It fell right into the soft bread dough and sank in. You couldn't see it at all!

That gave Mrs. Woodchuck an idea, and she had to laugh.

She went to the door and opened it, wiping her floury hand on her apron.

"Why, how do you do, everybody," she said. "Come right in. I suppose you are after the rent money, aren't you, Mister Tingaling?"

"That's what I am! You're a very good guesser, Mrs. Woodchuck. It's rent money I'm after, sure enough!"

"Well, do you know, Mister Tingaling," said Mrs. Woodchuck with a twinkle in her eye, "Wally left me the money this morning, but it's disappeared and I can't see it anywhere."

"You don't say so, Mrs. Woodchuck," said the fairyman, making such a wry face that the Twins felt sorry for him.

"Yes, sir!" said Mrs. Woodchuck. "That's a fact! The money has disappeared completely."

"Well, I'm sorry," said Mister Tingaling. "Someone may have taken it when you were upstairs or somewhere." going to the oven to see if the bread was baked. It doesn't take woodchuck bread long to bake, you know.

"Won't you take a loaf home to your wife, Mister Tingaling?" she asked. "It will be all nice and fresh for your supper."

"Thank you! I'll be delighted," said the fairyman.

Now, my dears I suppose you think Mrs. Woodchuck kept the money that fell into the bread to buy her spring clothes with.

But you're wrong. She never thought of such a thing. She gave Mister Tingaling the loaf with the rent money in it, and he found it that evening when the bread was cut.

Mrs. Woodchuck was only playing a joke.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

WEDNESDAY APRIL 21.

A day of rather adverse circumstances is the forecast based on the unfavorable activities of the plants, both by mutual and lunar direction. The affliction of powerful orbs portends trouble and complications in business and urges the conservative manipulations of the finances, warning against fraud and deception, especially in new undertakings. Sign all writings with the utmost caution and do not add to difficulties by rash and impulsive moves.

Those whose birthday it is should fortify themselves for a trying year in which they may be beset with many difficulties, especially through fraud and misrepresentation. They should protect the finances and refrain from strife and tumultuous actions. Conservatism may win the day from disaster.

A child born on this day will require excellent training to form a responsible and trustworthy character. Self-control, integrity, veracity, should be inculcated.

LIFE.

Just what are we striving for, here on this earth? Why is it we all love to live? Are things that we're getting, from day to day, worth as much as the things that we give?

Take selfishness, hatred and envy and such—what happiness comes from their lot? You know very well that they'll ne'er bring you much of whatever the cheer that you've got.

But love and real friendship, and all things akin, keep spirit, that's brightest, outstanding. Their part of our living lets real sunshine in—the thing that we're always demanding.

The love of all life is the brotherly brand, and woe comes whene'er we forsake it. 'Twill better the world when we all understand that happiness lives as we make it.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

BETTY TAKES A RIDE IN A NEW STYLE AIRSHIP

"Oh, dear!" laughed Betty as she blew the soft milkweed seed, with its dainty, feathery sail into the air. "I wish it was an aeroplane and would take me for a ride."

"And why not?" laughed a soft voice. Then before Betty knew just what was happening, she found herself perched in the wee brown seed boat under the milkweed's fluffy sail. "Now then, where to?" asked the elfin smiling up at the astonished Betty. "What's your geography lesson for tomorrow? We might just as well make it around your lesson."

"Then let's take a peek at the Indies," said Betty. "Gocomeback, you're a brick. When I visit these places with you I can always recite so much better."

"Nothing like making believe you really visit the places," declared the elfin. So away they sailed over the mountains and seas until they hovered over a group of islands just a little south of the southern part of Asia.

"Now those are called the Indies, the largest islands in the world, so they say," the elfin stated.

"They must be warm," declared Betty. "for I'm almost roasted."

"Yes, they are all hot countries and have plenty of rain," replied Gocomeback. "They are noted for their great variety of both vegetable and animal productions. Also they are very wealthy in minerals too. Diamonds, rubies, emeralds and most all those stones are found in these rich islands."

"That's What I Smell."

"My goodness! What a wonderful cluster of islands," mused Betty. "And what else do they have, Gocomeback."

"Well, this is the country of the pepper, the clove, cinnamon and the nutmeg, too," replied Gocomeback."

"Maybe that's what I smell," laughed Betty, sniffing the air. "It smells fine."

"That is what you smell, all the spices," replied the elfin. "That island there," pointing to one of the prettiest of the cluster, "is called Java. Here is where we get our Java coffee from."

"Mama and Daddy drink Java coffee most all the time," said Betty. "I shall tell them I floated over the island where it is raised. Won't that be interesting?"

"Yes and you'll find many rare kinds of wood and rich fruits here too," said Gocomeback. "You'll find just as wild animals in these islands as you'll find in Africa. The people here make lovely shawls and the finest of muslins. They carve beautiful things from wood, ivory, pearl and gold."

"Well, I never knew these things before," said Betty. "Thank you, Gocomeback, I hope I can remember all you've told me."

"Just jot them down on paper," said Gocomeback as they once more lighted in Betty's yard in North America, "and when you go to bed, stick the notes under your pillow and you'll remember them."

Betty thanked Gocomeback again and ran into the house to jot down the things she had learned about the Indies. She did as the elfin told her and sure enough the next day Betty had the best lesson in class.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

MILLER'S CANADIAN HERB JUICE May Now Be Obtained in Peterbore

The new product, MILLER'S CANADIAN HERB JUICE, although only on the market a few months, has created a decided sensation in every city in which it has been introduced. Scores of sufferers who have secured prompt and permanent relief from stomach diseases, imperfect digestion, liver trouble, constipation and biliousness are voluntarily expressing their gratitude by giving statements for publication.

HERB JUICE is manufactured from a formula decided upon by prominent physicians after years of study and practice. HERB JUICE as the name implies, is prepared from herbs, roots and barks placed on earth for the healing of mankind. Indians lived to a ripe old age, kept healthy and enjoyed life due to the fact that they lived near nature and all of their medicines were prepared from herbs, roots and barks. Years of study and practice have demonstrated the fact that many of the diseases and sufferings of mankind are caused by an accumulation of poisonous waste in the body, due to stomach diseases, imperfect digestion, liver stomach trouble, constipation and many other troubles such as unsound sleep and bad blood. If the elimination organs are working properly the food is converted into rich blood, if not working properly the fermented mass generates poison that is absorbed into the blood. HERB JUICE, the new herbal remedy, acts on the organs of elimination not on the bowels alone. It gradually tones the stomach, liver and bowels and stimulates these organs to more vigorous activity in a mild, general, natural way without discomfort or distress and the only after effect is glorious relief and benefit.

YOUNG CANADIAN LOWERS WORLD MARK IN BOSTON MARATHON RACE DEFEATS STENROOS AND DEMAR

Clipped Four Minutes Off Clarence Demar's Time Made in 1924.

FIRST LONG RACE.

Astonishing Achievement By John C. Miles, of Sydney Mines, N.S.

BOSTON, April 20 (Canadian Press).—A Canadian youth of 18, running his first marathon race, set a new world record yesterday.

John C. Miles, of Sydney Miles, N.S., was first home in the 30th Boston A.A. marathon in a field of 88 runners, which included Albin Stenroos, of Finland, Olympic champion, and Clarence Demar, of Melrose, four times winner of the event. The winner's time was nearly four minutes under the world record set by Demar over the same course in 1924.

It was a two man contest almost from the start at Hopkinson. Miles drew away from the field at Natick, five miles from the starting line, pounded along on the heels of the Olympic champion to Lake Street, five miles from home, and in the final stretch sprinted away to finish 400 yards in the lead.

Forced Stenroos' Pace

The Nova Scotian set a pace that forced Stenroos himself to clip 1-5 second off the old world record. Mile's time was 2 hours, 25 minutes, 40 2-5 seconds. Stenroos covered the 26 miles, 385 yards in 2.29.40. The old record was 2.29.40 1-5.

The veteran Demar, who won the event in 1911, 1922, 1923 and 1924, was a poor third at the finish line at the Boston A. A. clubhouse here. His time was 2.32.15. Demar started the fight and was cheered by thousands at every checking point along the route, but the pace was too fast for the Melrose printer. William Kennedy, of Portchester, N.Y., the only other former winner entered in the race, finished in eighth place in 2.44.01.

The Finnish-American A.C. of New York was awarded the team trophy, given this year for the first time in connection with the race. Entries from this club finished second, sixth and seventh in the marathon. There were, in order, Stenroos, Karl Koski and Nestor Erickson.

First Twelve Home

The first twelve runners to finish were:

1. John C. Miles, Sydney Mines, N.S. 2 25 40 2.5
2. Albin Stenroos, Finland 2 29 40
3. Clarence Demar, Melrose 2 32 15
4. Albert R. Michelzen, Portchester 2 34 03 2.5
5. Wallie Carlson, Dorchester 2 40 35
6. Karl Koski, N. Fork..2 41 22
7. Nestor Erickson, New York 2 42 35 2.5
8. Wm. Kennedy, Portchester, N.Y. 2 44 01
9. J. Foxcroft-Carleton, East Sandwich 2 44 20
10. Arthur R. Scholes, Toronto 2 48 14
11. Thomas E. Quinlan, Medford 2 53 32
12. Christopher Bolekos, Osterville 2 53 49

Young Miles, the first Canadian to win the event since Edourd Fabre, of Montreal, led the field in 1915, was fresh at the finish. He said later that he had never before entered in a race over a course of more than 10 miles. Next week he is to engage in a three-mile race.

Although born in Cardiff, Wales, he has spent most of his life in Sydney Miles, N.S., where he drives a grocery wagon. He has worked in the coal mines, but not as a miner.

He was trained for the race by his father, John W. Miles, who formerly was a boxer. Miles had never run over the Hopkinton-Boston course, but walked over it once to study the terrain. Both of his parents were at the clubhouse to greet him when he broke the tape at the finish.

Other Canadians

Countrymen of Miles and Scholes, who finished in good form, were:

James A. Dellow, Gladstone A.C., thirteenth, 2.54.52.

Francis O'Donnell, Montreal A.A.A., fourteenth, 2.55.29.

Charles A. Snell, Gladstone A.C., twenty-second, 3.04.10.

In winning the club trophy the Finnish-American A.C., New York, had a total of 15 points. The Cygnet A.C., Portchester, N.Y., was second with 32 points by placing Michelson in fourth place, Kennedy in eighth, and John Rosi in twentieth. The Gladstone A.C., Toronto, was third with 45 points, the Millrose A.C., New York, fourth with 74, and the Dorchester Club, Boston, fifth with 84.

After the race Stenross said that the only difficulty he had found with the course was among the Newton Hills, where the steep grade wore down his strength. Stenroos had complained that the course was too short. At the finish he said he believed it to be long enough.

Demar's Compliment

Demar congratulated the winner and then said:

"He's a wonderful runner. If at 18 he can better my record by four minutes, I don't know what he will be doing after he has been running 17 years and has reached my age."

Advice is seldom welcome; and those who want it the most always like it the least.—Chesterfield.

Truth is mighty and will prevail.—Brooks.

RICKARD IS READY TO SIGN DEMPSEY

Gene Tunney Probably the Contender For Crown.

FORT WORTH, April 20 (Canadian Press). — Tex Rickard arrived here Monday to sign articles of agreement today with Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, for a championship match next August or September in which Gene Tunney probably will be the contender for Dempsey's crown.

All arrangements for the signing of the articles were conducted by wire and were completed before Rickard left New York.

Dempsey endeavored to have Rickard meet him in El Paso Saturday, but the promoter asked Dempsey to met him farther east. Fort Worth was chosen because Rickard's old home was at Henrietta, not far west of here.

"Tunney, in my opinion," said Rickard, "is the logical man to meet Dempsey. Tunney is a better fighter than Wills, and for that reason, I expect to send him in."

Rickard explained that he had Tunney already under contract and that as soon as Dempsey signs, everything will be in readiness. The fight will take place August 12 or September 3 or 16 in Yankee Stadium, New York City.

EL PASO, Texas, April 20 (Canadian Press).—Jack Dempsey said here late yesterday that he would defend his world's heavyweight boxing title late this summer under the promotion of Tex Rickard, if agreeable terms are offered.

He declared he was ready to meet Gene Tunney, whom Rickard has under contract for a championship bout. Dempsey prepared to leave tonight for Fort Worth, where he will confer today with Rickard.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20 (Canadian Press). — Wilbert Robinson, manager of Brooklyn Nationals, announced Monday that Snooks Dowd had been returned to the Jersey City club of the International League. Dowd, a second baseman, came to the Robins a week ago for a trial.

HOCKEY CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS AND PREPARES FOR NEXT SEASON J. J. DUFFUS IS AGAIN PRESIDENT

Senior O. H. A. Champions Earned and Need Artificial Ice, President Says.

PLAYERS PRESENT.

Eddie Wright Retained as Manager—Charlie Cummer Treasurer.

Much enthusiasm over the success of the past season and the prospects for next year, featured the annual meeting of the Peterboro Hockey Club, which was held last evening in the Chamber of Commerce. Nearly all the players were in attendance, as well as a good representation of the executive, and of the fans generally, and the meeting was a most harmonious one.

President J. J. Duffus, who presided, reviewed the years activities, and paid an enthusiastic tribute to the work of the players, and thanked the executive for their splendid support. He pointed out that the team had been under a handicap at the beginning of the season and had as a result got into a corner from which they could only emerge by winning all their remaining games, and the players deserved every credit for the way in which they had fought an uphill fight. It had got to the stage, President Duffus declared, when the teams operating in the Senior series must have artificial ice, and for that reason he welcomed the proposed arena, which he said the players had earned by their great work. The speaker expressed on behalf of the executive the appreciation of the hockey club to the employers of the boys on the teams for their cooperation in letting the players off for games, and to those members of the Petes who were in business for themselves, and had to make sacrifices to play.

Manager E. Wright, Treasurer C. C. Cummer, Secretary L. L. Maguire, Dr. E. H. Wood, the club's physician, Cyril Lech, who was a member of the executive Reg. H. Turner, Art Blade and Bert McLeod, gave their impressions of the season, and the last named speaking as a player, referred to the harmony that had existed among the Petes for the past two seasons, which made conditions most pleasant for everybody.

The meeting then proceeded to elect officers as follows:

Hon. Presidents: Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.; E. A. Peck, M.P.; W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., Lieut.-Colonel T. D. Johnston, M.P.P.

Various means of raising funds were discussed and suggestions made that will be passed on to the new executive which is to be called together on Friday night to make plans for next season.

The players at last night's meeting were Joe Dwyer, Bert McLeod, Harold Parker, Ray Rose, Wilfred Ranger, Frank Collins and Babe Bogardis.

SCRAMBLE FOR SOCCER PLAYERS; FIVE SENIOR TEAMS IN DISTRICT

Managers Have Been Busy "Signing On" Players For Season.

TEACH FOOTBALL.

Masseys, Quakers, De Laval, Omemee and Thistle Form League.

One of the surest things which can be said about local footballers is that there are not sufficient material of senior standard. This condition has been very much in evidence since the "signing on" forms were distributed a few weeks ago which left the desired individual the choice of team he was wanting to play with during the season. During the last two weeks many local managers were dashing here, there and everywhere, looking for the right sort of men but in all too many cases failed to get the player they were after and in this respect last year's champions were the unfortunate team.

"Get the Young Lads"

As it is so obvious that the ready-made material cannot be picked up under the present industrial conditions, there would seem to be only one alternative—young lads must be secured and taught the game. A very good suggestion was put forth at the last meeting of the P. and D. F.A. when a legislator proclaimed the idea that a senior team should foster and train a juvenile eleven of the city but it fell upon the "deaf" ears of the listeners. This sounds a very excellent idea but do not imagine that all that is necessary is to take a few lads, put them under an efficient coach, and in a few years' time you would have a team which would beat any eleven in the district. A certain amount of teaching can be done, and if it is the right sort of teaching, more or less satisfactory results are certain to follow.

A Born Player

No matter in what sport you take up, you will find the born player present who outclasses his playmates in every direction. This was very much in evidence in the school league games during last fall — but many of the schoolboys have suggested, this spring, that the school championship should be between the winners of the spring and fall leagues and no "knock-out" right away and give more games but this is entirely in the hands of the school authorities of sport. Really, it all boils down to this: You can teach a lad a lot of things about football —in fact, any sport—but the last touch, the influence of genius which raises one lad above his colleagues, must come out of the player himself, and no coach can put that last yard into him.

Watch Experienced Players

There is one way in which the youngster who has it in him to develop at football, will receive a great deal of help from the intelligent watching of the men who have had the experience on the field of play. This was fully demonstrated in the school cup competition between Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra when the latter team won the verdict by the odd goal after two hard fought games which was gained through that team adopting the "senior" teams' tactics in play and attack in a previous tussel that they witnessed.

Tactics Can Be Taught

One convincing fact is that the intelligent young watcher will pick up quite a lot of ideas on what might be called general tactics as distinct from individual tricks. When we get right down to it, tactics are the things on which results turn, and a greater measure of success can be achieved by teaching young players tactics than in the actual teaching of the individual art.

Let the senior boys get together and encourage the younger element to develop into the game under his own ideas which will enable him to turn them into effective use for his side.

Five Team League

Last evening was the final closing date of the local soccer association upon which clubs could affiliate and register so as to play in the city and district.

At a previous meeting, a few weeks ago, a very pessimistic view was taken of the local situation when players and officials were not co-operating to organize teams and executives. The two clubs so effected were the Thistle and the DeLaval who held organizing meetings during the past few days and decided to register with the league.

The official registrations of clubs intimated to the secretary, Frank Burton, were Masseys, Quaker Oats, Omemee, DeLaval and the Thistle which was organized into a five team league for the 1926 season.

No Junior Correspondence

At the annual general meeting of the Senior Association, the executive instructed the secretary to write the secretary of the Junior Association with the view of having a round table talk on the local soccer situation but no correspondence has been returned from the junior body.

A special meeting of the local Juniors was held in the Y.M.C.A. last Wednesday evening but no business was transacted of public interest.

Opening of Soccer Schedule

The Executive decided that the opening games shall take place on Saturday, May 2nd, in the league schedule. A committee comprising of the president, Wm. Anderson, secretary Frank Burton and Jack Creighton of the executive to draw up the league schedule for the ensuing season.

Each cup competition shall be finished before starting another, and Phelan, Peck and Gordon will be played in the forenamed order.

Request Referees

Th Association request that all gentlemen who desire to become "knights of the whistle" under the jurisdiction of the P. and D.F.A. should notify the secretary, Frank Burton, 284 Roger street, phone 1636m.

DeLaval Players

The DeLaval have registered the following players: Jack Smith, J. H. Cooper, H. Culley, Geo. Lindsay, Geo. Harvey, A. Edwards, E. Hanson, E. G. Abraham, H. J. Fowler—nine players.

Thistle Players

The Thistle have registered the following men: Jos. Gore, John M. Ward, W. Campbell, Wm. Lamb, Thomas McFate, Jas. W. Scott, Hugh Richmond, Peter Hutton, Charlie Griffin, James Buchan, William Hutton—11 players.

KEENE PERSONALS.

KEENE, April 20.—Mr. Albert Frick was visiting Keene friends over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Newman have returned to Belleville after having spent a few days with Keene friends.

Mr. and Mrs. John Edwards, Sr., returned home on Friday after spending a week with Peterboro friends.

Mrs. Churchill returned home last week to North Bay after visiting her father, Mr. William Kempt.

Mr. West of Peterboro has opened a shoe repair shop in the old Campbell store.

The joint Women's Missionary Society meeting was well attended last week and a most instructive time enjoyed by all. Mrs. John Archibald sang a solo and Mrs. A. McLauchlin gave a splendid reading on India.

While trapping for muskrats on the Indian River here, Mr. Alfie Simpson had a narrow escape from drowning. He was walking on the ice through what is known as "the cut" when he broke through the ice. Some more trappers heard his call for help from a distance and succeeded in getting him out in the nick of time as he was going down for the third time. His body was black and blue from the exposure in the cold water.

Although the ice in the river has not moved out any it is getting rotten and treacherous.

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.—Gradually the bizarre gayeties of the film set give way to the venerable and respectable pastimes of more prosaic communities. Pitching horseshoes has taken the studio world by storm.

Time was when the haute monde of Hollywood scoffed raucously at the retired patriarchs of Iowa who introduced the sport via Pasadena and Long Beach. Today almost every movie lot resounds with the clank of flying horseshoes during intervals between the crank of cameras, and studio sergeants-at-arms are kept busy rounding up the actor devotees for more necessary, if not more important, tasks.

There are those, we presume, who would walk a mile for a camel. George Fitzmaurice, director of Rudy Valentino in "The Son of the Sheik," would walk many versts to locate a few of the humped quadrupeds. Companies on "desert" locations have exhausted the avilable supply of these critters in southern California. Rearrangement of plans due to this shortage compelled the Valentino company to bring the desert to the studio by way 20 thousand tons of sand for necessary shots.

Considering a movie career on the cold dollar basis, how much may a talented young novice expect during the first five years of the more and more difficult climb toward stardom?

The reputed salary and option arrangements between Paramount and the graduate students of this company's school for screen acting affords a good gauge.

Sixteen of these students, regarded as promising material, are reported to have a three months' contract at $75 per week. After that there is an option for six months at $100, another six months at $150, a third like period at $200, with three further successive annual options at $300, $400 and $500 weekly.

This if the successive options were exercised, would pay the actor $4500 the first year, $7200 the second, $12,500 the third, and so on up to a little over $25,000 the fifth year.

Compare these salaries (assured of course only by proven merit and sustained popularity) with what these same young men and women might, by their own efforts earn during the first five years in business or professional channels.

For most youngsters, even of most brilliant promise, these figures will not destroy the dream of affluence held out by the movies. But for every one who manages to cling to opportunity and succeeds, hundreds, essaying the "extra" route to a contract, slip back with disillusionment into the realm of commoner chores.

The amazing progress and wide use of camera trickery—miniature, glass shot, double exposure and moving mat, without some or all of which few movies now see the light of day—is rapidly eliminating the use of "doubles" who used to do the dangerous stunts for many stars. The camera can lie most convincingly and miraculously. And insurance rates on players' hazards are dropping.

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.—Some time ago Harold Lloyd discovered the type of acting which brought home the dollars.

Since that day, he hasn't changed one iota. His latest picture, "For Heaven's Sake," introduces the same bashful hero that Lloyd has portrayed in his last half dozen screen classics.

"For Heaven's Sake" probably will rank among the leading film productions of the year. Charlie Chaplin's "The Circus" will be its only comedy rival. However, it is far from being as good as "The Freshman," in which Lloyd reached his peak.

"Gag" men—backbones of all Harold Lloyd pictures—have supplied enough funny situations to keep the star on the comedy throne of filmdom. It is a picture guaranteed to satisfy where the primary interest is a hearty laugh.

Jobyna Ralston is again seen as Lloyd's sweetheart and as such adds the only feminine touch in the picture.

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.—The products of Dallas sell well in the markets of Hollywood. From the Texas town came Bebe Daniels, Mary Brian and that favorite who is now having her brightest hour in the public eye—Florence Vidor.

During the last twelve months Florence has seemed to grow on the people who pay to see the flitting pictures. She proved the qualities of a comedienne and showed a strong physical attractiveness in "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter." The filming of her first stellar vehicle, "Love the Magician," will start in a few weeks. The story was written for her by Ernest Vadja, the Hungarian dramatist.

It used to be that when the heroine stood struggling with her emotions in the churchyard on Christmas Eve, a stage hand, seated on a stepladder, would dash bucketsful of paper bits over her shoulders to represent snow. But the wise public uprose and would have no more of it.

A cereal salesman was the man who revolutionized the snow business in the movies. He saw a movie one night, didn't like the snow scene, and came to Hollywood to try to sell his flakes of wheat. He did. It was almost perfect snow. The new snow is being used in "A Kiss for Cinderella" and "Fascinating Youth."

They've tested hundreds, trying to find someone who looks like Theodore Roosevelt, but in all there is something missing. An award of $500 has been posted by the producers of "The Rough Riders" for the person who be st fits the role.

More than sixty old schooners (seagoing) are being remodeled into mene o'-war and the fighting frigate, "Constitution," is being reproduced for the filming of "Old Ironsides." The cities of Tripoli in 1800 are being rebuilt. In the cast will be Wallace Beery, Johnnie Walker, Esther Ralston, George Bancroft and Charles Farrell.

Union hours are not observed by the 1750 camped in the Arizona desert for the making of "Beau Geste." They are called out of their army cots at 5:30 every morning by a bugle reveille. Work starts at 7 and continues until 6, with an hour for lunch. Taps is sounded at 10. It's a wild life.

An invitation, in the name of all the I.O.D.E. Chapters of the city, was extended to the Provincial Chapter to hold its semi-annual meeting here in October next.

It was decided to co-operate with the 21st Battalion Club, the members of which are desirous of erecting a memorial to deceased members, by holding a rummage sale, the funds to be devoted to the club's purpose.

HELPFUL HINTS FROM GOLFING STARS

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS MAGAZINE, CHICAGO

JOHN DUNCAN DUNN—CORRECTING FAULTS

To be a successful golfer you must not have running through your mind the possibility of topping the ball or hitting the ground. To make these things practically impossible means practice. By practice I do not mean playing around the course. Now that machines have been invented for home practice there is no excuse for anybody not doing it. It is not everybody who can erect a golf course on his own premises, and it is not always convenient to get a golf course to practice. One soon gets tired of hitting corks in the backyard.

Another thing which I have never been able to discover is why golfers hate to have themselves photographed.

If you are photographed in your own yard by your wife and the drug store man develops and prints your picture, nobody else need know anything about it.

It is a splendid lesson for you to see your faults.

JIMMY OCKENDON—PUSH SHOT

The "push-shot method" consists of hitting in such a way as imparts slight "drift" on the flight of the ball. Instead of the ball's direction being from right to left, its direction is from left to right—not much, but sufficient to inform the striker that a certain amount of underspin has been imparted to the ball at the moment of impact.

Perhaps a better explanatory term for what I have in mind when I refer to the push shot is the "pinched shot," i.e., the stroke which, as it were, pinches the ball between the face of the club and the ground, not sufficient, of course, to bring about a topped shot, but just sufficient to cause the ball to proceed on its way with a certain amount of back-spin.

It has been remarked by many competent judges that I do appear, by my actions, to "bring off" this type of shot with every club to the green, and I can most certainly agree that I do try thus to hit it.

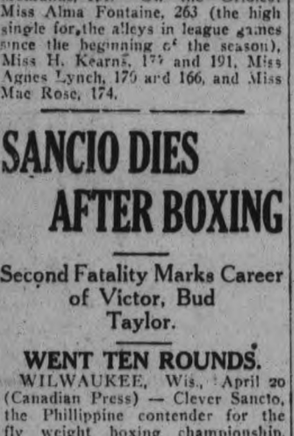
SANCIO DIES AFTER BOXING

Second Fatality Marks Career of Victor, Bud Taylor.

WENT TEN ROUNDS.

WILWAUKEE, Wis., April 20 (Canadian Press) — Clever Sancio, the Phillippine contender for the fly weight boxing championship, died here this morning. The boxer, who was deefated by Bud Taylor, of Terrehaute, Ind., in a 10 round bout here last night, was taken to the hospital this morning. The hospital authorities said he was dead when examined or admittance.

Sancio's death marks the second such tragic affair in which Taylor has figured. Frankie Jerome, promising New York bantam weight, died in aJnuary, 1924, from the effects of a knockout at the hands of Taylor at New York. Taylor later was later exonerated from all blame.



Sir John Martin-Harvey, who brings his entire London company to the Grand Opera House for one night only in "The Corsican Brothers" on Monday, April 26.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

THE STORY OF "YPRES."

The story of the immortal Ypres Salient, told on the silver sheet, opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre, with a filled house for the evening performance, a feature of which was the attendance, on invitation of Manager Fletcher, of a number of the members of the G.W.V.A.. The Band of the Peterboro Rangers was present on the stage in the evening playing a descriptive military fantasia entitled "For King and Country," and several "Song: from Over There," including "The Land f Hope and Glory," were sung by Captain G. T. Melton, in fine voice.

The pictures of the fighting in the Ypres sector were not filmed with any intention of creating a romantic story out of the war. They are disconnected episodes all having to do with actual scenes that transpired during the years that the men of England and France and Belgium and warriors from far away lands, battled and fought and died in the mud of the trenches to keep the invading Hun from obtaining his objective.

Swinging along through the streets of Belgium come the flat-capped invaders, with the hunted refugees fleeing before them. And on the 20th of October, 1914, the Ypres Salient was born, with the French and British troops compelled to retreat before the advance of superior troops. There are the thrills of war days, the realistic thrills that catch the breath in the throat, in the swinging march of the "Contemptibles," of the Ontarios, the Canadian troops, that have the trade mark of the Dominion in their free tread and independent carriage, and there is the thrill, too, of a fellow-feeling, beneath all the divergence of race and color in the sight of dark skinned Indian troops coming to the rescue of beleagured comrades from over the sea.

Perhaps it is the individual acts of heroism that impress one the most, the gray-haired Padre Kennedy riding through shell fire along an open road, to warn the ambulance corps to turn back, Lance Corporal Fisher, with his tiny machine gun, and another gunner, John Lynn, the lone survivor of a gas-filled trench, holding the enemy at bay until reinforcements arrive; Flight Lieutenant Warneford with his wasp-like aeroplane, destroying the huge Zeppelin; Sergeant John Moyney, a "fighting Irishman," shepherding his men over a stream, after a four days' siege without food or water, while he holds the enemy back with his rifle! Captain Robertson guiding his tanks afoot in full view of the enemy's guns, and the unbelievable heroism of the eighteen year old Tommy Holmes, of the Fourth Canadian Mounted Rifles, making his way in the face of the enemy's fire, to the pill-box where they are entrenched and throwin a hand grenade into the small opening in the front. In the majority of these instances the heroes paid later with their lives, and it was men with the mark of the destroyer on their brows who risked their lives in these exalted moments whose memory will never die. One can understand from incidents like these the lure of war, and the fascination of the hazards of even such bloody, terrible conflict.

There are brief pictures of King George reviewing his troops in scattered sections, and of the Prince of Wales, but they do not bulk large when compared with the muddy heroes of the trench and the barbed wires, with the company cook advancing with rations over shell ridden ground and getting a hole in his cap from the enemy sniper who lurks in the opposite trench, or with the men, faces blackened in disguise, who storm a German trench by night and take its occupants prisoner.

There is little of the actual horror and carnage of battle in this picture. In trench fighting the men stiffen and die under shell-fire, but the actual fire and fury of the big guns plays little part in its actual filming. "Moaning Maggie," the big gun of the invaders, is hinted in the background of the barber shop at Poperinghe where a sign reads "We do not shave while the enemy are shelling" and there is a bombing raid over the bath-house where the men are enjoying a hot bath in tin tubs but the majority of the scenes are close-ups of trench work and scattered raids over fields where ragged trees point their stumps at the sky.

Woven through the presentation is the war music that was so familiar a part of the fighting in those hectic days "Blighty" and "Tipperary" "Home Sweet Home," for the soldier on leave in England with oddly enough "The End of a Perfect Day" as an accompaniment to the scene depicting the arrival of letters from home "Keep the Home Fires Burning' "Mademoiselle from Armentieres" and the immortal "Land of Hope and Glory,' for the victory at Passchendaale, after so many long weary months.

There are little bits of humor, not many, in the production, the mirth of the men making up in blackface for the trench raid, the fun of the performers at the concert, and the titles painted on the side of the huge lumbering tanks: "Little Willie," "Fray Bentos," and "A Better 'Ole.'

"Ypres" impresses the observer as having been filled with the one thought, that of giving an impression of nobility to the game of war. It is not a picture calculated to give its audiences an adequate idea of the real horror and carnage of bloody conflict, but rather of the intense living of those men who went across the sea to make the invading Hun behave. Only the stir and the thrill of the fight are shown, and the only hint of the aftermath is in the white crosses of the final fade out.

—"Jeanette."

AT THE REGENT

"MONTE CARLO" FULL OF HEARTY LAUGHTER

New Christy Cabanne Production Sparkles with Whimsical Humor, Hilarious Situations, and has an Exceptional Cast.

The insistent demand of motion picture audiences for fast moving, refreshing comedies, with plausible stories and natural situations without forced and illogical "gags" has been amply met by Director Christy Cabanne's "Monte Carlo," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, which opened at the Regent Theatre last night.

Sparkling with whimsical humor, replete with hearty laughs and distinguished by the excellent work of a strong cast, the picture is easily one of the best light comedies ever put on the screen.

The story concerns the adventures of three small town girls who won a newspaper popularity contest, giving them a vacation trip to Monte Carlo. The three girls are played by Gertrude Olmsted, Za Su Pitts and Trixie Friganza.

Once the locale of the story is transferred to Monte Carlo it becomes, in addition to a romantic narrative, a farcial satire on the manners and deportment of a certain type of American tourist abroad.

A fascinating sequence of the photodrama is the fashion show staged at Monte Carlo, which has been photographed in true colors, showing a remarkable improvement in this phase of screen technique.

AT THE GRAND

ENTER REALITY.

Martin Harvey, in his early days, was the favorite pupil of John Ryder, a fine old declaimor, and stage "coach." The famous actor of today tell as most amusing story—one of many concerning the same personage—of his old friend.

"Ryder, on one occasion, was rehearsing a play in which a thunderstorm was an incidental. Men were sent aloft to produce the effect of thunder by rolling cannon balls over the 'fly' floor above the stage. Ryder was dissatisfied with the result.

"No! No! That won't do," he roared, "not loud enough!"

As it happened, Nature joined in at that moment, and the makers of mimic thunder took a rest while the elements did the work for them. Then came a georgeous crash with a trail of reverberations.

Ryder listened, but was still dissatisfied.

"Louder!" "Louder!" he cried angrily. The response was a voice from "above" which exclaimed, explanatorily:

"Beggin' your pardon, Sir, but that one was Gawd Almighty!"

"I can't help that" roared the actor, more angrily than ever, "it won't do for John Ryder!"

THREE YEAR TERM.

Winnipeg Youth Guilty of Many Robberies.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 20.—(Canadian Press.)— Earl Kiernan, the "phantom burglar," who for six weeks baffled the Winnipeg police department with a score of robberies in the city's residential district, yesterday was sentenced to three years in Stony Mountain penitentiary. He pleaded guilty to eighteen charges of house-breaking and theft.

Kiernan, who is only 23 years old, and a former Toronto resident, stole to support his young wife, he confessed to police when arrested. He had been out of employment since Christmas.

"I broke into one house, and it seemed easy, so I broke into others, and kept breaking into them," he told Magistrate Sir Hugh John Macdonald, in police court to-day.

The robberies were all committed during the daylight hours. The loot obtained, consisting mostly of cash and jewelry, amounted to $2,775.

ROBT. FAIR & CO. LTD.

Fairs are continually studying the vagaries of fashion, and endeavoring in every department to keep their stock right up to the minute in style. This is very noticeable in our materials for new Spring Coats and Costumes.

For COATS

Fashion demands Black, and this is met with the rich Black CREPE SATIN, made in heavy weight for Coating, and 38 inches wide. There's a lustre and rustle to this silky material that give the made-up garment a rich appearance.

Companion goods are the Silk

OTTOMAN CORD

made in 38-inch width, and Black only. It makes up into a more rigid garment yet comfortably flexible, having even more weight than the Crepe Satin.

The Ottoman Cord is also shown in Wool, 54 inches wide; colors: Navy, Black, Sand and Grey.

More practical Coatings are the DONEGAL TWEEDS, Quiet and serviceable, with lots of wear in them for street or motoring. They are in 54-inch width, and prices are extremely reasonable.

DRESSES

The new Dress Materials deserve more than a passing glance. Prominent among them are the new FRENCH RAYON CREPES, for overblouses and dresses. There is a great variety of designs and colors, stripes and figures, making good contrasting shades that make up well. They are priced moderately.

NEW FLANNELS

The new All-Wool Dress Flannels are striking and sensible-looking materials. There's comfort in the feel of them, gratefully clinging for a cool day or evening, yet porous and cool when the sun gets more powerful. They are very fine in texture, and prices are attractively low.

AN EVOLUTION.

One of the interesting things about this 50th anniversary year of the birth of the telephone is the story of the evolution of the telephone directory! In the early days, of course, telephone users called each other by simply announcing the name wanted to "Central"! Primitive card lists of users adorned the wall beside the telephone. Then as the number of telephone users grew, the list had to be made up in book form. Month by month and year by year the value of the telephone book for reference purposes increased. It was always found a reliable guide, and being frequently revised, its usefulness soon exceeded that of any other city reference. Today, everybody looks in the telephone directory. It is the community's most used and most useful book. 1d-93

EXPLOSION IN SUB INJURES A DOZEN

One of Crew May Die—Escaping Gas Fumes Blamed.

NEW LONDON, Conn., April 20 (Canadian Press). — Twelve men, members of the S-49, which was moored at a dock at the submarine base, were injured this morning, when the after battery in the submersible exploded. One may die. Escaping gas fumes are believed to have been the cause of the explosion.

The explosion produced a tremendous concussion which hurled a dozen men in the steel-walled compartment against the side of the chamber.

While many of them are suffering from the effects of gas and fire, it is believed that fractures of limbs constitute the greatest injuries.

RIFFIAN LEADER WANTS TO RULE HIS OWN PEOPLE

All He Cares For Is Right of Tribesmen To Run Own Affairs.

NAME IMMATERIAL.

Can Be Called Autonomy or Independence—Will Die Rather Than Yield.

By Alexander Largiet, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

(Copyright, 1926, by United Press.)

SIDI ADJ LAH BEN YOUSUF, Morocco, April 20.— (United Press.)— Abd-el-Krim, the Riffian leader, is demanding home rule in the current peace negotiations with Franco-Spanish plenipotentiaries and he told the United Press that he and his tribesmen were willing to die in battle rather than to accept less. The Riffian leader—he is called the Emir by his followers—is convinced that his ambition for an all-Moslem empire in North Africa is impossible of fulfilment, at least for the time bring. Abd-el-Krim received your correspoondent at Sidi Abdalha Ben Yousuf in the mountain behind Adjhir. His office was a tent surrounded by ministers of state and attendants, while outside, underneath trees awaited a crowd seeking audiences.

The Emir talked mostly of peace terms.

"There is only one thing that I really care for," he said, "and that is that we Riffians and our allies shall have the simple right to rule ourselves and our own affairs. I don't car whether it is called autonomy or independence. I simply wish to rule my own people and to decide questions which do not touch anybody except ourselves."

Are you strong enough to insist on independence by force of arms," the Emir was asked.

"That," he replied, "I cannot say. We are a small people assailed by two large nations; maybe they will be too strong for us finally, but they never will rule any Riffians because the real Riffians never will give in.

"And if our enemies do not give us a reasonable peace they will never have peace until they have killed the last Riffian."

Asked regarding his ammunition supply, the Emir replied:

"We have enough ammunition for a year and then we will take what we need. All winter we have worked toward the military organization of our whole people, so that now we can put 100,000 men in the field, if they are needed."

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

V. E. T.—You have already been given a reading. There are too many others waiting patiently for their turn to give more than one reading to each person.

E. B. H.—You have some conflicting elements in your life. I wonder if you are following out what you were meant to do? You were born with a very conservative nature, unfavorable to new enterprises, inclined to introspection, and with a love of the mystic and the occult. But, in your married life, you must conquer natural traits to a certain extent, because you will achieve success and happiness for yourself only by bringing them to the lives of those about you. You have a double nature, and must watch constantly that the highest is in power. You are always inclined to be dissatisfied and nervous, constantly wishing that you had done something else and could be somewhere else than where you are. Remember the green fields far away are not any nicer than the green grass in your own door-yard. You are especially fond of color and flowers, and of everything beautiful in nature and art, and can be very happy if you try to overcome your innate restlessness and to conquer a tendency to nag and scold. Be careful of what you eat as you are liable to stomach disorders and intestinal trouble. When you are ill, you are not at all nice to be with.

You were born on Thursday. Your colors are steel and purple shades. The day you ask about, a Thursday, is one for quiet meditation. Do not worry on this day and let things take their course.

S. C. E.—You have naturally a strong type of character, able to meet with the circumstances of daily life, and a temperament of integrity, virtue and permanency. Combined with this lucky disposition is a destiny that points the way to success by bringing joy and happiness to the lives of those about you. Always be kind and you will succeed and bring much pleasure to your own life. You like to do things in your own way and are good at planning for others, but do not like detail work. You have fits of real laziness at times, alternated by excessive energetic streaks. You are well endowed for a position of trust and responsibility in any kind of retail business. Be careful in marrying, as you are apt to make a serious blunder if you marry very young, being led mainly by your emotions. Marry a girl born in September, October or December. Always rely upon your own intuitions rather than upon the advice of others. January and October are your lucky months, Sunday your good day. You were born on Wednesday. Your colors are red and brown.

T. A. J. E.—You have few conflicting elements in your life. Naturally, you are inclined to like anything of a mental type and matters of commerce and finance also appeal to you. You are wasting your time at other things. You have not yet cultivated qualities in yourself that would make you very successful and happy, preferring to live mainly in the enjoyment of the senses, which have a strong appeal for you. You should decide upon your own special talent, and then study along that line, no matter what any person says to try and persuade you against this line of conduct. You do not like housework, and should not do much of it. Be very careful of a liking for strong drink. It will do you no good. Try and control your temper and profit by listening to the reasoning of others, when they have reached an age of mature understanding of life's problems. Be yourself at all times. Try to overcome a capricious element in your nature, which will be a barrier to a happy married life. You were born on Saturday, not Monday. That was a Leap Year. Your colors are opals, tans and buffs.

ROUTINE MEETING BOARD OF HEALTH

No Licenses Will Be Issued For Cream Sale, Pending Report.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Health held this morning it was decided not to issue licenses for the sale of cream until a report is received from C. S. Stapleton, the Board's Sanitary Inspector.

Plumbing Inspector A. G. Metheral reported that the caretaker at the Isolation Hospital is well satisfied with the alterations made last year. He recommended that the Board should burn soft coal at the hospital as in his opinion it would result in a saving of approximately $300.

On motion of J. J. Turner it was decided that the Inspector look into and report the cost of installing storm windows on the north and west side of the Isolation hospital, also the filling in of the walls in the attic.

It was decided that tenders for the year's coal supply be asked for.

Moved by J. J. Turner and Mayor Holloway that the city clerk write to the management of the Auburn Woollen factory and ascertain what steps the Company has taken in connection with stopping the sewage going into the river from the Auburn plant.

Moved by J. J. Turner and Dr. J. M. O'Brien that the Board recommend to the city council that the expenses of the sanitary inspector should be paid where it is necessary for him to inspect the premises of milk vendors outside the city.

IN MEMORIAM.

JONES. — In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. Ambrose Jones, who died on April 20th, 1924:

One precious to our hearts has gone,
The voice we loved is stilled,
The place made vacant in our home
Can never more be filled.
Our Father in His wisdom called,
The boon His love has given,
And, though in earth the body lies
The soul is safe in heaven.

LEADER OF PROGRESSIVES BELIEVES AUTOMOBILE COMPANIES WILL CONTINUE TO DO GOOD BUSINESS; 'SASKATCHEWAN BUDGET' SAYS DONALD SUTHERLAND

Robert Forke Denies That Progressives Are Sectional in Policy.

OPENING OF DEBATE.

Business Unsettled and Industry Injury Declares Hon. J. R. Manion.

OTTAWA, April 21—In the course of his speech on the budget Tuesday, Robert Forke, leader of the Progressives, expressed warm approval of the reductions which have been proposed in the automobile tariff. Various companies, he said, had threatened to close down; some had done so temporarily, but the Ford and other concerns had decided to carry on. 'And you will find, Mr. Speaker," said the Progressive leader, "that the great majority of the companies will go ahead and continue to manufacture. They have been doing a good business in the past and will do a good business in the future."

A voice from the Liberal side: "A better business."

"The same as the woollen manufacturers," remarked a Conservative.

Mr. Forke declared that the reduction in the duties on automobiles would be very popular throughout the Dominion.

There had, he said, been many complaints from the boot and shoe industry, because the protection which they enjoyed was not high enough. But he instanced a shoe industry which was exporting to five foreign countries and which was paying a dividend of eight per cent.

The People's Budget.

"There is some indication," he declared, "that the Government in this budget has remembered the man on the street and the people at large." (Loud applause).

Mr. Forke referred to the "brick-for-brick policy" advocated by Conservatives at the last election and elicited ironic applause from the Conservative side, and yet he called attention to the fact that Mr. Meighen had denied that he had ever given vent to any such proposals. "What," asked Mr. Forke, "is the actual policy of the Conservative party to-day? Is it the Fordney-McCumber tariff, or what is it? (Loud applause).

"I don't know what is the matter with my friends to the right," continued the speaker. "They keep up a continual clamor, and they don't appear to be at all happy. What I advocate is a tariff low enough to insure competition among Canadian industries. That is as far as I will go, but it is far enough. If we have that we will be all right."

Mr. Forke dealt with charges that western members had been selfish and had forced the Government to grant concessions at their demand. It had been claimed that the demand for the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway was a selfish demand and yet Hon. Robert Rogers at the recent election had declared himself in favor of it and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen had stated that the Conservative party was "too proud" to see the Hudson Bay Railway stopped sixty miles short of its destination. Nevertheless at the recent West Middlesex by-election westerners had been accused of selfishness because they asked for the completion of the road.

Are Not Sectional.

"We in the West are accused of selfishness," said Mr. Forke. "We are accused of selfishness because we demand a revaluation of soldier settlement lands. Why? We are accused of selfishness because we have asked for old age pensions. Why? We are not sectional or selfish. We are striving for the welfare of the Dominion and the people thereof."

A voice from the Conservative benches: "What about the workingman of Canada?"

Mr. Forke: "It is the workingman we are fighting for. When the motor men come here in numbers they are heard. They are very vocal. They have influence. We are speaking for the masses and the common people in Canada."

"What about motor cars?" asked a Conservative member. "Some people take a very short view of economics," replied Mr. Forke. "I

CONSERVATIVE AMENDMENT TO BUDGET REGRETS TARIFF ASSURANCE NOT KEPT

Changes Would Be Made in Tariff Only After Fullest Examination By Tariff Board Was Election Promise.

OTTAWA, April 21 (Canadian Press).—The Conservative amendment, moved by Hon. R. J. Manion, reads:

"In the late general election campaign assurances were repeatedly given by the Prime Minister and other Ministers of the Crown that before further tariff changes were made an opportunity would be given industries affected thereby to be heard before an advisory board.

"That such assurances were officially incorporated by the Government in the Speech from the Throne of the present session in the following words:

" 'Changes in the tariff should be made only after the fullest examination of their bearing upon both primary and manufacturing industries and that representations requesting increase or decrease of duties should be made the subject of the most careful investigation and report by a body possessing the necessary qualifications to advise the Ministry with respect thereto. A tariff advisory board will accordingly be appointed forthwith.'

"That such tariff advisory board was accordingly appointed.

"And this House regrets that in the case of drastic changes announced in the budget such assurances have not been fulfilled."

When Doctor T. W. H. Young, City Medical Officer of Health, acting upon information received from C. S. A man and his wife together with a large family of small children were occupying the front part of the house, while the kitchen was being used as a stable for a horse.

Dr. Young called in Mayor W. T. Holloway to view the scene and immediately issued an order to close the house as being unfit for human habitation.

Cancer of the lungs and acute bronchitis were attributed directly to the influenza epidemic in certain cases observed by three Clifton Springs, N.Y., doctors.

BUDGET CHANGE NOT PROPOSED

Prime Minister Tells Sir George Perley in House.

ANSWERS QUESTION.

OTTAWA, April 21 (Canadian Press) — Just before the adjournment of the House of Commons last night, Sir George Perley, Conservative, Argenteuil, asked if in view of newspaper reports the Government proposed to make any changes in the budget. Premier Mackenzie King replied that this question was very similar to that asked by the leader of the opposition. "I am not aware of any changes," the Prime Minister added.

Senator Murphy Remains Director Of Post Office

OTTAWA, April 21 (Canadian Press).—Senator Charles Murphy will remain in charge of the Post Office Department, at least during the present session of Parliament. Premier McKenzie King so informed the House yesterday in answer to a question from Hon. Arthur Meighen. The leader of the Opposition was anxious to know if any change in the Postmaster-General was intended.

The Premier replied that the Postmaster-General, who was now in the Senate, was in active charge of the Department and no change would be made, at least during the present session. Mr. Meighen wanted to know what would be done after that. Mr. King replied that he hoped to give Mr. Meighen word on that point "at a later date."

BYNG CONFINED TO BED ON TOUR

Governor-General Reaches Winnipeg Suffering From Infected Foot.

FAREWELL TRIP.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 21. — Canadian Press. — His Excellency Baron Byng of Vimy, Governor-General of Canada, is experiencing considerable pain from the inflammation in an infected foot, and was confined to his bed when the special train bearing the vice-regal party on a farewell tour of Western Canada stopped in Winnipeg yesterday.

After examination by Winnipeg doctors it was stated that the inflammation continued to rise and that the pain had increased since Monday.

Winnipeg had planned to receive the Governor-General and Lady Byng in a manner which would demonstrate to the full the affection with which they are held in the West, but owing to the unfortunate affliction which attacked His Excellency on the trip from Ottawa all functions were cancelled.

City's Greetings.

A large party of officials representing the city and the province, and many Veteran organizations, met the train when it pulled into the station.

Lady Byng, who has undertaken to accept on behalf of herself and her husband the demonstrations of loyalty and affection, was the centre of a brief ceremony.

As she descended from the train she was met by Premier Bracken and Mrs. Bracken, the latter representing the Women's Canadian Club. Following an exchange of greetings, Hon. P. A. Talbot, speaker of the Manitoba Legislature, presented a handsomely bound and illuminated address to the Governor-General and Lady Byng from the Legislative Assembly of the province.

Departure Regretted.

The address expressed sincere regret at the departure of Baron and Lady Byng, and contained assurance that "your names will ever be held in remembrance in Canada."

After Lady Byng had replied a party consisting of Sir James Aikins, Premier Bracken and Mrs. Bracken, were conducted aboard the train, where they personally expressed to the Governor-General their sorrow at his affliction.

The Vice-Regal special, after a stop of an hour, left for the West. Regina is the next scheduled stop.

CLUB BURNED.

Old Club, on St. Clair Flats, Destroyed By Fire Last Night.

DETROIT, April 21.—(Canadian Press).—The Old Club, one of the earliest and best known clubs at the St. Clair Flats, was destroyed by fire which broke out last evening. Approximately $100,000 insurance is carried on the property.

Although Americans drank 130,000,000 less pounds of coffee last year than in 1924, they paid $37,000,000 more for it.

AGRICULTURAL COUNCIL OPPOSES WHOLE PROTECTION PRINCIPLE AND REDUCTION OF INCOME TAX

Delegation Asks That Tax on Incomes Remain at Former Level.

RURAL CREDITS.

Would Reduce Tariff on Imports Affecting Cost of Living.

OTTAWA, April 21 (Canadian Press).—"The income tax ought to be maintained at its former level and surpluses available for tax reduction should be utilized to lessen the burden of indirect taxation."

This representation was made by a delegation from the Canadian Council of Agriculture which waited upon Premier King and members of the Cabinet today.

The reduction in taxation, it was declared on behalf of the deputation, should take place by reduction in the tariff "on imports which increase the cost of living and production in preference to the reduction of sales and income tax."

The council was "Unalterably opposed to the whole principle of tariff protection," it was declared.

The deputation also made representations that a rural credits plan be drafted to include provision for the establishment of a farm loans board in each province.

DUCHESS RESTS; IS RECOVERING

Mother and Babe Make Progress—Crowds Gather.

CHILD A PRINCESS.

LONDON, April 21 (Canadian Press).—A bulletin issued at the home of the Earl and Countess of Strathmore in Bruton Street this morning said "The Duchess of York has had some rest since the arrival of her daughter. Her Royal Highness and the infant princess are making very satisfactory progress.

"Previous to the confinement a consultation took place at which Sir George Blackler was present, and a certain line of treatment was successfully adopted." The bulletin was signed by Drs. Henry Simpson and Walter Jagger.

Around noon, Princess Mary, the first Royal visitor, arrived in an automobile with a big bunch of red carnations for her sister-in-law. Just prior to her arrival the Duke of York drew aside the curtains of one of the upper rooms and smiled at the watching people in the street below.

The usual official notification of a birth in the Royal family was sent to the Lord Mayor of London and an announcement was posted outside the Mansion House, while the city fathers telegraphed congratulations to the Duke.

The Evening News says the three names favored for the baby are Mary, Victoria and Elizabeth, after her mother, grandmother, and great-great-grandmother.

Home Secretary in House

LONDON, April 21 (United Press) —In accordance with the requirements for legal proof of royal births, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary of the Cabinet, was called to 17 Bruton Street early this morning to be in the house when the Duchess of York gave birth to a baby girl, who may some day succeed to the throne. The news was telegraphed to the Prince of Wales at Biarritz and the King and Queen were informed by telephone.

A crowd gathered outside the house and extra policemen were detailed to maintain quiet. There was a continuous stream of messengers entering the house.

The Royal baby will be entitled to designation as Princess.

Harvest time in Australia has just passed, and more than 300,000 tons of the new season's wheat crop have recently been shipped.

KINGSTON, Ont., April 21 (Special).—Ruth Bowerman, the 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bowerman of Picton, holds an unique record, in that she has had her leg fractured 22 times. Playing around her home one day recently she fell and fractured the member, and it is stated that this is the 22nd time that she has suffered such an accident.

In spite of all her bad luck, Ruth is very bright and happy and of a very pleasant disposition and beloved by all her playmates and older friends.

Mederic Puts His Chamber in Order

Montreal's Mayor Reveals House of Commons Complex

MONTREAL, April 21 (Canadian Press).—Arriving at the City Hall yesterday Mayor Mederic Martin entered his offices on the main floor and immediately started, to use his own words, "putting things to right." Before taking the oath, he entered the Council Chamber and ordered away the desk which was provided in front of the Mayoral dais.

"There is no table in front of the throne at Ottawa," was his reason. Then he stated that he would immediately order that a rug be placed on the black walnut mosaic floor in his own office, and that a rug be laid on the floor of the Council Chamber.

Drapings would also be provided on the walls of the Chamber, and hangings would adorn the walls, to help accoustics, the Mayor stated.

Blinds are to be provided for the windows to prevent the glare from the afternoon sun, also on the command of the Mayor.

After the swearing-in, which took place Tuesday, Mayor Martin, with the Executive Council, visited the Council Chamber and planned the changes which the first magistrate asked.

Noting that the inter-office telephone apparatus on his desk had the office names and department calls in English, the Mayor commented that this must be changed, and asked that the names be placed in French.

The form of prayer to be used in Council meeting openings was inscribed on a form yesterday morning and will be placed on the Mayor's desk.

HAMILTON WOMAN HAD MANY HONORS

Great Works in Behalf of Charity Were Remembered.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 17.—(By Canadian Press).—Mrs. W. H. Lovering of this city, widely known for her humanitarianism, is dead. She had signal honors conferred upon her by the Pope, and by France and Belgium for her work in the work in the world war. Through her instrumentality the Secours National here, during the World War, contributed approximately $500,000 in money and goods to succor French victims. It was for this work she personally received from Marechal Feyelle the Medaille de la Reconnaissanc Francaise, accompanied by a citation from Briand and Millerand, the then President and Minister of Foreign Affairs, respectively, of France. Mrs. Lovering also receivd an official appreciation from Belgium for her war effort for that stricken nation.

It was for her services in the cause of Catholic charities that His Holiness Pope Pius XI, conferred upon Mrs. Lovering, one of the highest honors ever bestowed upon a Catholic woman, that of the Medal Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice.

Grandmother Died In Old Armchair As Tots Played

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., April 21. — Canadian Press. — Unaware that their grandmother Mrs. Mary Johnson, aged 77, was dead as she sat in her chair in the kitchen, two little children played about their home here on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Johnson had been left in charge of the children in the morning when her daughter, Mrs. J. Leeming, went out to work.

Returning in the evening, Mrs. Leeming found her mother dead in her favorite rocking chair, beside the kitchen stove.

Mrs. Leeming called physician who stated that her mother had been dead for some hours.

NINE ANIMALS DYING; 4 DEAD OF STARVATION

Terrible Case Uncovered By Humane Society Inspector and Constable.

ACTION PENDING.

Stable Had Not Been Cleaned Out and Conditions Are Appalling.

A sordid scene unfolded itself on the premises of J. Spratt, a resident of Manvers Township, when Provincial Constable Norman F. Maker and Inspector R. C. Smith, of the Peterborough Humane Society, inspected them yesterday afternoon.

At the entrance to the barn they came upon the body of a dead calf which had been lying there for some time, and had to step across the carcass in order to gain access to the interior of the place. Inside they found three more calves, all dead, and 6 cows that, in the words of the Inspector, were "nothing more than walking skeletons." Another cow was lying down, and was in such an emaciated condition that it could not stand up. A team of grey horses was in a similar condition, one horse being covered with sores. The Inspector said that when he examined the harness the beasts had been wearing he found scabs of the sores adhering to it, and, in his opinion, the stable had never been cleaned out.

Inspector Smith stated that he intended taking action in the matter and was proceeding to Cobourg to lay any information.

CATHOLICS SEEK RELIGIUS FREEDOM

Urged By Bishops To Control Elections in Mexico.

MEXICO, April 21.—(Canadian Press.)—All Roman Catholics are urged to participate actively in Mexican politics to control the presidential, congressional and municipal elections as an effective means to bring about religious freedom in Mexico. The advice is contained in a pastoral letter signed by all the Archbishops and Bishops of the country. The letter, which has been widely circulated, is intended as a protest against the religious clauses in the Mexican constitution. It urges all Catholics to strive to obtain amendment of the constitution.

Young Man Goes To Jail To Escape Persistent Girl

LONDON, Ont., April 21.—(Canadian Press).—Police Magistrate Graydon remanded to jail for a week a young Londoner who had voluntarily sought the shelter of Police Headquarters to save him from a young woman. The Londoner entered the station at midnight, declaring that the girl was so insistent upon marrying him that he could not evade her. He was convinced that his only safety would be in having bars between him and his lady love. When told that she could not be arrested for loving him he pleaded to be locked up himself. He argued that he was flat broke and could not afford his wedding, but the fact did not cool the ardor of his friend.

BRITISH FIRMS REFUSE TO DRILL FOR SOVIET OIL

Royal Dutch and Shell Stand Alone Against World Combine.

CAUSE FURORE.

New Alignments Are Regarded as Menacing Possible War Cause.

LONDON, April 21 (United Press).—The battle line in the international oil war has undergone changes which today leave Great Britain alone, but defiant and apparently unawed by the impending alliance between France, Soviet Russia and the Standard Oil Company for the exploitation of the vast Russian oil fields, at Goszny and Baku.

Sir Henry Deterding, chairman of the Royal Dutch Petroleum Company and a director of the Shell Transport and Trading Company, formally and publicly has announced that his two great organizations will not bore for, nor pipe, nor buy, nor sell Soviet oil.

The announcement marks a complete reversal of Sir Henry's former policy which was to co-operate both with the Standard Oil and Soviet Russia.

His decision created a furore in the oil industry. To those persons who long have regarded the international rivalry for oil as among the paramount potential causes of war, the new alignments of the various oil groups are regarded as particularly menacing.

In March, 1924, Sir Henry concluded in Switzerland two secret agreements with the Standard Oil regarding future concession in Russia. A year ago he was openly buying kerosene from Baku. Now he has quit, leaving the Russian fields to any combination of nations and companies that cares to take them over.

NORGE TO LEAVE NEXT SATURDAY

Will Fly From Leningrad To Spitzbergen at End of Week.

MANY VISITORS.

LENINGRAD, April 21.—(Canadian Press)—Under present arrangements Amundsen-Ellsworth polar dirigible Norge will leave for Spitzbergen about noon next Saturday. The Leningrad Geographical Observatory has arranged to transmit by wireless meteorological bulletins from the Russian stations throughout the flight.

Visitors continue to swarm to the big hangar at Trotsk, near Leningrad, to view the Norge. The average is ten thousand daily.

THE WEATHER.

One of those rare occasions, for many months, when the thermometer did not go below the freezing point, was last night. Highest temperature yesterday 46 degrees. Since Sunday, warm weather has prevailed over the Western provinces, and temperatures of 75, 80 and even higher, have been recorded. The Canadian spring, in this section at least, is often a very short season, summer following the snows of winter with little intermission. A gentleman familiar with the conditions prevailing in Quebec, informed me recently that some of the cities had bylaws requiring all ice, etc., to be removed from the sidewalks by April 15, but that it was only on rare occasions any ice remained at that date. This spring, however, would prove an exception. Many deep drifts are still to be seen here, but south of Rice Lake and along the shores of Lake Ontario, dust has been flying on the road for a week or ten days.—W. P.

SUGGESTS INCREASE IN LIMIT OF SEARCH

Correspondence Between Byng and British Ambassador Tabled in House.

OTTAWA, April 21. Canadian Press. —Canadian Press. — Extension of the limit of search to 30 or 35 miles from the United States shores is mentioned as a possibility in the correspondence between the British Ambassador at Washington, and the Governor-General of Canada.

This correspondence was tabled in the House of Commons yesterday in reply to questions concerning the seizure of the Canadian schooner Pictonian off Long Island, in October, 1924, concerning the seizure of the liquor-laden schooner.

"I CAN'T AFFORD IT."

Play Repeated in George Street Sunday School Hall.

The Young People's League of Mark street United church repeated the play entitled, "I Can't Afford It," under the auspices of the 'Cubs' class of George street Sunday school.

This play has been presented several times and still has several more out-of-town calls.

The preacher of a country church is trying to get money for a new community building which the farmers think unnecessary, and will not support. He is helped by a college friend who in return falls in love with the preacher's maid, a pretty Irish girl.

Between acts a good programme was rendered, including vocal solos by Misses Cain and Howland and Mr. Arthur Mills, while Mrs. J. Weir acted as chairman. Instrumentals were also given by Miss Bacon.

DOUBLE SALARY FOR DRY AGENT NAMED BY GARY

Paid as U. S. Steel U. S. Executive and $500 a Month From Government.

REED FIGHTS DRYS.

Prohibition Administrator Recommended By President of U. S. Steel Corporation.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Stormy scenes and some startling revelations regarding dry law enforcement marked the sessions Tuesday of the Senate prohibition committee.

As the drys approached the conclusion of the presentation of their case there was a frequent outcropping of an under-surface bitterness with Senator Reed, Democrat, Missuri,S the one wet on the committee of five, standing as the central figure in the controversy.

Out-voted continuously by his dry colleagues, Senator Reed took to the Senate floor his fight for postponement of the hearings until after the vote today on the Italian debt settlement, but without avail.

Returning then to the committee room, the Missourian again faced objections by those in charge of the case for the drys to the consuming of time with cross-examination of their witnesses and finally, objections were raised by members of the committee to certain lines of inquiry.

Draws Double Salary.

Senator Reed then was cross-examining Frederick C. Baird, prohibition administrator for the Western Pennsylvania district, who disclosed that while now on the federal payroll at $500 a month he is still drawing his regular salary as traffic director of the Bessemer and Lake Erie Railroad, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation. Mr. Baird said he had been recommended for the federal position by Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the steel corporation, who had been requested by government officials to make recommendations at the time the prohibition force was reorganized.

Lax in Chicago.

Both Baird and Edwin A. Olson, United States district attorney at Chicago, testified to increased efficiency in the enforcement of the Volstead Act within their respective districts, but Mr. Olson brought an indictment against the municipal authorities of Chicago and Cook County for what he charged to be their failure to enforce the Illinois State dry statute.

Baird appeared in the nature of a "surprise" witness at the request of Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, and was on the stand for two hours. Before he was called, the drys had presented William F. McDowell, one of the ranking bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and other church leaders, who urged against any weakening of the Volstead Act and supported instead the administration measure to put "teeth" into that celebrated statute.

Rush For Licenses For Easter Weddings

TORONTO, Ont., April 21.—(Canadian Press).—The tendency of people to put things off to the last moment was illustrated once more at the city hall on March 30, when there was a big rush for marriage licenses for ceremonis to be performed during the Easter season. The outer office of the license issuer was crowded with prospective brides and grooms while the official was kept busy filling out the form. The issuer has made a request that intending applicants for marriages to take place in June make their applications early to avoid similar congestion. A marriage license is good for three months.

'BLUE SKY' LAW MAY BE DELAYED

Federal Government May Wait For Conference With Provinces.

OPINION DIVIDED.

OTTAWA, April 21 (Canadian Press).—"Blue sky" legislation applicable to companies incorporated under Dominion charter will not likely, it is understood, be introduced during the present session of Parliament. The prevailing opinion in official circles appears to favor the calling of a conference with representatives of all Provincial Governments before any steps are taken in this matter.

Agitation for the enactment of a Dominion-wide "blue sky" law comes from Manitoba, Saskatchewan ,Alberta and British Columbia. The Western provinces have already passed legislation of this character respecting provincially incorporated companies. They desire, however, to have the Federal Parliament put into effect a "blue sky" measure so as to cover companies operating under a Dominion charter, having special reference to the numerous oil companies which have sprung into existence. On the other hand, certain other provinces do not, it is understood, take a kindly attitude towards the introduction of "blue sky" legislation for the whole of Canada.

Representatives of several of the Western provinces are now reported on their way to Ottawa; and it is probable that this question will shortly be under further discussion.

More than 3,000,000 railroad ties were sent from this to other countries within the last year.

PHONE COMPANY SHOWS $382,828 DEFICIT IN 1926

President Sise Presents Figures on Operations For Three Months.

INCREASE NEEDED.

New Rates Would Apply Chiefly To Business Telephones.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 21 (Canadian Press).—"Additional revenue is necessary if the company is to continue to meet the requirements of present and prospective patrons," declared C. F. Sise, President of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada in evidence before the Board of Railway Commissioners yesterday.

The company is applying for an increased rate in urban areas in Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Sise, who was on the witness stand most of the day, said that the new proposed schedule would be borne largely by the business telephones; residential telephones would only be slightly affected. The company, according to the president, had suffered a deficit of $382,828.00 on operations for the first three months of 1926.

Staged for Publicity.

In the course of his evidence, Mr. Sise quoted the opinions of several men regarding the efficient management of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada. This met with a sharp protest from G. R. Geary, M.P., counsel for the city of Toronto. "If opinion is to be accepted as evidence, I can put up witnesses who will declare the Bell Telephone Company to be an infamous organization," said Mr. Geary. "It is plain," he added, "The whole thing is put up for the press."

Mr. Sise outlined the plans of the company in respect to the installation of automatic telephones. One half of the telephones in Toronto would be on automatic exchanges by 1929, and one-half of Montreal would have automatic phones by 1931, if the present plans were carried through. The president defended the company's contract with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company on the grounds that the benefits of the engineering advice and research experience of the American firm were at the disposal of the Canadian.

Storm's Heavy Blow.

In testifying as to capital outlay it was said that the loss to the company in "toll lines" due to the recent sleet storm was over $600,000.

In 1924 and 1925, the expenditure was between $[illegible],000 and $18,000,000. There is an estimated growth of 225,000 phones in the years 1926 to 1930, which would probably involve $87,000,000. The bulk of this would come from issues of stocks or bonds, but part must come from reinvested surplus or reserves. The Bell Company had to find capital [illegible] as well as in good years if it was to take care of demand, as it arose, for [illegible] tional service.

MARMORA NEWS

MARMORA, April 21.— There was a large attendance at the morning service at St. Paul's on Sunday. The service commenced with the Te Deum and Easter music featured throughout. The special anthem was "Hosanna" by Jules Ranier, the solo parts of which were creditably taken by Mrs. F. S. Pearce. The Rev. P. Caiger-Watson chose as his theme, "The Power of the Resurrection". A good number remained to partake of the Holy Communion. The Royal ; roclamation on Forest Protection was referred to by the Rector.

Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Horwood and daughter, Ruby, spent Friday and Saturday in Camborne.

Mr. and Mrs. William McCoy and son Carl, visited at Mr. Tom Park's Madoc township, on Sunday.

William Wildie of Camborne was a week end guest at the parsonage.

William Linton has relinquished his position with the Herald and left for his home at Wyevale on Saturday.

"TheseChurch of the First Century" was the title of a striking address delivered by .he pastor, Rev. F. J. Horwood, at the United church on Sunday evening. Attention was also drawn to the Royal proclamation on Forest Protection.

THREE INJURED IN C.N.R. DERAILMENTS

Minor Mishaps on the Dauphin Division.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 21.—(Canadian Press.) — Three men were injured in a series of derailments on the Canadian National Railways Dauphin division.

A mixed train bound for Dauphin was derailed owing to a "sun kink" in the rails. Passengers were shaken up but none were injured.

A wrecking train which was rushed from Dauphin to clear the right of way ran off the track a few miles out. J. P. Johnson, division superintendent, was hurled through the window of his private car and sustained cuts and bruises. R. C. Robinson, division engineer, was badly bruised when he was thrown about the car, while Dave McLean, fireman, was stunned when he jumped from the engine just before it plunged into the ditch. He was unconscious for two hours, but will recover.

The third derailment occurred on Tuesday at Cowan when a mixed train bound for Swan River left the track. There were no persons injured and damage was slight.

Coal produced in France last year weighed 48,000,00 tons the record for production in that country.

LEADER OF PROGRESSIVES

know what the feeling must have been among the 3,000 people who stopped before the offices of the motor companies and found the offices closed. But my sympathy was with the workingmen and not with the companies. If our manufacturers can produce as excellent goods at reasonable prices everything will be all right and no doors will be closed."

Mr. Forke referred to the great number of American magazines which came from the United States. The influence of those he believed would be tremendous.

"Would you favor placing a duty on them?" asked Mr. Meighen. "I am not prepared to say," replied Mr. Forke. "I am not playing politics."

The Progressive leader concluded by declaring "stay with Canada; it is our country. I am not Canadian born, but Canada is my home. We have a destiny to fulfil and that is to bring about national unity."

Income Tax Reduction.

Discussing the reduction in the income tax, Mr. Forke believed that these cuts should be heartily endorsed by all. No person who knew actual conditions in the city could expect a man with a family to pay an income tax on much less than $4,000. It was unfair and unpatriotic for Canadians to suggest, however, that taxation in Canada should be reduced to that in the United States.

The Progressive leader commented that a business man, when fixing the price of his goods, could always estimate his taxation and count it in with his expenses. Mr. Forke said that he would like to know how a farmer who was going to sell his products in the markets of the world at the best price he could get, could possibly add his taxes to the selling price.

Those who were holding up the Progressives as sectional and selfish, said Mr. Forke, "are trying to create a division and divide the east from the west." The reduction in taxation of approximately twenty-five million dollars, as announced in the budget, was, in his opinion, permitted largely as a result of the tremendous crops in 1925. This was further illustration of his statement, he said, that if farming prospered, the rest of the Dominion did likewise.

There was no antagonism in Western Canada towards industries. "Any action we have taken is not a matter of antagonism but a matter of self-preservation," he said. Mr. Forke believed there was more individual happiness in this country than in any other in the world.

Hon. R. J. Manion.

Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William) congratulated the Finance Minister that revenue had increased and the railway condition bettered. "This is due, however," he said, "to the good fortune, not the good management, of the Government, because the Government's tariff policy has unsettled business, injured industry, lessened work and wages, and increased the exodus from the country."

The reason for better conditions had been "the bounty of providence." Agricultural production in Canada last year, he observed, was worth $265,000,000 more than in 1924, and the mineral production worth $15,000,000 more. "This increased the purchasing power, the Government revenue, and the railway revenue," he said. The sales tax had been increased by the Government from three to six per cent., and later reduced to five per cent. "This should have been reduced instead of the tariff, and would have had a greater effect on prices," he declared. "The cheque tax which had also been [illegible] by the Government should have been [illegible] while the income tax reduction more "apparent than real, as [illegible] will find upon examination."

Dr. Manion said the postage rate could have been reduced some years ago if the Government had not been spending money recklessly up and down the country on public works which were really political bribes. It was only when the laborer and small farmer wrote a letter that he would find any benefit under the budget reductions. There was no other benefit for the family man who earned less than $3,000 a year. The effect of this budget would be to make the poor poorer, through the closing down of industry, and to make the rich richer, by reducing their taxes. The well-to-do would even get the angustura bitters for their cocktails cheaper.

Assault on Protection.

The reduction of auto tariffs was "another assault on the national policy of protection," which the people of Canada had always voted for when they were given an opportunity to do so, said Dr. Manion. In 1896, in 1911 and in 1925 protection had been endorsed at the polls. Last October, 116 Conservatives, and some 50 or 60 Liberals had been elected on the policy of protection, said Dr. Manion. This Government had promised to make changes in the tariff only after the fullest examination by the tariff board. That board had been appointed eight days before the budget was brought in. The reductions in auto tariff should have been referred to that board first. The Government to keep power had thrown the tariff board aside "like a sucked orange" before it began to function. Instability in business had been started again and "the working men of Canada must be exiled to keep this Government in power," he said.

Migration of Workmen.

The migration of Canadians to the United States in the seven months ended January 31st last, totalled 53,000.

"This Government is the greatest immigration agent the United States ever had," he said. Canadian artisans were made "sacrificial goats" on the altar of the Government's ambitions. The necessity for protection of Canadian industry against foreign competition could be demonstrated, said Dr. Manion. Even the catalogne, the famous rag carpet made in French Canada, was being copied in Japan and shipped to Canada, and Canada's outside markets at Oriental prices.

"This is another American budget. If this Government keeps on bringing in budgets in favor of the United States and against the interests of Canada, it won't be very long before there will be no international boundary between Canada and the United States."

This was an "anti-Canadian" Government, with an anti-Canadian policy," said Dr. Manion.

So far as the competition of foreign industry was concerned, said Dr. Manion, Canada should apply "the commercial golden rule: Let us do unto them as they are doing unto us."

Saskatchewan Budget.

D. M. Sutherland (Conservative, North Oxford) ascribed the tariff reductions in the budget to the influence of the Saskatchewan Liberals.

"This is a Saskatchewan budget," he said. "I say this because the policy of Saskatchewan has been shown to be annihilation and assassination of industries rather than protection."

Mr. Sutherland was amazed at the spectacle of men engaged in an industry like farming which was admittedly not very prosperous, denying that industry the protection it required against unfair competition.

appointed since I took charge of I would have dismissed were I free to do so, or recommended their dismissal," he said. "The reason for my inaction in this respect is politics for which I have not been responsible, and I was not courting trouble for myself."

Mr. Wilson stated that in future he would recommend dismissals whenever he considered them merited.

Duff's Statement

Deputy Speaker William Duff of Lunenburg requested the privllege of making a statement. He admitted that Captain Zinck had been appointed by the customs department on his recommendation. The reason was that three years ago American citizens came and chartered vessels for rum-running between St. Pierre and American ports. They would come to Lunenburg and other ports for repairs. Mr. Duff had felt it necessary to have a special offer to see that no liquor was landed and Captain Zinck, a master mariner for 40 years, was appointed. He would collect $5 a day from the owners of cargoes and pay his watchmen. Shortly afterward he was instructed to charge 50 cents an hour and he asked Inspector Bolt of Halifax what he would do with the balance between the amount collected and the amount paid his watchmen.

"I object," said Mr. Duff, "to his being accused as a thief or a crook. He received no instructions as to the disposal of the money. The 50 cents an hour is still being charged at all the ports and there is no talk of extortion. He was in charge of cargoes valued at several million dollars, and if he had been dishonest, did not need to keep such small sums as have been mentioned. It is not fair for Mr. Wilson or any one else to cast imputations against his characters. He will testify if asked to do so."

"He shall be called," said the chairman.

Alcohol Stolen

P. S. Hardy, of the Customs department, Montreal, was the first witness. He was asked with regard to the theft of 340 gallons of alcohol from the customs at Montreal. The alcohol was contained in 70 drums which were shipped into Montreal as cocoanut oil but were detected and seized. While in the hands of the customs a quantity of alcohol was removed from the drums.

C. P. Blair, of the customs department at Ottawa, gave evidence in regard to the alcohol theft. In answer to counsel he said that an investigation into the alleged theft had been held by Mr. Weldon, collector at Montreal, who reported that he was unable to find out the thief.

In 1924, another investigation was held by R. P. Clerk, inspector of Customs at Montreal. The report which he made threw the blame on one man, since dead.

Not One American Car Lasts As Long As REO

NOT ONE

The following statement is based on figures obtained from thoroughly reliable, disinterested sources. It gives the names and relative standing of the four longest-lived American cars. There is a difference between automobiles of various makes. One of the greatest differences is in lasting quality and in all that it means to the owner's purse:

We could hardly believe the figures when they were first brought to us.

It did not seem possible that the Reo, always a moderate priced car, could outlive even the costliest creations of American automobile manufacturers.

So we had the figures checked again.

And again—and yet again.

After all the checks had been made, the amazing facts remained unchanged.

THE FOUR LONGEST-LIVED CARS

[illegible] automobiles have a longer average life—[illegible]uch longer average life—than any other [illegible]rican automobile.

[illegible]cond to Reo in average length of life are [illegible]e big Pierce-Arrows.

Third are the Cadillacs.

Fourth are the Franklins.

These four makes of automobiles, and these four only, have a proved average life of more than eight years.

THE CARS WHOSE RECORDS WERE COMPARED

Reo, Pierce-Arrow, Cadillac, Franklin, Stearns, Locomobile, Stutz, Paige, Kissel, Marmon, Chandler, Velie, Buick, Case, Dodge, Packard, Hudson, Hupmobile, Davis, Willys Knight, Jordan, Studebaker, Peerless, Auburn, Nash, Overland, Oldsmobile, Oakland, Chevrolet, Moon.

A number of American built cars are missing. Some of these are cars whose production has been so small that registration figures are not obtainable. The others have not yet been tested by the years, or are no longer built.

THE TEST

The only way to judge the life of the average car you or anyone else may get, is by the life of ALL the cars of each maker.

Take the total production of passenger cars for each make for the last eight years. Compare these figures with the number of cars of each make registered on December 31, 1925, as compiled by R. L. Polk & Company, automobile statisticians.

This method eliminates statements of opinion, protects buyers from making judgments on the basis of the performance of a few cars out of hundreds of thousands—cars often driven by mechanics or dealers and re[illegible] or [illegible] cost.

HOW THEY RANK, IN ACTUAL FIGURES

On December 31, 1925, there were 24.9% more Reo passenger cars registered than have been built in the entire last eight years.

Or, in other words, Reo had 124.9% of its last eight years' output in registered use.

The only other cars having more than 100% of their production registered were: Pierce-Arrow with 10.1% more, Cadillac with 8% more, and Franklin with 4.9% more.

Remember the respective costs of these cars and then again compare the records:

Reo	124.9%
Pierce-Arrow	110.1
Cadillac	108.0
Franklin	104.9

Tested for nine years or seven years, Reo retains its leadership. And it is significant that, in this long life league, Reo's constantly improved construction has greatly increased its lead over other cars in its price class.

WHAT THIS MEANS IN DOLLARS TO YOU

1—It means that repair and maintenance costs are very low or Reos could not be kept running so long.

2—That you ride carefree, economically and comfortably because the engineering which gives Reo long life must provide against wear, against break-downs, for low operating costs, and for protection against jolts and jars of the roads or Reos would not last.

3—[illegible]old their appearance or so long that [illegible]p them year after year. [illegible] no car [illegible]rame will sag, [illegible]ose upholstery and [illegible]ittings deteriorate rapidly would be in service so long.

4—You can buy long life at a moderate price.

5—This long life means that Reo cars cost very little in depreciation because their cost is spread over so many years.

6—That re-sale prices of Reos are always higher than the average because there are so many thousands of unused miles left in them.

The New and Improved Reo offers you all the fine qualities that have been Reo's for so long, plus such outstanding developments as Split-Second Steering for the easy handling of balloon-tired Reos, Split-Second Braking with Standard Control and Standard Gear Shift, lengthened lines, more luxurious appointments, and many minor refinements.

Come in and see this very good-looking, moderate priced car, which outlasts all the creations of all other American manufacturers.

THE NEW MARATHON STAR.

The remarkable victory of John C. Miles, young Nova Scotian runner in the classic Boston Marathon, in which the Canadian youngster slashed nearly four minutes off the world's record for the distance, has stirred the people of this country as the exploits of Sherring and McCaffrey and later of Tom Longboat used to thrill every Canadian with sporting blood in his veins.

Canadian runners have a splendid page in the history of long distance running, and the records that were set up by those earlier runners from this country are cherished proudly, but no marathon feat to equal the performance of eighteen-year-old John Miles appears in the record book.

Miles, running his first long race and opposed not only by the pick of the long distance men of the Continent, including Clarence De Mar, four times winner of the race, but by the famous Finnish star, Stenroos, holder of the Olympic champion, this young Nova Scotian ran with splendid judgment, great endurance and surprising speed, with the result that the distance was covered in four minutes less time than ever before in a competition of this kind.

Canada may well be proud of her latest contribution to the list of world famous athletes.

40 LIVES SACRIFICED.

The motoring season is opening up with the gradual drying up of the country roads, and right now is a good time for motorists to decide that this should be a safety first summer.

The need of such a decision is shown by figures just published by the Canadian National Railways, which show that last year 40 people lost their lives in level crossing accidents on the C. N. R. system and 51 more were injured.

In all there were 65 grade crossing accidents last year, and investigation shows that in a large number of cases these accidents were due solely to the carelessness of motorists.

Listed among the accidents are two where autoists drove their cars into the tender of the engines, three where the automobile hit the third or fourth car back of the engine, and one where the driver actually smashed into the twentieth car.

The heavy price paid for carelessness is illustrated by the fact that in two cases three complete families were wiped out, and in one accident two whole families lost their lives.

Somebody has said that the automobile has yet to be made that can try conclusions with a swiftly moving train and win, and the C. N. R.'s figures offer tragic proof of the truth of that statement.

MOVIE CENSORSHIP.

The controversy between the Province of Quebec and the motion picture producers, revolving around a threat on the part of the latter to boycott Quebec if the Provincial censorship of films is not relaxed, has been followed with much interest by the people of Ontario.

This interest will be considerably heightened by the statement issued by Premier Taschereau, who in backing up his censorship board said:

"If it is possible to boycott the Province of Quebec for a moral reason, we will take up with the Federal Government the question of not permitting the other Provinces to have the films which cannot enter our Province, and I believe that Ottawa will grant our request."

In short, Premier Ta[illegible] that if the motion picture exhi[illegible] by reason of Quebec's [illegible] censorship to furnish that Province with films Quebec will seek revenge in the form of barring out from the rest of Canada all films of a nature considered objectionable in Quebec.

The people of Ontario are willing to concede the right of their neighbors in Quebec to say what pictures they want to see, but when they propose to censor not only their own films but those intended for our use, then the line must be drawn.

Ontario does not propose to have its menu of moving pictures prepared for it by the censorship board of another Province, and however confident Premier Taschereau may be of his influence at Ottawa, the Federal Government is not likely to force anything so silly or unfair upon the people of the rest of Canada.

The Quebec censorship may be admirable, but if there is to be censoring of our films we propose to do it ourselves.

WARFARE ON A PRINCIPLE.

The Examiner had not intended to say anything more for the present on the subject of the press and County Council committee meetings, but County Clerk Elliott's latest letter on this question contains a charge that cannot be allowed to go unanswered.

The communication avers that the Examiner has reflected upon the integrity of the County Council.

That is sheer nonsense.

From the outset we have made it clear that we have no quarrel with the members of the County Council; we are attacking not them, but a principle.

So far as their public records go and the Examiner's knowledge of the members themselves is concerned, there is nothing to justify the slightest criticism, and no criticism has, in fact, been offered.

The target of the Examiner's attack has been throughout, the obsolete system of closed doors which has been in existence for decades, and for which this year's Council—or any other Council for many years back—cannot be blamed.

We do not suppose this question has been discussed by the County Council for years; the system has been there and they have gone on using it without any thought that there might be adopted a method that would be of more benefit to the taxpayers.

The Examiner has sought through its recent articles on the subject to show the members of the Council that there is reason to consider this whole matter carefully, pointing out that the people who pay the taxes are entitled to fuller and more complete reports of the proceedings of the Council, including its committee sessions, than they have been receiving.

In so doing we have nothing to say to the detriment of any member, we have not "flayed" the Council, but the principle which says the people have no right to this information, and the "integrity of the Council" is quite safe at our hands.

And that's that.

BOY AND GIRL COSTS.

(Philadelphia Public Ledger)

If it is a boy, set down the figures and dollar mark thusly: $6,077. If it is a girl, mark the price up about $90, or $6,167. These are the respective amounts you are going to be set back in the 18 years following and succeeding the entrance upon the little drama on what Mr. Will. Shakespeare wittily called "this bank and shoal of time." In other words, as statistically ascertained, the average costs of the first 18 years of life in the world at this stage are for the respective sexes as already set forth.

A life insurance company with actuarial leanings and long experience has made the survey. Mamie costs a little more than John, but both of them cost like sixty, as one might say. The food cost is set at $2,500. There will be a matter of $912 for John's clothing, but Mamie will require a bit more, say $1,002. No one ever thinks of little Mamie and John costing much in the way of rent, but they do, and it is a bigger item than clothes by far, or $1,620. Fuel and light will cost about the same for both, $300.

And when the figures are all put together there they stand in a more or less challenging bulk and impressiveness: for John, $6.077; for Mamie, exactly $90 more. Now, Benjamin Franklin was the 17th—but no matter, Benjamin lived a long time ago, and everything was cheaper in those days. Nevertheless, it is interesting to multiply $6.000 by 17 just to see how it looks; or, rather, how it would have looked a couple of hundred years ago if things then had been about as they are now.

WHEN NEWS WAS SCARCE.

The man who finds his newspaper on the breakfast table every morning, glances hastily through its columns and tosses it aside with a growl that "there's nothing in it," would be more appreciative of its contents if he knew something of the conditions that prevailed before the advent of the press. How news travelled in the olden days when there were no editors to collect and record it, and no printers with enough enterprise to publish it, would form the subject of an interesting study which historians have strangely neglected.

In Biblical times, we are told that news travelled faster than the truth, which would indicate that even in those days the "yellow journalist" was not unknown; while the ancient Greek philosopher who daily inquired if there was any news had probably means of satisfying his curiosity that were then considered adequate to the age. Following the vagabond and the courier, with wallet and despatch, and the soldier or sailor, bearing intelligence from abroad, came, as a recognized purveyor of news, the journalist, or news-writer, a product of the sixteenth century, and the forerunner of the modern "special correspondent."

In the spacious days of Queen Elizabeth the newswriters were employed by ambassadors, courtiers and other persons of high degree to keep them in touch with the events of the time. Their services were also retained by leading business firms at home and abroad, eager to learn of political developments in the various European countries or of the discoveries that were being made of unknown lands where treasure was to be found. Satirized by the playwrights of the time as veritable sons of Ananias, who gulled their patrons with "pompous lies" and spread abroad unfounded tales, they were yet a class of whom history is only beginning to realize its debt.

Some interesting light upon the operations of those sixteenth century news collectors, the reporters of Shakespeare's day, has recently been shed by the publication of the papers preserved in the archives of a famous European firm of merchants and bankers which had correspondents in all the leading capitals. The Fuggers of Augsburg were noted as one of the wealthiest and most influential commercial corporations of that age. They lent money to Emperors and Popes, and had financial interests which circled the known world, and necessitated the employment of a [illegible] news-writers whose duty it was to keep them informed of passing events of interest.

From the reports of those correspondents, that were preserved and have now been published, are to be obtained vivid glimpses of an age perhaps the most picturesque and stirring in history; yet what cannot fail to impress the reader accustomed to his morning and evening paper, is the dearth and delay of reliable information concerning big events that would today be flashed round the world in a few seconds and featured as front page stories.

Think of what the London correspondent of a New York journal would have made of the rumored engagement of Queen Bess to the Duc d'Alencon, and then turn to the report of Fuggers news-writer, who describing her Majesty's reception of her supposed fiancee could only record that "on Fridays he is served with fish, and on Sundays with flesh. He lives in the Queen's palace, and mass is said daily in his chamber. Two of the servants of the Spanish Ambassador wanted to see how he behaved at it, but they were chased out of the room by the pages of the door-closet."

Or imagine the flaming front page stories that might have been written of the adventures of Drake, who figures prominently in the Fugger news service as an unprincipled pirate; or, better still, of the destruction of the Spanish Armada off the English coast. But while Drake's captures on the Spanish main are diligently, though seldom accurately, reported, the only picturesque touch we get of him is in a paragraph which relates that "Drake captured Don Pedro de Valdez, admiral of 14 vessels, and had him, and 10 other nobles brought on his ship," where "he gave them a banquet, and treated them very handsomely, and entertained them besides with trumpets and music."

The sixteenth century news service organized by the Fuggers and other notables no doubt served a useful purpose, and many of the items gathered and transmitted by its representatives in London, Antwerp, Madrid and Rome make curious and entertaining reading. They present a picture of a glorious period which cannot but be of value to the historian, and, what is of no less interest, they reveal a system of publicity that is in singular contrast to the development of the modern press and modern methods of news collection and distribution.—Ottawa Journal.

TORONTO, April 20.—Business this morning was transacted at steady prices and choice butchers, in loads, sold at $7.50 a cwt. For export a few steers were taken at $7.50 to $8 a cwt., and heifers at $7.25 a cwt. Butcher's bulls were [illegible] to [illegible] and good bologna bulls brought $4.75 a lwt. Cows were not plentiful and these sold steady for the good ones at $5.50 to 36 a cwt. With only about 1,100 cattle on sale today there will be few left tonight. The Western stockers and feeders are held quite steady.

Today's run of calves consisted largely of medium quality dairies, which brought 8 1-2 to 9 1-2 cents a pound. One bunch of light common calves sold at 5 1-2 cents a pound. Any good to choice calves were 12 to 13 cents a pound.

There was only one load of yearling lambs on the market and these were not sold during the morning. Prices were steady to firm on these. Spring lambs were $14 each and some sheep not too high in quality sold at $7.75 a cwt.

Only 703 hogs arrived this morning. Monday's light run caused an advance of 25 cents a cwt to $12.75 a cwt. f.o.b., and another 25 cents additional is fully expected today, thus making the of-car quotation $14 a cwt.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 20 (Canadian Press)—Extreme dullness marked the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market today owing to the fact that there were few firm bids received from foreign buyers. There was a steady demand for ocean grain room for May loading here and a moderate amount of business was done, including engagements of heavy grain to the Continent at 13 cents per 100 pounds.

Butter prices were unchanged at 35c per lb for solid packages, and at 36c per lb. for 1 lb. blocks of finest creamery butter.

The receipts of cheese were 770 boxes, as compared with 378 for the same day last week.

There was no improvement in the volume of cheese business on spot or over the cable and in consequence the market was dull, but the feeling was about steady and 16c per lb, f.o.b. country points will be the ruling price for this week.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

USURPATION OF POWER AT COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Dear Editor:

During the discussion with regard to the attendance of newspaper reporters in so far as corporate bodies are concerned, one thing has been ascertained, namely: That an editor who has power in his paper to let go to press what suits him and cut out as he disposes, has flayed the County Council and jumped from Genesis to Revelations, even going as far as Italy to bring comparisons of "parochial Mussolini" (the jawbreaker, parochial, meaning narrow-minded), inorder to secure his opportunities to exercise his power over such body.

His references to the Clerk are only red herrings to switch, for as stated, the practice has been carried out for the greater part of a century and no former editor clamored for such usurpation. The Clerk is only a machine filling a gap and it matters not to the community who attempts to slash him, especially when he takes issue to the reflections on the integrity of a body corporate whose legislation stands second to none in the province judging by the citation of their financing, not only at present but for the greater part of a century.

If this modern all wise (Solomon editor) had of been in Italy some months ago "Mussolini" might now be hiding in the forests of Africa in terror of him, and I presume he expects that the County Council next January will hand in their resignations in terror of him, or the ratepayers who last January after meeting the taxes in the requisition handed to them, returned 15 out of 17 who presented themselves for re-election. One gentleman out of the 18 having retired, will pronounce to suit him. The ratepayers of the County think and act for themselves and the gentlemen they have always sent to the Council have been a credit to them, notwithstanding the disappointment of one infallible editor. He has certainly exhibited great ability in his attempt to press a weak case, especially in weighty witticisms, and the good and friendly feelings that existed up to the present for editors continues the same today.

Apologizing for taking so much space,

I remain, Yours as ever,

ED. M. ELLIOTT,
Clerk C. P.

WHY take chances with dread pyorrhea? Through carelessness, four out of five suffer with it after the age of forty, and many younger. These are your dentist's statistics.

If used regularly and in time it checks or prevents the ravages of this mouth scourge. Start brushing your teeth with Forhan's today. It not only gives your teeth a perfect cleansing, but keeps you safe from dread pyorrhea's tolls. All druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

RUM SMUGGLER ESCAPED PENALTY THROUGH POLITICAL INFLUENCE IS ALLEGATION AT CUSTOMS PROBE

Prince Edward Island Man Guilty But Neither Fined Nor Jailed.

WANTS SEIZED CAR.

"Politics" Also Prevented Dismissal of Excise Officer at Lunenburg.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 21 (Canadian Press)—That political influence was used to keep a Prince Edward Island rum-smuggler out of jail was the declaration of Hon. R. B. Bennett, a member of the customs investigating committee Tuesday. C. P. Blair, general executive assistant of the Customs department at Ottawa, agreed that if the department had been given its way the man in question would have been in jail long ago.

The case was brought up by Mr. Bennett and reviewed briefly by Mr. Blair who referred to departmental files. The man einvolved was called Brown, of Charlottetown. According to the story, Brown was apprehended smuggling 75 gallons of rum into Prince Edward Island. He was arrested. The rum and automobile in which he was driving seized. He was taken to Summerside for trial. The files showed that on two occasions his prosecution had been deferred on instructions contained in telegram from the Deputy Minister of Customs at Ottawa.

Mr. Blair expressed the opinion that such instruction would never have been given by a deputy minister unless he had received directions from "higher up" to do so.

Guilty But Free

The net result of the whole prosecution, according to Mr. Blair, was that though Brown was guilty, he paid no fine, served no prison term, and did not even refund the costs of the action. He was now in Prince Edward Island, and Mr. Blair stated in answer to Mr. Bennett that he understood Brown was trying through Hon. J. E. Sinclair, former minister without portfolio in the King government, and Senator Prowse, to obtain possession of the seized car.

Mr. Bennett declared that the reason why this man had been able to escape was "political influence." The original seizure had been made in 1923.

Earlier in the day W. F. Wilson, chief of the Preventive Service of the Customs department, announced to the committee that he had recommended the dismissal of J. D. Zinck, Customs excise enforcement officer at Lunenburg. He never favored the appointment of this man, which he believed had been made on the recommendation of William Duff, Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, and member for Lunenburg, and he would have advocated his dismissal some time ago.

TRUCE BECALMS SPANISH FRONT

Fighting Suspended During Armistice Parley With the Riffians.

FRENCH ENGAGED.

MELILLA, Spanish Morocco, April 21 (Canadian Press).—"Cease firing" was the order flashed Tuesday into every military position in this region of the Spanish front. The order also applies to sea and air craft.

A truce has been declared while French and Spanish delegations are attempting to negotiate a peace with the insurgent Riffians.

The order specifically says that no fighting must occur, that no flights either for reconnoitering purposes or bombing raids must be made until further notice.

Riffians, on the other hand, attacked the French at Zoco Sebt Ain Aimar but were repulsed with serious losses. The French too suffered several casualties.

Another army order forbids all tribesmen to possess arms. An exception is made with a few natives inhabiting country bordering the enemies' land, but even they must receive special authorization from Spanish headquarters.

JAPANESE SLAYER GAVE HIMSELF UP

Charged With Double Murder in Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 21. —(Canadian Press).—Just 24 hours after the police found the lifeless, mutilated bodies of Mrs. Kimi Furukawa and her two-year-old son, Muneo, Soitsu Furukawa, the brother-in-law of the woman at noon yesterday walked into police headquarters, gave himself up and was charged with the double murder.

An interpreter was immediately secured and the man made a statement which, police say, will not be divulged until the inquest, which will be held this afternoon, or at his preliminary hearing to-day.

Sergeants John Deacon and Charles Yorke were on duty at headquarters and were busy on their books when both happened to look up and see a well-dressed Japanese standing at the inquiry desk.

Before his business could be asked he said: "I killed the woman and the baby yesterday."

"Are you Soitsu Furukawa?" inquired Sergeant Deacon, and the Japanese replied in the affirmative.

Taken to Inspector J. Thompson's office, the man said that he had been wandering around all night and exhibited his hands, which were terribly cut and scratched as if in a struggle in which a knife or some sharp instrument had been used.

"He appeared quiet and unconcerned," said Inspector Thompson, "and wished to make statements, apparently thinking that he had really committed no wrong."

BANDIT'S TRIAL IN BUFFALO ON MURDER CHARGE

Whittemore Alleged To Have Killed One of Two Bank Messengers.

$93,000 STOLEN.

Defense To Plead Case of Mistaken Identity—Four Witnesses.

BUFFALO, April 21 (Canadian Press).—The legal battle in which the life of Richard Reese Whittemore is at stake, opened yesterday with the declaration of Guy B. Moore, district attorney, that he would present evidence of a nature to warrant the jury in voting to send the 28-year-old bandit leader to the electric chair. He stated that he will prove by reputable businessmen that Whittemore took an active part in the gun play that ensued in downtown Buffalo on October 29 last, when six bandits killed two guards and got away with a satchel containing $93,000 currency.

W. Bartlett Sumner, chief defence counsel, did not inform the jury how he hopes to counteract the people's case. It is no secret, however, that he hopes to convince the jury that it is a case of mistaken identity.

"We will prove," District Attorney Moore told the jury in his brief opening, "that it was the hand of this defendant that in all probability fired the shot that killed Clifford, the bank messenger. In any event, we will show that he did a great deal of the shooting."

Mr. Moore stated that he would prove by four witnesses that Whittemore was a member of the bandit gang.

After the opening and after the court had denied three motions of defence counsel, the trial got under way with the calling of four preliminary witnesses. They testified solely as to the cause of death of the slain man, the description of the scene of the crime, and the transfer of $117,000 to the armored bank car that was robbed and the recovery of $24,000 of that sum.

LINESMAN ELECTROCUTED.

MONTREAL, Que., April 21. —(Canadian Press.)— While putting wire connections in a house Tuesday, Leo Marsil, 28, touched a wire carrying a charge of 550 volts and was electrocuted.

INFANT MORTALITY LOW IN VANCOUVER

Considered Record For Cities of Over Hundred Thousand People.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 21.—(Canadian Press).—Vancouver's infant mortality rate for 1925 of 36.33 deaths under the age of one, per 1000 births, probably constitutes a new low record for cities of more than 100,000 inhabitants, it was stated by city health officer, Dr. F. T. Underhill in his report to the civic health committee. The previous record for Vancouver was 40.27 in 1924. Dr. Underhill attributes this record in part, at least, to the activities of the division of child hygiene and mentions the co-operation of the Victorian Order of Nurses. The improved milk supply was also advanced as another factor in this connection. Under the Child Hygiene Division, four well-baby clinics were held weekly and advice given.

YOUTHS' ACCUSER HIMSELF IN TOILS

Charged With Inciting Robbery of Man They Killed.

EDMONTON, Alta., April 21. — (Canadian Press. — John F. Anderson, largely upon whose evidence, two 17 year old youths, Archie Killoips and Nick Hawryluk, were convicted of killing Jacob Milner, an aged storekeeper, and sentenced to life imprisonment, has himself been taken into custody.

When the boys were being sentenced, through their lawyer, they submitted affidavits alleging that Anderson had incited them to rob the old man.

Mr. Justice Walsh ordered that the charges be thoroughly investigated by the Provincial police, and the arrest followed.

Anderson appeared in the police court Tuesday, and was remanded until April 27. He did not enter a plea.

BIG SISTERHOOD WORK EXPLAINED

Magistrate Patterson, of Toronto, Tells of Efforts For Girls.

MONTREAL, Que., April 21.—(Canadian Press).—"A girl's value to her country" was the theme of a lecture given by Dr. Margaret Patterson, magistrate, of Toronto, to the Big Sisterhood Association. The Toronto movement had its origin in the Council of Women, stated the speaker, seven members of which took a list of 70 girls and upon investigation found that the greatest need of a girl was the right kind of a friend. These women then formed an association to help the underprivileged girl and the club grew so rapidly that it soon became a separate organization with several branches.

Judge Patterson explained that the work of the society was educational and preventive, not redemptive. Small recreation groups have been formed where the girls are taught the "dignity of women's work." "Sewing something for somebody else" before learning to make things for themselves is another part of the programme. "If you can get the girls to realize what a wonderful organ of respiration the skin is, it will do as much as anything to prevent them from using paint on their faces," said the lecturer.

'QUAKES DAMAGE HOUSES IN AZORES

LONDON, April 21.—(Canadian Press).—Earthquakes, recurring with increasing violence, have done great material damage in the Azores, says a Lisbon despatch to The Daily Express.

Great damage to houses and other property is reported. Three violent shocks were felt yesterday after a series of earth tremors. The population of Azores is in a state of great excitement.

BIRDS BECOME RARE.

Many Varieties Are Doomed To Extinction, Says Expert.

MONTREAL, Que., April 21.—(Canadian Press).—Because women will insist on ornate feather trimmings for their hats, because epicureans make the flesh of the limpkin increasingly popular and because taxidermists and scientific bird fanciers grow more cunning in their searches for remote species, creatures that once settled in swarms over the eastern section of United States are now becoming rare curiosities, all but doomed to extinction. This is the impression that Dr. Arthur A. Allan, professor of ornithology at Cornell University, New York, gave to a meeting of the Province of Quebec Society for the Protection of Birds.

WARM IN THE WEST.

Prairies Sweltering in Midsummer Heat.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 21 (Canadian Press). — Western Canada yesterday was baking in a wave of mid-summer heat, with mercuries at almost every point on the prairies recording high marks of the season.

In Manitoba the heat was most pronounced. Winnipeg sweltered in a temperature of 80 degrees in the shade, while elsewhere in the province "Old Sol" was reported to be doing his stuff with vengeance.

Throughout Saskatchewan and Alberta the weather continues unusually favorable, and work on the land has been appreciably speeded up.

SIGNS 11,564 TIMES IN TWO HOURS.

Signing her name 11,564 times in two hours was no exhausting task for Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, president of a national women's club, aided by an ingenious device called a signagraph.

Each stroke of her pen, says Popular Science Monthly, sets in motion twenty little fountain pens working simultaneously.

BUILDING DESTROYED.

MINAKI, Ont., April 21.—(Canadian Press).—Fire which started in Kressail's general store shortly after midnight Sunday night totally destroyed the building in which the store was located and burned an adjoining dwelling to the ground. J. Scott, a clerk in the general store who was sleeping in the rear room had a narrow escape from suffocating and is under medical care. In additional to the general store loss the fire destroyed a pool room and an ice cream parlor.

FACTORY BURNED.

BELLEVILLE, April 21.—(Canadian Press).—Fire from an unknown origin destroyed the main building of the canning factory at Frankford village, owned by Canadian Canneries.

It has been idle for several weeks and for three days preceding the fire no one had been in the building.

Does That Cough Stick On Your Lungs?

Mr. Islay MacNab, Bognor, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with a terrible cough that I could not get rid of, and my doctor told me that I had a slight touch of bronchitis. Nothing I took seemed to give me any relief until I got a bottle of

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

I got such relief by using it that I would advise all those who are subject to bad colds or coughs to keep a bottle of this remedy in their homes all the time."

You don't experiment when you buy "Dr. Wood's" as it has been a household remedy for the past 37 years.

FAMOUS FEET

..how they're kept free from corns..

EVELYN LAW'S Famous Dancing Feet

. . . "A corn is hardly a luxury for anybody. . . . But for a dancer it is agony. . . . It puts a 'Spanish Inquisition' in her shoe.

"When I notice any suggestion of callus on the toe, I immediately apply a Blue-jay plaster. So that's why I never have a corn." So writes graceful and beautiful Evelyn Law, famous Ziegfeld dancer.

Small wonder that legions of eminent dancers, screen stars and athletes consider good old Blue-jay part of their "working kit!" For over 26 years it has been vanquishing corns to the tune of tens of millions annually. . . . Blue-jay keeps fit the feet of the famous and the foresighted. . . . Sold at all drug stores.

BANK NOTE LIES IN MUSEUM HERE

Is Relic of Days When the States Belonged to England.

WELL PRESERVED.

A relic of the "good old days" was unearthed in the museum of the public library to-day. It was a bank note dated May 1, 1760, value for five shillings and was issued in the reign of George in the province of Pennsylvania, which at that time was in the possession of England. The bill, which measures 3 1-2 inches by three inches has on all four borders the words "five shillings," and on the body of it are inscribed the words, "This bill shall pass current for five shillings within the province of Pennsylvania according to an act of assembly made in the 33rd year of King George—Dated May 1, 1760." It has a number inscribed upon it, 4421, which is still legible, although written in ink, as also are the signatures H. Harrison, Jos. Saunders and J. Morris. On the obverse side there is the grim inscription, "to counterfeit is death," serving to remind us that the present days are much better in that respect anway, for instead of paying the penalty with his life a counterfeiter would perhaps spend a term in some penitentiary and in a few years be able to practice his nefarious work again. Near the bottom of the bill there is a design composed of two leaves and the sentence 'Printed by B. Franklin and D. Hall.

The bill came into the possession of the museum through the kindness of Edward Courtney, an old resident of Peterborough and who received it from a brother of his who was on a visit here from Kansas City over fifty years ago.

BULLETS WHIZZ IN DAMASCUS STREETS

French Soldiers Nervous Under Rebels' Sniping.

LONDON, April 21 (Canadian Press).—Daily fighting in Damascus, near the barricades which the French have erected to exclude the Salahieh and Midan quarters, which are difficult to defend, is reported by the correspondent in Damascus of the Daily Mail. He says that bullets whiz night and day in these localities, while sudden fusillades sometimes burst even in the heart of the city, the rebellious tribesmen shooting from the houses.

The French troops are described as highly nervous owing to the difficulty of distinguishing between friend and foe. Thus, the correspondent adds, many harmless persons are killed.

Recently a vague report that the rebels were approaching led to furious machine gun firing in the street in the mid-morning, a number of passers-by being killed.

Despite the defensive measures which have been taken, says the correspondent, the rebels charged right through the centre of Damascus in daylight, kidnapping wealthy notables and carrying them to caves in the mountains, where they are held for ransom. Several well-known persons were kidnapped last week.

SELF-STARTING FOGHORNS.

Foghorns that begin to blow whenever a thick mist gathers have been invented in France. The device is set in motion by the action of the air on calcium carbide, says Popular Science Monthly. It has been successfully tested in several French ports where fogs are frequent.

ENGINEERS TO HEAR ADDRESS ON BRIDGE

P. L. Pratley Will Speak on Structure Across St. Lawrence.

On Thursday, April 22nd. the Peterboro Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada will hold the last regular meeting for this season.

For this meeting the branch has been fortunate in securing the services of P. L. Pratley, M. E. I.C., who will give an address illustrated by lantern slides, on the Montreal South Shore Bridge. This bridge is considered to be an engineering project of almost as much importance as the Quebec bridge and since Mr. Pratley is a partner of the firm which was successful in having its design accepted, an interesting and instructive address is in prospect.

The address will describe the bridge project since its inception, the design and fabrication, and the construction work up to date.

As usual an invitation is extended to any of the general public who may be interested in the subject.

REDUCTION IN DEFICIT OF C.N.R. EMPHASIZED IN ANNUAL REPORT

Net Operating Earnings Increased $15,020,163 as Compared With 1924—Only One-fifth of Money Voted By Parliament Required.

STATEMENT OF "PEOPLES' RAILWAY."

OTTAWA, April 21.—Net operating earnings of $32,264,414.79, an increase of $15,020,163.31 as compared with the preceding year are shown in the annual report of the Canadian National Railways covering the year 1925, tabled in the House of Commons at Ottawa Tuesday by the Honorable C. A. Dunning, minister of railways. This result, the report states, "may be regarded as generally satisfactory," and was due to a combination of increased gross earnings and decreased expenses.

The report points out that "from January to June inclusive, the gross earnings in 1925 were less than for the corresponding months in 1924, and it was not until the end of October, 1925 that the gross revenue overtook the figures for 1924."

Continuing, the report says: "in the face of the decreased business which obtained during the greater part of 1925, every effort in the direction of economy was put forth and maintained during the whole year. These efforts resulted in a decrease in expenses for the year of $5,637,143.25 or 2.5 per cent." The increase in the gross revenues amounted to $9,383,0200.06, or 3.9 per cent., as compared with 1924. A reduction in operating ratio from 92.68 per cent. in 1924 to 86.83 per cent. in 1925 was accomplished.

Net Earnings Increase.

Commenting upon these results, Sir Henry W. Thornton, chairman and president of the company, states: "It is also interesting to note that the net operating earnings were approximately equal to 80 per cent. of the interest payable to the public on funded debts as compared with about 45 per cent. in 1924."

The total operating revenues of the company for 1925 and 1924 were:

1925	$244,971,202.61
1924	235,588,182.55
Increase	9,383,020.06

The total operating expenses of the company for 1925 and 1924 were:

1925	$212,706,787.82
1924	218,343,931.07
Decrease	5,637,143.25

The net operating earnings of the company for 1925 and 1924 were:

1925	$ 32,264,414.79
1924	17,244,251.58
Increase	15,020,163.31

Improvement in Net Earnings.

The improvement in the net earning position of the company reflects itself in a substantial reduction in the net income deficit which was reduced from $54,860,419.22 in 1924 to $41,444,764,-42 in 1925, or by $13,405,654.81.

A further encouraging note is struck by an item under the heading of "Finance," which reads: "In the Appropriation act for 1925, the sum of $50,000,000 was voted for Canadian National purposes during the (dominion) fiscal year ending March 31, 1926. It has only been necessary to obtain $10,000,000 of this amount from the government. Payment of the balance has not been required partly because of increased resources due to larger gross and net earnings than were expected, and partly as a result of substantial reductions in the purchase of materials and supplies, and also partly by the use of working capital."

Transportation Expenses.

The largest item in the decreased expenses comes under the heading of "transportation" where the decrease amounted to $3,607,596.54. This decrease was accomplished in the face of an increase of more than 2,500,000 tons of freight handled. In the years 1922, 1923 and 1924 progressive decreases were shown in this account and that these percentages of decreases were well maintained during 1925 is indicated by the report which tables the following transportation expenses (in cents per dollar of gross revenue) for the last four years: Percentage of gross earnings absorbed by transportation expenses, 1925, 43.46; 1924, 46.73; 1923, 47.18; 1922, 48.57.

Maintenance of Way and Structures.

Expenses chargeable to maintenance of ways and structures were less by $1,033,151.81 than in 1924 and represent an expenditure of $1,960.51 per mile of line. "Notwithstanding this reduction," the report says, "the properties were not only maintained in good physical condition but, generally speaking, material improvement was made."

Maintenance of Equipment.

While there was a reduction of only $70,352.02 in maintenance of equipment, the report points out that the condition of motive power, freight and passenger car equipment, was not only fully maintained but substantially improved during the year, in the face of increased use of rolling stock necessitated by the heavier freight traffic movement over 1924.

Traffic and General Expenses.

Traffic expenses showed a decrease of $166,278.32 and there was a decrease of $410,060.18 in the items included under general expense.

Income Items.

During the year expenditures on account of purchases and stores were considerably less than in 1924. A determined effort was made to reduce stocks by close supervision and the development of improved methods. The quantities of materials and supplies on hand, including ties, fuel, rails and so forth, at the end of the year amounted to $7,876,460.79, less than in 1924.

Two issues of guaranteed securities were made during 1925. In February, 1925, there were issued $17,000,000 Canadian Northern 4½ per cent. 10-year guaranteed gold bonds and $18,-000,000 Canadian National 4½ per cent. 5-year guaranteed gold bonds. The $17,000,000 issue was, practically speaking, a refunding of two Canadian Northern issues, namely, $6,000,000 which matured in December, 1924, and $11,-000,000 which matured in March, 1925.

The $18,000,000 issue was for various new branch lines throughout Canada, the construction of which had been authorized by parliament; also for expenditures in connection with the Toronto viaduct.

The funded debt retirements during the year were:

Five per cent. three-year Canadian Northern Railway guaranteed gold notes, $11,000,000; equipment trust certificates of various issues, $5,473,400; payments under various sinking funds and sundry requirements, $1,110,380.06; a total of $17,583,780.06.

Traffic Movement.

Freight tonnage carried during the year showed an increase of 4.8 per cent., and there was an increase of 1.34 per cent. in freight train mileage, and of 5.5 per cent. in freight revenues as compared with 1924, the ratio of increase in freight revenue comparing favorably with that of class 1 roads in the United States.

An encouraging feature is that the average freight train loads in revenue tons for 1925 was higher than in any year since the amalgamation, the figures for the four years, 1922 to 1925, inclusive, being, 1925, 540.06; 1924, 516.83; 1923, 501.94; 1922, 475.39.

Effect of Bus Competition.

Light passenger travel during the earlier months of the year and the effect of motor bus competition upon the railways was indicated in decreased earnings of $615,516.78 or 1.6 per cent. by the passenger traffic department in 1925, as compared with 1924. The number of passengers carried showed a decrease of 1,032,641, or 4.5 per cent., and comparing these two figures, the report states that it indicates a preponderance of long-haul traffic.

Traffic earnings were also adversely affected by the embargo placed against live stock, poultry and other products from certain sections of the United States during the year, by the department of agriculture at Ottawa.

Motor truck competition, parcel post extension of weight limit and reduction in rates, partial failure of the fruit crop in the Niagara district and expedited L. C. L. freight service are cited by the report as reasons why the increase in express revenues was not more substantial.

Hotels.

A satisfactory improvement is noted by the report in the operations of the hotel department. Gross revenues during 1925 increased by approximately $210,000, which, coupled with a slight reduction in expenses, reduced the net loss from $297,938.20 in 1924 to $76,-365.55 in 1925, an improvement of $221,572.65.

Conclusion.

The report also cites the names of 30 employes with 50 or more years of service who were placed on pension during the year and whose "records furnish a fine testimonial to the fidelity and loyalty with which they have served the company for more than half a century."

Acknowledgment is also made of the services of such organizations as the volunteer fire brigades, the St. John Ambulance Society and others which contribute materially to the welfare of the property.

Concluding the report, Sir Henry gives recognition to the joint and individual support rendered by all the employes of the company. He says "The successful results for the year are very largely due to the fine spirit displayed by all our employes, which, coupled with their loyalty and enthusiasm, has enabled the administration to show a marked improvement."

EMPIRE SHOPPING WEEK BEING URGED

British Lady is Touring Canada For Empire Goods.

EDMONTON, Alta., April 21.—(Canadian Press).—The inauguration of an "empire shopping week" in this city, was forcefully brought before the executive of the local council of women by Miss Dorothy Pilley, who is organizing secretary Pilley, who is organiizng secretary of the British Women's Patriotic League, is in the course of a tour across Canada, during which she is endeavoring to inspire women with the idea of purchasing "made-in-empire" goods.

If being one of the most successful mountain climbers in England can be considered a "hobby", that is Miss Pilley's diversion. In her conquests are numbered many of the Alps' most famous peaks. Miss Pilley edits The Pinnacle, a mountaineering magazine, and is also on the committee of the Pinnacle club, whose membership is composed of British women mountain climbers. Last year Miss Pilley came to Canada to join the Alpine Club at Lake O'Hara, when she was the first woman to climb Mount Stephen. In speaking of the Alps and the Rockies, Miss Pilley says that comparison is as futile as between the Lily and the Rose. There is an entirely different charm.

IN THE SPRING.

'Tis only the tale of a poor married man—a thing that has happened to me. Just try and recall the same thought, if you can. If married, you'll quickly agree.

Most any day starts and you're all full of punch. At the office you're pluggin' away. The sun starts to shine and, while eating your lunch, ya long for the end of the day.

I'll hie me out homeward, ya think to yourself, and I'll get out the rake and the spade. I'll get all the seeds and the bulbs off the shelf, 'cause a garden has got to be made.

You manage to plough through the long afternoon. Then ya grab up your hat and your coat. You're soon nearing home, and you're whistlin' a tune. Yea, the springy air's gettin' yer goat.

"Oh, goody, you're early," the wife loudly cries. (Now, ain't this the luck of a feller?) The thought of the garden work rapidly dies. She's planned on your cleanin' the cellar.

BLIZZARD VISITS EASTERN COAST

Winter Conditions Return in Nova Scotia When Spring Seems Imminent.

HEAVY LOSSES.

HALIFAX, April 21 (Canadian Press).—Coming just when the sturdy forerunners of spring were forcing their way through fast melting banks of winter snow and chasing the mercury to more seasonable heights, a blizzard of midwinter character swept down over the Maritime Provinces yesterday and turned back the calendar at least two months.

Nova Scotia in particular last night was buried under drifts of snow six and seven feet deep in some places. Traffic by land and sea was badly crippled and stopped altogether in some instances, while along the shores great loss was suffered by fishermen who have already had to cope with disastrous losses from storms.

Australia is to have a new railroad, 158½ miles long, construction of which will cost $7,500,000.

Two thousand men are to be given work at the newly discovered coal mine near Chesterfield, Ireland.

RADIO PEN WRITES ACROSS THE ETHER

Inventor of Wireless Photos Perfects a Remarkable New Apparatus.

A remarkable "radio pen", which traces in ink reproductions of cartoons, maps, printed matter or script broadcast from a distant station, has just been perfected by C. Francis Jenkins, inventor of the Jenkins process of transmitting photography by radio. It is said to be the only existing device capable of tracing ink reproduction on a flat surface by radio.

The apparatus, as described in Popular Science Monthly for May, consists of a small cabinet with a sloping top, on which are mounted the "radio pen" and guides for holding and moving the paper beneath the ink stylus.

The pen is a metal arm, about six inches long, having at one end a steel split pen point of the drafting type, and at the other end a small magnetic box, resembling the ear piece of a head set. The magnetic end is mounted on an axis, permitting the pen to sweep across the paper in arcs the width of the sheet. The pen which is hinged to the arm, is connected with the "ear piece" by a series of levers, so that every movement of a tiny iron bar, mounted so as to replace the customary diaphragm, is communicated to the pen, causing it to touch the paper and make an ink mark.

As radio impulses actuate the magnets and depress the bar, the pen also is depressed, and as it is drawn across the paper by a radio controlled motor, a line is produced. These ink lines, following the original drawing, either done in metallic ink or etched in zinc, form an electrical contact between the points of the tracing stylus, making and breaking an electric circuit, which is broadcast in the usual way. The drawing is shifted downward after each sweep of the stylus forming a new path and a new succession of contacts. The paper at the receiving end is moved synchronously.

The receiver, it is said, is not costly and may be plugged into a radio receiving set through the loud-speaker jack.

LAVA FLOOD HALTS.

Volcanic Activity Appears To Be Subsiding.

HILO, T.H., April 21 (Canadian Press). — After ten days of angry outburst, the volcano Mauna Loa seemed yesterday about to subside. The river of molten rock had ceased to flow upon the seaside village of Hoopulah, which it submerged, and for twenty-four hours the rift in the mountain above the clouds has sent down decreasing waves of lava.

Clouds of smoke overhanging the island were smaller Monday night, but there remained a glow high up on the long slope, indicating a live patch of fire.

FIRE THREATENS OUR NATIONAL HERITAGE !!

Carelessness Destroys 3,000,000 Acres Annually of Canadian Forest

Loss of standing timber by fire continues to be appalling. On the average over 3,500 million board feet are destroyed annually. The forests of Canada are being depleted at a rate they cannot possibly withstand: more than half of this depletion is due to fire, insects and decay. The future of the forest industry is just as dependent on the seedling trees and young growth as the pulp and paper and lumber mills, and industry generally, are dependent on mature timber—both must be saved from the ravages of fire.

Canada has the finest inland fishing in the world, but these splendid food and game fish require clean, cold water in the streams to ensure prolific reproduction. Forest fires are inimical to fish life.

Game animals attract foreign tourists and induce Canadians to seek pleasure, health and adventure in the great outdoors. These animals are distinctly a forest resource—utterly dependent on it for protection and food. Forest fires are most destructive of such wild life.

Ninety per cent of the forest fires are caused by carelessness. Are you doing your part to prevent this wanton waste and destruction?

"THESE WOMEN"

By MALCOLM DUART

COPYRIGHT 1926

The Characters and Situations in this Story are entirely fictional.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The town gossips of Peterborough have speculated for 15 years about the origin and business of Harry Morton, rich, attractive, middle-aged bachelor, who dwells with his adopted daughter, Audrey, in an expensive household in Peterborough, and who maintains an apartment in Toronto, which he visits nearly every week.

A man, who Morton calls Smith, and who claims to be Audrey's stepfather appears after an absence of 18 years. Morton hurries him off to a job in South America.

Nona, a beautiful Toronto girl who is in love with Morton, quarrels with Lois, of whom she is jealous, and is in a rage at Morton. She asks Morton to call on her the next night. He finds a strange young woman there, apparently alone. A man rushes in, denounces him for being with the girl, and demands money. Morton laughs at them; finds Nona hiding in the bedroom. She confesses that she planned the "badger" game. Morton starts to leave.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VI

Morton turned.

Nona was on her feet, now, holding to him with both hands. The other girl, still in her thin kimona, was picking up her fur coat. Her man companion, fidgeting uneasily, had retreated to the far corner of the room.

"You two prunies get out of here!" Nona cried, furiously, looking at the girl and the stranger.

Morton set down his walking-stick, and took Nona's hands from his coat. He started to speak, but the young woman in the kimona interrupted, shrilly:

"Who told us to come up here? Who're you calling a prune?" She advanced toward Nona, her arms revolving in the air, and her fingers crooked as if prepared to scratch.

Nona crouched, and moved toward her with the motion of an animal about to spring. Morton noted her likeness to a black panther, with her sleek midnight hair, and blazing dark eyes. There was no time for contemplation, however. The girls were with in an instant of physical attack upon one another.

Morton was between them in one rapid stride. He thrust the strange girl back, and turned to Nona. "You sit down!" he said, quietly.

She looked at him, still blazing with wrath. Then obediently she sank into the arm-chair that Morton had occupied a few minutes before. She seemed to shrink as she sat there, and her eyes gathered a look of fear as they rested upon Morton.

"I suppose your clothes are in that bedroom?" he asked the other girl.

She shook her head. She still was snarling, and casting vicious side-long glances at Nona. "I live upstairs," she said.

Morton stepped to one side, and waved his hand toward the door.

"Then take your coat, and your young man, and go upstairs," he instructed her.

With the man tagging sheepishly at her heels, she obeyed, and Morton closed the door.

Going over to the piano stool, he sat down.

"Well?" he inquired.

Nona slipped off her chair to the floor, and on her knees she hitched her way across to where Morton was sitting. Clasping her hands as if she were praying, she lifted her white, drawn face.

"Oh, my God, Harry!. For God's sake, forgive me! I didn't know what I was doing! You'll believe me, won't you? Won't you forgive me? Oh, Harry, Harry, Harry!"

Her voice choked until her words barely were distinguishable. Morton took her two hands in one of his, and raised her to her feet. He led her back across the room, and seated her in the chair she had just left. Then he returned to his own stool, and leaned back, his fingers clasped around his knees.

"Better tell me all about it," he suggested.

It was a little time before the girl could speak. At last, in halting sentences, she told him what had happened. Jealous of Lois, and of his lighthearted acceptance of Lois' company the night before, she had raged and wept all night, after he left her. In the morning a plan occurred to her.

"I wanted to get even with you!" she said. "I wanted to hurt you; to humiliate you."

Morton smiled quietly, as she went on.

"This girl you saw here lives a couple of floors above. She was busted—been borrowing money from the girls. She used to dance in a cabaret, with that fellow. He was her partner. But they haven't had an engagement for weeks and weeks and weeks. And I just thought that she would be glad to get a little money, and he's the sort of fellow that will try anything—once. Anyhow, they both said they'd be tickled to death to try it, and just before you came in, they were telling how they could use the money to go to New York and make a fresh start there. The cabarets are pretty punk, in New York.

"Hmm," said Morton, and turning, strummed a bar or two, with one hand, on the piano. Then he swung back again, facing the girl.

"Did you really think that you could do anything to me with a scheme like that?"

Nona shook her head. "I didn't know. Maybe I thought so. I didn't know anything, I guess, except that I was so mad at you and Lois, and I wanted to hurt you. I wanted to hurt your pride." She crossed the room again, and once more knelt at his feet. "I—I love you so! That's why I did it."

A tremulous smile on her lips answered his quick laugh.

"Perhaps it was right to dissemble your love.

"But why did you kick me downstairs," he quoted.

"I guess that when one is in love, they're kind of crazy anyhow," the girl said. "I know I was. I wanted those people to shame you, and make you give them money, and to see you just a little broken. And then, when you did come in, and they started, I wanted to kill them!"

She threw her arms around his knees, and two big tears coursed down her cheeks. "Oh, Harry! I didn't really want to hurt you! I just wanted you for myself."

Morton glanced at his wrist-watch, and the girl slowly unclasped his knees. Her eyes were questioning, and full of a plea for forgiveness. Morton arose briskly.

"I think I'll wander on back home," he said. She continued to look at him pleadingly.

He was at the door, when he paused. "By the way, that girl who tried this badger game on me didn't look any too well fed. Are she and that partner of hers really hard up?"

Morton drew forth a bill fold, and rapidly flicked from it a little sheaf of bills. "Give this to them," he said. "It'll take them to New York. And tell them to do a better job over there than they did in here tonight—advise them to stick to their own profession."

Nona took the money, and watched him with heavy eyes as he went out the door, and closed it.

The telephone rang when Morton was at breakfast the next morning. His butler answered.

"There's a lady downstairs, who has telephoned four or five times now," he said. "She's been waiting there since seven o'clock. She wouldn't give her name, so I told them to wait until you were up, and had your breakfast.

"Is Miss Morton up?" Morton asked.

"I'll see, sir."

The butler went slowly into the stair-hall, and up the steps. Presently he returned.

"Miss Morton's maid says she is nearly dressed."

"Take word to Miss Morton not to come down stairs until I send for her," Morton ordered. "Tell her there will be someone here whom I do not wish her to meet. When you have done that, tell the woman downstairs that she may come up."

The butler went away upon his mission. A few minutes later, as Morton was taking his final sup of coffee, he reappeared.

"The lady is here," he said.

Morton nodded, and followed him.

As he went into the large room, there was the crinkle of a smile about his eyes. He betrayed no astonishment when he saw Nona, standing in the center of the room. The butler withdrew as Morton nodded cheerily.

"A little early for your morning calls," he said. "You'll find this chair comfortable."

"Don't treat me like that, Harry," said earnestly. "I don't want to sit down. I haven't slept since you left me last night."

She looked it. There were deep dark circles under her eyes, and lines of fatigue had drawn themselves from her nostrils down past the corners of her mouth. She had used her lipstick and her rouge, but the effect was ghastly against the pallor that edged the carmine spots. There was a droop to her figure, too, an inexpressible weariness in her voice.

"I want you to forgive me, Harry," she said. "In the name of heaven, can't you forgive me? Don't be so cold to me! Don't keep that shell around you—you're killing me, Harry."

Half automatically, she obeyed his gesture, and took the chair he offered. Her eyes were not on him, now, but were fixed vacantly on the floor. She went on, her tone monotonous, as if all hope had been withdrawn from her.

"You don't understand what you're doing to me," she said. "You wouldn't do it, if you did know. You aren't cruel, but you are being cruel to me."

Morton made a quick gesture. "I haven't said an unkind word, Nona," he said.

She nodded, slowly. "No, you haven't said anything unkind. I wish you had. I wish you had struck me—beaten me.

"Oh Harry—Harry! Don't you know that there is nothing so killing to a woman as indifference?" She held up her arms toward him. "Beat me! Do anything you want to! Anything in the world is better than to have you cold and hard like this."

Morton took one of her hands abruptly, gave it a single pat, dropped it, and began pacing the room, thoughtfully. She twisted herself until she could lay her arm across the back of the chair. Then she dropped her head upon her bent elbow, and sat there, quiet, and dropping. There was a long silence. Morton, walking up and down, glanced at her from time to time. She did not stir, but sat with the air of one who has been utterly defeated

"Nona" he said at length. "You can't win a man's love, or hold it, by keeping him in hot water. Mighty few women know that. Most of them, I think, do the way you're doing. A man may be fond of a woman—even be in love with her. But if she is always exploding emotional dynamite under him, making scenes, and keeping him acutely uncomfortable, he is going to wander away."

She nodded, without replying, and without lifting her head from her arm.

He took another turn around the room. Then he resumed:

"I suppose there are men who will stand that sort of thing. I doubt if they are worth having, though. I don't believe the women even want them, after they get them.

"Nona, my dear," he said, slowly, pausing before her. "I am simply not going to permit any woman on earth to do the sort of thing to me that you've been trying to do the last day or so. You quarrel with my friends, and you lay a trap for me—a ridiculous one, I'll admit, but you intended it to be a trap. I understand what was in your mind, but your motive is beside the question, for the moment. A child might play with a box of matches, with the best of intentions, and set your house on fire. You understand his intentions, but you take matches away from him thereafter. I want you to——"

There was a stir on the balcony that ran across the end of the room, on a level with the second floor.

Morton looked up.

Audrey was standing there, looking intently at him, and at the girl who sat in the chair before him.

WARSAW FACTORY WON'T OPEN APRIL

May Not Be Possible To Open First Week in May.

WARSAW, April 20.—The Warsaw cheese factory patrons held their meeting on Friday afternoon. The factory will not open until May 1, at earliest. Indeed, it is very doubtful if the ice can be gotten out of the lower floor to open then.

Charles Foster is manager. Fred Crowe is secretary-treasurer, with a raise in salary. He is to send out monthly statements this year.

For the benefit of the United Church Ladies' Aid the young people of the village put on a very amusing entertainment on Wednesday evening last. The main part was a play, "A Case of Suspension." Mr. Currie was Professor Edgerton, and he did his part as a crotchetty, old-time professor to perfection. The three college boys were Ralph Selby, Mr. Sloan, and Hiram Anderson. Miss Quinn, as Miss Judkins, was principal of a girls' seminary. The three college girls were Alberta Darling, Elsie Cooper, and Gwendolyn McQuaig. Mrs. Wallace Anderson did her part as Kathleen O'Grady exceedingly well, and Robert Selby was a good seminary man.

Wallace Anderson gave one of his recitations, as only he can. Ralph and Robert Selby sang. Oliver McIlvena and Albert Bryan, as darkies, kept the crowd in roars of laughter with their pranks and jokes.

A number of boys, with H. G. E. Choate, as leader, sang two army and navy songs.

At the close, the Ladies' Aid served a light lunch. The whole entertainment was so good that they have been asked to repeat it at Zion on April 30.

A few farmers are getting anxious about getting their crops in: and all are ready to get on the land just as soon as they can do so.

Some sugar-bush owners report that the sap is exceptionally sweet, and it takes less of it to make syrup than usual. The syrup is a very good quality. Friday's wind and snow tipped pails, or, if uncovered, filled them with slush.

Wheeled vehicles are the only ones seen now.

EASTER SOCIAL AT DOWNEYVILLE

Enjoyable Evening Spent in Cards and Dancing—A Presentation.

DOWNEYVILLE, April 21.—A very enjoyable Easter Social was held in the hall here on Monday evening under the auspices of the Catholic Woman's League, and was attended by a large number. Progressive euchre was played till 11 o'clock, after which lunch was served by the ladies and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. The music was furnished by Brown's orchestra from Lindsay. The prize-winners were: Miss Alma Scully and Mr. Jas. Lucas.

Over one hundred friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clancy on Wednesday evening to enjoy a pleasant evening at their home to bid them farewell before their departure to reside in Lindsay. The large number present showed the esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Clancy and family are held in the parish of Downeyville and their removal caused widespread regret. Mr. and Mrs. Clancy and family will be greatly missed by the Church, neighbors and the community in which they have lived all the time.

During the evening Mr. Fergus Garvey read the following address and Mr. Martin Herlihey presented Mr. and Mrs. Clancy with a purse of money.

"Mr. and Mrs. Clancy and family,

"Dear Friends:—

"We, your friends have assembled here this evening to express our esteem and also to express our regret at your leaving our neighborhood. The number present and the comment heard of your loss to the community, by all who have known your kindly nature and admirable qualities, of charity and friendship, make us indeed sorry to lose such good neighbors. We wish you to know that you have many good friends in your home parish who will not forget your help, ever ready for support of every good work in the Church, and your sympathy in time of sickness and trouble. As a slight token of our good wishes and as an expression of our kind regards for you, we ask you to accept this purse. We are sorry that Mr. Clancy's health is not good enough to permit him to continue farming, but hope that in the near future he may regain his health and that he and his sons may return to the old homestead which has for years stood by the only and much respected name of Clancy.

"Now we do not wish to make you sad in leaving us. No doubt the family have many ties of friendship they do not wish to break, but as you intend living in Lindsay we may hope to often meet you and renew old acquaintances.

In conclusion Mr. and Mrs. Clancy, we wish you to remember kind— your old friends at Downeyville who sincerely hope your future may be blessed and that your bright and loving family may be a pride to you.

"Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors,—

"Ed. Costello, Martin Herlihey, Fergus Garvey."

Mr. and Mrs. Clancy were visibly affected while Mr. Clancy was unalbe to reply, his son, Patrick replied on behalf of the family and thanked the people for their gift. He said they were sorry to be leaving a place where they had so many kind friends and neighbors and he assured them all present a hearty welcome would always be extended them while in Lindsay. Addresses were also delivered by Rev. Father Galvin, Edward Costello and Michael D. Harrington, who all expressed their regret losing such good people from the parish and hoped Mr. Clancy would get better health by their removal to Lindsay. The evening was spent in music and dancing after which a dainty lunch was served and all went home wishing Mr. and Mrs. Clancy success in their new home.

Where Are You Going?

The following poem was recited at Rotary Club luncheon on Monday by Evelyn Hill, Ruth McNeely and Bertha Belleghem, three of the Y.W.C.A. tiny tots:

Where are you going, you dear little tot?
Why, to this Gym. Pageant, I dess you fordot.
We are going to be Flowers, so cute and so fair,
But you'd be better go early, or you won't get a chair.

Where are you going, young damsels, I pray?
To the Gym. Pageant. Have you been away?
We'll show you the lassies and Scotland's fair isle,
And dance you a step that you'll say is worth while.

Where are you going, sweet maidens so fair,
To the Gym. Pageant. I hope you'll be there.
With dances aesthetic, dumbells and folk dance,
With reeds, wands and marches we'll your pleasure enhance.

So don't make an error, nor forget the right date,
April 30, May 1. Get tickets, don't wait,
For the place will be crowded, chairs, boxes as well,
And soon there will be no tickets to sell.

The Annual meeting of the Athletic Association was held on Monday night in the Town Hall. Reports were received and were satisfactory. The election of officers for the coming season resulted as follows: President, R. W. Price; Secretary, R. C. Waram; Treasurer, J. J. Hamilton. It was decided to hold the regular spring field day on May 24, and a concert following in the evening as usual.

The Young People's League meeting was held on Wednesday evening with a fair attendance. An interesting missionary programme was given under the leadership of Miss Priscilla Howden.

The business men of the village met on Wednesday evening to decide on the elarly closing problem for the several stores. After discussion, it was decided to continue as in former years, and, commencing in May, to close every Monday and Friday evening from six and from noon on Wednesday.

Great Deal of Sickness Among Members—Bethany News.

BETHANY, April 21.—The April meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. (Rev.), Johnston on Tuesday afternoon. Owing to a great deal of sickness among the members the attendance was smaller than usual, but an interesting programme was enjoyed.

Delegates were appointed to attend the Presbyterial to be held in Cambridge street church, Lindsay. It was also decided to hold the regular quarterly tea in May. Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Monk, Mrs. Reynolds and Miss Weatherilt to be convenor of the committees for the tea which will be held in the church basement.

Tire Easily?

That dragged-out feeling is frequently due to poisons absorbed by the blood from constipated bowels. Headaches, sleeplessness and skin trouble can all be traced to the same source.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

COBOURG PRESBYTERIAL W. M. S. OF UNITED CHURCH CONSECRATED WITH IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES

First Meeting of Members of Three Church Societies Since Union.

AT COBOURG.

Many Delegates and Visitors Attend Solemn Dedication Services.

(By a Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, April 21 — In the presence of over 300 accredited delegates and at least twice that number of visitors, the Cobourg Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society was consecrated in Trinity United Church on Tuesday with services as solemn and impressive as those used in the dedication of a place of worship. It was the first meeting of the society since the changes brought about by Union were given effect, the first time that the members of the three former denominations met as one body with a single purpose, the spread of the Gospel in foreign lands.

The arrangements for the inaugural session had been carefully arranged by the members of the interim commission appointed some time ago. Of this committee Mrs. (Rev.) W. A. Bremner was chairman and among the ten members were Mrs. W. H. Ashton and Mrs. G. W. Hammond of Campbellford. Mrs. J. W. Roberts of Grafton, who for over 16 years was head of the Missionary societies in the Cobourg district, Mrs. J. T. Field and Mrs. W. A. Bremner, both of Cobourg, were chosen to open the meeting with Mrs. Roberts in the chair. These ladies represented respectively, the former denominations, the Methodists, the Congregationalists and the Presbyterians.

Greetings were received at the outset from Mrs. Fred Field of the King Street United Church and Mrs. W. J. Garland of Trinity Church.

The first hymn sung was "The Church's One Foundation," after which Mrs. Roberts led in prayer, invoking the divine blessing upon the new society that was being inaugurated under such happy auspices. Then followed the reading by Mrs. Roberts of a portion of the 17th chapter of St. John's gospel in which occurs the verse so stressed by the Unionists in which Christ prayed: "That they all may be one, as Thou, Father, art in Me, and I in Thee."

Psalm 103 was then read responsively, Mrs. Bremner leading.

The hallowing of the Union was the impressive ceremony. With the delegates and visitors standing Mrs. Robrts read the objects of the society organized for the glory of the Father, for the evangelization of the people in non-Christian lands, to give the gospel to "strangers within our gates," and to develop the spiritual life of the womanhood of the church.

To each of these announcements the gathering responded, "This society of one church is consecrated."

Pledge Fidelity.

Then came the pledging of fraternity and fidelity by the three ladies on the platform each speaking for the denomination to which she formerly belonged, the pledge of each being as follows:

Presbyterian Representative.

In the name of our united membership from coast to coast and of our beloved missionaries of the Cross at home and abroad we bring to you our heritage of fellowship in prayer and service and unswerving loyalty to Him Who gave Himself that we might live and whose blessed command "Go ye" we have sought to fulfill down through the long years of our history. Believing as we have ever done that the great purpose of His will can be brought nearer consummation by that growing unity of His followers the world around, we to-day recognize as we clasp the hand of sister boards, the closing of another link in the world fellowship of those who love the Christ. Receive this, our tribute of loyalty and devotion.

Congregational Representative.

In the name of our united membership from coast to coast and of our beloved missionaries of the Cross at home and abroad we bring to you our gift of loyal service, of faith and loving obedience to Him, Who, if He be lifted up, will draw all men unto Him. We believe that in loving union and communion in this higher fellowship, we, hand in hand with our older, stronger sisters, shall help to hasten the day when the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea. Receive this, our tribute of loyalty and devotion.

Methodist Representative.

In the name of our united membership from coast to coast, as well as from Newfoundland and Bermuda, and of our beloved missionaries of the Cross at home and abroad, we bring our heritage of faith and works coupled with a rich experimental knowledge of Christ's power to regenerate human life and hallow the smallest service, so that the common duties of every day are sacraments when done in His Spirit. Gladly we join in this broader fellowship and steadfastly turn from the beaten pathways of the past to those of greater opportunity, humbly praying that the heritage we bring may help to enrich this great, new Church and set her aflame with zeal and the evangelization of the world. Receive this, our tribute of loyalty and devotion.

Begin Business Programme.

When the business of the meeting was taken up Mrs. G. Wagar, of Cobourg, was appointed secretary pro tem and nominating, business and courtesy committees were selected. The roll was called, the president of each auxiliary responding by giving the number of delegates present for her branch and the number of members of the society.

One of the best reports was presented by Mrs. A. Haig, of Campbellford, the auxiliary society in that town having 150 members.

Miss Mabel Honey, of Dartford, reported 45 members of the W.M.S. in that charge.

Lunch was prepared in the school room of Trinity church for delegates and visitors. The ladies in charge of the department had made ready for an expected gathering of 245, almost half the number actually present.

Officers Elected.

The chief business of the afternoon session was the election of officers, the nominating committee mentioning the names of several ladies for each office. The election was by ballot and resulted as follows:

Honorary President—Mrs. M. R. Balloughy, Cobourg.

President—Mrs. J. W. Roberts, Grafton.

Vice-Presidents — Mrs. J. T. Fields, Cobourg; Mrs. J. U. Robbins, Bowmanville; Mrs. S. Sweatman, Smithfield; Mrs. F. Maxwell, Oshawa.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. G. W. Hammond, Campbellford.

Corresponding Secretary — Mrs. George Jackson, Port Perry.

Treasurer—Mrs. Pringle, Whitby.

Young People's Secretary—Mrs. Spargo, Bowmanville.

Strangers' Secretary—Mrs. Johnston, Grafton.

At the evening session these officers were installed by Rev. W. A. Bremner.

Constitution Adopted.

The constitution, a tentative draft of which was published in the missionary monthly, was read by Mrs. Ashton of Campbellford and was adopted clause by clause. There is little change in this from the constitution under which the different societies operated before union. The annual membership fee was set at 50 cents.

Stand on Temperance.

The Presbyterial went on record as opposed to the 4.4 beer and pledged itself to support the Ontario Temperance Act.

Delegate to Conference.

The following were duly elected delegates to the next conference of the United Church: Mesdames Bremner, Garland, Cooke, Haig, Nicholls, McLeod, Moyes and Harper.

Evening Session.

Trinity Church Choir led in the musical service in the evening session, part of the programme being a solo by Miss Ruth Bremner.

Mayor E. J. McArthur welcomed the delegates to Cobourg and Rev. F. W. Anderson of Port Hope, conveyed to them the greetings of the Cobourg Presbytery, the members of which, he said, recognized the missionary societies as their best allies, in whom they had every confidence.

Missionary Address.

Mrs. A. H. Barker, a returned missionary from Korea, gave an interesting address on the customs, social and spiritual conditions of the people in that country.

Mrs. Roberts, the new president, thanked the delegates for the honor they had conferred upon her and expressed the hope that under the new conditions still greater thaings would be accomplished in the future.

The new Presbyterial now has 59 auxiliaries and a total membership of 5,257.

Delegates Present.

The number of delegates who registered was 190, but not all were able to record their names. Those from the northern part of Northumberland and Durham were as follows:

Campbellford—Mrs. A. Haig, Mrs. W. H. Ashton, Mrs. G. W. Hammond, Mrs. T. L. Diamond, Mrs. Robert Moore, Miss Stella Keir.

Seymour—Mrs. Will Rannie, Mrs. C. D. Daniel, Mrs. Frank Little.

Wooler—Mrs. S. L. Terrill, Mrs. A. Clarke, Mrs. L. H. Rowe.

Hastings—Mrs. M. L. Hinton, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe, Miss Joyce M. Richardson.

Bethany—Mrs. T. J. Jackson.

Dartford—Miss Mabel Honey.

Roseneath—Mrs. H. Wilding, Mrs. Walter Smith.

Warkworth—Mrs. W. W. Jones, Mrs. W. J. Harper, Mrs. W. H. Barringer, Mrs. Thomas Smith.

Millbrook—Mrs. John McKnight, Mrs. F. H. Howard.

THOUGHT MESSAGES STIR CONTROVERSY

Russian Scientists' Claims of Success in Telepathy Are Doubted in America.

Telepathy soon may be added to radio, telephone and telegraph as a means of communication with distant persons. Notable progress has been reported by Professor Vladimir Behterev of Leningrad Academy of Sciences, Russia, who, by capturing the electromagnetic waves thrown off by the people, claims to have succeeded in transmitting thoughts from one subject to another, says Popular Science Monthly for May.

Dr. Ivan Chakhovsky, a Moscow physician, who took part in Professor Behterev's experiments, substantiates this claim and declares that in 70 per cent of the cases Behterev was successful.

Professor Behterev's is the third announcement from Russia recently on telepathy. In 1925 Professor Skipsky of the Leningrad Electro-Technical Institute told of an invention to determine everybody's "electrical characteristics" by recording human electromagnetic waves. Early this year Dr. Koshinsky of Moscow claimed to have transferred human thoughts from one person to another.

American psychologists are for the most part skeptical of these claims. Some reject them entirely. Dr. J. McKeen Cattell, formerly of Columbia University, and Dr. Edward L. Thorndike of Columbia doubt the success of the Russian experiments. Professor Couvel, head of the psychology department of Stanford University, which six years ago received $800,000 for psychic research, recently declared, after 10,000 attempts to transmit thought, that telepathy is impossible.

APSLEY NEWS

APSLEY, April 21.—The Rev. Canon Hartley of St. Matthias' Church, Toronto, will conduct an eight days' mission at St. George's Church, Apsley, commencing on Wednesday, April 21. Canon Hartley was curate to the late Canon Harding here thirty-five years ago, and many of the older members of the church remember him. He was in charge of the mission at Haultain for two years when it was first formed about thirty-two years ago.

Influenza is reported very prevalent in the district, notably in Clydesdale, Coe Hill and Lasswade. Apsley itself so far seems immune.

George Stephens met with a painful accident last week when three of the toes of one foot were broken by a barrel of gasoline falling upon it. George has bought Simon Windsor's store and had been busy moving in when the accident occurred. A little thing like that, however, does not deter his activity, and half an hour after his injury was dressed he was going on with his work as usual.

The A.Y.P.A. Saturday evenings at the parish room are well attended. On Saturday last a billiard handicap amongst the men was concluded, Harry Tanner, who received 25 in one hundred up, beating George Kilborn, who also received 25, in the final. Some close games were played, the most exciting being between Harry Tanner and Stanley Windsor in the semi-final, the former winning by one point.

The tenders for the Consolidated School were opened by the Trustee Board last week. Four were received, but no action was taken, as even the lowest tender was far in excess of what the board calculated the school could be built for. No local tender was received.

Just as stolidly he denied robbing three Regina stores on the same night. On all counts he was remanded in custody until April 28.

PEOPLE DWELL IN UNFIT HOUSES

J. J. Kelso Says Many Were Hastily Put Up For Temporary Use.

WORSE THAN BARNS.

TORONTO, Ont., April 21.—(By Canadian Press).—"In lonely and scattered parts of Ontario particularly the northern and northeastern sections, there are houses which are not fit for families to live in," said J. J. Kelso, Superintendent of the Children' Department of the province. "The design and construction indicate that they were hastily put up in lumbering days for temporary use, but as dwellings they are far worse than the average barn of a respectable farm. These places, so ill adapted to home and family use, become the prolific cause of sickness and wretchedness on the part of the unfortunate women and children who have to live there, and the only way to improve them is to pull them down. Money could not be better spent than in providing people in the country with architectural plans for a proper home that would not be beyond their means, and if they could be helped in its erection that would not be charity, but a public philantrophy in which the entire community would profit."

NEWS OF ORLAND.

ORLAND, April 21. — Walter Reycraft received a slight scratch on the hand some days ago which did not heal and developed into a very bad case of blood poisoning. Dr. Clarke was called and stated that it was far advanced and would require great care if it did not result fatally.

While Rev. John Woodland was making a street intersection in Toronto with a light runabout, a large car driven by Mrs. Scholes collided with him, badly damaging his car, shoving it sidewise for ten feet. Mr. Woodland's car would have been upset had not the bumper on Mrs. Scholes' car caught above the running board and holding it down.

Walter Carr is busy cutting wood in town and expects to move to Wm. Reddom's on Monday.

Geo. Reddom, who tapped J. B. Wright's sugar bush, left a quantity of syrup in the pan on Thursday evening and did not return till noon on Friday, when he was surprised to find a good fire in the kiln. The miscreants, having decamped, leaving about 15 gallons of syrup so badly burned as to be worthless, as they were surprised at Mr. Reddom's approach. They left no clue as to their identity.

In their letters, they tell us they use Bon Ami Powder for the big cleaning jobs. Pots and pans of aluminium, copper, agate and tin, refrigerators, bathtubs—and many other things are made spotless in a twinkling.

Of course they also use their old friend—the convenient, economical Bon Ami Cake—for windows, mirrors, painted woodwork, etc.

Bon Ami, whether Cake or Powder, is fine and delicate. It doesn't scratch off the dirt and grime, but simply blots it up with a minimum of effort on your part. And it never makes the hands red or rough.

RESOLUTION TO ABOLISH CADET DRILL FROM SCHOOLS DEFEATED BY UNITED CHURCH PRESBYTERY

Proposal Overwhelmed By Ministers and Laymen at Montreal Meeting.

NOT CHURCH AFFAIR.

Protest Recorded Against Movement For Sunday Football in Quebec.

MONTREAL, Que., April 21. — Ministers and laymen of the Montreal Presbytery, United Church of Canada, declined to approve a resolution recommending the elimination of military drill from all schools of the country, at yesterday's Presbytery meeting in Emanuel Church.

As drawn up by the Committee on Remits, and submitted to the Presbytery by the Rev. A. MacTaggart, the rejected resolution read —

"Recognizing that war as a method of settling international differences is a failure, we therefore recommend that non-militaristic training as that used by the Boy Scouts and other organizations of a similar character be substituted for the drill now used in the schools of the country."

Following up a dozen other recommendations, of a more or less internal nature, by the same committee, this particular sweeping resolution descended on the Presbytery like a bombshell.

J. A. Ewing, lay delegate, chairman of the Presbytery Law and Legislation Committee, who is incidentally a Boy Scout commissioner, rose instantly the significance of the resolution was felt by the gathering.

"Not Our Concern."

"I strongly oppose the resolution," he said. "It is interfering with matters that do not concern us. While we all deprecate war, at the same time, by neglecting to train our young men to defend their country is not going to defer that which we oppose."

I. E. Bourke "For or once I find myself in agreement with Mr. Ewing. I hate war. Without boasting, I think I can say no family in Montreal suffered as much from the late war as mine. But if this resolution wants to do away with drill training I am against it, for such training fits the young wonderfully for the battle of life."

Benefit to Youth.

Brig.-Gen. J. C. Ross "Speaking as one familiar with the militia, I might say that I have seen nothing but the best coming from it. It keeps young men from the street: keeps their social qualifications, and keeps them prepared for times of emergency. I think it would be a great mistake if we entered into any resolution wishing to interfere with present-day conditions in that respect. because a man is ready and prepared, it is no criterion that he is looking for a scrap. As everyone knows, he is the last man to get into a fight. He wants his powers only for the cause of defense. If we were not in such a position when the late war came, Canada would not have such a proud name today."

Rev. Dr. S. F. Rose "I suggest that the whole matter be laid on the table. Evidently the Presbytery is divided in opinion. We are not prepared for such a resolution, and I hope the committee will withdraw it."

Church Should Speak.

Rev. A. MacTaggart "This question comes to us from the higher courts of the church. It has been remitted to us for our consideration, and we are asking to make a pronouncement. If you have been reading 'The New Outlook,' you will have noticed that nearly every Presbytery in Canada has made a pronouncement along this line. All we ask is that cadet drill be superseded by such drill as given by the Boy Scouts, Trail Rangers, Tuxis, and all that sort of thing. I do not see that our boys should be taught in schools to shoot. They spend hour after hour after dismission in that practice. There is only one thing they are getting ready for, and that is one thing that the church of Christ ought to take a stand on. If we recognize that war is evil, then we ought to make some kind of pronouncement, and I for one am not willing to have this resolution withdrawn. I would sooner have it defeated. Let the church speak her mind and will on this question."

Rev. S. Gorley Brown "I would support Dr. Rose's resolution. This subject should come up when we are prepared for it. We are all against war but we are not ready to debate this question today."

Rev. H. R. C. Avison, assistant at the American Presbyterian Church, closed the discussion. Speaking, he said, for the young men of the Presbytery and church, he declared it was high time the church expressed itself on this matter of war and military training.

Calls for "question" being insistent, the matter was put to the vote, with the Presbytery overwhelmingly placing itself on record that the resolution be laid on the table.

Sunday Football.

Another discussion followed immediately after, and came just as unexpectedly. Rev. Gordon Burgoyne interjected a request for permission to submit a resolution which was —

"Resolved that the Presbytery of Montreal, of the United Church of Canada, hears with great concern of the attempt being made to legalise the playing of football on Sundays in the Province of Quebec, and strongly protests against any such proposal: this resolution to be sent to the secretary of the Dominion Football Association, Samuel Davidson, Winnipeg."

"This thing will affect hundreds of our young men and boys," said Mr. Burgoyne, in presenting the resolution. "We feel it is a direct hit at our Sunday schools and Sunday young men's work and Christian brotherhoods. All over Canada this thing is not allowed, and they are trying to make Quebec stand out above all other provinces as one place where football is legal on Sunday."

Principal Ritchie endeavored to persuade the members to defer action. "No great public body should commit itself to an action on a great public issue without having really full time for consideration," he pleaded, "with all facts and figures. There are a number of things to be taken into consideration. What of the church officials playing golf on Sundays? Perhaps you will begin at home."

The resolution was

Most Expensive Joke In History Made By Birkenhead Man Called "Dye Hard" Changes His Beneficiary

LONDON, April 21 (Canadian Press).—Lord Birkenhead, Secretary for India, is credited by the English newspapers with having made the most expensive joke in history. Birkenhead was once a great friend of Sir Robert Houston, wealthy ship owner, who died at his home on the Island of Jersey, and Sir Robert was said to have made a will leaving the bulk of his fortune, estimated as high as £7,000,000, to Birkenhead. The Houston will, which was probated in Jersey yesterday, however, makes the widow the chief beneficiary, and the papers recall Birkenhead's joke. When serving as a member of the House of Commons, Sir Robert, in spite of his advanced age, always kept his beard a glorious blackish-blue color. One day he made an ultra-Conservative speech which displeased Lord Birkenhead, who in private conversation referred to him as "The only genuine 'dye hard'."

It was this play on the term "die hard" which is applied to ultra-Conservatives, the newspapers believe, that kept Birkenhead from sharing largely in the Houston fortune.

NEW WONDERS IN "INVISIBLE LIGHT"

Ultra-Violet Beams Reveal Ancient Writings and Safeguard Babies.

New uses for utra-violet light, that invisible part of sunlight whose magic effects on health were discovered only recently, are being found almost daily. In Paris, says the May Popular Science Monthly, the powerful light is being used now to bring out texts that have been erased from old parchments. Even though the parchment has been written over again, it is said the original letters will come out. Very interesting discoveries of old classics are expected to be made by this treatment.

The Maine Agricultural Experiment Station recently has been giving cows a daily bath of ultra-violet light from artificial lights. The milk that these cows give, it has been found, prevents rickets in babies, while milk from cows not getting treatment is useless in preventing the disease. In the summertime cows out in the pasture get their does of ultra-violet light from sunshine, but in winter stables this is denied them. The time appears near at hand when every stable will be provided with artificial sunlight for the long, cheerless winter days.

MILD ALCOHOLIC BEER APPROVED BY DRY LEADER

Would Aid Enforcement of Prohibition Says Lincoln C. Andrews.

2.45 PER CENT.

Newspaper Poll Gives Big Majority For Modification of Dry Act.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Lincoln C. Andrews, federal prohibition czar, first week came out in favor of legalizing beer of low alcoholic content.

Testifying before the senate prohibition investigating committee Andrews said he believed modification of the Volstead act to encourage mild alcoholic beverages would aid enforcement of prohibition.

Andrews, in answer to a question concerning his opinion to strict government supervision of beer distribution, said:

"I think that would aid law enforcement."

The question was put by Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, wet, who explained that the beer would be sold only in hotels and restaurants with meals and for home consumption.

Andrews refused to commit himself regarding wines.

"I don't think palatable wines can be manufactured which would not be intoxicating," Andrews said.

"I think it would be well if we had close government supervision. I think many citizens now drinking hard liquor would be satisfied with beer."

Andrews' testimony was hailed by the wets as the high spot of their case, placing the chief federal law enforcement officer on record in favor of beer—"non intoxicating in fact."

The law now provides that beer can only be manufactured with less than one half of one per cent. alcoholic content.

Raise Strength.

It is suggested by many with knowledge of alcoholic content that this would permit at least 2.45 per cent. beer.

"Do you not think home stills destructive to the morals of the home?" Reed asked.

"Yes, they are injurious."

"You, in spite of the office you hold, think that question should be seriously studied?" Reed asked.

"As a man and officer, I think there are many questions in connection with this subject to be scientifically studied," Andrews replied.

Reed drew a diagram of how marines had made liquor in camp with a tin pail and two bricks as the only utensils.

"That'll be good for you, general, when you get back in the service," Reed said.

"When you don't have any General Smelly Butler around."

Press Polls.

Washington, April 21.—Newspaper polls on prohibition, showing a total of 2,145,848 persons favoring modification of Volsteadism and 67,038 for the act, and the 18th amendment, are representative of the sentiment of the people, Colonel Julien Codman, wet prosecuting attorney, told the senate prohibition committee yesterday.

Codman summed up results of the Newspaper Enterprise association, Hearst, Pittsburg Sun and other polls, and asserted that the N.E.A. poll the largest taken in 326 cities and towns, did not "represent only the east"—a charge which he said had been lodged against many of the polls.

Easy to Make.

A still, set up on a ginger ale box, was brought into the crowded committee room by capitol police, at Codman's request, to demonstrate how simple it was to make liquor.

The device, which looked like a copper wash boiler with a side pipe running into a little keg, was closely investigated by the committee.

Waiting for Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews to come up to testify, Codman read into record statements from Dr. William H. Robey, of Boston, and Dr. Hugh Barr Gray, Washington, telling of the increase of number of alcoholic sufferers in their home regions.

Andrews eyed the still disdainfully when he came into the room and took the stand. It is against the law to have a still, but he made no effort to seize it.

Codman cited to Andrews the increase in the number of stills seized by federal officers from 95,930, in 1921, to 111,155 in 1922; 115,153 in 1923, 159,166 in 1924, to 172,537 in 1925.

Stills Increasing.

"Is it a fair inference from these figures that the number of stills operating is increasing?" Codman asked.

"I think that is a fair inference, but, of course, it may be due to increased activity of our agents."

Andrews grew a little reluctant about giving his opinion as to what Codman's figures meant.

"We want you to be frank with us, and we want to be frank with you," Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, wet, said to Andrews, urging him to answer.

Andrews persisted that he did not know how many stills he did. not seize and couldn't estimate the extent on still operations.

Less Diversion.

"I think we get most of the larger, commercial stills," he said. Andrews, said that seizures of stills in Georgia North Carolina Florida, Tennessee and Kentucky were larger "probably because there is little diversion of alcohol in those districts."

"When you cut down diversion, stills increased?" Codman asked.

"Yes."

It came out at this point that Andrews "loaned" the still to the committee.

SCOUTMASTERS HOLD MEETING

Peterborough Troops To Conduct Free Tag Day on Saturday Next.

PROGRESS REPORTED.

A supper meeting of Scoutmasters of Peterborough troops was held in Hooper's parlors last night, District Commissioner John J. Turner presiding. District Scoutmaster Dr. J. Murray Fraser and District Association Secretary W. Harry Dickin were also present.

The District Scoutmaster outlined a scheme for free tagging to be carried out on Saturday in support of "Save the Forest" week. The Scouts were apportioned districts which they are expected to cover in the distribution of free tags urging care of Canada's natural forest resources. It was believed that the relief in obtaining a tag for which nothing has to be paid will be a happy one, and the boys should have a kind reception.

A scheme by which it is hoped to make troop camps available for every troop and every Boy Scout in the city was outlined by the District Scoutmaster. Details are not yet complete, but boys are expected to inform their Scoutmasters of their intentions regarding camping within two weeks.

The District Scoutmaster will on Friday evening pay a short visit to all troops that meet on that day. He will be accompanied by a representative of The Examiner who will on Saturday tell the complete story of the Boy Scout movement as it is being conducted in Peterborough this year.

Excellent reports of progress in their seeveral troops were given by the Scoutmasters present last night. One troop has now 22 Scouts and more are being added rapidly.

An ingenious idea for heating the houses of the future by radio has been advanced recently by Professor Dibble of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, Pa. He hopes to transmit heat by waves, just as sound is sent now, according to Popular Science Monthly. The time may come soon, he believes, when heat for an entire city, or even a whole state, will be broadcast from one central plant.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Baked rhubarb, cereal, thin cream, egg toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Salmon fritters, creamed cauliflower and carrots, whole wheat bread, apple sauce, milk, tea.

Dinner—Cream of celery soup, filets of sole with spinach and creole sauce, rye bread, molded fruit salad, toasted crackers, milk, coffee.

No dessert is suggested for the dinner menu since a fruit salad is planned. The creamed vegetable soup and the use of a vegetable with the fish make it unnecessary to serve another vegetable.

Any fish can be used in place of salmon in the luncheon fritters but canned salmon is universally available and it is chosen for the recipe.

Salmon Fritters.

One cup drained and chopped salmon 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 eggs, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons olive oil, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 cup cold water.

Sprinkle salmon with lemon juice and parsley and let stand while mixing fritter batter. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Beat yolks of eggs well with water. Add flour and mix until perfectly smooth. Beat in oil. When mixture is perfectly blended add prepared fish. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Drop from tip of spoon into deep hot fat and cook for seven minutes. The fat should be hot enough to brown an inch cube of bread from the soft part of the loaf in 60 seconds or if a thermometer is used from 360 to 380 degrees Fahrenheit.

Drain fritters of soft absorbent paper when done and serve very hot.

Any good salad oil or melted butter can be used in place of olive oil.

The Double Entendu of a Georgette Dress

A frock ensemble of navy-blue Georgette and taffeta conveys the delightful false impression of a transparent coat over a silk dress. Paris puts a Georgette coat over a frock of printed silk or taffeta and calls it a suit. A little more practical for every-day usage and quite as Parisian in effect is the transparent dress on coat lines worn with a separate slip but putting up a decided ensemble front. For Summer one can thin it down even further by making the frock of cotton voile and wearing it over printed crêpe de Chine. Mignonette-green Georgette over self-colored silk crêpe printed with gray and yellow flowers would be charming.

SOCIETY BEAUTIES

HER OWN WAY by A GIRL of TODAY

BEARDING THE LION.

For anyone who has had to earn her living since she was twelve, Mamie Riley is a singularly innocent creature.

She didn't for one moment think that Jerry Hathaway had used his own money for the bag and its contents.

I was frankly suspicious and I did not intend to accept that beautiful bag until I was sure that the restaurant had paid for it. It was too good for me anyway. I was sure that it and its fittings had cost at least a hundred and twenty-five dollars.

"If Jerry Hathaway thinks he is going to take this out of his own pocket and give it to me," I said to myself—"and it looks mighty like that is just what he has done—he's got another think coming. I'm certainly no gold-digger, even if he thinks so."

I didn't say a word of this to Mamie, however. I simply let her go to the restaurant and then looked in the telephone book for the address of Mr. Hathaway Senior's office and hied myself thither.

Quite a supercilious young woman met me in the outer office and asked me whom I wished to see.

"Mr. Hathaway," I answered with the most disarming smile I had on tap. It had no effect, for she inquired coldly

"What do you want to see him about?"

"The return of some stolen goods," I answered calmly. I thought that would fetch her and it did.

"What is your name?" she inquired quickly. "I'll take it to him."

"Mr. Hathaway probably doesn't know my name but I think he will see me if you mention that his son, Mr. Jerry Hathaway Junior is interested in the matter."

The girl looked at me with a great deal of curiosity. She wanted to ask me more questions, I knew, but I only smiled at her in a way which gave her to understand that I would only say what I had to say to her employer.

Immediately she went into Mr. Hathaway's office where she was gone quite a while.

She returned saying

"Mr. Hathaway asks if you will dictate what you have to say to me and I will put it in writing. He will read it at his leisure and let you know if he is interested."

The Woman's Day

Written by a Woman for Women.

Touching brightly on woman's every major interest in life from books and babies to politics and psycho analysis.

(By Allene Sumner)

They Say!

Ladies of Europe are gilding their teeth and bespeckling their tongues with gilt to match. Fashion decrees that only darkest red lipsticks shall be used with the gilt teeth and tongues. Such is the cycle of life! Time was when good form demanded that one laugh ribaldly at gold teeth.

* * *

An eastern city charitable organization was recently dissolved because woman can no longer sew. The charity in question gave work to poor seamstresses and milliners. When the supply died out, the charity stopped. Men, we suppose, will deplore this passing of a womanly art just as they mourn the passing of the home-kneaded loaf. But it's men and their "ready mades" that turned both tricks.

The Beauty!

When the Queen of Persia rides through the streets everyone meeting her must turn away. Plain Susies and Janes are less apt to have backs turned upon them if they keep themselves worth looking at. Beautiful eyes oft make a beautiful face. Bathe the eyes night and morning with a solution of 10 grains boric acid to 1 ounce distilled water.

The Wedding!

In ancient days the little flower girls of a wedding preceded the bride with sheafs of golden grain in their arms. The symbol of a wish for abundance in the new married life. This year's cutest little flower girls will wear long-skirted, high-waisted Kate Greenaway frocks in pastel and high shades.

Cake Lore!

When an ancient Roman damozel was married, she wore a heavy bridal crown in order to escape a bruise on the pate when the wedding cake was broken over her head in order that the shower of crumbs might be a symbol of plenty. Try this recipe for a modern wedding cake: One-half cup powdered sugar; 6 egg whites; 2-3 cup butter; 2 cups flour; 2 tablespoons milk; 1 teaspoon baking powder; 1 teaspoon almond extract. Add stiffly beaten egg yolks to sugar, milk and extract. Mix butter and flour and baking powder and add. Bake 50 minutes and frost with boiled white frosting.

To Help the Dusting!

"To be happy at home is the ultimate result of all ambition, the end to which every enterprise and labor tends, and of which every desire prompts the prosecution."—Johnson.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have been interested in your answers to young people's questions and would appreciate your advice with regard to my indecision.

After going with a boy friend for three years he has now taken a position quite a distance away. Although I just merely like him, he is madly in love with me, in spite of the fact that both our parents are opposed to our keeping company.

Would you advise me to keep up a correspondence, if not, what would be the most advisable course for me to take. As he is coming back May 24th, and has something of great importance to say to me, I should like your answer as soon as convenient.

Yours very sincerely,
BROWN EYES THAT ARE BLUE

BROWN EYES THAT ARE BLUE: Why not wait until May 24th and hear what he has to say to you? Even if he is madly in love with you, as you say, it is not necessary that you marry him, if you do not feel the same towards him. If you think you are the sort who would never get very fond of any man, you had better marry this young man, as it is much wiser to have the man more in love than the woman, women being more loyal and not so inclined to fickleness and change in matters of the heart. Three years is a long time to waste, if you do not intend to marry a man, and I would advise you to finish the affair in one way or another very soon. The fact that your parents are opposed does not mean very much, unless they have some very good reason. I cannot judge of that. If he loves you as much as you say, and you do not love anyone else, you had better accept him. Life is rather short, after all. You may not find anyone in the years to come who will love you as well.

HOW TOOTH-ACHE STOPS

In tooth-ache we find a fight progressing between the invading organisms and Nature's little warriors, the phagocytes.

Then what decides the tide of battle?

Should the invaders not have made too great headway through the breach in the pulp wall, the chances are that the little warriors would win the day, and the tooth get well, especially if the tooth cavity were cleansed of all decay, by this means destroying the hosts of the invading organisms. Nature needs assistance at times you see.

But should this aid be not forthcoming, the attacking organisms pour through the breach in increasing numbers, and discharge their poisons, while Nature, making a desperate effort to stem the tide, rushes her little warriors into the conflict in such vast numbers as to prove her own undoing. In this wise: that the tiny blood vessels within the pulp chamber become congested, resulting in an increased pressure that flattens the thinly-walled veins at the constricted opening which serves as both entrance and exit, to the pulp chamber. Consequently, the flow of blood outward is progressively slowed up and ultimately stopped, and pulp strangulation results.

So the pulp dies! and the gallant band of little warriors is annihilated; then, with the pulp death the pain ceases. But is the danger past? Not at all!

For the invading hosts, finding in the dead pulp, ideal conditions of heat and moisture for their propagation and growth, multiply exceedingly, and pour through the exit of the chamber into the body tissues carrying their poisons, as well as other products of decomposition of the lifeless pulp.

Thus, coursing through the body fluids, they become at once a menace, not only to the health and life of the tooth, but of the individual as well.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

Today I lunched with Maisie. Maisie is an amusing friend of mine who is always charging about at top speed, usually bent upon some hobby that she imagines is literally crying for attention.

This time it was clothes.

"That's why I asked you to lunch with me," said Maisie frankly. "I love to take you along when I'm choosing clothes."

"I must have an evening dress immediately," she continued. "Something I can wear to dinner, and then out to dance later," she specified.

"Then you want something simple and not too decollete," I suggested. "I know a shop that makes a specialty of smart dance frocks, and it's a little less expensive than Madame's," I added.

"Sounds like the place for me," said Maisie, as we started out in quest of the frock.

On the way Maisie confided to me that she had a great desire for a purple dress.

"Right," I approved, for Maisie is the dark exotic type that looks smartest in some exotic shade.

"They always have the smartest things," I assured her. "And if purple is to be had I feel sure they can supply it."

Sure enough, when we asked for a purple frock they brought out a stunning affair of purple chiffon trimmed with the bright jade green.

"That ruffled skirt would be fine on your slim figure," I advised.

Maisie tried it on immediately, and had to agree with me, for she was stunning in the frock.

The ruffles were stitched at the top with jade, and there was a jade rose at the hip. Maisie ordered a jade fan, and considered her shopping tour thoroughly successful.

I have sketched the frock here on my diary because I think I am going to make one just like it. Pam thinks it would be stunning in black and silver, and I believe I shall follow her advice. My cerise fan will look lovely with it, too.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Here is a funny story:

William Smith was born in Ireland on January 3, 1801. He lives in County Down and claims to be the oldest man in the world.

This isn't the funny part of the story—it is the strange part. But this man's recipe for long life is the following:

"Never marry before you are sixty; eat a lot, but only plain foods; drink a little alcohol daily; don't rise too early; don't wear any nightclothes; and, above all, don't worry." He smokes daily and takes a big drink of water before going to bed.

Our friend claims he used to drink as much rum as any ten men in County Down." For economy's sake he has reduced his tipples, but continues his daily nips.

Mr. Smith lived up to his rule. He didn't marry till he was 63 and apparently had but the one wife.

The trouble with this theory of why he lived to be one hundred and twenty-five is that it is difficult to prove. I don't know anybody else who waited till sixty to marry. Most of the bachelors I have known died before reaching that age. Without the ministering hand of a good wife long life is rare.

I am inclined to believe William was born for a special reason. He proves the rule by being its exception. Violating all the rules of ordinary procedure, his experience calls attention to what certain excesses customarily produce. Over-eating, over-drinking, excessive use of tobacco, indolence—in spite of all these Smith lives oh and on and on.

Hundreds of men have tried to do what William Smith has done for a century and a quarter. He is the only survivor!

The truth is that this man has lived in spite of—not because of—his habits. Blessed with a heart of never-failing rubber, lungs like a blacksmith's bellows, blood vessels of marvelous flexibility, a stomach like that of a work horse, a placid disposition, and no cares to worry over—it will not surprise me to hear he is alive in 1950.

That manner of life won't do for us. We had better marry early, eat moderately, rise betimes, indulge our appetites sparingly, and worry enough to keep busy. I would rather wear out at sixty than to vegetate to one hundred and sixty!

Simplicity in living adds to he chance of long life. Too much self indulgence tends to shortness of days. Temperance and good sense govern a life which is a useful life, whether it is short or long.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

THURSDAY, APRIL 22.

An interesting day is predicted from the peculiar lunar transits and the mutual figures in which Neptune predominates in influence. This points to intrigues, conspiracies or subtle activities in large projects, such as mergers, combines or understandings with close corporations or secret orders It is probable that some big deal may be brought into the limelight, but there will likely be financial benefit for those on the inside. Those in the employment of others seem to be under splendid auguries for recognition or advancement.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of active conditions in all that relates them to large corporations, secret orders or in diplomacy, or in subtle combinations or conspiracies. If in the employment of others they should push forward to perferment or promotion. Others may court honors or seek favors, especially from superiors or those in authority. A child born on this day may have some sort of subtle talents or equipment, fitting it for success in diplomacy or in secret negotiations.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 19—THE TWINS AT MRS. BEAR'S CAVE.

"We haven't collected Mrs. Brown Bear's rent yet," said Mister Tingaling to the Twins. "It's a long way off, almost at the very end of Out-of-door Land, the place where Mrs. Bear lives, but we'll have to go anyway."

"Does she live in a tree?" asked Nancy.

"Oh, ho! A tree!" cried Mister Tingaling. "I guess not. She lives in a cave—a big stony cave away back yonder in the hill. But come along."

So away they went to Mrs. Bear's house.

"I declare! Who do you s'pose that is?" said Mrs. Brown Bear to Bunchy Bear, her little boy, when she heard the door-bell. "Look out of the window, dearie, and see who it is."

So Chubby ran to a tiny hole in the rock which the bears used for a window, and peeped out.

"It's a boy and a girl and a funny-looking fat person in a queer little hat," he called to his mother.

"Oh, it must be the rent collectors!" said Mrs. Bear to herself. "I do wish they wouldn't come just when I'm so busy 'n' everything! I'll have to stop my work and get Bruin's old sock where he keeps his money."

But then suddenly she had an idea, and she began to smile like everything, Mrs. Bear did. "Why it's the very chance I've been looking for all week," she said to herself. "I guess I'm pretty glad they came after all."

So she went to the door of her cave-house, and opened it. And really you'd have thought she was saying how d' do to Santa Claus, the way she smiled and shook hands all around and said how very, very much obliged to them she was for coming.

"Just sit down in the parlor," she said. "And I'll go and call Bunchy in to keep you all company, while I go out and hunt up the rent money. It may take me a little time to find it as I don't know exactly which sock Bruin keeps it in."

In came Bunchy Bear in a minute or two, bringing with him his scooter, and his soldier suit and his sleigh reins with bells on, and his bow and arrow and his soldiers and everything. He couldn't carry them all at once, but anyway he got them all in finally.

"Let's play," he said to the visitors.

"All right," said Nick, putting on the soldier hat and jumping on the scooter. "Let's play fireman. I'll be the fire-engine."

"No, you be the horse and I'll drive you!" cried the little bear.

"All right," said Nick. "And, Nancy, you blow the horn and we'll pretend it's the fire-whistle."

"My! My! My" cried Mister Tingaling. "This is certainly a queer way to collect rent! And so much to be done, too!"

As for Mrs. Bear! What was she doing all this time?

You'd be surprised! She wasn't looking for the rent money at all! She was out shopping!

"I never can get anyone to keep Bunchy," she said to Mister Bags, the store-keeper. "But some friends came in, so out I popped and here I am! I'll have six yards of that red calico, please, and two pounds of honey. And what's the price of that green sunbonnet, Mister Bags?"

"My goodness! You must have gone to China for that rent money, Mrs. Bear," grumbled the fairy landlord when she got home.

"Not quite, but nearly," laughed Mrs. Bear. "Here's your rent money, Mister Tingaling. I'm very sorry to have kept you waiting."

THREE-MINUTE JOURNEYS

WHERE A GUEST MUST DINE ALONE.

The Norwegian peasants are a most hospitable people, but their rules of hospitality are rigid and rarely brook any violation.

So all-embracing, however, is their hospitality that even a beggar must be offered food before he is permitted to leave the house. Whoever enters the door of a Norwegian household must partake of a meal or his hosts will be offended.

But one of the strangest of the Norwegian customs, in which their hospitable rules abound, is that of serving the guest's meal in solitary splendor.

There is nothing the slightest bit snobbish in this habit. It grows from a spirit of humbleness They feel... that their own table is not sufficiently elegant for the more exalted tastes of the honored guest.

This special table is covered with the finest of white linen. The service is of silver. The mistress of the house serves him herself. But once the food has been set upon the table, the hostess disappears that he guest may enjoy his food alone. She may come in once or twice during the meal to encourage him to eat more heartily, but that is all.

If the guest insists, he may be permitted after a few days to eat in the kitchen with the family. This is a privilege that is only granted in rare and exceptional cases. But once the guest is admitted to the kitchen, he is part of the most intimate life of the household.

He dips into the bowl with a wooden spoon just as the family and the farm-hands do all around the plain board. He helps himself to grod, the porridge made of barley-meal or rye-meal, and to the accompanying sour milk. Potatoes and fish, butter and cheese, supply the rest of the meal.

The Mistress Herself Serves.

The wooden spoons used at these family meals are a source of great pride to the Norwegians. Each member of the family has his own spoon, with the owner's initial carved on the handle.

Though their customs of hospitality differ from our own, the spirit which lies beneath the outward manifestations is deep and sincere. They are really anxious to share what they have with any stranger who may chance to come to their doors.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

(By Edson R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.)

That newspapers are the melting pot of all local problems.

That they do the big part in making perpetual progress.

That they initiate faith and hope in the home city.

That they are guardians of public affairs and moulders of ideas for the betterment of the home city.

That they stand for the rights of every citizen.

That they breathe patriotism and encourage success.

That they help to build cities and give all they have to make the home city a bigger, busier city.

Newspapers are recognized and generally conceded as the acknowledged advertising medium through which to reach all the people.

GRAFT NEW EYES ON ANIMALS.

After several years' experiments Professor E. Guyenot of the University of Geneva has succeeded in creating sight in animals, according to Popular Science Monthly. He hopes soon to extend his work to human beings.

In his experiments Professor Guyenot chose tritons as his subjects. He cut their optic nerves and extracted their eyes. Then, after a certain period, he grafted new eyes in the orbits of the original ones. In eighty four cases he has worked on during the past eleven months only three have been complete successes, but these three prove conclusively, he claims, that he is on the right track.

WHY CHICKS CAN WALK

It takes a baby months to learn to walk But watch a chicken! The minute it pops out of its shell it struts about, managing its legs without the least effort. This does not mean, says Popular Science Monthly, that new-born chicks are more intelligent than new-born babies. It merely indicates that balancing and standing are automatic in the chicken and not in the baby. The latter has to use its brain to control its legs.

Recent experiments at the University of Chicago show that the chicken's balancing is governed by reflex action, needing no brain at all.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DORIS MEETS MISS BOUNCING BET.

Doris gave a squeal of delight when she spied the clusters of pinkish blossoms nodding on their green leaves.

"Oh, you pretty, pretty things! I'd just love to know what your name is!" she declared.

"Well, that's easy," whispered a tiny voice and Doris turned around to look into the smiling face of Squeedee, her little elfin friend from Joyland.

"Hello there, Doris! Have you met Miss Bouncing Bet? She's a fine little flower lassie. One worth knowing. Miss Bouucing Bet, this is Doris, who lives in the white house at the top of the hill."

"Bouncing Bet," laughed Doris. "What a charming name. Almost as charming as its owner. I'm glad to meet you, Miss Bouncing Bet."

"Thank you, Doris," Miss Bouncing Bet nodded her cluster of pretty pink bonnets to Doris. "I'm glad to know someone has moved into the big farm-house. I used to live there in that old garden; but when the old mistress moved away the garden soon went to ruin. No one came out to water us or pull off our leaves that turned brown.

"Then one day Miss Morning Glory, who was a great friend of mine, happened to climb on the old fence and she told me about the lovely meadows and shining brooks. So I sent out my tiny roots under the fence. I raised a lovely plant on the outside of the fence. Then one day I decided I'd go farther. I just kept sending out little roots and dropping my seeds near me, until here

"I'm So Glad to Meet You."

I am quite a long way from the farm house."

"Well, it's a good thing the farm-house was on the top of the hill," said Doris. "Or you would have found it much harder work. And you like it here?"

"I certainly do," replied Miss Bouncing Bet. "You see, my relative originally came from Europe. But I'd much rather live here in America."

"So had I," laughed Squeedee. "Here you can do just as you please; and at the same time you brighten up this roadside and the meadow."

"Oh, I love your blossom bonnets, cried Doris. "I'd love to pick a few to take in to Mother, if you don't object."

"Certainly, help yourself," answered Miss Bouncing Bet. "All I live for is to bring happiness to those around me. I'll be glad to share my blossoms with you." Then she continued: "Did you know that back in Europe the folks used to take the leaves of my relatives and make a fine soap-like lather with them by bruising them while in the water?"

"Well, of all things!" said Doris. "I'd never heard that before. May I take home a few leaves and try it?"

"Of course, you may," replied Miss Bouncing Bet. "Take some blossoms too, I have plenty and some to spare," and she swayed proudly in the gentle breeze.

Doris gathered some of the pretty blossoms and a few leaves and ran home with them.

She tried out the leaves and, sure enough, they made a lovely soap-like lather when she scrubbed them in the water.

CO-OPERATION

You'll find, after all, that co-operation gives business the punch of success. Whatever your line, or whatever your station, that element stands up, I guess.

Of course you may plug on, and labor alone and do your own task, day by day. And, maybe, right now, that's the reason you've grown. But, say, e'en at that, does it pay?

Your real peace of mind is where happiness lies. If you help someone else beside you, you'll rise to the point where you're one of those guys whose spirit can always come through.

To have and to hold all the wealth that there is doesn't mean half as much as it seems. We all have that thought. Do you know what it is? The stuff out of which they make dreams

The real satisfaction that comes to a man, who's plugging to earn his fair ration, is born through the doing the best that he can for others—through co-operation.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

Frank Andrew Munsey, who was successively and successfully clerk, telegraph operator, magazine writer, publisher, organizer of a chain of grocery stores and owner of banks, had a career paralleled only by the fictional heroes of Horatio Alger, Jr., who was at one time his associate contributor.

He was born in the little town of Mercer, Maine, on August 21st, 1854, the son of the local carpenter. When he was thirteen he became a clerk in a country store at Lisbon Falls. Later he became a clerk in the post-office and while there he learned telegraphy. From Lisbon Falls the family moved to Augusta. There the future publisher met James G. Bliane and other prominent men, and perhaps this meeting fired him with the ambition which was responsible for his success.

Through a friend who worked in a publishing house he became interested in the publishing business and planned a weekly. At the age of twenty-eight he came to New York and founded the Golden Argosy. Five months later he failed. Fortunately he was able to borrow money and in this way re-establish his business.

In 1891 Mr. Munsey entered the newspaper publishing field with the purchase of the New York Star. This name he changed to The Continent. The venture was not successful and was discontinued. In 1901, the erstwhile telegraph clerk bought the Daily News. He ran it for three years and in 1904 gave it up. For the next eight years Mr. Munsey devoted himself to his other interests. He bought a chain of grocery stores in New England, and a hotel in New London, Conn. Then he suddenly reappeared in New York journalism when on September 5, 1912, he bought the Press.

Four years later he bought the Sun, made famous under the editorship of Charles A. Dana. The purchase included the Evening Sun. He merged the Press in the Sun to give the latter paper an Associated Press membership. The Globe and Commercial Advertiser, which he later bought, were also merged with the Sun.

Of the tremendous success Frank Munsey made in the world of journalism it is not necessary to speak. When he died in December 1925, he left behind him a host of admirers—men and women who will profit by the lesson of his life.

THE SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori.

I overheard a young girl remark the other day:

"Since I've had my engagement ring, I have to pay so much more attention to my fingernails You've no idea how a diamond ring calls attention to the hands."

True enough, perhaps, but I could not help thinking it was too bad the young lady did not seem to realize that her hands were often subject to close scrutiny before she possessed the ring, even if she sees them scrutinized more frequently now.

Which brings me to the point that, with warm weather upon us, the nails are more of a problem than in Winter, if this is possible.

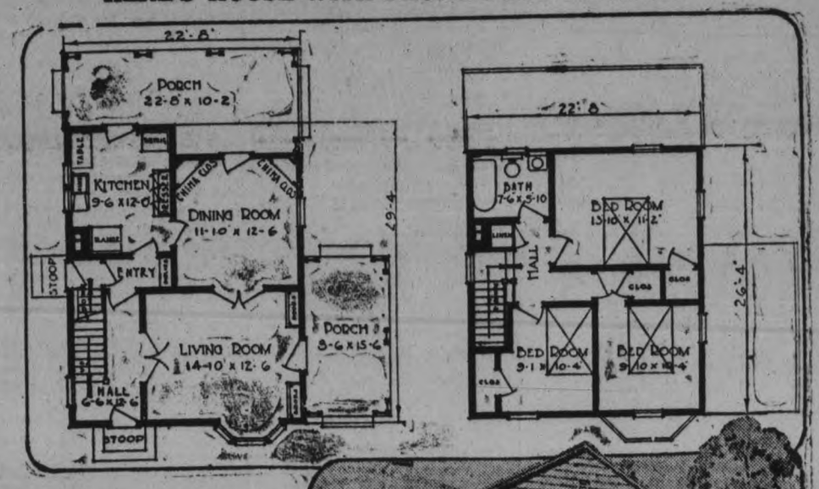
It seems to me that one must be constantly on the alert to preserve immaculate nails anyway, but in warm weather we have our gloves off more often when we are out, and this means that every flying particle of dust has a chance to lodge beneath the nails.

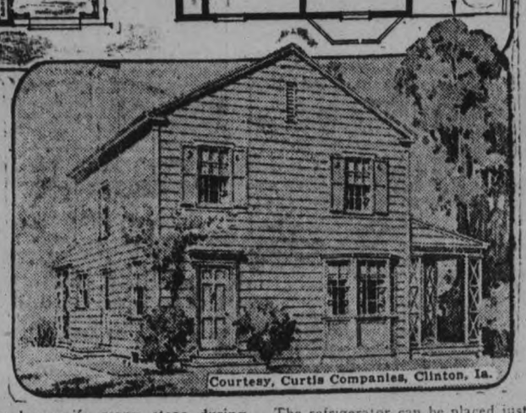
A number of women seem to think, by the way, that they simply cannot wear gloves in warm weather, so they carry them instead. I have always found that light-weight gloves, such as very fine suede, silk and washable cotton gloves are actually cooler than no gloves at all. They seem to absorb the moisture of the hands and keep them cool, as well as clean, therefore I am much in favor of such gloves for warm weather. The washable fabric gloves have been perfected until they resemble the finest chamois and they have the added advantage of being quite inexpensive.

So much for protecting your hands when you are out. Among the indoor precautions to keep your hands and nails immaculate, I advise keeping a bit of lemon always handy in your bathroom, or in the kitchen. After washing your hands, rub the piece of lemon firmly and dig your nails into it. This keeps the under part of the nails free from stains and gives them a nice clear appearance.

It is well to use this lemon treatment after you have brushed your nails thoroughly with a small brush and warm soap suds. This method is better than scraping beneath your nails with an orange stick, as it runs no danger of injuring the nails. Of course, you should have the orange stick handy for stubborn particles of dirt or dust.

HERE'S HOUSE WITH FRONT DOOR AT REAR





Courtesy, Curtis Companies, Clinton, Ia.

To-day's house might almost be said to face the rear, for it has a large porch that extends across the entire width of the house at the back, opening off both kitchen and dining room. For a lot where there is a view in this direction, this plan has excellent possibilities. It is a good demonstration of how the skilled architect makes the most of a building site.

There is a formal entrance from the street, and a good porch at the side, but the main porch is the spacious one at the back of the house, where one may enjoy distant hills, a river valley, green fields, or one's own garden.

The doorway leads to the stair hall. This hall is accessible from the kitchen as well as the living room, an arrangement which will save the busy housewife many steps during the day.

French doors are well used, to give the appearance of space in the first floor.

The bay is an attractive feature of the living room. Good wall spaces are left in this room for the large pieces of furniture which are often so hard to find room for.

Corner china closets are an interesting and practical feature of the dining room. The kitchen is equipped with a built-in- dresser and work-table.

The refrigerator can be placed just inside the rear door, where it will not be necessary to track across the floor when filling it. The sink is well located under the double window.

Upstairs there are three pleasant bedrooms with large closets, and a good bathroom. In the hall is a built-in linen case that is enclosed by one of the regular interior doors.

Altogether this is a good-looking and comfortable home, and one which the builder of a small house could make no mistake in selecting.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

HE PUTS FRUIT TO SLEEP

An entirely new way of keeping fruit from spoiling, says Popular Science Monthly, has been found by Professor John McLean Thompson of Liverpool University, England. He puts the fruit to sleep, he declares, and in this state it breathes very slightly and keeps perfectly for a long time.

The fruit is placed in a room and kept at a steady temperature and degree of humidity until it becomes dormant. Then it can be kept anywhere. The new method has been tried on oranges, grapefruit, lemons and apples.

BLACKBIRDS THE BEST SINGERS.

In a singing contest between birds the blackbird would win, says Professor C. I. Patten of the Royal Institution of London in Popular Science Monthly for May. Of all feathered songsters the blackbird keeps the best time and rythm, and has song has the best tune. A thrush however, could beat him in endurance, some thrushes being able to sing sixteen hours a day.

SENATORS TROUNCED BY YANKS BABE RUTH SCORED 5 OF 18 RUNS

TYGERS' VICTORY.

WASHINGTON, April 20 (Canadian Press)—Babe Ruth enjoyed an old time field day today while his fellow Yankees were trouncing Washington, 18 to 5. Five Washington pitchers, headed by the venerable Walter Johnson, faced the Yankee guns, and only one of them, a recruit, Lefty Thomas, came through unscathed.

Babe started his day by putting the ball over the right field wall in the opening inning for his first homer of the season, scoring Combs ahead of him. In five other trips to the plate Ruth bagged two double and two singles, and he registered five runs on his own account. Score:

CHICAGO, April 20 — Cleveland made it three out of four in their series with the Chicago White Sox, taking the final game, 9 to 5, by hitting both Thurston and Thomas freely. All the Indians hit safely and Tris Speaker led the first rally with a circuit clout in the sixth. Score:

BILLY EVANS SAYS.

Two months ago "Shuffle" Callahan of Chicago was just a prelim fighter.

Today he is a logical contender for the welterweight title held by Micky Walker of New York and points west.

The reason—he can hit.

The sport world likes the athlete with a sock, regardless of whether he is a fighter, ball player or golfer.

Babe Ruth revolutionized baseball with his devastating drive. While it is questionable whether the trend of the times toward home runs has helped the game, it is popular with fandom.

Regardless of where the New York Yankees finish this year, and they should be up there if they want to be, the club is certain to be colorful.

It is a team that boasts a punch. Aside from Babe Ruth, there is Lou Gehrig, who hits the ball as hard and far as Bambino, Bob Meusel and Tony Lazerri.

These four players take a terrific cut at the ball and a homer is always a possibility when they are up.

Change of Base

It wouldn't be at all surprising if several of the major league clubs, which have trained at the same place in Florida for years, shifted their camps next season.

While most of the magnates are pretty well agreed that it is hard to beat the Florida climate for training purposes, certain influences close to the larger cities make them less favorable for training camps.

It seems certain that the smaller cities of Florida, able to provide proper hotel and diamond accommodations, will get the preference in 1927.

Most of the ball players have a fondness for the running races. There are now three tracks in Florida. There may be a couple more by next spring.

The races, if close by, have a tendency to get the players' minds off baseball, which, of course, is the chief object of spring training.

"Sock 'Em" Risko

John Risko, who recently gained national fistic recognition by decisively defeating Paul Berlenbach, offers some interesting observations on the fighters he has already met during his short career.

Gene Tunney, Young Stribling, Jack Delaney, Paul Berlenbach, Romero Rojas, Young Bob Fitzsimmons and Sully Montgomery are a few of the outstanding fighters Risk has traded punches with.

"Tunney hits the hardest, Stribling is the cleverest, Berlenbach the most willing to fight, aside from Rojas, is the way John sizes his opponents.

According to Risko, Rojas gave him his toughest fight. I saw that meeting and must admit it was one of the greatest affairs ever staged between two heavyweights.

Rojas, by the way, shot his bolt in that bout. He was easy picking from then on.

Great Future

Fighting only three years, overmatched in practically every bout, the Novice Risko has made a most remarkable showing.

To those who regard Risko as just a big, awkward, strong boy, mention of the fact that he is championship timber may strike them as a huge joke.

However, remarkable physical assets, clean living and real courage are three great assets that Risko has and they may be hard to deny.

LONDON, Ont., April 21.—(Canadian Press).—For the first time in 40 years Mrs. James Allen, of Ingeroll, heard organ music distinctly over the radio when a programme was being broadcast from London, Ont. There is the second instance this year where people in Ingersoll who had not heard a sound of any kind for years have heard music over the radio.

SENCIO SECOND TAYLOR VICTIM

Flyweight Died Alone in His Hotel After Doctors Attended.

TAYLOR MAY QUIT.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 21—(Canadian Press) — Clever Sancio, the battling mite from the Philippines, lies dead today, the victim of gruelling punishment administered by Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., aspirant to the bantamweight championship, in their furious 10 round contest fought here Monday night.

Sencio died, alone in his hotel room, from cerebral hemorrhage as the result of the bout. The little Filipino flyweight was still on his feet when the bell ended the contest, but in need of support to help him from the ring. He was immediately taken to a hotel where physicians said his condition was not alarming and his handlers, thus assured, left him to sleep. A window washer, looking into Sencio's room a few hours later, found him lying dead on his bed in a pool of blood.

No Legal Action

No legal action will be taken against Taylor, District Attorney Eugene Wingert said. He declared that boxing was legal in Wisconsin that all the rules of the law had been complied with.

The tragic ending of the bout was the second fatality among Taylor's opponents in the ring. Frankie Jerome, a New York bantamweight, died two days after his contest with Taylor in New York a year ago. Jerome at that time was knocked down, his head crashing against the floor of the ring with such force that a hemorrhage developed.

By a strange stroke of fate, Sencio's death was the third within the ranks of Philippine boxers.

Pancho Villa, the former world's flyweight champion, died in San Francisco after a contest with Jimmy McLaren. He died from blood poisoning resulting from infected teeth, having entered the ring with an inflamed jaw shortly after extraction of a tooth.

Young Sencio expired in Australia after a bout with Bert McCarthy of Melbourne.

The Terre Haute blond was crushed when he learned Tuesday that his game little opponent of last night had died. He said he would rather have been knocked out in the first blow of the battle himself rather than have Sencio die. Taylor indicated that he probably would hang up his boxing gloves for at least several months.

MILES SEVENTH CANUCK WINNER

Sydney Mines Grocer's Boy First Canadian Over Marathon Course.

THE BOSTON LIST.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 21 (Canadian Press)—Nova Scotia has contributed three, Ontario three and Quebec one of Canada's seven winners of the classic Boston Marathon captured Monday by John C. Miles, of Sydney Mines.

The Dominion broke into the winning column in 1898 when R. J. McDonald, of Antigonish, N.S., wearing the colors of the Cambridge gymnasium, finished first. J. McCaffrey, Hamilton, Ont., followed in 1900, and repeated the following year, the only Canadian to date to twice win the event.

Tom Longboat, of Toronto, made the last time of all the Canadians, winning the shorter distance of 25 miles when he breasted the tape in 1907 in 2:24:24. Miles in addition to holding the world's record is the first Canadian to win at the full Marthon distance. The list of Canadian winners follows:

(25 miles)

1898—R. J. McDonald, Antigonish, N.S., 2:42.

1900 — J. McCaffrey, Hamilton, Ont., 2:39:44 2-3.

1901 — J. McCaffrey, Hamilton, Ont., 2:29:23 3-5.

1907—Tom Longboat, Toronto, 2:24:24.

1910—Fred Cameron, Amherst, N. S., 2:28:53 2-5.

1914 — James Duffy, Hamilton, Ont., 2:25:01.

1915—Edouard Fabre, Montreal, Que., 2:31:41 1-5.

1926 (26 miles, 385 yards)—John C. Miles, Sydney Mines, N.S., 2:25:40 2-5.

Miles History

While the milling crowds cheered Johnny Miles across the finish line ahead of all the rest in Boston's annual Marthon road race Monday, the outburst found its echo in this little mining town, which claims the fleet-footed runner as its own.

Three years ago a youth of 15 approached the officials in the Sydney annual three-mile road race, an event of considerable importance in the province, and asked to be allowed to enter. He was advised to seek a place in the junior events, but could not be put off. He finished on the heels of the winner. That was young Miles' first bow to the public.

He kept himself in training, and last year he was ready. He won the three-mile road race in Sydney in May; then proceeded to Antigonish for the Highland games, to the New Glasgow field sports, to Dartmouth Natal day sports, winning first place in every start, and then to Halifax to the Canadian champion ships of the field and track events last September. On that occasion he thrilled thousands in his capture of the five-mile event. He was at once marked by the experts as a Marathoner.

With such a brilliant year's achievements behind him there was no lack of backers when he announced his intention of trying for the premier event in Boston this spring. He was given a rousing send-off and a purse of $300 from his friends and supporters.

Immediately the new was received that Miles had crossed the tape a winner and a record-breaker, jubilation swept the town. Whistles blew and flags were unfurled, and a holiday spirit took possession of the people.

Arrangements were immediately set under way to prepare a fitting reception for the victor.

WALTZ KING'S RECORD.

Strauss, the waltz king, is said to have written nearly 400 waltzes and that there was not a poor one among them. In addition he wrote many selections for other dance steps including polkas, mazurkas and schottishes not to mention marches and ballads. His operettas were nxt in fame to his waltzes, hind however.

GETS CHANCE WHEN 33

FORT MYERS, Fla., April 21 — Breaking into the majors at 33 years of age, when most pitchers are slipping of through as big leaguers, is the unique experience of Southpaw Joe Pate.

Joe Pate hails from Fort Worth, Tex. For years hi chief business has been helping Jakie Atz win pennants. Atz has six to his credit. While wishing Joe the best of luck, Jakie will welcome Pate back should Connie Mack decide that he can't use him.

In the Texas League Joe Pate, as a southpaw pitcher of parts, is as famous as Rube Waddell ever was in the big show. He's the big noise of baseball in the Lone Star State.

Several years ago Ty Cobb bought Pate, but for some reason he never reported. It is understood that Pate let it be known that he would rather play with Ft. Worth.

Cy Perkins, veteran catcher of the Athletics, is enthusiastic about Pate.

"Joe hasn't the speed of Groves, but he sure has a variety of stuff," says Perkins. "He has a knuckle ball that he appears to control at will. That style delivery looks very funny thrown by a left-hander.

"I am of the opinion that he is going to help us. If he is able to win 10 ball games, and I think he can, it means considerable."

Pate is a six-footer, weighs about

190 pounds and knows how to pitch. Jake Atz, who has managed him for years, says he has the stuff to win in the majors, particularly brains.

The addition of Pate gives Connie Mack five southpaws, Groves, Walberg, Baumgartner and Heimach being the others.

HELPFUL HINTS by GOLFING STARS

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS MAGAZINE, CHICAGO

GENE SARAZEN—WATCHING THE STARS

I paid special attention to Chick Evans and the manner in which he plays his iron shots. Nobody can control a mid-iron or a mashie-iron shot better than Chick.

I noticed that he always had a firm grip of the club—that is very essential. Also that he held his body perfectly still and allowed the arms to do all of the work. That his pivoting, what little he does, is rhythmical and in perfect co-ordination with the back swing.

With that kind of a swing there is never any danger of slopping over, of having the club wabble, or of having the co-ordination of the arms and body upset. Evans, with a three-quarter swing, is able to hit the ball always a firm and true blow.

I also watched Bobby Jones. His firm manner of playing iron shots was also impressive. I could not help but note how firmly all of these stars, Hutchison, Hagen, Evans, and Jones, played their iron shots.

Firmness is the keynote of a successful iron or mashie shot, and to obtain this firmness one must remember always to keep the left arm straight.

HOLLYWOOD, April 21—If that little group of immortals—Poe Byron, Poushkin, and a few others—returned to earth and staggered into Hollywood what kind of a reception would they get? The first day a few energetic press agents would pose their stars with the literati, get the pictures published in the dailies and that's about all that would happen.

How do I know? It's easy. Not long ago Rudolph Valentino was starred in a picture called "The Eagle," Hans Kraly, scenarist, and Clarence Brown, director, received what little glory befell the film. Movie gods deemed it far wiser to exploit Kraly, Valentino and Brown than the immortal man who actually brought into existence the story. Poushkin, Russia's most famed short-story chronicler, was the author of the original story, "Dubrowsky." Wherever literature is known at all this story is known.

Poushkin will be remembered and quoted when Hollywood with its so-called famed ones is forgotten.

Carl Van Vechten's world-known book, "The Tattooed Countess," recently went on the screen as "A Woman of the World," Van Vechten was barely mentioned as the original author.

"Moby Dick," that famous old whaling novel by Herman Melville, is now on the screen as "The Sea Beast." Bess Meredith, a Hollywood scenario writer, receives more credit and glory for the story than the original author himself.

Leonid Andreyev (Andreyeff), mere author of "The Seven Who Were Hanged," "The Red Laugh" and "He Who Gets Slapped," would have turned over in his grave had his carcass been vain, when the film version of the last named story went on the screen. The author's name was so small when placed on the screen it could hardly be read. Lon Chaney and Victor Seastrom were the babies, one would be led to believe, responsible for everything from story to nuts.

Yes, the immortals would be given a dirty hand could they invade our modern Bohemia, named Hollywood.

Fred Niblo, who helped Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spend some of its many millions on "Ben Hur," which has finally reached the screen after more than two years of waving of greenbacks and gesturing of hands, is planning to start on another film soon. It is said that in screen importance it will equal "Ben Hur," although high finance is not going to be one of the principal roles despite the fact it was featured in his last production.

Flappers with boy-bobs may be interested to know that Dorothy Mackaill, formerly of their species, is now letting her hair grow out. This rash act may change the course of woman suffrage in Hollywood, 'tis feared.

* * *

Sometimes they choose the wrong turn in the road and obscurity claims them. A few years ago the late Thomas H. Ince, film producer, offered Larry Weingarten a job as assistant director to Fred Niblo. Larry refused it as the position only paid $60 per week and he was then making more than $100 weekly as a press-agent, Rowland V. Lee, an aspirant soul, took the Offer.

Today Lee is a world-known director making more than $1000 a week and Larry is still in the publicity game He press-agents Jackie Coogan.

PLAYER LIMIT IN TOWN LEAGUE

Teams Are Limited To 20 Players in Campbellford Organization.

SEVEN TEAMS.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 21—A meeting of the executive of the Campbellford Softball Association was held in the Public Library on Monday night. In the absence of President Davidson, Vice-president Bell occupied the chair and the following teams were represented: Hydro, Oddfellows, Cloth Co., Outlaws, Clerks and Junior Colts.

The twenty player limit was the main topic of discussion, and Brought forth many arguments as to its good and bad points and was finally carried by a vote of four to two. It reads: all teams are limited to twenty signed players and passed by the executive. The organization to which a player belongs has first choice on his services and he must play for that club, providing it wants him; and a player not asked to sign by the club to which he belongs, is at liberty to sign with another club. Any new players added, after the original list has been passed, must come before the executive.

Whether a majority vote of the executive rules or 75 per cent. will depends on the attitude of the Millionaire Club, which was not represented last night. Three of those present voted a majority and the other three held out for 75 per cent of the executive. Another meeting will be held Thursday night in the library at 7 p.m. and the secretary asks for a representative from every team.

ACT AMENDED.

Alberta Teachers Can Now Suspend Pupils For Truancy.

EDMONTON, Alta., April 21.—(Canadian Press).—The recent Castor school district case, where a former principal and a teacher were each fined $50 and costs for having exceeded their authority by suspending two pupils for truancy, was the first one in the province—and it will be the last. Hon. Perren Baker, minister of education, is asking the Alberta Legislature to amend the School Act at this session, so that truancy will be included in the list of offences for which a teacher may exercise the right of suspension of the offending pupil. Truancy, open opposition to authority, habitual neglect of duty, bad language, and other acts inimical to school discipline, are to be included in the additional powers conferred on the teacher.

The parents of the two pupils in the Castor case contend that the suspended children were not truants, they having only absented themselves from school for a short period on the morning of one day. In other words that the pupils were "late for school" that day.

MASCART WON DECISION.

PARIS, April 21. Canadian Press.—Edouard Mascart of France, featherweight champion of Europe, won the decision last night over "Bugler" Lake, of England, former European bantamweight champion. The decision was awarded to Mascart when Lake abandoned the fight in the sixth round.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

Nan.—You have naturally a good deal of creative power and tenacity, and this has been good for you, as you have always had to work hard on your way through life. Although you have quite a variety of disposition, your usual bearing is somewhat retiring, with a tendency toward the conservative element. Your inner nature is receptive and intuitional, and you finish all tasks in a careful, competent manner. When angry, you can be very cutting. Your general conversation is characterized by simplicity, but when imitating or describing, you sometimes exaggerate. You like the beautiful and luxurious things of life, and your inner nature responds to all forms of ideality. You are usually quite optimistic and enthusiastic and not easily discouraged by defeat. You are easily confused and dislike crowds and busy thoroughfares. You should always follow out your own intuitions, which are strong, and resolve to waste no more time in worrying over things which may never happen. Do not think too much of the appreciation and praise of others, but strive to value your own opinion of yourself. A quick temper and tendency to worry are your drawbacks. August and December are your lucky months. Friday your lucky day. You were born on Saturday. Your colors are blue and cream.

Kitty.—Although you are quite young your destiny is rather plainly marked out, without many conflicting elements. You have been endowed with a strong character, and your way of life must always be along lines of rectitude and virtue. Much will be expected of you as you go through the world. See that you do not disappoint the expectations of those who will care for you. You are kind-hearted and generous, with strong intuitions which you should nearly always follow, except when you are angry. This trait of temper, also a tendency to take dislikes without true cause, and to criticize others, should be controlled as much as possible. As you are led by emotion mostly, you must be very careful whom you marry. A man born in September, October or December will be best. January and October are your good months, Sunday your good day. Try to realize your own particular talents, develop yourself along those lines, and you are sure to succeed. Take responsibility as soon as possible, as it will broaden and develop your nature. You were born on Saturday. Your colors are red and brown. The day you ask about, a Wednesday, is one for real personal freedom and for musical and artistic expression.

Lynn.—You have a strong, highly-developed nature, able to cope with the circumstances of daily life. Circumstances and environment have led you to a life that is rather circumscribed, and you must constantly try to overcome shyness, introspection and even morbidness at times. You have a liking for things mystical and occult. You should make an ideal homemaker. In developing yourself, try and discover first just what talents you have, then follow along these lines, without deviation. You must always rely on your own opinions and intuitions, which are quite acute, no matter what others may say. You will be long-lived, but must be careful of sudden, violent pains in the head, and try always to keep your stomach in good condition. You are too fond of rich, highly-seasoned foods for your own good. You will be happiest and most successful in a city, as a part of its busy, bustling life. Strive for poise and self-possession, for control of a rather fiery temper and try to think before you speak, so as not to lose friends by your impulsive utterances. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are red and brown.

BANQUET GIVEN SCHOOL TEAM

Members of Queen Mary Hockey Team Guests of Association.

ARE CHAMPIONS.

A very enjoyable small banquet was held in the Kindergarten room of the Queen Mary School last evening tendered by the Home and School Association to the members of the school's hockey team who were successful this season in winning their fifth consecutive championship of public school hockey teams in the city. As Mr. Mowat expressed it last night, "some habits are not good, but no one here will object to the habit these boys have developed with regard to winning first place in the school hockey annals of the city."

The banquet, which was designed primarily as a Father and Son gathering, was attended also by several other guests of the Association: J. A. McKone, chairman of the Board of Education, who also acted as chairman for the banquet, and Mrs. McKone; E. F. Reid, chairman of the Property Committee of the Board of Education, Alderman George A. McDonald, P. L. Allison, President of the Home and School Association and Mrs. Allison, Messrs. W. George Henderson, W. T. Hall, J. John, F. Merrett, A. Mowat, Public School Inspector, Principal M. N. Clark, Vice-Principal, E. G. Wagar, Miss Catheleen McCarthy, of the Examiner staff, and eight members of the school's hockey team: Terry Hall, (Captain), Wilmot Merrett, Dave McCullough, Whitty Thirnbeck, George Doukas, "Sunshine" Jones, Kenneth Robinson and Clifford Cadd. Two members of the team were absent, Ted Dormer and "Pat" McCarroll.

The banquet served by the ladies was exceptionally good, the viands provided being delicious, and done full justice to by the guests, the boys particularly appearing to enjoy the spread to the full. The table was crossed with streamers of yellow crepe paper, and arranged with a large vase of narcissus, and lighted yellow candles in brass candlesticks. The ladies of the executive of the Home and School Association, who assisted in preparations, were: Mesdames S. Worsencroft (convenor), D. J. Cameron, C. R. Banks, M. T. Breckenridge, H. E. Connolly, C. Willison, H. S. Huffman, T. E. Ross.

Community singing during the service of the banquet was led by Mr. George Henderson at the piano, and at the conclusion, Mr. J. John gave several readings in his own inimitable manner, receiving repeated applause.

Speeches of congratulation to the boys were made by Principal Clark, who mentioned the record of 46 goals scored by the players in seven games this season, with only one goal scored against them, the fact that the team, organized five years ago had won five consecutive city championships in that period, having their practice only on the hard ice outside the school, and attributing the success of the boys to the self-control and spirit of co-operation manifested by every member of the team. Mr. Clark spoke of the hope of the school that better facilities for practice might be provided the boys than those now enjoyed.

Mr. J. A. McKone thought that the chairman of the Property Committee of the Board of Education, present last evening, might well take the suggestion of better rink provision for the school into consideration in the Fall of the year, and Alderman McDonald, the next speaker, supporting the idea of better rink accommodation, was of the opinion that much of the team's success was due to principles instilled by the principals and teachers, and to the spirit of co-operation present between the boys themselves and between them and their teachers.

Mr. Wagar, who with Mr. Clark, has managed and coached the team to five successive victories, said that very little jangling had been noticed among the boys during the past season. His advice to the players hac been, in the event of someone trying to put something over on them, to "take it and grin."

Mr. Mowat, extending his congratulations to the boys, spoke of the democratic spirit now manifest in institutions of learning, differing from the despotic manner of the teacher in olden days, so that modern schools, besides being centres of learning, had become places of pleasure as well as profit to the scholars. Mr. Mowat also referred to the splendid service rendered the schools of the city by the lady members of the Home and School Associations, and quoted the utterance of a man who had much experience of schools from Halifax to Vancouver, and who after a three months' stay in Peterboro, declared he had never seen as much real work done by the Home and School Associations as in this city.

Terry Hall, captain of the school team, expressed the thanks of the members to Mr. Clark and Mr. Wagar, the manager and coach, and also voiced much appreciation to the ladies of the Home and School Association, for the delicious banquet served by them. This vote of thanks to the ladies was also reiterated by the chairman, Mr. McKone, and was followed by much applause from the guests.

THEATRE

AT THE GRAND

In selecting "The Corsican Brothers" as the offering for the engagement at the Grand Opera House on Monday, April 26th, Sir John Martin-Harvey is acting in response to the many requests he has received from Canadian playgoers for a revival of the stirring romantic drama which, judging from the following from the London "Daily Mail," has as strong an appeal with modern audiences as it did in the days of Irving.

"The Corsican Brothers" is one of those plays which seems to have no age. What more tragic than the story of the two brothers bound to one another by some sort of telepathic sympathy, the one suffering when the other suffers, loving, hating, when the other does. Knowing instinctively the happenings and mishaps which may occur to either?

The first act will always be one of those things which people will go and see. The pictruesqueness of the settings, the costumes, the charming old-world atmosphere, the stately mother, the intrepid Corsican; and then the vision of his slain brother. Then the enactment of the brother's death, and finally the vendetta, the great revenge, the duel, and death of the great French swordsman.

As an actor's play, too, it has great attractions. It is essentially an acting play, giving the actor full scope for all the gamut of heroic emotion. Martin Harvey is so well known in the part that it is enough to say that his performance last night was in every way equal, to his best achievements, and that the whole company play admirably in the picture.

It met, as it always will, with a very favourable reception, and those who never saw it cannot spend an evening at the theatre more pleasantly than by a visit to the Adelphi."

AT THE REGENT

A NEW REX BEACH MOVIE EXCELLING ITS FORERUNNERS

Surpasses "The Spoilers" in Brutal Power and Popular Appeal—Film has Perfect Cast—Tells a Vivid Romance against a Picturesque Alaskan Background.

Here's a film full of action! action-action! A vigorous story of early Alaskan days when men fought with their fists for their diggings in the gold fields and for the women they loved with equal readiness and fierce delight. A vivid and rugged love story conceived and told as only Rex Beach could conceive and tell it, portrayed against a picturesque back ground of primitive life in an Alaskan village populated by fur trappers and seal fishers.

Rex Beach is one of the best known of American writers. And "The Barrier" is one of his best sellers. It has been read by millions. Beach's stories are full of swift action, forceful characterization and deep romance—elements that make them unsurpassable material for the screen. "The Spoilers" proved this. And so did "Flowing Gold." "The Ne'er-do- Well" and "The Winds of Chance." "The Barrier" proves it all over again.

TO LONDON IN EIGHTEEN HOURS.

A monster monotriplane capable, it is claimed, of flying from New York to London in eighteen hours, recently has been designed by Dr. Armin de Muth, a German inventor. According to Popular Science Monthly, models of the plane have been tested successfully by Professor Edward P. Warner of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The huge plane, which is to be constructed soon, will be all metal and unsinkable. It will be 147 feet long, and it will be able to carry fifty passengers and two tons of freight.

IN MEMORIAM.
DAVIS: In loving memory of Mrs. W. J. Davis, who passed away in Nicholls Hospital, April 21st, 1922:
One by one earth's ties are broken,
One by one they are linked above;
Some day there'll be a sweet reunion,
Once again with those we love.

'Tis Jesus' blood that washes white,
His hand that brings relief,
His heart is touched with all our joys,
And feels for all our griefs.

But God is good. He gives us strength
To bear our lonely cross;
He is the only one who knows
Our loneliness and loss.

'Tis sweet to know we'll meet again,
Where parting is no more,
And that the friend we loved so well
Has only gone before.
Ever remembered by her sorrowing parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Zinston, and family, and daughter, Helen.

Council Will Issue No Further Permits For Gasoline Tanks

Margin of One Vote Saves Present Tanks From Being Ordered Removed From Streets—Four Requests Are Refused.

VULCANIZING SHOP PROVES POOR BUY.

Purchaser of Building Recently Damaged By Fire Cannot Rebuild—Building, Which is in Fire Limits, on the Verge of Collapse.

No more permits will be issued for gasoline pumps on the streets of the city, and only one vote saved those already on the streets from being ordered removed when the council considered the matter at a meeting last night. The meeting was a special one, called to consider the results of the negotiation for better banking accommodation, but the other business on file was cleared up, and four applications for gasoline pumps, all from people who already have one or more, were considered.

The applicants were Dawson and Johnston, who already have three at the corner of McDonnel and George streets and wished to instal another to handle another grade of gasoline; Reid and Sons, on Aylmer street, near Charlotte, who already have one; T. H. Ashby, who has one now on Rubidge street, and R. Hicks, whose present tank is on private property but who wished to instal another on the street.

Aldermen Greene and MacDonald led the attack on the tanks. Alderman MacDonald moved that no more permits should be granted and Alderman Greene seconded the motion. They both expressed the opinion that the city streets should not be a place of merchandising and that the tanks shrould be put on private property so that there would be no congestion. They were supported by Alderman Hancock, who recalled that he had tried last year to have the tanks ordered off the streets.

Aldermen Phelan and Fife opposed the motion. They said that the permits should be granted until there were enough service stations to take care of the people and that then all the tanks should be ordered off.

Alderman Turner suggested that a graduated scale should be levied starting with the present fee of $25.00 for the first tank, and charging a higher fee for the second, still higher for the third, and so on.

When the amendment was put, Aldermen Fife and Phelan were the only ones to vote to permit the tanks, while Alderman MacDonald, Greene, Denne, Hancock and Cotton voted for the motion, refusing to grant any further permits. The ayes and nays were called for and the aldermen voted as before.

Aldermen Turner and Meyers said that they had not voted because they had favored granting two of the requests and refusing the others, one because the applicants, Dawson and Johnston, had already three in a row at a busy corner, and the other, that of Reid and Sons, because of possible congestion so near the fire hall. When the ayes and nays were called the two aldermen decided to join the ayes, opposing any further permits.

Tanks Almost Doomed

Alderman Greene then moved that the owners of the present tanks be given six months to remove them. This was opposed by Alderman Fife, who said that the step was too drastic at present. He said that many of the men would have to give up their tanks because they had no room to erect them on their private property, and there were not yet enough service stations to give the citizens the proper service. He favored evening things up by forbidding garage men to sell gasoline. Alderman Turner said that they should be given a chance, as many of them were paying on the instalment plan and would lose several hundred dollars, while Alderman Meyers said that their entire removal would have the effect of sending tourist trade right on through.

On the vote the ayes and nays were again called, resulting as follows: for the removal, Aldermen Greene, MacDonald, Denne and Hancock; against, Aldermen Phelan, Cotton, Turner, Fife and Meyers.

Mayor Holloway refused to vote on either motion and Alderman Ackerman was absent.

Can't Rebuild

The proprietor of the Acme Vulcanizing Station, on Water street, appeared before the council in connection with his building, which was damagd by fire several weeks ago. The roof was burned off and his machinery is exposed, but he cannot get permission to rebuild. R. H. Parsons, City Engineer, said that he could not grant a permit according to the city by-laws, and the owner said that the Fire Marshal was also holding him up. The aldermen decided that Mr. Armstrong should write the Fire Marshal, asking him to forward his decision in the matter as soon as possible.

The building is on ground belonging to St. John's church, and at the time of the fire belonged to a man named Bickersteth. The other man, who had been a tenant there for several years, bought the building and then found himself faced with an order for its demolition, issued by the Fire Chief. The Fire Marshal held up the chief's order but has not yet sent an inspector. City Engineer Parsons said that the building was on the verge of collapse. The aldermen expressed the opinion that the owner had made a poor bargain and suggested his taking action against the former owner but the present owner said that his former landlord is now in the United States.

Finances Discussed

The main business for which the meeting had been called was quickly disposed of. At a meeting of the finance committee held before the Council meeting Alderman Phelan explained the difficulty that had been encountered in arranging better terms for the city's financing because of the refusal of the Utilities Commission and City Trust to accept the lower rate on their credit balances. He suggested two two plans that might be submitted.

The first was that the council ask that its money be considered separately and that it be given the different rate. The second was that when the Council had an overdraft and the other bodies a credit the interest at six per cent should be charged only on the difference and that the council should pay the other bodies the four per cent they were losing on their credit balances.

The committee gave Alderman Phelan and the Mayor power to approach the other civic bodies and the banks in an endeavor to get the best terms possible, their report to be presented at the May meeting of the council. This action was confirmed at the council meeting.

General Business

The applications of Louis Yeates and Henry Finnie for billiard table licenses were granted. It was explained by the mayor that these were for the tables in the Alpha and George street clubs, which had been the cause of much discussion. He explained further, however, that the club charters were being retained and that that the tables, as licensed, would be under city supervision until 11.00 at night. After that hour they would be private club tables.

Joseph Dean was granted a renewal of his eating house license. Mrs. Knox and F. H. Dobbin were nominated for reappointment to the Mothers' Allowance Board. Alderman Mel Turner will look into W. H. Bradburn's request that the owner of the house where there is a fire should be notified by the Fire Chief.

Permission was granted the Kiwanis club to erect a building at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, to be used by John R. Brownlee for the sale of baskets and newspapers.

The council took no action on two telegrams from the Mayor of Oshawa in regard to a deputation to wait on the Prime Minister on Friday about the tariff changes announced. Those who spoke on the matter felt that it would be of no use going, as it would have no result.

Council's Attitude Leads Kiwanis Club To Withdraw Offer To Build $2,000 Pool

In a letter that was read and received without action by the City Council last night, Peterborough Kiwanis Club withdrew its offer to build a wading pool for small children in King Edward Park. The Club had arranged to erect the concrete pool at a cost of nearly $2,000, and present it free to the city, provided the city undertook to put in the drainage and water at a cost of about $300.

It was claimed by the Council that it had not $300 to expend on the project, and also that a caretaker would have to be provided, even though the pool was designed to be only from six inches to eighteen inches deep.

The letter from Kiwanis Club withdrawing the $2,000 offer read:

"This Club very much regrets the attitude taken by some members of your Council regarding the wading pool which we proposed to instal at King Edward Park for the benefit of the small children of the city, and in view of of your attitude towards this project, we hereby withdraw the offer."

NO AGREEMENT ON FRENCH DEBT SAYS MELLON

Can Be None Until Debt Commission Passes on French Offer.

FEARS IN FRANCE.

Papers Afraid France Will Come Under Dominance of U. S. A.

WASHINGTON, April 22 (Canadian Press).—The statement made yesterday by Premier Briand of France that the debt settlement agreement between France and the United States had practically been reached, is not confirmed here.

"There can be no agreement until the debt commission passes upon any offer that the French may wish to make and nothing has yet been submitted," declared Secretary Mellon of the treasury today.

Fears in France

PARIS, April 22 (Canadian Press) Comment in the French press on the debt negotiations is dominated by the fear that the United States will gain sole control over the finances of France. Some papers go so far as to say that such control would be more vigorous than that imposed on Germany.

Compromise is expected with reference to the safeguard clause, having to do with France's ability to meet payment in case Germany should default in her reparation installments.

Quotidien, organ of the Radical-Socialist party, says that a number of prominent Senators who took part in the finance committee meeting yesterday, "expressed fear at seeing our country put herself at the mercy of her creditors."

MANY AT FUNERAL.

Business Practically Suspended While I. P. Downey is Buried.

GUELPH, Ont., April 22.—(Canadian Press).—The funeral of Jos. P. Downey was held here yesterday between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock and business in the city was practically suspended and the immense edifice of the Church of Our Lady was filled to the doors by a throng composed of all classes and religious denominations in the city.

Several members of the Provincial Cabinet were also present.

BLACKBALLING USED IN I.O.D.E. FOR EXCLUSION

Heated Discussion Occurs at Meeting of Provincial Chapter.

ORDER TOP HEAVY.

Status of Foreigners in Canada Considered By Order.

HAMILTON, April 22 Canadian Press. — Blackballing is used in the I.O.D.E. to exclude proposed members, it was stated at last night's meeting of the Provincial Chapter.

The discussion, raised by Mrs. H. A. Malcolmson, Hamilton, waxed heated at times and humorous at others. One delegate to the convention declared that she had been present when blackballs against a proposed member had been ciunted.

The suggestion that members should be selected by the executive was shouted down on the grounds that personalities should not enter into I.O.D.E. elections. One woman was barred from the order because she was a "busy body," a Toronto regent declared.

In answer to this, Mrs. Osgoode McVean, Dresden, asserted that she had never seen a "busy body" who was not a "cracking good worker." She warned the meeting that the I.O.D.E. should not be patterned after a Masonic Lodge. If a chapter wished to exclude a woman, there was a "nice way of doing it."

A warning was issued by Mrs. Malcolmson that red tape was making the order top heavy, that the I.O.D.E. has erected something that would topple over and destroy it.

Discussing foreigners in Canada, Miss Richards of Ford City said:—"We don't want them very much, but we must put up with them. Even if we only give them enough English to let them go to the United States, and keep our own men at home, that will be something."

Immorality among the young girls of some of the foreigners was appalling, she said. Their idea, brought from their native lands, was that girls did not count for much. When very young they were married off to middle-aged men, with whom they did not stay for long.

FLOOD OF LAVA COOLS SLOWLY

Only Occasional Puffs of Smoke From Mauna Loa.

KILAUEA RUMBLES.

HILO, T.H., April 22 (Canadian Press).—Mauna Los, fire mountain, drowsed yesterday, worn by eleven days of activity. Occasionally a tremor shook its great bulk and patches of smoke puffed from rifts in its sides, but the lava river which flowed 30 miles to the sea, was cooling, unreplenished.

Kilauea, 12 miles from Mauna Loa, challenged the anxiety of islanders, who keenly watched for signs of activity expected to follow earthquakes which shook it Tuesday.

Largest volcano in the world, its lake of fire 1,000 feet below the nine mile rim constantly boils, building up a cone until the strain becomes too great. Then avalanches fall into the huge cauldron, and rock and liquid fire is hurled forth.

Kilauea has erupted many times, the last in May and July of 1924. On its slope is the Hawaiian volcano observatory, where Professor Thomas A. Jaggar keeps watch on the monster.

THE WEATHER.

Highest temperature yesterday, 63 degrees. This is the highest figure reached since October 16, and is a welcome change from the long-continued and drawn-out winter. A farmer in the vicinity of Warkworth claims that this is the latest spring for 41 years, or since 1885. Put a few warm days may work wonders, even yet. Yesterday excavations were being made for a water service on Murray street, near the Lakefield C. N. R. branch, and on being questioned the son of Sunny Italy said there was no frost at all. And all the evidence showed he was speaking the truth. A brisk shower locally, and a heavy one farther west, will once more prove that "April showers bring forth May flowers."—W. P.

Woman Uses Revolver To Stress Her Objections To Her Father Marrying For the Second Time

MONTREAL, April 22 (Canadian Press).—To emphasize her objection to her father taking another wife, Mrs. Rosa Bergeron, 28, today visited her father's home and shot point blank at her new step-mother, Mrs. Alexia Saumur, the bullet just grazing the woman's head and leaving powder marks on her forehead. Mr. Saumur grabbed his daughter and held her till the police arrived. She had a second loaded revolver in her pocket. "I dont' like it," Mrs. Bergeron declared to the honeymooners just beore she opened fire. The pair were married yesterday. Mrs. Begeron was arraigned later on a charge of attempted murder.

LIBERALS FROM SASKATCHEWAN AND QUEBEC APPROVE TARIFF CUT ON MOTORS IN BUDGET SPEECHES

House of Commons Settles Down To Long Debate—Slim Attendance.

MIDWEEK SESSION.

Conservative Says Government Passed Over Its Own Tariff Board.

OTTAWA, April 22 (Canadian Press).—The Budget debate settled down yesterday with House and galleries sparsely attended and the prospect of many speeches to come.

Hon. Charles Marcil, Liberal, of Bonaventure, defended the Budget quoting editorial articles in its approval. C. H. Dickie, Conservative of Nanaimo, pressed the view that the tariff reductions on automobiles should have been referred to the tariff advisory board. Mr. Dickie complained that the Government had placed the poultrymen of British Columbia in an unfair position. They had not, he asserted, been given an equal chance with American producers.

George Spence, Liberal of Maple Creek, urged that the proper policy for Canada was a policy of wider markets.

Year's Achievements

Mr. Marcil stated that the year's financial statement was noted for its announcement of a reduction in taxation and increase in trade and an improvement in the Canadian National Railways.

Another feature of the Budget which would be popular, said Mr. Marcil, was the return to penny postage. Canada was a pioneer in the experiment of penny postage, back in the days when Sir William Mulock was postmaster general. The experiment had proved very profitable then, and Mr. Marcil thought it very fitting that Canada should go back to the two-cent stamp.

In spite of all the smuggling which was said to be going on, Mr. Marcil drew attention to the fact that there has been a considerable increase in the net sum collected on customs duties. There would be a certain amount of smuggling in any case, he thought, and the returns of the customs department showed a very satisfactory increase.

Approves Tariff Cut

Mr. Marcil supported the reduction in the tariff on motor cars. The nearer Canadian prices were to those in the United States, the greater would be the prosperity of the automobile industry in this country. This was due to the fact, he stated, that reduction in the price of cars would increase the number sold.

He read editorials from newspapers in the Maritime Provinces, Quebec, Ontario and Western Canada favorably commenting on the Budget. Canada, stated Mr. Marcil, was on the high road to prosperity.

C. H. Dickie expressed the view that the question of the tariff on motor cars should have been referred to the new tariff advistory board. The Government's course was being governed by the Progressive group. The Speech from the Throne had stated that the tariff board would be constituted for the consideration of tariff matters; yet the Government had in its Budget taken a step in the opposite direction.

Need Adequate Tariff.

Canada should oppose United States competition with an adequate protective tariff. "I do not say build a tariff wall brick for brick with that of the United States," said Mr. Dickie. "But I say that we should build a tariff wall adequate to stop their goods from coming into Can-

Masons Were Suppressed Suspected Of Conspiracy

BASLE, Switzerland, April 22 (Canadian Press).—In an interview with an Associated Press correspondent, Premier Mussolini of Italy declared Free Masonry was suppressed in Rome and other parts of Italy because the Order was suspected of exercising secret influence in political affairs to the detriment of the national service.

TWO CLAIMS IN SUPREME COURT

Hotel Owner Claims Damages For Misrepresentation —Suit For Wood.

HEARING ON MONDAY.

A sitting of the Supreme Court of Ontario will take place in this city on Monday, April 26th, at the Court House, before the Hon. Mr. Justice Kelly. Two cases have been entered. One is that of Joanis Kikis of Youngston, Ohio, against Nieta Doughty, who operated and carried on the plaintiff's summer hotel which is situated in one of the northern townships of the county. The plaintiff claims damages for misrepresentation. W. F. Huycke is appearing for the plaintiff and B. E. Wallace of Toronto for the defendant. The second case is that of William A. Murphy against Hall Brothers of Toronto, in which the plaintiff is claiming a sum of money which he says is due him following shipments of lumber to the Hall Brothers of Toronto last summer. N. A. McColl of Campbellford is solicitor for the plaintiff and the firm of MacBeth and MacBeth of Toronto for the defendants.

ADMITS AMERICA'S SUPREMACY

American supremacy economically has been claimed on the basis of the following fact indicative of the percentage of American products or resources compared with world production: Coal production 43.5; petroleum 61.9; copper 52.7; pig iron 60.2; steel ignots 59.8; wheat 21.3; cotton 52; lumber 52.6; automobiles 82.7; telephone and telegraph 57.8; railroads 33.9; rubber consumption 70.9. These figures are compiled and admitted by the Federation of British Industries.

Finance Minister Has No Comment On Press Report

OTTAWA, Apr. 22 (Canadian Press). — "I see by the newspapers there is some talk of changes in the tariff," remarked Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William) as the House was about to adjourn at six o'clock last night.

"I am no more responsible for newspaper reports than I was before the 29th of October," retorted Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance.

OPEN SESAME LETTER ELUSIVE; SAID TO HAVE ASSISTED SILKS IN PASSING CUSTOMS BARRIER

Search Conducted By R. L. Calder Ends in Failure To-day.

CURIOUS STORY.

Young Lady Says Note To Customs Officer Saved Inspection.

OTTAWA, April 22 (Canadian Press).—An elusive letter, said to have been the open sesame for Miss Denise Larde and her trunks of Parisian silks, as far as the Canadian customs was concerned, evaded the committee which is investigating the customs administration this morning.

The search for this letter was conducted by R. L. Calder, K.C., counsel for the committee. He placed Customs Officer Bolger, who was in charge of examination on the Empress of France when Miss Larde arrived in Canada, on the witness stand, and pressed him to give the committee some information about the letter. Witness denied ever receiving such a document.

Mr. Calder then read an affidavit from Miss Denise Larde declaring that after the vessel had left Father Point on its way to Quebec, a letter addressed to Officer Bolger was handed to her. This letter, according to her declaration, she had given to Bolger, who did not have her trunks opened. He had given instructions to his assistant, and the trunks were passed without examination. Still Bolger insisted that he had received no letter.

No Decision Given In Case Of Nipissing Rouyn Line

LONDON, April 22 (Canadian Press)—Judgment was reserved by the Judicial committee of the Privy Council today in the appeal in the case of the Attorney General of Queebc vs. the Nipissing Central Railway Company. The appeal was taken by the Province of Quebec against the decision of the Canadian Supreme Court that the railway company in question had the right to occupy crown lands in Quebec for the purpose of constructing a branch of the line into the Rouyn gold fields.

CUP PRESENTED BY HARRY RUSH

For Competition Among Agents of Confederation Life Co.

DONOR LAUDED.

One of the main features of the educational conference of the Central Ontario Division of the Confederation Life Association which commenced this morning at the Empress Hotel was the presentation of the "Harry Rush 80th Birthday Cup," which was donated by him for competition among the different agents of the division. Mr. Rush, in presenting the cup for competition, said that it was his desire to leave something tangible behind him and at the same time foster the splendid spirit which existed among the Confed ration men.

William Boulton, Peterborough, Divisional Manager of the Confederation Life, in accepting the cup, paid tribute to the donor who, he said, was the pioneer of Confederation Life Insurance in Peterborough.

William Wallace of the head office staff, Toronto, said that he had been sent to Peterborough with a special message for Mr. Rush, who during the forty years he had been with the company, had given fine and faithful service. Mr. Rush, he said, has carved out a name for himself in the City of Peterborough and elsewhere, that he has great reason to be proud of, and has set an example of service and efficiency that should prove a great inspiration to the members present. The speaker at this point gave a sketch of the life of Mr. Rush from the time he came to Canada in 1859 until the present.

The president and the general manager of the company sent expressions of regret at not being able to attend, and also lauded the qualities of Mr. Rush.

Interesting speeches on insurance topics were made by the following: William Boulton, Peterborough; W. D. Kemp, Trenton; J. H. Birkenshaw, Toronto; T. H. Gillespie, Peterborough; William Wallace, Toronto; W. H. Stevens, Toronto; Miss Giles, Peterborough; M. C. Burgess, Belleville; F. C. Bonnycastle, Campbellford; H. G. Davidson, Belleville. Some of these addresses will be printed in full in later issues.

200 SILK GARMENTS IN WOMAN'S TRUNKS PASSED BY OFFICIALS

Seized at Her Hotel After Evading Customs Duty at Port.

CUSTOMS ENQUIRY.

OTTAWA, April 22 (Canadian Press).—The story of how Miss Denise Larde, of Paris, France, brought approximately 200 silk garments through the customs at Quebec city hotel, was told to the customs investigating committee yesterday by a number of witnesses. The committee some time ago summoned Miss Larde to appear as a witness, but yesterday a communication was read from the Royal Canadian Mounted Police stating that she was now in France.

Sergeant Zaneth, of the Canadian Mounted Police told of having received information that Miss Larde was coming to Quebec on the Empress of France, with silks which she would attempt to smuggle in as personal baggage. He told of having gone to Miss Lard's hotel in Quebec, where he examined the trunks which had been passed by the customs and found them to contain silken garments of various kinds. He had seized the goods and held them while Miss Larde faced a charge of smuggling. Eventually, the goods were released after a fine of $50.00 and the duty had been paid.

Personal Effects.

Witnesses were examined to ascertain how the trunks had succeeded in passing the customs examination. The testimony of Customs Officer Bolger of Quebec, who was in charge of the examination held on the Empress of France when Miss Larde brought through her trunks, was to the effect that she had informed him that they continued nothing but her own personal effects. He had instructed one of his assistants, R. Molsan, also of Quebec, to verify this and report to him, he asserted.

Customs Officer Moisan differed sharply with this witness in regard to the instructions. He claimed that Bolger had instructed him to pass the trunks. Affidavits from two other customs officers, Joseph G. Shanahan and J. A. Livingstone, that they had heard Bolger state that he had instructions to pass the trunks, were read to the committee. Mr. Bolger, however, adhered to his statement, that he had said no such thing and that he had given no instructions to pass the trunks without examination.

Evasion a Mistake

Andre Taschereau, advocate, of Quebec City, informed the committee that, acting as Miss Larde's counsel, he had visited Ottawa and seen Mr. Bureau and Mr. Farrow, the minister and deputy minister of customs. He had told Mr. Bureau that his client claimed she had evaded the duty by mistake, thinking that it should be paid at her hotel instead of when the trunks were passed. He told the minister that Miss Larde had been provided with 25,000 francs to pay the duty by the firm who employed her. Eventually the goods were released.

R. L. Calder, K.C., counsel for the committee, stated that he proposed to call Officers Livingstone and Shanahan in connection with this case. In the meantime, Officer Bolger was requested to remain where he could be called when required.

No Prosecution

Sergeant Zaneth of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, was the first witness before the customs committee this afternoon. He was question by R. L. Calder, K.C., counsel for the committee, in regard to an investigation which he had made at Blue River, Quebec. The man Sergeant Zaneth was investigating was Alfred Levecque, said to be a bootlegger. He had visited the store of Levecque, where he found a large number of silk cushion covers, most of them bearing an American flag on their face. There were also a number of Pyrex dishes marked "Made in America." He had placed these articles under seizure, but on his return to Blue River at a later date was informed by Levecque that the goods had been removed to another store owned by Levecque across the line. He had, thereupon, recommended that Levecque be prosecuted on a charge of stealing seized goods, but the case was not proceeded with.

Sergeant Zaneth told other instances in which he had discovered smuggling and reported it, with no result in the way of prosecution.

Drug Traffic

He was then questioned with regard to the drug traffic in Quebec City. He told of how a man called Martineau had gone into a store run by L. E. Martel, Quebec, with marked money and obtained from him a package marked cocaine by using a permit signed by a man called Maurois. Martel was arrested, Sergeant Zaneth said, but escaped with a fine of $200.

Escaped Police

B. J. Kearney, customs enforcement officer of Montreal, gave evidence as to the seizure of drugs brought in by Max Farber. While the drugs were seized, Mr. Farber evaded the authorities and has not since been seen.

"You had evidence," said Mr. Calder, "that this man was a notorious smuggler of drugs" "He was so reputed," replied the witness.

"And you also had evidence of the theft of drugs from the customs warehouse?" "No."

"Then you were the only man in Montreal who did not know. It was notorious."

Sergeant Churchman, of the Mounted Police, next testified. He had been deputed to investigate the case and to apprehend Farber. He had called on J. E. Bisaillon, chief preventive officer of Montreal, and had found him very hostile toward interference by the mounted police. "Mr. Bisaillon refused to help you?" asked Mr. Stevens. "Yes. I saw him in his office and he called his secretary as a witness. I also had a witness. I wouldn't meet Bisaillon unless I had a witness."

"You are wise," said Mr. Bell.

Witness testified that he had listened over a detectophone to a conversation between Farber and certain of his associates as to the methods by which drugs were being smuggled in.

"The police devised a scheme for the trapping of Farber?" "Yes."

"What encouragement did you get?" "There was a great deal of hesitation in allowing us to assist, first by Mr. Bisaillon and then by Mr. Clerk."

LIBERALS FROM SASKATCHEWAN

ada in competition with our own products."

Unless the industries of every section of Canada were given a chance to prosper, Mr. Dickie said that there never would be a really united Canada. "I believe that we will have a united country before we get through but sometimes one almost loses heart," he said.

Western Liberal

G. George Spence (Liberal, Maple Creek) followed. He was proceeding to read extracs from various publications respecting the Canadian and American tariff on cattle entering the one country from the other, when he was interrupted by H. A. Mullins (Conservative, Marquette).

"May I ask the Hon. Gentleman if he would permit American cattle to come into Canada free, providing the Americans take the duty off and allow Canadian cattle to go into the United States?" he asked.

"Yes, I would," replied Mr. Spence. He did not think, however, that many cattle would enter from the United States.

Col. Mullins retorted that the foot and mouth disease among cattle was "rampant" in the United States. They should not be permitted to come into Canada.

Wider Markets

"Our policy must be a policy for wider markets, for world markets," said Mr. Spence. The home market was of minor importance, he thought. In cattle alone, Canada produced enough to meet the demands of 50,000,000 people.

The duty on farm implements should be lowered, he said. He approved of the Government's action towards completion of the Hudson Bay Railway. Anything that would assist agriculture would react to the benefit of Canada as a whole.

Hon. Edmund Bristol (Conservative, Toronto East Centre) moved the adjournment of the debate.

Easy to Gain With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast with Vegetable Iron Quick Way to Build Up Weight

This new combination of yeast vitamines with vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous body poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with vitamines that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamine food but not until we perfected "ironized yeast"—which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized, becomes twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast Tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore, they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. If you are under weight, do not enjoy good health, lacking in energy and force, "ironized yeast" tablets will pick you right up, and if they fail, you get your money back.

Sold by druggists, at $1.00 for a large 60-tablet package. Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., Toronto, Can.

POOR TRAPPING RAISES PRICES

More Paid For Muskrat Skins This Year—Extension Welcome.

CATCHING MORE.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 22—A. L. Reindeau, who deals in muskrat skins which he purchases from the local trappers, says that on account of the late season the catch up to the close of the season was little more than 20 per cent of what it was in past years when weather conditions were normal. The scarcity has resulted in an increase in this year's prices.

The extension of the open season for 10 days, or until the end of April, was welcome news to the trappers, many of whom found themselves behind on the season's operations, and they are now making the most of the privilege of carrying on for a few days longer. One veteran at the business made a catch of 14 rats on Wednesday and it is likely that, after all, the supply will not be far below that of last year.

GOOD PRICES.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 22.—The 100 acre farm near Codrington, belonging to the late William Wilson, who died recently, has been sold to William Goodfellow of Brighton Township for $8,600. This transaction should dispose of any delusion to the effect that the value of farm land is depreciating in this vicinity. The stock and implements of this estate were disposed of by auction on Tuesday by J. R. Battisby of Campbellford and a total of $4,000 was realized. Grade Holstein cows brought from $68 to $110 and horses sold for from $125 to $175. The demand for dairy stock and for good work horses is brisk at every sale held in this community.

MINERS TOIL TO RELEASE BODIES

Four Companions Crushed By Landslide in California Tunnel.

TWO WERE FREED.

QUINCY, Calif., April 22 (Canadian Press) — A gang of sweating silent hard pan miners stripped to the waist and their faces and bodies streaked with mud, were on their hands and knees today in a blind tunnel of the Feather River Power Company in the hills 30 miles west of here trying to lift the crushing hand of a mountain from the bodies of four of their fellows.

Six were trapped in a landslip in the tunnel Saturday night as they were about to go off shift. One, Thomas McDermott, was taken out, bruised and semi-conscious, late Tuesday, and the body of Jack Coyne, veteran Montana and California miner, was reached before dawn yesterday.

The rescue workers had cleared away the last foot of intervening slide late Wednesday and were taking out the mud and rock by hand in the search for the bodies of the missing men.

BOWLING CLUB ANNUAL MEETING

Campbellford Bowlers Make Ready For Coming Season.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 22. — At the annual meeting of the Campbellford Lawn Bowling Club held in the Public Library on Tuesday night, the following officers were elected:

Hon. Presidents: T. S. Tait and C. S. Gillespie.

President: J. P. Archer.

Vice-President: W. S. Wiggings.

Sec.-Treas: G. L. Nicol.

Executive Committee: Dr. Haig, Dr. Watson, A. L. Reindeau, L. B. Glover.

Ladies' Executive: Mrs. W. S. Wiggins, Mrs. L. B. Glover, Mrs. Dr. Haig, Mrs. Dr. Watson, Mrs. J. A. Stewart.

Retiring president L. B. Glover thanked the members of the club for their loyal support during his term of office and asked them to extend the same support to the new president. He also complimented the ladies on being the first to hold an open tournament in this district. "Campbellford leads—other towns follow," said the past president.

A. J. Meyers moved a vote of thanks to the retiring president. He spoke in glowing terms of the success of the club during Mr. Glover's tenure of office. They had turned a deficit of nearly $300 into a credit balance of about $30. Now they were on top of the hill and he could see no reason why they should not stay there. The membership fees will be the same as last year.

The single rinks tournament was left to the executive to decide, and will likely be July 9th or July 16th, and the Doubles tournament, August 2nd.

While the matter of a caretaker was left to the executive, it was only a matter of form; Mr. Joseph Wilkinson, who has held the position since the greens were built, and who is complimented by every visiting bowler for the splendid condition in which the greens are kept, will again be in charge.

There was a large and enthusiastic gathering including a number of ladies, and all are looking forward to a very successful season.

WEATHER RAISES FARMERS' HOPES

Expect To Be Able To Work High Land Next Week.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 22.—The seasonable weather of Wednesday, the first real spring day of the year, brought new hope to the farmers of the district, some of whom were beginning to fear that they would not be able to begin seeding operations for at least a month. If this fine weather continues the high land will be ready for cultivation by Monday at the latest. The more optimistic of the farmers comfort themselves with the thought that last year's spring seeding was one of he latest on record and that, despite this fact, the crop of 1925 was one of the best ever harvested in Canada. Any season in which seeding is started in April cannot be regarded as abnormally late.

The winter wheat this spring emerged from its blanket of snow as green and healthy looking as it was when it was first covered last fall. The cold weather of the past week has turned the wheat a brown color, but the farmers say that the roots have not been injured and that a a few days of wram weather will result in a marked change for the better.

The soil was soaked with moisture when the frost came last fall, and it has been thoroughly pulverized so that it will be easily prepared for the seed as soon as it is sufficiently dry.

There is an abundance of hay and other feed in this district so that the farmers are not worrying over the necessity of keeping their cattle in the barn, waiting for the grass to start.

ROMANS HONOR ANNIVERSARY OF CITY'S FOUNDING

Great Celebrations Held on 2680th Birthday of City.

INITIATE WORK.

In Mussolini's Scheme To Restore Former Greatness of Rome.

ROME, April 22. — (Canadian Press).—Romans yesterday abandoned their usual activity and assembled in the gaily beflagged streets and squares to celebrate the city's 2,680th anniversary. The anniversary programme embraced the initiation of the work for carrying out Mussolini's dream of restoring Rome to its splendor under the Emperor Augustus and the launching of a nation-wide programme for utilization by means of intense silent work, of the resources, not only of the peninsula, but of the African colonies where old Rome once also held sway.

Scores of thousand of tri-colors and black flags floated in a gentle breeze, and innumerable multi-colored proclamations covered the walls this morning as the festival was ushered in with tolling of the historic bell in the ancient capitol. Shortly after the streets were filled with marching men, most of them in working clothes.

The first ceremonies were the laying of wreaths on the monuments to the war dead, notably the tomb of the unknown soldier, where a pyre of incense was burning.

Rome of yesterday and today joined symbolically when two new tramway lines, destined to extend the limits of the city, were inaugurated simultaneously with the official beginning of the work of restoring the ancient Marcellus theatre. The ancient building is now surrounded by squalid dwellings which are to be removed.

Later King Victor Emmanuel laid the corner stone of a new monument to the war dead.

FRENCH DEBT PAYMENTS FIXED

Briand Announces That Ambassador To U.S.A. Has Made Agreement.

PARIS, April 22 (Canadian Press).—Premier Briand has informed the foreign affairs committee of the Senate that an agreement has been reached in principle between Andrew W. The Menace of Forest Fires

OUR forest industries rank second only to agriculture in importance. They employ thousands of men—they add $500,000,000 annually to the nation's wealth—they help all Canada to prosper.

The assets of these vital industries are threatened by devastating forest fires, caused in nine cases out of ten by "fire outlaws"—careless campers, tourists, hunters and smokers. In 1925 the damage done totalled over $6,600,000. In the past five years the toll was $76,000,000.

Saving our forests is the duty of every Canadian. With the entire world facing a shortage of timber, Canada's forests are a source of untold wealth, employment and prosperity. By preventing forest fires you add to the national revenue, and receive indirect benefits through improved business conditions.

The Dominion and Provincial Governments and business organizations which suffer by this wastage are co-operating in a preventive and educational campaign to save Canada's woodland heritage. To make this program effective they ask your support in reducing the fire hazard. You can help by extinguishing all camp fires—by throwing away no lighted match or cigarette—and by exercising unremitting care when burning slash or debris in or near the forest.

HOW IT WORKS OUT.

The London Advertiser remarks that the man who is looking glum today is the fellow who bought a car before the tariff changes were made, and adds by way of consolation that he shouldn't mind because he'll be buying another one later on.

There is no real comfort in that fact, however, as he'll find when he goes to "trade in" his old car as part price of the new one, a transaction that will reveal to him that his old car has depreciated by just about the difference between the former and present price of his new one.

In fact, the chief benefit of the tariff change will be felt only by the individual who purchases a new car or a reduced one outright.

In most of the motor sales the turning in of an old car is involved, and in all such transactions the reduced tariff is not likely to make a great deal of difference, inasmuch as the dealer in all probability will deduct from the price he is to pay for the used machine an amount equal to the reduction in the price of the new car.

A GREAT RECORD.

Canadians generally, regardless of their political leanings, will find much over which to rejoice in the annual report of the Canadian National Railways.

The fact that last year showed an operating profit of $32,264,414, as compared with $17,244,251 the previous year, is most gratifying, particularly as the early months of 1925 revealed a decrease in gross earnings.

Sir Henry Thornton's good management is reflected in two ways, inasmuch as he was able to reach a decrease of 2.5 per cent. in expenses, while at the same time the gross earnings increased by 3.9 per cent.

The net operating earnings, the statement shows, reached 80 per cent. of the interest payable to the people of Canada, while in 1924 the percentage was only 45.

The year's record has been a splendid one, and the outlook for the present year is considered as most encouraging.

MANY OF THEM HERE.

The action of Leopald Stokowski, famous conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, in pointedly rebuking the patrons who have been in the habit of coming late to concerts and leaving early, by starting his programme with only a couple of musicians on the stage and finishing it by having the orchestra members stroll off one by one, has caused considerable comment.

There is a feeling among local victims of this same pernicious habit that Stokowski was entirely justified in making this sensational protest.

Peterboro has its share of people who come late to public entertainments, and more than its share of people who leave early.

Any hint that the programme is drawing to a close is the signal for the beginning of the exodus, with the result that the finale is often spoiled.

Late arrivals and early departures are not only a handicap to the entertainers on the stage, but they are the cause of annoyance to the rest of the audience.

In justice to the artists and in fairness to the people who want to enjoy the whole programme, offenders should take a hint from the demonstration staged by Leopald Stokowski and resolve to do better in this respect in the future.

COAL IN ONTARIO?

That there is coal—of a sort—in Northern Ontario is certain. At least it is stuff that burns and gives out heat and looks like coal. Experts say it is not true coal, but an imitation coal which they call authraxalite or some such name. They do not deny that there may be lignite, a very low grade of coal, in the north country; but most geologists agree in the opinion that coal in paying quantities will never be mined up there.

But not so with the Canadian Mining Journal, which has an opinion of its own on the subject. "We have in Ontario," says that periodical, "an area of cretacious rocks known to be coal-bearing. What we know of that group of rocks could be told in a very small volume. The cretacious rocks are not well exposed, and the prospecting required is not of the type that can be done by lonely prospectors. Possibly before a million is spent we would begin to get returns, but we should be prepared to spend some such sum in exploitation of the formation which can reasonably be expected to supply Ontario with fuel."

This suggestion has fired the imagination of the Sault Star, which urges the wisdom of having the Ontario Government appropriate a million dollars for the purpose of hunting for coal in the northern wilderness. Were coal found in commercial quantities, says the Star, Ontario could cut its coal bill in two.

Hardly just now. Hardly until the period of annual deficits in Provincial finances has passed and the period of surpluses has begun. A million dollars is too big a sum for a Government financially embarrassed to spend on a prospecting gamble. But when the Province can afford it the expenditure might be worth while. There were geological highbrows who declared that none of the precious metals would ever be found in Northern Ontario. Perhaps they were not more mistaken than are those who are equally confident that the geological formation of Northern Ontario makes it certain that there is no coal up there. —Belleville Intelligencer.

YESTERDAY'S PROTEST.

The protest of the Canadian Council of Agriculture against the cut in the income tax announced by Hon. J. A. Robb is more easily understood than justified.

A delegation waited upon the Premier and members of the Cabinet yesterday and declared that the income tax should be maintained at its former level.

When it is realized that in 1924 out of nearly 60 millions paid in income tax by the people of Canada the farmers of this whole country paid only $430,000, or less than 1 per cent., the anxiety of the Canadian Council of Agriculture that the levy should be maintained as it was is not by any means mysterious.

The protest comes with decided ill-grace from a body representing those who paid less than one cent on the dollar into the Treasury in the form of income tax, and shows not the least concern for the wage-earners who have had to pay this levy since it was inaugurated, and who welcome the increased exemptions as a very much appreciated step toward a lower cost of living.

The whole tone of the representations made by the Council's delegation yesterday was selfish; the attitude of the spokesmen seemed to be that so long as they were assured of farm credits, outlets for their crops and a chance to buy what they needed at the lowest possible price, they cared nothing for the Eastern wage-earner.

They were quite willing that he should go on paying income tax, and apparently oblivious of the fact that if the whole principle of tariff protection were wiped out, as they requested, that he might not be in a position to pay.

It is evident that we are still a long way from reaching a common ground of understanding and co-operation in this country, and there will have to be more of a give-and-take spirit shown than the Council of Agriculture displayed yesterday before we begin to arrive at that happy condition of affairs.

There are many problems affecting the Western farmers, and a solution of them will mean much to this country, but the Council of Agriculture should understand that there are a few millions of us down in the East who want a chance to earn a decent living here and to remain Canadians, and a programme such as they suggest would make it impossible for us to do either or both of those things.

MAKE IT CLEAR.

Tariff rates on parts of automobiles and motor trucks are reduced, it is now made clear in a bulletin issued to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. In the budget statement it appeared that only on finished cars was this reduction to be made. The supposed failure to reduce all duties alike was stressed in the comments of automobile men after the budget came down. It was said that the difference would enforce importation of the finished product from the United States. Now it is explained that the reduction affects tops, wheels, chassis and complete bodies, although dispatches today indicate confusion at Ottawa regarding even this.

Why was not this made clear in the budget? Answer that and you will be touching a question that is as perennial and persistent as Scotch thistles. Every year it is the same. The budget is presented, and the press and people spend the next week or so trying to find out what it's all about.

Another major point not made clear until afterward in this year's budget was whether the tariff was to apply on United States or "duty paid" prices of cars.

On the income tax, Mr. Robb was equally silent, and therefore equally obscure, as to exemptions for children. On these and other points, a diligent press has finally conveyed the needed information to the people. But the original news stories of the budget statement remain most strongly in the memory. The average man's deduction is likely to be that the press has either garbled the stuff or given only part of it. Neither is the case. The press, on budget day, works on a small margin of time, a mighty small margin. It is only by an almost superhuman effort that newspapers can snap up the heavy details, absorb them, and present them to the public in readable shape for that day's edition. There is no time to inquire into the omissions. Correspondents and editors must concentrate with all their wits on the actual statements. To explore what is left out would mean long delay in the departmental offices.

Newspapers today are indispensable to Governments. They give a vital service, they co-operate on every possible occasion, and they are the official medium between Parliament and people. Their status is so recognized. Budget resolutions become law with their appearance in the press. The budget is purely business and the dissemination of such announcements really belongs in the advertising class. It is with a view of service to the people that newspapers handle them as news stories. But that does not obviate the Government's obligation. It would cost millions of dollars a year to pay advertising rates on such material.

Here co-operation from Governments will be welcomed. Meanwhile, a patient press goes on hoping for a Utopian budget day—that is, a budget that will actually tell what its own provisions mean.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

This is one day when Oshawa will not have to complain of lack of representation at Ottawa.

The new Tariff Board should have been invited to hear what the Oshawa deputation had to say today. The members might have obtained some useful pointers.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 21 (Canadian Press). — Extreme dullness again marked the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market today. The trade in cash grain was also reported slow on account of the limited demand from both local and export buyers, but the undertone was firm, with no change in prices to note.

The feature of the potato trade was the weaker feeling that developed in the market, and prices were reduced 25c per bag, which was attributed to the increased supplies coming forward and the lull in the demand from the United States for the time being.

The receipts of cheese were 892 boxes, as against 293 for the same day last week, and 1,175 for the corresponding day a year ago. There were no new developments in the market, except that cable advices received from England reported the market weak and quoted New Zealand cheese at 93s per cwt. Trade on spot was dull with the ruling price in the country being 16c per lb f.o.b. shipping points.

BOVRIL'S SPLENDID YEAR

29th Annual Meeting Held in London

Bovril was originated in Canada; the present head of the Company is himself Canadian born, and the Bovril Factory in Montreal is an important asset to this country's industrial community supplying the United States as well as the home market. Therefore, Canadians are always interested in the continued progress of Bovril, Limited.

In addressing the 29th Annual Meeting held recently in London, Sir George Lawson Johnston presented to the shareholders interesting facts of the Company's progress during 1925. Reference was made to the strong financial position of the company as represented by cash assets and to the fact that after adding $100,000 to the company's pension fund for employees—the net profits of the year amounted to about two million dollars. Reference was also made to the poster competition which the Company carried on in England last year whereby the sum of $370,000 was raised and donated to British hospitals.

It was also shown that the sales for the year at home and abroad had made substantial gains, in fact being greater than in any previous year in the Company's history. It was pointed out that Bovril Limited is a Company of small shareholders, the average holding being about $1100. Half of the shareholders are women—showing that those who know most of the value of Bovril as a food—are also interested financially.

The chairman made reference to the progress of the Australian estates of the Company comprising nearly 12,000 square miles, and to the Company's tremendous holdings of pasture lands and cattle in South America and to the development of the Company's business in Canada and the United States and expressed well-founded optimism as regards the future operations in supplying mankind the world over with a food product of the highest quality and reputation.

BRITISH TO PRESS FOR PAYMENT OF OLD DEBTS REPUDIATED BY SOUTHERN STATES

Hearing Sought Before Supreme Court of United States By Claimants in Britain — No Diplomatic Action Taken.

LONDON, April 22 (Canadian Press).—British subjects having old claims against several of the southern United States for monies said to have been lent prior to the end of the United States Civil War have started a new drive in an attempt to have their claims recognized.

The question cropped up in the House of Commons yesterday when John Wardlaw Milne, Conservative, for Worcester, asked Sir Austen Chamberlain whether diplomatic action had been taken on behalf of British bond-holders regarding the monies lent.

The foreign secretary replied in the negative, saying that the matter had already been given careful consideration.

There is a resolution on the agenda of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce for its annual meeting today and Friday, requesting that the United States Government assist the British claimants in obtaining a hearing before the Supreme Court of the United States.

LINDSAY NEEDS BUS SERVICE TO NORTH COUNTRY

Cancellation of C.N.R. Trains Keeping Business Away From the Town.

TRADE PROBLEM.

Shoppers Unable To Return Home on Same Day of Arrival.

LINDSAY, April 22. — Owing to the cancellation of certain trains on the C.N.R., as well as changes in the schedule, the merchants of this town claim that business is seriously affected, owing to the fact that the people of this district are unable to make Lindsay their business centre with any degree of satisfaction without being put to the expense of remaining here over night. This is especially true of the residents of the north country.

The situation has become so serious that it was discussed at the Board of Trade meeting Tuesday night. Mr. William Flavelle introduced the question and threw out a suggestion that in the interests of trade the Board should consider the question of a bus service to outlying points in order that the merchants might not suffer a serious loss.

The installation of such a service was vital to the future of the town, and it was argued that the Board should give every encouragement to any movement in that direction by private interests.

Members of the Board wished to know whether the merchants would be prepared to assist the project, and to what extent. It was learned today that certain interests were planning to operate a bus between Coboconk and Lindsay during the summer and fall.

KING GEORGE MADE HIMSELF POT OF TEA AND WATCHED SUNRISE AFTER SECOND SON'S BABY BORN

No More Sleep For His Majesty Called at Early Hour.

JUST GRANDFATHER.

The Fourth Lady of Britain "Yawns" at Home Minister.

LONDON, April 22 (Canadian Press).—The little princess, daughter of the House of York, whose early morning arrival disturbed even the slumbers of the King and Queen at Windsor, was sleeping splendidly last night, as was the Duchess, and at a late hour the attending physicians announced that no further bulletins would be issued until to-day. An afternoon bulletin proclaimed the satisfactory progress of mother and daughter.

The tiny princess, who is the fourth lady in the land, ranking after the Queen, Princess Mary and the Duchess of York, is said to resemble her mother. She is slightly below the average weight, but the physicians report that she is strong and healthy and has a quantity of hair.

Visited By Queens.

The two Queens, Mary and Maud of Norway, and the King had a glimpse of the little one yesterday afternoon, the grandparents both having been up since 4 o'clock in the morning in anticipation of a visit to the home of the Earl and Countess of Strathmoor in Bruton Street, which the Yorks are occupying.

When a telephone message arrived at Windsor conveying the news of the birth of the princess, the servants on night duty, without hesitation, called the King and Queen and informed them of the event, although no orders to this effect had been issued. The King's manifest interest and joy was so keen that he could not sleep again. He made himself a pot of tea, as he does sometimes when he wants to be alone, and watched the sun coming up over the tops of the Windsor Hills. He then went horseback riding.

Many Congratulations.

The Queen kept the telephone lines busy all morning, inquiring after the baby, third in the line of succession to the Throne. Congratulations arrived all day, from Ireland and Scotland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India and Africa, as well as from British ships at sea, with all best wishes for the mother and the third grandchild of the King and Queen.

The possibility of Britain having another Queen Elizabeth and another Elizabethan era makes a strong appeal to popular imagination. The Duke and Duchess have not decided what the little princess' names are going to be, but the British public, which is using its prerogative about gossiping about royalties, seems to be settling on Elizabeth. The name Elizabeth sprang into immediate popular favor because it is the mother's name.

The King and Queen arrived at Bruton Street by motor car from Windsor at 3.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon for a peep at their first granddaughter.

"It is a bonnie baby," said Sir William Joynson-Hicks, member of the Cabinet, who, in accordance with ancient tradition, was present in the house at birth.

"She actually yawned at me," the Home Minister said.

DEATH PENALTY FOR DESERTION STILL IN FORCE

Labor Clause of Army and Air Force Bill Rejected.

USE IN STRIKES.

Troops Protect Strikers and the Rest of the Community.

LONDON, April 22 (Canadian Press Cable).—The House of Commons in committee yesterday rejected by 269 votes to 123 the new official Labor clause of the Army and Air Force Annual Bill, providing for the abolition of the death penalty in cases of cowardice and desertion while on active service. E. Thurtle, Labor, Shoreditch, supporting the clause, said that the Labor party favored the death penalty in cases of treachery and desertion to the enemy only.

The House also rejected, by a vote of 283 to 103, the Labor clause which would prohibit the use of the militia in connection with trade disputes except when a proclamation declaring that a state of emergency existed was issued.

Protect Community.

Speaking for the Government, Capt. H. D. King, Financial Under-Secretary of State for War, declared that there was no question of intimidation of taking of sides when troops were used in industrial disputes and that troops were available as much to protect strikers as to protect the rest of the community. The Government didn't intend to use soldiers to break strikes.

J. H. Thomas, who was Secretary for the Colonies in the MacDonald Cabinet, stated that it was recognized that in a state of emergency the Government was responsible. However, when troops entered a district the people wrongly concluded that they had come for ulterior purposes. He recalled that during the war he went to Newport in connection with a strike and found that the troops had appealed to their commanding officer to remove their guns and ammunition and let them mingle with the striking girls. The commanding officer concurred and thereafter an entirely different atmosphere was created.

FREE HAND FOR BRITISH MEMBER

CECIL'S STATEMENT.

LONDON, April 22 (Canadian Press).—Viscount Cecil announced in the House of Lords yesterday that the British representative on the reorganization commitee of the League of Nations will be "quite free from any obligation or any declaration that may have been made in the past with reference to the membership of council on behalf of his country."

Referring to the instructions given before the last league meeting in Geneva, he said there was "a reference to Spain and other Powers in the instructions," and added:

"Since those instructions were given a new situation has arisen. There have been all the events that have taken place at Geneva, and the appointment of this commission."

Consequently, he said, the British representative on the committee would be free as indicated.

FRENCH BUDGET SESSION TO-DAY

Chamber of Deputies Hopes To Adjourn Saturday Until June.

COMMUNISTS BUSY.

PARIS, April 22 (Canadian Press)—The Chamber of Deputies today takes up the budget for 1926 in an endeavor to pass it, so the chamber can adjourn Saturday until June.

The brief session will be devoted purely to business and probably will be devoid of politics, although the Communists are seeking to bring about discussion of Fascist activities in France. Andre Berthon, who sought to question the Government on the matter, is now occupied in defending the Communists accused of killing four members of an association known as the "Young Patriots," so the Fascisti question is expected to be put over until the June session.

FOUR DROWNED IN TEXAS FLOOD

Extensive Property Damage Caused By Heavy Rain Storms.

DALLAS, Texas, April 22 (Canadian Press). — Heavy rainstorms last night had brought an acute flood situation in south-west and central Texas, which claimed four lives and extensive property damage.

A cloudburst descended at Phelps late yesterday after abnormally heavy rainfall in the south-western portion of the state since Tuesday. Twelve inches of water poured down within a brief period.

Low lands were flooded, and the Huntsville waterworks dam burst, adding to the peril.

The International Great Northern Railroad tracks were covered, stranding Governor Miriam A. Ferguson's party en route to Houston from a visit to the State Penitentiary at Huntsville, which is eight miles west of Phelps.

The fourth death from the storm was recorded yesterday when Little McMahon of Dale was drowned in a creek in which his motor car had stalled. Two children were drowned in a flooded gulch near Sweetwater Tuesday and a man was killed by lightning.

MINERS AND OWNERS WILL CONFER AGAIN

LONDON, April 21.—(United Press).—Representatives of the British coal miners and mine operators, will meet on Thursday in an effort to adjust their differences and thus prevent a disastrous strike on May 1st.

Premier Baldwin's influence is seen in the decision of the disputants to get together again after they had parted last week, apparently unable even to approach agreement. The operators want to lengthen hours of labor and decrease wages, while the miners are standing pat on the present wages and hours. The operators say they are already operating at a loss. It is probable that the government temporarily could continue in some form the subsidy which has been in effect since last August and which has permitted the mine to continue to operate on the old scales.

STRAWBERRY PATCH IN A BARREL

Strawberries enough to supply a family for a season can be grown in a barrel. This has been demonstrated by a California, Delavan D. Johnson, says Popular Science Monthly. A barrel in which holes have been bored is filled with dirt. In each of the holes a vine is set, and under each vine is built a screen platform to support it as it grows and bears fruit. As many as sixty vines can be grown in one barrel.

SPOONFUL OF SOOT A DAY

In the big manufacturing cities of the United States where the factories use coal, or electric power derived from coal, it is said the inhabitants consume not less than a teaspoonful of soot each working day. In the soot collected in tests to prove this, was also considerable quantity of ordinary dust and dirt.

COURT CLEARED AT COMMUNISTS' TRIAL IN PARIS

Impartiality of Judges Questioned—Lawyer Sharply Reprimanded.

STORMY SCENE.

Two Communists Charged With Deaths of Two French Fascists.

PARIS, April 22 (Canadian Press).—The trial of the two Communists, Paul Clerc and Joseph Bernardon, accused of participation in the killing of four members of the "young patriots" organization and the wounding of fifty-six others in April, 1925, became a stormy scene yesterday. One of the lawyers for the defence was sharply reprimanded for questioning the impartiality of the presiding judges. Eventually it became necessary to clear the court.

Deputy Pierre Taitinger, leader of the young patriots, testified that Clerc at the time of his arrest remarked: "I was jostled, so I fired into the bunch."

The testimony of medical experts was to the effect that all the persons killed or wounded in the affair were shot from behind. The charge made by the young patriots all along has been that the Communists were organized in military fashion and received and executed a command to fire on them.

M. Taitinger caused a sensation in the court-room when, turning to the defence lawyer, Deputy Andre Berthon, he exclaimed: "My young friends wanted to use lynch law, and decided to get you, Doriot and Cachin, as a reprisal. I told them that they ought not in a country like ours to take justice into their own hands. They listened to reason; that is why you are defending these men to-day."

"That is a politician's risk," M. Berthon replied. "Believe me, that prospect would never hinder me from doing my duty."

M. Taitinger affirmed that he is not a Fascist.

U.F.O. MEMBERS VIEW PICTURES

Movies of Fox Farm Shown at Regular Meeting of Club.

GOOD ADDRESS.

The monthly meeting of the Peterborough branch of the U. F. O. Club was held on Tuesday evening in the Farmers' Hall, Simcoe Street. The president, E. A. Scott, occupied the chair. The features of the programme were a series of films depicting the raising of silver black foxes on the ranch of the Vannatter Fox Farm at Georgetown, Ontario, and a paper on "Dairying" by C. E. Moore, vice-president of the club.

The films presented in convincing fashion the rapid growth of one of Canada's youngest industries. Among the many interesting facts conveyed, was that the pelt of the silver black fox, by reason of its peculiar interlacing of white and black hairs, is absolute proof against faking.

Mr. Moore's address also dealt with the rise of a leading industry. Dairying, he said, now formed the largest industry in Ontario, totalling annually almost one hundred million dollars. Twenty-five years ago dairying was but a side-line with the farmers of Ontario. At that time the cows in the province were numbered at 976,124. In 1924 this number had increased to 1,203,527.

Twenty-Five Years Ago.

Twenty-five years ago, butter-making was nearly all done on the farm. To-day this work was done in large plants specially equipped for the purpose. Twenty-five years ago, the grade Shorthorn was all the vogue. To-day it was replaced by herds of specialized dairy cows. During this interval the production per cow had gone up. The average yield of milk per cow a quarter of a century ago was 23,000 lbs. per annum. The present average figure was 4,000 lbs. per year. But this figure was still too low, as could be seen by comparison with the results obtained by older dairying countries, the average annual yield per cow in the Netherlands for instance being 7,585 lbs.

The first cheese factory in Ontario was established in 1864. The first creamery in the Dominion was opened in Quebec in 1873. In 1882 Canada got its first cream separator, imported from Denmark, and 1895 saw the first storage plant in the Dominion commence operations.

"Dairying" continued Mr. Moore, "has become a highly competitive business. It demands the best. We must feed and breed the best. It costs no more to feed a good cow than a scrub. We must, after all else is done, look after our markets." He cited the example of farmers' co-operative bodies in Wisconsin, which, along with federated boards, now handle annually a million pounds of process cheese, own twelve warehouses, and declare a 5 per cent. patronage dividend.

"The dairy cow is the most economical producer of human food. For every 100 lbs. of digestible food she consumes, she produces 18 lbs. of edible dry matter. Compare this with the results from other animals. The pig returns 15½ lbs. of human food per 100 lbs. of digestible food consumed, the calf 8 lbs., the steer 2.8 lbs., and the sheep 2.6 lbs. A cow giving 8,000 lbs. of milk annually produces in her milk 56 per cent. more protein, 30 per cent. more fat and sugar, and 19 per cent. more mineral matter than is contained in the body of a 2 or 3-year-old steer weighing 1,200 lbs. And the steer's production is once for all, while the cow continues the process for many years. There is no question of the great value of the dairy cow, to the farmer and to humanity."

Votes of thanks to the speakers concluded the proceedings.

PREMIER KING'S FOREST APPEAL

Message Broadcast From Ottawa Urges Preservation of the Forests.

DUTY OF PUBLIC.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 22.—(Canadian Press.)—In a message broadcast by wireless through Station CNRO, Premier W. L. Mackenzie King last night added his plea for fire preventative measures to be taken by the public to preserve Canada's heritage, the forests. The message was given in connection with the government "save-the-forest-week." The Premier said in part:

"I know of few problems in Canada to-day whose solution is of greater moment to the future prosperity of our country than this one of curtailing our present awful forest fire losses. I am glad, therefore, to add my voice to that of the great body of public spirited citizens in this country who are associating themselves with this forest fire prevention campaign in connection with save-the-forest week. I ask of each of my hearers to-night that they consider carefully the situation with which we are confronted in Canada in this matter of conservation of our forest resources, and I ask particularly, that each one keep in mind next summer when travelling in or near the forest, the paramount necessity of care with fire in the woods, not only personal care, but the installation of similar preventive measures in the minds of friends and associations. Only in this way can we in Canada curtail the ravages of the forest fire demon, and preserve Canadian forests for the use and benefit of the people of Canada, not only in the present, but for the generations to come."

Devastation By Fire.

Premier King referred to Canada's history as effecting its forests and the gradual progress of its lumbering industry. He referred to the devastations caused by forest fires and added:

"The net result has been for Canada, that in the history of our country, we have not only burned five good trees for every one we have used, but in large parts of our forest we have replaced our valuable species with worthless birch and popular. The result is that to-day, of the original great and wide-spreading forests that our forefathers knew, we have just a little over one-quarter left.

"We must not, however, be too down-hearted, because we still possess a wonderful forest heritage and if we care for it; cut it as it should be cut; and, above all, if we stop forest fires, we will still be able to build a bigger, a better and a more beautiful Canada for the future."

In conclusion, Premier King said: "We must reduce our forest fire losses through the medium of prevention rather than of control. Ninety per cent. of our forest fires are the direct result of human carelessness or heedlessness. Eliminate to any appreciable degree this factor, and our problem is largely solved.

Willie's got it too

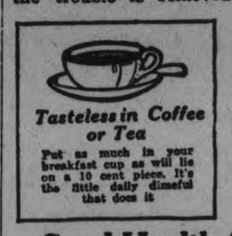
Here's Willie following in Grandpa's footsteps; and which is the jollier of these two youngsters you'd find it difficult to say.

But even the cast-iron optimism and the unclouded jollity of boyhood are not proof against ill-health. The most vigorous of youngsters are sometimes out of sorts.

When your kiddies lose interest in their lessons and their play, mope about and are naughty for no apparent reason, you may be sure that all is not well with their health. They may have eaten something to disagree with them, or perhaps they are constipated. They don't know themselves what's wrong, only that they're miserable, and until the trouble is removed they cannot be their usual cheery selves.

There is one safe way to remedy all these minor ills of childhood: to stir a tiny dose of Kruschen Salts into their breakfast cup of milk, tea, cocoa or bowl of porridge. Just about half a dimeful — and they'll never know they're taking it, because it is quite tasteless when given like this. The tiny pinch gently but surely frees the little bodies of all the waste matter that has been troubling them, and the youngsters wake up next morning with "that Kruschen feeling," full of their usual energy and high spirits.

Don't wait for your kiddies to be ill. Buy a 75c bottle for the nursery to-day and be prepared.



Kruschen Salts

Good Health for Half a Cent a Day

A 75c bottle of Kruschen Salts contains 160 doses—nearly enough for six months—which means bounding health for less than half a cent a day. The dose prescribed for daily use for adults is "as much as will lie on a 10 cent piece," taken in your breakfast cup of coffee or tea. Every druggist sells Kruschen. Get a 75c bottle to-day.

200 DELEGATES FROM DISTRICT AT FIRST CONVENTION OF W.M.S. OF UNITED CHURCH AT LINDSAY

Four Counties Represented at Sessions Which Opened on Wednesday.

SPLENDID REPORTS.

Missionary Address Delivered By Rev. Mr. MacKinnon of Peterboro.

LINDSAY, April 22.—A convention of great importance in the history of the United Church in this district is being held in the First United Church here. It is the first annual meeting of the Lindsay Presbyterial W.M.S., and the deliberations of the two hundred delegates promises to make history for the United Church. The new Presbyterial includes the Counties of Victoria, Haliburton, Peterboro and a portion of Ontario, and the attendance of delegates is quite representative.

When the union of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational bodies was consummated in June, 1925, the Women's Missionary Societies did not participate in the union as an organization. The different societies ceased to function on March 31st, the union proper being consummated at headquarters in Toronto on April 1st, so that the first annual meeting of the Presbyterial promises to be an epoch-making event.

Interim Committee

The interim committee of the Presbyterial is as follows: Miss M. Dickson, Mrs. M. C. MacKinnon, Mrs. A. J. Langford, Mrs. John of Peterboro; Mrs. H. Irvine, of Lindsay; Mrs. R. G. Wednesday's session opened with an inaugural service. Mrs. (Rev.) MacKinnon of Peterboro presided. The service was intensively impressive and devotional. Invocational prayer was offered by Rev. E. T. Holling, pastor of Cambridge Street United Church. The representatives of the different societies marched in two lines down the centre aisle to the pulpit, singing the processional hymn, "The Church's One Foundation." The invocation hymn was "Jesus Shall Reign Where'r the Sun." The inspirational missionary address was delivered by Rev. Mr. MacKinnon, of Knox Church, Peterboro.

The roll call of Auxiliaries, Circles, Y.W.A., Mission Bands and C.G.I.T. Groups showed a splendid representation. Encouraging reports of members as well as amounts of money sent to treasurer the past year were also presented.

Discuss Constitution.

The delegates devoted some time to the consideration of the suggested constitution and bylaws of the W.M.S. of the United Church.

During the afternoon greetings were extended to the delegates were presented by Rev. F. H. McIntosh, assistant pastor of First United Church, Cambridge street.

These were graciously responded to by Mrs. John of Peterboro. The closing prayer was offered by Mrs. Coon, of Peterboro.

JUDGE HUYCKE QUASHES RECENT CONVICTION OF SOLLY SEIGEL

Inspector Stewart Directed To Pay Costs on Appeal —First Case of Kind.

SAYS "NO CASE."

His Honor Finds Contents of Tin Not Proven and Charge Fails.

His Honour Judge Huycke delivered judgment in the appeal of Solomon Seigel, who was convicted by Police Magistrate O.A. Langley on March 6, of keeping liquor for sale at his residence in Peterborough. Immediately the conviction was made by the Magistrate, Mr. O'Brien, Mr. Seigel's counsel, filed and served notice of appeal. The appeal came on for hearing on Friday last, Mr. O'Brien, appearing for Mr. Seigel, and Mrs. Strickland for Inspector Stewart, and his Honour reserved judgment until to-day, when judgment was delivered by him acquitting Mr. Seigel. Both Seigel and his wife had been charged in the Police Court, Mrs. Seigel being acquitted. At the trial Mr. O'Brien, acted for both Mr. and Mrs. Seigel.

It will be noted that this is one of the first cases in which Inspector Stewart upon an appeal has been directed to pay the costs. The following is a copy of His Honour Judge Huycke's judgment:—

"This is an appeal from a conviction made by O. A. Langley, Esquire, P.M., of the appellant Seigel. The Charge is keeping for sale and selling liquor contrary to Section 40 of the Ontario Temperance Act.

"I find the case is not made out. In order to convict the charge must be properly proved, and every part of it proved; if anything is lacking the whole thing must fail; a chain is just as strong as its weakest link but no stronger. I find there is no evidence that the contents of the tin referred to is liquor, within the meaning of the Act. No evidence is given as to this whatever, with the exception that the witness Madill was asked—'Did you buy any liquor there from the lady that you saw at 172 Westcott Street'—the answer being—'Yes.' 'What did you pay for it?' A. '$9.00'—'What was it Mr. Madill?' A. 'Alcohol.'

"The first of these questions is leading, but that is not the objection. From reading the whole evidence of Madill it is quite evident that he did not know what was in the tin in question, although he may have supposed. He says he got the tin, gave it at once to Sproule, that Sproule put it in a bag, took it to Lindsay; was arrested at the Lindsay Station on his arrival, the tin taken from him, and that Madill did not see it, or have it in his possession, nor did he examine it or its contents during all this time. He may have supposed it was alcohol, but suppositions are not evidence, and there is no other evidence at all of the nature of the contents of the tin. On this appeal I would on this point alone hold the evidence insufficient to justify a conviction. The legal proceedings at Lindsay can have nothing to do with this case and should not be referred to. If this had been the ordinary appeal from a conviction I could and should have allowed further evidence in to prove contents of the tin now sealed and an exhibit filed in the court. But under this Act I am confined to the record and additions or amendments to it are forbidden. But apart from this objection the appellant must succeed on other grounds.

"It is clearly shown that Mr. and Mrs. Seigel, the defendants, were not in their home the 6th of March, 1926, the day of the alleged offence. They were in Toronto, or rather on the way there between five-thirty and six p.m., when the offence is said to have been committed. Madill says, at Seigel's house, 5.30 to 6 p.m., he bought this tin, whatever its contents may be, from a woman somewhat older than Mrs. Seigel and slightly stooped, and that she was the only person he saw there. He does not know her and his description is very vague. He says he was at Seigel's house only once and there for a very few minutes, and this as above stated was on the afternoon of March 6th, 1926. He says that neither Mr. or Mrs. Siegel were there, but that this unknown woman sold him the article in question. He says he was in the house only on this one occasion, and for a very short time. In reply to this it is shown that while Mr. and Mrs. Seigel were away they left their children in charge of a friend, one Dennis, who was in charge of the house and the children. He, Dennis, says that on this same afternoon at 5.30 to 6 o'clock, Madill came to the house and asked for liquor, but that he did not get it. He further says that there was no woman in the house at the time at all, nor had been from early in the afternoon, when Mrs. Seigel had left for Toronto with her husband. This then is a straight contradiction between Madill on the one hand and Dennis on the other; but it happens that Mr. Samuel Pearson, Bailiff of the Division Court at Peterborough, had occasion in the performance of his official duties to go to see Seigal that afternoon in pursuance of a prior arrangement between them. He was in the house, just inside the door, talking to Dennis when the knock came, and Madill was admitted. Pearson was asked to go, and did go, into a side room during Madill's stay, which was very brief. Pearson corroborates Dennis absolutely. He says he recognizes Madill as the person he saw there, that he heard Madill ask Dennis for something, but being spoken in a low tone he did not hear the exact thing asked for; but he heard Dennis refuse, and swears positively that Madill left the house without getting anything and was refused what he asked for by Dennis, although he, Pearson, did not hear exactly what it was. Shortly after Madill left Pearson also went away, and Madill swears he did not come back to the house.

"Apart altogether from the benefit of the doubt which would clearly arise in favour of Seigel, under these circumstances, I would go further and say that the charge has been disproved by the evidence of Mr. Pearson, a public official of experience, a reputable man, and a credible witness.

"The question of onus is strongly urged upon me, but an onus is only an onus or a presumption and is more or less easily rebutted. I think it is clearly shown, chiefly by the evidence of Pearson, that the whole charge must fall to the ground.

"The conviction is therefore quashed and the appeal allowed with costs.

"Dated at Peterborough this 21st day of April, 1926.—

EDWARD HUYCKE,
Judge."

NORWOOD I.O.D.E. PRESENTS MOVIE

The Little Duchess Given in Town Hall—Norwood News.

NORWOOD, April 22.—The Little Duchess was the title of a picture presented in the Town Hall on Tuesday night under the auspices of the 40th Northumberland Chapter I.O.D.E. Sixteen reels were shown during the evening, ten of which were of the picture mentioned, Charlie Chaplin in "The Fireman," greatly interested the boys and girls. The proceeds amounted to $44.04.

A meeting of the young ladies of the United church was held on Thursday evening in the ladies parlor for the purpose of organizing a Young Woman's Auxiliary or a Mission Circle. After the devotional exercises led by Mrs. John Weir, the meeting was taken over by Mrs. R. G. Lawlor, president of the W.M.S. After explaining the difference between these two societies, Mrs. Lawlor asked for a discussion. It was unanimously decided to form a Y.W.A. and the following officers were appointed President, Mrs. John Weir: 1st vice-President, Miss Laura Buck: 2nd vice-President, Miss Stella Burgess: Recording Secretary, Miss Mary Stewart: Corresponding Secretary, Miss Florence Burgess: Treasurer, Miss Evelyn Scott: Secretary of Associate Helpers, Miss Olive Webster.

Miss Larua Buck was appointed as a delegate to the Presbyterial to be held in Lindsay on Wednesday and Thursday, April 22nd and 23rd, with Miss Lillian Howson as alternative. It was decided to hold the meeting on the first Thursday evening of each month at eight o'clock, and to ask Mrs. (Rev.) McKinnon, of Knox Church, Peterborough, to address the Society at their May meeting.

It was also decided to order carnations to be sold by the Society as usual for Mother's Day. The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

SUCCESSFUL SALE HELD AT LAKEFIELD

Ladies' Auxiliary of G.W.V.A. Sold Home Cooking—Lakefield News.

LAKEFIELD, April 22.—The Ladies' Auxiliary to the G.W.V.A. held a very successful afternoon tea an sale of home cooking on Saturday afternoon in the schoolroom of St. John's church. The Easter decorations of the A.Y.P.A. still remained and gave a festive air to the quaint old room. The tea tables were attractive and each one was centred with a vase of scarlet poppies —the flowers of remembrance. Some of the basketry of the blind soldiers was on sale and the supply was considerably reduced during the afternoon. Mrs. Leonard, president of the Auxiliary and Mrs. Marling, the secretary-treasurer, received the guests in a hospitable manner. Mrs. J. Lemay and Mrs. J. R. Robinson were in charge of the home cooking table and in the tea room were Mrs. Chappell, Mrs. A. Wannamaker, Mrs. Junkin, Mrs. Chads and Mrs. W. Simpson and Miss Gertrude Summers. Mrs. Stuart also assisted. The proceeds were very gratifying and amply repaid the ladies for the effort made.

Municipal Council of Lakefield.

The regular meeting of the village council was held in the council chamber on Monday evening. There were present: Reeve Strickland in the chair and Councillors Clark, Kennedy, Robinson and Tedford. Communications were received from the Department of Highways, village solicitors, re suit of village and Sheehy, et al., Ontario Tourist Bureau re advertising; Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, regarding service of the fire brigade; from the Minister of Agriculture approving the milk by-law, the notice of the shareholder's meeting of the Lakefield Rink Co.

An application was received from J. H. Sherin for a permit to move the butcher shop and also one from U. A. Moore for a permit to build an addition to his store house.

Moved by councillors Robinson and Tedford—that the council shall view the sites of the proposed buildings and pass on their respective applications as soon as possible thereafter. Carried.

The clerk was instructed to write to Mr. Mackenzie regarding the promise made by the council regarding fires outside the village.

On motion of the Reeve and Councillor Clark, Dr. Kennedy was appointed proxy for the Corporation for the Lakefield Rink meeting.

The Finance Committee presented a report recommending the payment of the following accounts:—

Peterborough Examiner, $10.13; R. J. Webster, $5.95; Bell Telephone Co., $4.92; Bell Telephone Co., $3.07; Fire Brigade, $95.30; W. W. Leonard, $6.48; W. W. Leonard, $4.45; Robert Duff, $10.55; M. P. Kennedy, $1.50; R. J. Webster, $34.50; J. P. Hamblin, $1.25; W. Chappell, $2.00; Lakefield News, $24.05; Lakefield News, $31.00; D.R.O's poll clerk, $18.00; Russell Ball, $4.00.

At the eleventh of the series of euchres held under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. last Thursday evening, Miss Grace Watson and Mr. Walter Chappell won the prizes and Miss Hazel Crawford and Mr. Fred Wannamaker the consolation prizes. The twelfth and last of the series will be held on Thursday evening next.

Rev. Ira W. Pierce will give an address on the work of the Armenian Relief Association of Canada in the Memorial Hall on Sunday afternoon, April 25th at 4 o'clock. Mr. Pierce is a very fine speaker as those who heard him in February, 1925, will recall. On this occasion Mr. Pierce expects to bring two of the boys who are being given their chance at the Georgetown farm purchased to provide a home and educational opportunities for ninety Armenian lads, who are orphans and refugees, because they refused to renounce the Christian faith and embrace Mohammedanism.

The Fire Brigade expects to give a card party in the Memorial Hall on Tuesday, May 11th. The last party was so successful that they are responding to the popular demand for a "repeat."

The C.N.R. has opened an up-town ticket office in Lakefield and in future tickets may be purchased from E. H. Northey as well as at the station. This will be very convenient and will materially increase the railway service.

A number of local people attended the performance of "No, No, Nanette," in Peterborough last week.

She Couldn't Sleep Heart Was So Bad

Mrs. J. D. McClintock, Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes:—"About a year ago I was greatly troubled with my heart.

I could not sleep at night, and was so nervous I imagined that I could see everything in the room moving, and would have to turn on the lights before I could get to sleep.

After having read of your

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

I took several boxes of them, and can now get a full night's sleep without any trouble, and feel fine in every way."

H. & N. Pills have been on the market for the past 32 years; all dealers sell them; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin
—Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute.
—Milton.

Pete.—You should be an excellent judge of human nature, especially in business matters, and able to size up a person's honesty almost at first sight. You are well fitted to deal with the public in any capacity and are what is known as a good "mixer," as you appear able to get along well with most people. You are naturally apt and handy at most things and readily pick up information from many sources. With this faculty for getting along well, you have a strong nature, able to cope with the circumstances of daily life, and your manifest destiny is to achieve happiness and success for yourself by bringing joy to the lives of those about you. So you should develop these gifts of yours as much as possible, to make life pleasant and easy for others, and also for yourself. You are inclined at times to be rather sensitive, and this causes you a little worry. You like to have your own way and to retain your dignity upon all occasions. Rheumatic and gouty tendencies may cause you some trouble. You should take great care of your lower legs and ankles, and dress them warmly. Never make an engagement which you do not intend to keep. April and August are your good months, Saturday your good day. You were born on Sunday. Your colors are red and brown. The day you ask about, a Thursday, is one for original thought and expression, and for taking advantage of every opportunity.

X. X. X.—You are of a conservative type, rather unfavorable to new enterprises and inclined to much self-satisfaction and poise. You will find success through one channel only, that of hard work. You will do well by keeping everlastingly plugging away at your job, whatever it may happen to be. You have a natural type of bearing and are not afraid of anybody. You are an animated and convincing talker and excel at repartee. You are naturally kind and loving, but are capable of great rages, being emotional, and are very much inclined to be sulky when offended. You are liberal and like to entertain your friends in royal style. You readily adapt yourself to people and circumstances, but, although you have great respect for law and authority, your imperious nature does not take kindly to commands from anyone. You enter very sincerely into the thoughts and feelings of others, and make many friends, to whom you are devoted, and who impose upon you at times. You should mostly follow your own strong intuitions and not rely on the advice of others. You will make an excellent wife, but you should not be hasty in marrying, as your emotions may lead you astray in this regard. Try to control your temper and your tendency to criticize. Marry a man born in September, October or December. You were born on Saturday. The date you ask about is past. Your colors are steel and purple.

V. M. G.—You have a nice type of temperament, strong and highly developed, with a nature of integrity and virtue. You will best succeed in life by associating yourself carefully with others in any enterprise. You will not do well alone, nor by attempting to interfere with the affairs of others or control their destinies. You are active, independent and persevering, and are a natural reasoner and thinker. You should be quite successful in any commercial enterprise. You have a kind, disposition. When jolly, you are very jolly, but when miserable, you are absolutely wretched, sometimes without any real reason. You are kind-hearted, loyal and secretive, making a fine friend. You are bound to rise, because difficulties do not dishearten you. You would make a good teacher, or succeed in any line of commercial work. You must always control your temper and strive for self poise. Avoid scolders and fault-finders, who depress and worry you. Follow out your own original ideas. Never copy anyone else. Self-reliance and preparedness will bring you achievement. Marry a man born in May, July, February or November. March and November are your good months, Tuesdays and Saturdays your lucky days. Yes, you were born on Sunday. Your colors are red and brown.

Curious—You have a good deal of attractiveness in your makeup, both mental and physical, but you lack "stick-to-itiveness" and have not much depth of character. You will suffer always from fickleness and changefulness in your disposition and other people with whom you are associated will suffer by this also. It is not a desirable quality in anyone. You have an aptitude for business, commerce and finance, and should try and get a good business education. You are fitted for a position of trust in any retail business, although you would also make a good wife and mother, provided you take plenty of time before marrying, in making your choice, as, being led by your emotions, you are apt to make a blunder in this way. You have a habit of taking a dislike to people without a real cause, and also criticize others more than you should. Be careful of sudden, violent pains in your head and also guard your stomach. You are too fond of rich, highly-seasoned food. Try to conquer your fiery temper and do not waste time and energy in talking. Follow out your own intuitions and you will not go far wrong. Marry a man born in September, October or December. January and October are your good months, Sunday your lucky day. You were born on Saturday. Your color is pink.

Quill.—You have a strong, active, creative nature, rather self-centred, however, and not always regardful of the rights of others. You like to be in the lead at all times. But you have not always been absolutely sure of yourself. Often, you have been wavering in the choice of a path and this has not made for your own happiness or that of others around you. You are kind-hearted, generous and magnetic, very emotional and with strong intuitions, which are nearly always correct. You have a marked individuality and noble ideals. You are very strong in your love for your own people, and will listen to no evil regarding them. You are apt to take dislikes without real cause, and are very hard to change in this respect. You are fond of home and home comforts and make an ideal homemaker. You will have a long life, but you must be careful of violent pains in your head and also very careful of what you eat, as your stomach is not of the best. You are original and should always cultivate individuality in dress, manner, home surroundings and manner of speech. You should ever strive for self possession and for control of rather a fiery temper. January and October are your good months, Sunday your fortunate day. You were born on Tuesday. Your colors are the many variations of flame.

Peggy.—You have an excellent type of character, strong and well developed, with love for others highly marked. Service is a part of your destiny. You would make a good nurse, but you could fill any commercial position to advantage also. You are active, independent and persevering, kind and with a good dirposition. You are very optimistic and not easily discouraged. You are careful in business and money affairs, and a promise with you is absolutely sacred. You would make a good teacher, as you are very patient with details. You like to have your own way, but have great adaptability, and are willing to harmonize with your surroundings and with other people. Always try to control your temper and strive for self poise. Avoid scolders and fault-finders, who depress you. Always follow out your own original ideas, and never copy those of others. Be self-reliant and gain a good preparation for your work by securing a good business education. Dress warmly in the winter and study the art of personal attractiveness and especially the arrangement of your hair. Marry while yet young, a man born in May, July, February or November. March and November are your good months, Tuesdays and Saturdays your good days. Yes, you were born on Sunday. Your colors are red and brown. The day you ask about, a Wednesday, is one for avoiding arguments and for undertaking nothing new. Do not marry on this day.

Sparky.—You have a strong, active, self-centred nature, rather inclined to domineer and to disregard the rights of others. You should be quite successful in any affairs involving business, commerce or finance. You have a free, outspoken manner of speech that often causes you to get into difficulty and misunderstanding with friends. You are jovial, vivacious and combative in disposition, disliking secrecy or deception. Although well meaning, you are quick tempered and impulsive, usually uttering the first thing that comes into your mind, not always a wise policy. You have a keen sense of humour and of sarcasm, and at times are anything but jovial. You will never make a mistake in business if you follow out your own ideas, and do not rely on the advice of others. You are very observant of signs, symbols and dreams. You like to be busy most of the time and have the admirable faculty of being able to keep a secret. You are quick to observe, to plan and to do, and make small allowance for others who are not as quick as yourself in these respects. Often going to extremes, you are liable to overtax your physical strength, which is, however, quite good. February and June are your good months, Thursday your good day. You were born on Friday. Your color is flame. The day you ask about, a Friday, is one for quiet meditation and for refusal to worry.

A. K. D.—You will have to take care that your vacillating, fickle tendency, innate and almost ineradicable, does not work harm to your life. Strive for steadfastness, in all things. You will gain happiness by service to others. You would make a good nurse. You are generous, ambitious and full of hope and enthusiasm. Defeat does not easily discourage you. You are apt to be very careless in money matters, to be extravagant, and to be very lax in returning borrowed money or articles. You dislike cruelty of any kind and have a dislike also for hard and dirty work. You are easily confused, detest crowds and are frightened at crossing busy thoroughfares. You are fond of praise and easily wounded by trifles. You are apt to suffer from nervous prostration and stomach trouble, caused by worry, anger and impatience. If you can conquer your quick temper and tendency to worry, you can have a fine, successful life. Marry a man born in February, May, August or March. Be careful in selection of friends, as your mind is very susceptible to influence from others. Yes, you were born on Tuesday. Your color is pink. The day you ask about is past.

W. S. E.—You have a great deal of physical energy, with creative power and tenacity, but you dissipate much of your strength in nervousness and in worrying over things that never happen. The service inspired by love should be your watchword in life. You have an active, energetic personality, and once you enter a fight, nothing can induce you to back out. You impress your personality upon all with whom you come in contact. You have a piercing intellect and are an instructive conversationalist, being much interested in literature and art. You have strong and original ideas of right and wrong and are independent, being influenced little by the opinions of others. You are apparently stubborn, as you can be ruled by your reasoning faculties only. Anything inharmonious in your surroundings is apt to give you a sick headache and you should always guard your head. You are liable to brain fever. You were born on Saturday. Your colors are blue and silver.

J. H.—You have quite a nice type of nature, but you have not much strength of character and are apt to be very fickle-minded and vacillating. You are never quite sure just what you want to do. Circumstances of your life demand that you try at all times to bring happiness and joy to the lives of those around you. In striving constantly to do this, you will gain joy and success for yourself. You have a frank, energetic nature, blessed with great faith in your fellow men, and are always in a hurry. You do not like to await results and are often quite cruel with those who have not the same way of doing things as yourself. You are easily annoyed, and have a quick temper, but never harbor resentment. You are honest and conscientious almost to a fault and a promise with you is absolutely saered. You have such a regard for truth that you cannot understand others who have not this same high regard for a promise. You rush matters to such an extent that you are apt to have nervous trouble. You are often apt to be misunderstood, as you think and act so quickly that it is difficult for others to keep pace with you. Do not give way to worry, to envy, hate or anger, and strive at all times for repose and for the faculty of not seeing little things that annoy. You were born on Monday. Your color is pink.

Kit.—You have a good deal of personal attraction for others, but you suffer from an inborn tendency toward fickleness and vacillation. There is not much depth to your character, although you have a decided tendency toward success in financial matters, or anything connected with commerce and finance. You are of the type known as the strongest and the weakest in the world, capable of much, if only you can control your faults. You have good taste and good judgment and are a fine character reader, possessing a certain amount of influence over the ideas of others. You are fond of happiness and pleasure and have also the power of making happy those around you. You have a high sense of honor and a degree of sensitiveness that causes you much unnecessary worry at times. You make a true and honorable enemy, but an unforgiving friend. You are a natural home builder and make an excellent wife. You have good taste in dress, usually adopting dark shades, which you use to great advantage. You were born on Friday. The day you ask about, a Thursday, is one for co-operation with your fellows, and for lending a helping hand. Carefully obey the instructions of superiors on that day. Your color is pink.

Dimples:—You have a good deal of self-satisfaction and poise in your makeup, and incline toward the study of religious and occult matters. You will find success in life only thought constant application to your job, whatever it may be. You will have to work hard. See that your work brings you satisfactory returns for the energy you put into it. You usually finish tasks in a careful, competent manner and are persistent in the performance of your duties. You have an attractive way of talking, except when imitating others, when you are prone to exaggeration. When angry you leave nothing unsaid, and can be very cutting in your speech. You like the beautiful and luxurious things of life and are also quite fond of excitement. When fatigued, you need rest and quiet. You have a good deal of foresight, and can be usually guided by your intuitive faculties. In buying and selling commodities, you are quite successful. You are well adapted to the study of languages and music. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are steel and brick shades. The day you enquire about, a Tuesday, is one for confidently assuming any responsibility offered you. Play no games of chance on this day.

Rex.—You have a rather conservative sort of nature, inclined to like the study of occult and religious matters. New ways of doing things and new enterprises do not appeal to you. In following out your destiny in life, you will need unusual understanding and sympathy with others. Much will be expected of you. You will have a tendency toward change and fickleness in your relations with others, particularly with women, and you will become reckless and extravagant if you follow out your desire to keep up appearances. You will like speculation and would make a good real estate dealer. You should always follow out your own intuitions, and you will rarely be deceived. Strive for habits of order, even in small things, and do not think so much of the praise and blame of those about you, putting more value on your own appreciation of yourself. You will succeed in whatever you undertake if you resolve never to worry and to go to work with a will. Worry, anger and impatience will be your bugbears, unless controlled early in life. Marry a girl born in February, May, August or March. August and December are your good months, Friday your good day. You were born on Tuesday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are shades of steel and brick.

B. A. C.—You have rather an odd personality, but are young enough yet to realize some of your faults and try to control them. You were born with a good deal of personal attraction, but with a vacillating element in your nature which causes you to be fickle and changeable. With charm, you have no great depth of character, and little "stick-to-itiveness." However, elements in your destiny point to service of a fine type. You would make a good nurse. You are a natural reasoner and thinker, and would do well in any vocation or profession requiring the use of the head and mental faculties. You are at your best when directing undertakings, rather than when taking orders from others. You will always hold your lover to exact attention, and become irritated over imaginary slights. You may probably wreck your life through a tendency toward jealousy, impatience and fickleness. They are devastating traits. You can be generous and whole-souled to a fault with those you admire, but very tormenting and tantalizing when you do not care for people. You are keen at reading the thoughts and intentions of others. Another quality is the liking for that affection which eludes you. In fact, you have all the elements in your makeup necessary to make a futile, useless life, unless you strive to conquer indecision of character, practice steadfastness and resolve never to touch stimulants and drugs. You were born on Saturday. Your color is pink. The day you ask about is past.

"THESE WOMEN"

By MALCOLM DUART
COPYRIGHT 1926
The Characters and Situations in this Story are entirely fictional.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Harry Morton, wealthy, attractive to women, middle-aged and unmarried, lives with his adopted daughter, Audrey, in a fine home in Peterborough, but spends much of his time in an apartment that he maintains in Toronto. Gossips of Peterborough have never learned exactly what his business is.

He sends to South America, with the promise of a job, a man whom he calls Smith, and who claims to be the stepfather of Audrey, after Smith reappears at the end of 18 years' absence.

Nona, a beautiful Toronto girl, in love with Morton and madly jealous of him, tries to humiliate him by enticing him into a trap by means of another girl and a man, but Morton laughs at the plotters and leaves. Nona comes to his apartment to plead for forgiveness, and, as he is telling her what he thinks of her proceedings, he discovers Audrey watching them.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VII

"Audrey!" said Morton sharply. "I told you to wait in your room until I sent for you."

"I know—I know—I know." The girl ran down the stairs, repeating the two words over and over.

At Morton's exclamation of "Audrey!" Nona lifted her head and sat staring as the girl came into the room. Nona's arms were thrown back loosely over the arms of the chair and there was agonized amazement in her eyes.

"Who is she—who is she!"—she gasped.

"Miss Morton," answered Morton tersely. Turning to Audrey he continued

"Why did you do what I told you not to do?"

Apparently she did not hear him. Leaning slightly forward, her hands pressing back as if she were thrusting herself away from an invisible wall, she faced Nona. For a breathless instant the two girls stared at one another.

"I didn't know you had a daughter!" cried Nona.

Morton started to speak, hesitated, as he glanced from one girl to the other, and then retreated to a long, heavy table that stood behind him and seated himself on its edge. It was Audrey who answered.

"He has no daughter," she said. "He adopted me. Who are you and what are you doing talking to him about love?"

Nona moved her hands feebly and her head sank back a little. Something like abject terror was in her eyes.

"Do you live here with him?" her voice fluttered, and she spoke the words with difficulty. "Are you—is he—you aren't his daughter, and you live here?"

Audrey, still poised and tense, scarcely moved, and her blue eyes did not waver in their gaze into the other black ones. Her own voice was full and clear.

"I don't know who you are to ask me anything," she said. "All I know is that you have been making him trouble—making trouble for the dearest man that ever lived in the world. You are the woman who writes him notes and calls him on the telephone!" She said this accusingly.

Nona moved her head in assent. "Yes, I am—one of them, anyway. Are you really—really his adopted daughter?"

Audrey stamped her foot. "Of course I am. But tell me who you are, coming into my house!"

"I am only the woman who loves him," said Nona, faltering.

Audrey swung quickly to look at Morton, who still sat on the edge of the table swinging his foot. He was watching them as one might watch the progress of a play.

"He doesn't love you," said Audrey, turning back toward Nona. "I can see it in his face."

Nona lifted her hand defensively, then let it fall. Fatigue and pain and trouble had made her face years older than it was when Morton saw her the night before. Her mouth was drawn and the rouge upon her mouth looked as it might look upon the lips of death.

The younger girl, on the vantage-ground of her own home, held Nona spiritually defeated.

"You love him yourself," said Nona, pitifully.

Audrey stepped backward, till she stood beside Morton. Then she leaned sidewise and put her arm around his neck. "Of course I love him," she cried.

"As a daughter," interjected Morton, dryly.

Audrey threw her free arm into the air as if in triumph. Her voice thrilled as she continued

"Not as a daughter! As a woman! I love him!"

Morton leaped from the table and whirled to face the girl.

"Audrey! Audrey! You don't know what you are saying, child!"

"I do know!" She almost sang it. "You are the only man there is in the world. Maybe this woman loves you, but she'll never love you a thousandth part as much as I do.

"Daddy! Sweetheart! I want to stop being your daughter. I'm not really your daughter and never can be."

She whirled toward Nona. "If he loves me enough I'll marry him today!"

Nona turned her eyes helplessly toward Morton. It was the look that lies in the eyes of the dying.

Morton placed his hands together before him, palms outward, and then swept them apart, as a man opens a pair of heavy curtains.

"Audrey!" The voice was filled with harsh command. "Nona, stand up! I want this nonsense stopped."

Nona moved feebly and lifted herself to her feet. Morton caught her by the arm as she tottered.

"If it is any comfort to you, Nona," he added, his voice not quite so rasping, "I'll tell you that Audrey is not going to marry me today. Audrey"—his face was fast regaining its accustomed composure—"if you were ten years younger I'd know exactly what to do with you. I suppose I can't spank you, but I've a notion to."

The tension had snapped and Audrey gave a short, nervous giggle. As answer to Morton she threw her arms quickly around his neck and printed a kiss on his cheek.

"You'll marry me some day, though," she said.

* * *

Morton called his car and told Audrey to come with him while he took Nona home. Nona sank listlessly back into her chair and watched Audrey with dull eyes as the girl moved briskly around the room.

"You've missed your breakfast Audrey," said Morton, "but it serves you right."

A faint trace of a smile showed on Nona's face. "I haven't had mine either," she told him.

Morton reflected. "I'd ask you to breakfast here," he said, "but I don't think your hostess would be a very genial one. I think Paillard's is open for breakfast—I'll take you both there."

He looked at Audrey to see if there was any sign of protest. But for some reason the girl's spirits were high and she nodded gay ssaent.

"Whither thou goest, I shall go," she quoted. "Thy people shall be my people—"

"Then don't pull their hair when they come to see me," he advised. His tone was light but there was a hint of warning in it.

Nona hesitated over the invitation but obeyed a quick shake of his head and was silent. She fell behind as Audrey took his arm going out the door. He stopped, and, with a deliberate gesture, invited her to take his arm on the other side. She did so with a little wondering look up into his face.

"I want it understood," he said, as they seated themselves in his big car, "that I've lived in the midst of high hysterics for the last two or three days and I want a little peace. Will you ladies kindly be polite to each other and make this a pleasant breakfast?"

Audrey nestled closer to him by way of reassurance. Nona observed the motion and a quick twinge of pain showed in her face. Morton leaned forward and turned his head so he could better observe her face. Openly, so Audrey could see him, he took Nona's hand in his and transferred it to his lap. He possessed himself of Audrey's hand on the other side, and sitting thus, rode all the way to the restaurant. The girls caught his intent and neither of them made any further movement until he helped them from the car.

It was not a jolly breakfast that they ate together. Nona replied wanly to Morton's conversation, keeping her eyes upon her plate for the most of the time. Audrey addressed her once or twice, directly, with calm comments upon the weather and upon such distant topics as sea voyages and Paris. Nona told her briefly that she had been abroad and could speak a little French. Beyond that she left the conversation to Morton and the other girl.

Morton himself ate nothing, as he had breakfasted before Nona's admittance to his apartment. When the girls were done he told Audrey to accompany him to Nona's rooms. Nona herself made a movement of protest but again was quiet at a shake of Morton's head.

She opened the door of her suite to let him in and invited Morton and Audrey to sit down. Audrey promptly seated herself in the arm-chair, but Morton remained standing.

"I merely wanted to see that you got here all right," he said. "You had no sleep last night and you'd better lie down. We'll go now."

As they left Nona offered her hand to Audrey. The girl waited a moment, in indecision, and then gave her own hand, casually.

"Goodby, Nona," Morton said. He touched her lightly on the shoulder. "Quit threshing yourself to pieces," he advised.

She looked at him with troubled, heavy eyes and slowly closed the door.

* * *

"Under ordinary circumstances I would not have permitted you to go to that apartment for any reason whatever," Morton said to Audrey as they drove away.

"Is she a bad woman?" Audrey asked.

Morton shook his head. "No, of course she's not a bad woman. It is only those who hurt others intentionally, because of malice, who are bad. Nona never plotted any evil against anybody in her life. He stopped and laughed. "Except against me," he added.

The girl spoke eagerly. "I knew she was bad," she said.

"Wrong," Morton said. "She did something to me that she ought not to have done, but she came this morning to tell me that she was sorry—that she did it because—well, because she loved me, she said."

Audrey shook her head slowly.

"I don't see how she could have done that—unless she was jealous!"

Morton laughed silently. "I see you have grown up, my dear," he said.

There was no talk between them about her declaration of love, and he left her at his apartment, going on down to his Toronto office.

A clerk came to him, when, a half hour later, he was settling himself at his desk.

"Young man been waiting for you all morning, sir," he said. "Says it is very important."

RAVENOUS MOTHS COST US MILLIONS

How To Save Your Clothes From Destructive Inroads of Wool-Eating Pests.

"Good for another winter," you comment with satisfaction as you pack away your overcoat. But next fall—will that satisfaction be turned to dismay? Hole here, hole there, in the most conspicuous places! Will your winter wardrobe contribute this summer to the menu of the greedy and destructive clothes moth?

The descendants of one female moth, says Popular Science Monthly for May, can destroy 100 pounds of wool a year — equivalent to the wool produced by thirteen sheep. Annual damage done by moths in the United States is estimated at the amazing sum of $200,000,000.

And it is not on wool alone that the moths feed. A fur collar is a nice morsel. Hair and feathers are special favorites. To outwit your enemy, the clothes moth, you must be on the alert constantly. Now, while storing your clothes, you can fight best.

Before you put away your clothes for the summer inspect them carefully for concealed moth eggs, which can be destroyed by a thorough beating of your clothes.

Heat, likewise, will do the work. Hang your clothes out of doors in the hot sunshine for a day or two, if possible, before putting them away, or press them with a hot iron, or soak them in boiling water.

For safe storage, cedar chests and cedar lined closets are effective if they are kept shut tight. Open them only to put in and remove clothing.

Since moths detest light, a window in your clothes closet will do much to keep the insects from your things. Shake and brush the clothes at least twice a month.

If possible use air-tight containers, such as paper bags, sealed pasteboard boxes or paper wrapping for storage. Pack clothes with moth balls or flakes. Furs should be brushed, beaten and aired thoroughly every two or three weeks during the summer.

When your clothes become old give them away. Every garment especially if made of wool, hung on a hook at the back of the closet, is a potential home for moths.

Finally, whenever you see little clothes moth millers flitting or crawling about, swat them.

BUILDING MATERIAL MADE OF STRAW.

A new fireproof building material called solomite, a recent French invention, is described in the May Popular Science Monthly. It is made of straw and is said to be cheap, light, durable and sound proof. The straw is pressed into large panels nine feet long by six feet wide and two inches thick, bound together lengthwise by wires six inches apart. The material has been found excellent for side walls, ceilings and partitions and makes a fine surface for plaster and stucco.

KIWANIS PLAN A MUSIC WEEK

United Effort To Bring Joy of Music Into Lives of All People.

NATIONAL EVENT.

Kiwanis Club, through the Programme Committee of which W. George Henderson is Chairman, has actively taken up the furthering of Canada's National Music Week, falling this year from May 2 to May 8. Martin Chenhall is the other member of the committee.

The co-operation of the ministers of most of the churches had been obtained today, and others are being interviewed. They will have special musical services on Sunday, May 2, and their addresses on that evening will stress the value of music in the life of today as a builder of character and as a strength to the ties of home life. The organists are also cooperating.

Kiwanis Club itself, which always leans toward musical programmes, will stress the value of music in a special manner at its weekly luncheon. The Committee suggests the arranging of recitals by music teachers during that week, and an effort on the part of every citizen to mark specially Canada's National Music Week.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves or Cutting.

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy and called his precription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent. and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside application. Get a package of HEM-ROID from McDermid & Jury to-day. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you.

OMEMEE PEOPLE WELCOME SPRING

Capture of First Muskrat is Taken as Sure Sign.

OMEMEE, April 22. — That spring is slowly and surely on the way is the opinion of village optimists for the first muskrats of the season to be captured by local trappers were proudly exhibited on Monday by Messrs. Faulkner and Thorne. In days gone by, the robin was hailed with delight as a sure emblem of spring, but this year the lowly muskrat is king of the season.

The school tennis court is a beehive of activity since Monday.

The first car to venture over the roads from Lindsay to Peterboro passed through the village on Saturday and since then several local cars have journeyed to the county town and while there are a few drifts that pleasure seekers would prefer not to tackle, the experienced motorist has had no difficulty and the distance was covered in twenty-five minutes.

Old Landmark Gone.

Another old landmark disappeared last week in the east end of the village when the log blacksmith shop, opposite Dr. Carmichael's fine new residence, was torn down by Mr. William Burgess, who, having purchased the property, is making preparation for the erection of an up-to-date residence.

A.Y.P.A. Social.

The A.Y.P.A. indulged in a social evening in the basement of Christ church, on Monday, April 19.

By way of opening, Miss Helen Mackey and Miss Marion Dickson delighted the gathering with a piano duet rendered in their usual excellent form. Some hearty community singing followed and then a contest in which the names of automobiles were hidden in sentences, was distributed and afforded much pleasure. Miss Lenore Jamieson and Mr. F. Brockley being the winners.

Refreshments were served by the social committee and were enjoyed by all. Games were indulged in and a musical evening spent.

The annual congregational meeting of the United church will be held on Wednesday evening, April 28th when reports will be heard from the different organization of the church, after which a social time will be spent.

They are long overdue at the Islands and searching warships have found no trace of their planes. It is feared the machine foundered at sea with the aviators.

SEMI-JUBILEE DRIVE STARTED AT ALL SAINTS'

Enthusiastic Committees Commence Work That Will Culminate on May 9 to 15.

DEBT NOW $15,800.

Twenty-fifth Anniversary of Founding of the Parish To Be Celebrated.

Marking its twenty-fifth anniversary, All Saints' Anglican Church has launched a campaign to wipe off the debt that has for years been holding back progress and to obtain enough money for much needed repairs and improvements.

The campaign has been enthusiastically taken up by a committee working with the Church Wardens, Charles Lacheur and T. Percy Hooper. The Chairmen of the Semi-Jubilee Forward Movement Committees are: R. J. Bolton, T. Pitchford and B. Ottewell. The whole congregation has been fired with enthusiasm, and success seems assured if the present forward spirit holds sway until the final drive in the week of May 9 to 16.

"More interest in the church; less interest on the mortgage," is the motto of the movement.

In a preliminary notice sent out by the committees it is pointed out that the mortgage on church property is now $15,800, and on this the annual interest is $1,106—more than a quarter of the amount subscribed through the church envelopes. Two special offerings have had to be taken up every year to pay the interest.

Once for All.

The church authorities have decided that one drive should lift the heavy burden once for all. Money is being wasted in paying heavy interest year after year. The parish is rapidly growing, with increasing duties and calls upon the church. The Ladies' Guild is the only organization that has seriously attempted the reduction of the debt.

Now the entire church membership, and members of other churches who are interested in the welfare of All Saints', are being asked to assist in the Semi-Jubilee Forward Movement to clear away a staggering debt and bring All Saints' to the position where it can effectively and easily accomplish the great work it has in the south end of the city.

LONDON, April 22. — (Canadian Press.)—A conference of coal owners and the miners' executive, called this morning to find a basis for settlement of the dispute over wages, ended in deadlock.

The government coal subsidy, which has made possible the maintenance of the present scale of wages, will end within nine days. Failure of to-day's meeting indicates that outside influences must be brought to bear to find a way out of the difficulty.

PETERBORO' PASTOR DELIVERS ADDRESS

Rev. M. C. Mackinnon is the Speaker at Lindsay Presbyterial.

LINDSAY, April 22.—Rev. M. C. Mackinnon of Knox Church, Peterborough, delivered an inspirational missionary address in connection with the inaugural service at the first annual meeting of Lindsay Presbyterial of the W. M. S. held here yesterday.

The reverend gentleman said it had been his privilege to attend several inaugural services and conventions, but this one gave him a fresh thrill and inspiration. As they gathered on this memorable occasion it should be good for them to look ver the problems which face the United Church of Canada. The missionary work is changing. The modern conception of missions is that our aim should be to evangelize every part of the world. The social, economic and industrial activities of men and women must be taken into account.

With all the changes of the past century, it is an unquestioned fact that the Church has made splendid progress. This has been more noticeable in the last twenty-five years. The number of missionaries from our continent in the past twenty-five years has been multiplied by four approximately. We hear criticism of the Church, but even in the homeland things are going ahead. Church membership has increased five times as fast as the increase in population. The missionary enterprise has some encouraging features. In India missionary conditions have improved. We are now able to accommodate all the children in foreign lands who are anxious to receive a Christian education.

The world to-day is a shrinking one, due to improved communication facilities. In the last few years scientific achievements have brought us to rub shoulders with those in far countries. We can no longer ignore anyone living in the world. Every man, woman or child must receive consideration. We have a challenge to-day which our fathers had not. To-day English-speaking people have control over more land than long ago, yet Anglo Saxons are greatly in the minority. The people in the Far East are being roused. The problem is: "Have the races of different color live peacefully with each other?" John R. Mott said his greatest concern was with this relationship than anything else. This race antipathy is very acute. The whites have a "yellow peril," and the Orientals have a "white peril." We cannot escape the conviction that there is a new difficulty.

There is not a home in the Lindsay Presbytery, said Mr. Mackinnon, which is not vitally concerned with the missionary problem. If a great war comes in the next fifty years, it is bound to affect every home in Ontario. What is the solution? The land must be saved by the churches of the land. They alone can do it.

Fear is not the motive of the missionary enterprise of the church, said Mr. Mackinnon. Why are we gathered here to-day? Is it because of love and loyalty to Jesus? We must demonstrate our loyalty by helping those who need our assistance.

Wheat Takes Drop To-day Lack Of Buying Support

CHICAGO, April 22.—(Canadian Press.)— Speculative selling on a large scale together with a notable lack of support from the buyers led to a sharp early setback in wheat values to-day.

Houses in north-west connections that late yesterday were aggressive buyers turned to the selling side today. Opening prices, unchanged to 1 cent lower, May (new) $1.65 1-2 to $1.66 and July 1.45 1-2 to 1.45 3-4, were followed by a pronounced drop all around, May falling to 1.64 1-4 and July to 1.42 3-4.

Corn and oats responded to wheat weakness. After opening 1-4 off to 1-8 up, July 78 3-8 to 78 1-2, the corn market underwent a decline all around, to well below yesterday's finish.

Oats started unchanged to 1-4 lower, July 43 1-8 to 43 1-4. Later all months showed a loss.

Provisions were firmer, influenced by an upturn in the hog market.

Canada Bread firmed ¼ at 6⅞, International Nickel ½ at 35 1-4 and Kelvinator one at 16 1-2. Nipissing Mines eased 15c at 5.35; but Noranda strengthened 2 at 15.80.

REJECT BETTING BILL.

Vote Was 126 To 94 in the British House.

LONDON, April 22 (Canadian Press).—The House of Commons last night rejected the bill intended to legalize betting and license bookmakers, 126 to 94. The rejection of the bill was moved by Edwin Scrymgour, prohibition member for Dundee.

The question of legalizing betting and putting a tax on it has been under consideration for a long time and recently it was reported that Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, casting around for some new sources of revenue to aid the budget, had lighted upon betting as the most fruitful possibility for a new tax.

The church people have been strongly opposed to such a measure, as well as several members of the Cabinet, some of whom Mr. Churchill was said to have won to his side.

YOUTHFUL SCIENTIST REVEALS ANT MEANS OF COMMUNICATION

Method of Crossing Feelers and Using Touches Tell of Food

GIVE VARIED ALARMS

Finder Ant Does Not Tell Place or Variety of Discovery.

Berlin

In a modern villa on the banks of the green Isar, near Munich, lives a young scientist who has devoted several of his thirty years to the study of ants and intends to devote to the same pursuit all the remaining years that may be vouchsafed him. He is Dr. Hermann Eidmann. In his latest experiments he has investigated the means of communication employed by ants—their so-called "speech.

"We know, says Dr. Eidmann, "that the social and community life of insects, especially of the ant, offers us likenesses to our own special institutions such as we find nowhere else. It is the social life of the insects that has augmented and intensified their instincts to a most remarkable degree. The size and extent of the ant 'state and the frequently huge numbers of its inhabitants have made it a potent factor in nature and brought about all kinds of interesting relationships.

"Food and shelter are, of course, the dominant urges in forming these relationships, which are sometimes one-sided, sometimes mutual. There are, for example, the relationships between ants and plants, as these manifest themselves in the garnering of grains, in the cultivation of fungi, in the utilization of hollow spaces in the ligneous vegetables as dwellings.

"Then there are the relationships that ants entertain with non-social insects—their cultivation of the tree-lice or aphides as cows, their feeding of other kept insects, their community life with favorite parasites or with the myrmicophila, their relationships with other social insects, such as other tribes of ants, their keeping of slaves and social hangers-on, their composite and mixed colonies, their conduct of wars, and much more.

Ant Psychology.

"The ant, I am sure, will help us to solve many a biological riddle, many a psychological puzzle. I feel that we shall somehow get nearer to the great mystery of life, in all its vastness and grandeur, the closer we get to the secrets of these tiny and industrious little fellow-citizens of earth. The first step is to understand them and the means by which they understand one another.

Dr. Eidmann, who is in close touch with such famous ant experts as Forel, Father Wassmann and Dr. William Morton Wheeler, has made many new observations in the field of ant psychology. He believes that some day in the development of the ant there may be traced the development of mankind. We find such types as Stone Age hunter and farmer ants. There are also brewer ants that deliberately collect grain and let it lie in the sun so that the starch may turn to sugar—as man makes malt—and then store it for the Winter. Some ants even cultivate a certain insect which feeds off their eggs and in return offers them a kind of intoxicating beverage in the shape of a gland excretion—a highly immoral and even suicidal compromise, it would seem. There are exotic, extra-European ants that weave silk.

Ants, according to Dr. Eidmann, are far more "advanced' than bees. For example, unlike the bee-queens, several ant-queens will live amicably together and even feed one another. He studies the ants in their nests in the open and in small artificial nests that he has constructed for them in his home. These nests are of the horizontal as well as the vertical type, the former resembling the ground plan of a simple house arrangement of several communicating chambers, the latter a longitudinal section through several stories, with inclined connecting passages.

Artificial Nests.

The nests are constructed of plaster of Paris, which is kept moist by means of a small water reservoir, and is equipped with suitable glass walls, with a cloth cover or wooden slides to darken the interior—for there is nothing ants detest more than dryness and light. The nests are also provided with little glass receptacles attached to a tube—and in these receptacles the food, usually honey or sugar, with occasional dead insects or bits of chopped meat, is placed.

Ants accustom themselves admirably to these artificial laboratory nests and show great powers of adaptation. The sectional plaster nests, from five to eight inches high, may be placed in front of a horizontal binocular magnifying glass, and the habits, traits and movements of the ants studied with great accuracy and at leisure. The horizontal nest is better adapted for the observation of larger colonies in which a certain approximation to natural conditions is desirable.

In such a plaster house the ants, removed from their natural nests in the tunneled earth or in hollow trees and stumps, may be said to resemble prehistoric cave-dwellers suddenly transported to a medieval castle. Yet instantly the age-old habits and observances of the tribe triumph. Certain chambers are utilized as living rooms, others for the storage of eggs, still others for the accumulation of refuse and for a cemetery, with a guard over the buried dead.

Eidmann s studies of his ant-queens are based on daily, often hourly observations, made and duly recorded, as the big mother ants sit in their dark little plaster cells, looking after their brood. The queen, as is well known, goes a whole year without food, while raising the brood. After the nuptial flight which precedes fertilization, she drops to earth, discards her temporary wings and burrows into the earth. Dr. Eidmann has a set of drawings and diagrams, still unpublished, showing the queen when first caught, the manner in which she seals herself up in her cell, the first egg, the gradual accumulation, until there are fourteen eggs, never more nor less, the slow development during the Winter, then suddenly, when Spring comes, the rapid growth of three particular eggs, which become larger than all the others.

He is of the opinion, though it must still be confirmed by further observation, that the queen deliberately forces these three eggs on with extra food, all drawn from the juices of her body, so that these first workers shall be sturdy and fit when they are ready to emerge and begin feeding her. As soon as the first worker has left his shell she opens the door she has blocked, and soon the three firstlings start fetching her food and helping with the other eggs—strange adult efficiency at birth.

When Dr. Eidmann removes the wooden slides covering the glass walls of his artificial nests, his ants show signs of disturbance and resentment at the sudden intrusion of daylight, and stand with porrected antennae and open jaws. But when he uncovers the nests by artificial light, even the strongest electric light, they remain perfectly unconcerned and apparently oblivious to the glare—another mystery that requires solution.

This expert has made a special study of the precise nature of the ant s means of communication. Few ants are capable of making even the feeblest sounds. Their means of "speaking' to one another is entirely by touch, a tactile language whose range is unknown to us, but which may be very extensive, based upon the racial instinct and experience and upon the great sensitiveness of their antennae. The most powerful incentive to communication among ants is naturally the imparting of information concerning food. It is upon this ruling passion that Dr. Eidmann bases his experiments.

Carrying the News of Food.

When he placed a bit of food in the vicinity of a nest, it would soon be found by some strolling ant. The ant would first feel the food all over with its antennae and then attempt to drag it away. If the prize was small enough it would carry it off alone to the nest, sometimes assisted by other ants on the way. No communication, no arousing of the community would then take place. If the piece was too large for such removal, the ant would leave it and scurry off to the nest. There in the darkness it would cross feelers with several other ants, running from one to the other and telling each of the find by means of various strokes and touches. It would then hurry back to the find, the others following it, usually keeping in direct to uch with one another in the manner of a chain-gang, and exactly imitating all the vertical and lateral movements of the leader ant in its progress. This leader ant was always distinguished by Dr. Eidmann by means of a small red or white dot on its back.

The alarm takes place always in a kind of vestibule of the ant house, and always in the upper stories, never in the deeper levels where the brooding queen mother lies in solemn and sacrificial seclusion. In this upper chamber, as in some guard house or police station, there are always a number of worker-ants assembled doing nothing, but ready to be mobilized at the first alarm. Sometimes, however, the finder ant is required to make at least five trips to headquarters before it has obtained sufficient reserves to move the fool.

Dr. Eidmann also tested the ant with a number of small pieces of food, each capable of being transported by one individual. In this case the ant summoned no additional forces, but carried off the entire lot, piece by piece, itself, making as many as twenty-five trips.

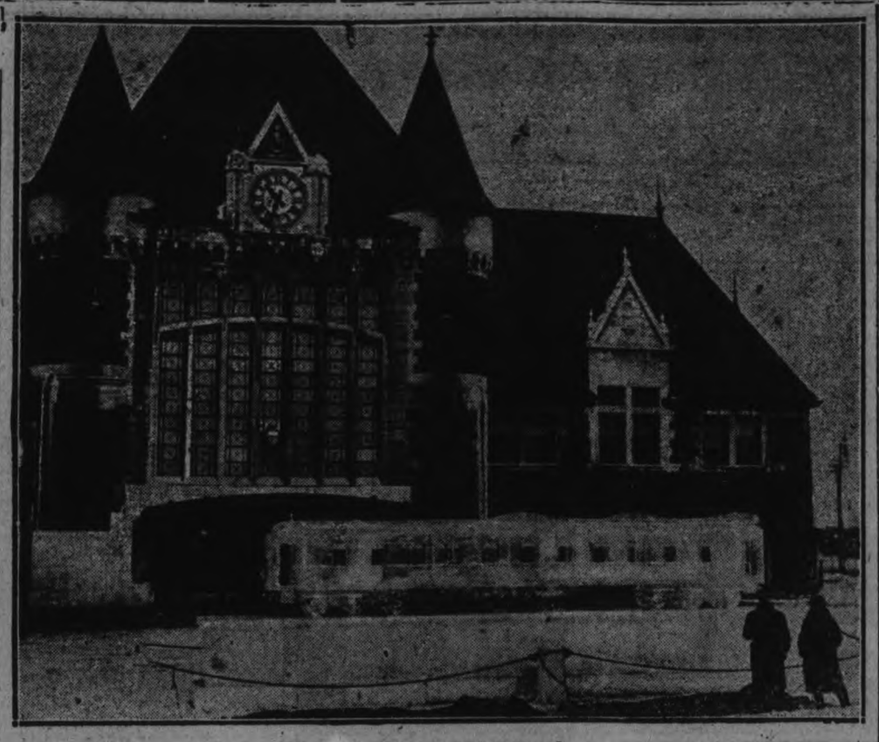
Tests for Ants' Memory.

The scientist tested the memory of the finder ant by shutting it up for several days in a small box midway between the nest and the "find. Upon being released, it at once made its way back to the find and resumed its transportation of the food morsels. Another experiment was directed toward discovering whether an ant engaged in carrying food would allow itself to be drawn away from its task by more tempting food, such as honey, a delicacy ants cherish above all others. The ant halted before the honey, gave it one or two licks (an ant requires half an hour to sate itself with honey), hesitated, then went straight forward and resumed its interrupted work of transporting the food—a possible proof that the communal instinct or sense of duty overweighs the factor of personal advantage.

An experiment made by placing honey in the path of an ant hurrying to the hill to give a food alarm resulted in the ant s refusing to consider the honey and in its continuing its march to the nest. The ants that answered the alarm halted at the honey, however, and began to lick it up, while the finder ant continued its solitary march toward the original food find. This may prove either that the finder ant is unable to communicate the exact nature of its discovery to its fellows, or that the clear impulse toward the salvaging operations is induced only after the others have got in direct touch with the find.

One experiment was made to see whether the finder ant had the faculty of merely informing the colony that it had found something—indicative communication—or was able to inform it of the nature and locality of the find—descriptive communication. As soon as the finder ant had disappeared into the nest, its trail from the find to the nest was obliterated with a broom, so as to prevent any possibility of the mobilized ants following it as a dog follows a spoor. As soon as the finder ant (properly marked) emerged from the nest, it was seized and removed by Dr. Eidmann. Thereupon the other ants wandered helplessly about and were unable to find the food.

This test did not absolutely prove that the ant has no powers of descriptive communication, for how was it to know beforehand that it was to be captured on emerging from the nest?



Fine Ice Statuary at Quebec

Not the least of the many attractions that drew flocks of visitors to Quebec City for the Frontenac Winter Sports Season just terminated, were the many fine examples of statues cut in ice that stood in front of stores, railway stations and prominent buildings all over the Ancient Capital. Of these one that drew a majority of eyes was the representation of a Canadian Pacific railway coach that stood outside the Palace Station. This might almost have been an actual coach on which streams of water had been poured and then allowed to freeze, so close was the resemblance and so exact the copy. This piece of art work in ice stood opposite the station for close on two months and so uniform was the weather during that time that very little noticeable change was effected in the statues at the close of the season at the beginning of March. Other statues were of polar bears, beavers, snow-shoers and mother with child, all of which were life-like and evoked much admiration from the thousands of people who saw them.

FRESH RHUBARB RECIPES.

Drawing the acid from the rhubarb by scalding makes it very much more palatable. Cut off the leaves, wash, peel with a stainless steel knife, cut in pieces and plunge into boiling water. Let stand ten minutes, drain, and it is ready to use in any way wished.

Rhubarb is one of the finest of Spring tonics, and should be served at least once a day while it is in season. If the taste of the rhubarb itself is disliked, it may be combined with other fruits, such as strawberries, pineapple or even stewed with apples. A rhubarb and strawberry pie is one of the most delicious desserts that can be imagined, especially if made as a tart and served with slightly sweetened whipped cream.

Stewed rhubarb may also be served for breakfast with cereals instead of cream, especialy for children, who will eat the rhubarb this way where they will sometimes turn their little noses up when it is served alone.

Rhubarb Shortcake.

Prepare and stew the rhubarb as already directed. Make a shortcake of biscuit dough. When baked, split, butter generously and lay up with the rhubarb in the same way as fresh fruit. Serve whipped cream with the shortcake. A little maple syrup added to the rhubarb while it stews improves its flavor for this use. The strained fruit syrup may be used for sauce if liked.

Rhubarb Jam.

Prepare the rhubarb the same as for stewing, only, instead of the water, add the juice of six oranges to three pints of the prepared rhubarb, double the amount of sugar, making two heaping cupfuls. Cook down until the right consistency. Try on a cold plate. If inclined to jell, it is done.

Frozen Rhubarb.

Prepare the same as for sauce, adding double the amount of sugar. When cooked and cold, freeze. Serve with ice-cream, or in sherbet glasses, with whipped cream on top.

Modern Rhubarb Pie.

Prepare rhubarb enough to fill the pie plate to be used heaping full. Line the pie plate with short pie crust When the rhubarb has been scalded and drained fill the crust with it and add a heaping cupful of sugar. Dissolve a tablespoonful of cornstarch in a quarter cupful of water and sprinkle it over the fruit. Put on the top crust with vents in the center and finish the edge with the floured tines of a fork. Place a small paper cornucopia made of writing paper in one of the vents to keep the juice from running out by carrying off the steam. Bake as usual. Frequently, the pie is made with the top crust latticed.

Canned Rhubarb.

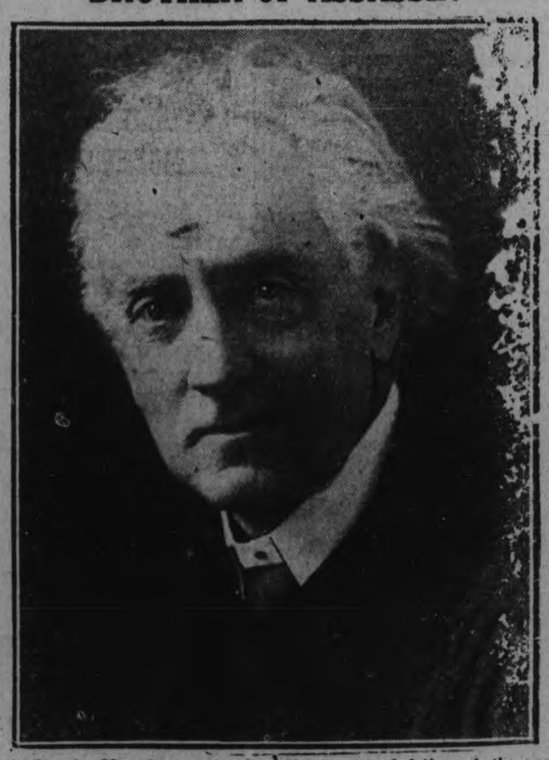
Wash, trim and cut in short lengths the rhubarb that is to be canned. Fill sterilized jars full, then set them under the cold water faucet and fill with water until all bubbles are gone, then put on rubbers, fit covers and seal the covers on in the usual way. Wipe, label and store in a cool, dry place. When it comes time to open the jars, drain, scald as directed, and the rhubarb will be ready to use just as when it is fresh.

LESS COKE PRODUCED.

Decrease 8 Per Cent. During February.

OTTAWA, April 22 (Canadian Press).—Production of by-product and gas-house coke in Canada during March amounted to 152,480 tons, a decrease of 8 per cent. from the total for February, but an increase of 13,697 tons or 10 per cent. over the output in March of last year. Coke plants in Ontario produced only 75,730 tons, as compared with 89,520 tons in February; Eastern Canada plants yielded 53,386 tons, as against 54,749 tons in the previous month, and the output from Western ovens was a little higher at 23,364 tons.

BROTHER OF ASSASSIN



As Premier Mussolini was leaving the College of International Surgery in the Palace di Capitole, to enter his automobile, amid the cheering throngs, in Rome, Italy, a woman stepped forward and fired a shot from a revolver at him. He retained his composure, as he was slightly wounded through the nose, and ordered the would-be assassin, the Honorable Violet Albina Gibson, a sister of Lord Ashbourne of England, to be put in jail without violence. This photo shows Lord Ashbourne of England, a brother of the woman assassin.

STRANGER THAN FICTION

BURIED IN THE RECORDS.

(By S. T. Williamson.)

Some of the world's greatest secrets are preserved in a coldly unromantic manner. Breathing the heavy air, second-hand from scores of lungs, that hands over swarming governmental offices throughout the world, weary clerks and pert typists shuffle official papers methodically, almost subconsciously. Over many of them sweep occasional waves of self-pity that they should be chained to such drudgery. Nothing ever happens in their lives, and in their free time, as an escape from the monotony of their occupation, they read shilling shockers and gaze at a flickering screen across which star-eyed leading ladies are pursued by swarthy villains until, at the last moment, they are rescued by heroes with Greek profiles who have foiled the nefarious plots of unfriendly nations.

And yet some of the very papers thus carelessly handled may have intimate connection with events more thrilling than those conjured up by romancers and Hollywood. A requisition form may provide stationery for the use of a foreign Minister about to draw up a secret agreement or a Locarno treaty. A telegram, one of thousands sent by an operator's nervous fingers, may read "Proceed at once in accordance with sealed orders B. 1," and be the cause of the mobilization of a fleet. A telephone call plugged in a certain hole on a switchboard may be the summons to a conference for the determination of a policy that may overthrow a Government.

All these could happen; but, of course, the chances are that the long, closely typed document is nothing more than a wordy, if peremptory, demand for the refund of an item charged for taxi fare when the minor official could have walked, or perhaps a lengthy opinion, with many endorsements appended, as to whether a Rear Admiral at a Pacific station outranks the Major General in command of troops. And yet the rarity of the thrilling exceptions makes them all the more romantic.

* * *

In the files of the British Foreign Office his real name is given. To those who shared the secret of his exploits he was known as "Reckless Red." Also officially noted is the fact that he was the son of an Irish father and of a Russian mother—which may explain the nickname. And somewhere the official pedigree mentions that his wife was Pepita Bobadilla, a talented actress and the widow of Haddon Chambers, the playwright.

Supplementing these are numerous dossiers, entered under his name, crammed with matter-of-fact reports of amazing adventures. For "Reckless Red" was a British intelligence officer (a euphemism in this case for spy) in Russia during the war. His intimate knowledge of the language of his mother made it possible for him to pose as a Russian and escape detection.

When the Bolsheviki overthrew Kerensky and a great nation's social and economic structure fell in ruins, "Reckless Red" reports informed his Government as to the new leaders. He became an active member of the Communist Party. Few comrades were more fanatical in their expressed beliefs than he was, and this zeal brought the reward of an office of some importance in the Moscow Government. Like the Czar's agents provocateurs in the old days of the nihilists, the Britisher knew from the inside many terrorist secrets—and some of them, in the form of official reports, may still be filed away somewhere in the dingy Foreign Office buildings that sprawl away from Downing Street's quaint row of brick official residences.

Not content with the ordinary risks of his dangerous employment, he delighted in a series of huge practical jokes on his Communist associates. One time Moscow was perplexed over reports that came from outlying provinces to the effect that Lenin had addressed pleasant gatherings there. Moscow was perplexed, not only because of the almost orthodox sentiments attributed to the Soviet leader, but also because of the fact that he had not left the Kremlin on the days people hundreds of miles away swore that he had been with them. The man who impersonated Lenin before gaping mujiks was "Reckless Red."

His most far-reaching exploit, however, occurred a little over a year ago. The Labor Party was in power in Britain, giving the country a mildly liberal Government. Except that more members than usual of the party in power wore caps and were careless with the eighth letter of the alphabet, there was little outward difference. But when prosecution was not pressed against a British Communist named Campbell, author of a manifesto calling upon the army and the navy to "turn their weapons upon their oppressors," the Labor Government fell and campaigning began for a new election.

While Great Britain from one end to the other was dizzy from electioneering handbills and transparencies and throat specialists were busy treating political orators' throats, a Tory newspaper printed a letter purporting to come from Zinovieff, head of the Third Communist International, urging British Communists to revolution and subversion of the army. A few hours later the British Foreign Office incorporated this letter in a stiff note of protest to the Soviet Government.

"A forgery," Moscow replied.

"A forgery," British Communists echoed.

"Genuine," maintained Conservative politicians and newspapers.

"An election trick," cried Premier Ramsay MacDonald. "Whether genuine or forgery, how did a Tory newspaper obtain a copy of a letter sent to the Foreign Office by a Government agent?"

When the shouting was over and the votes were counted, a Labor Government went out of office. Whether true or false, the Zinovieff letter turned the election.

Who brought it to England?

"Reckless Red," say those who should know.

If he did, he paid dearly for it, because the following obituary notice appeared recently in London newspapers:

"REILLY—On the 28th of September, killed near the village of Allekul, Russia, by S. R. U. troops, Captain Sidney George Reilly, M. C., beloved husband of Pepita Reilly."

The telephone company in Hongkong has recently issued a notice that China subscribers who flirt over the wires with telephone girls more than three times will have their numbers cut off.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

MILLER'S CANADIAN HERB JUICE May Now Be Obtained in Peterboro

The new product, MILLER'S CANADIAN HERB JUICE, although only on the market a few months, has created a decided sensation in every city in which it has been introduced Scores of sufferers who have secured prompt and permanent relief from stomach diseases, imperfect digestion, liver trouble, constipation and billiousness are voluntarily expressing their gratitude by giving statements for publication.

HERB JUICE is manufactured from a formula decided upon by prominent physicians after years of study and practice. HERB JUICE as the name implies, is prepared from herbs, roots and barks placed on earth for the healing of mankind. Indians lived to a ripe old age, kept healthy and enjoyed life due to the fact that they lived near nature and all of their medicines were prepared from herbs, roots and barks. Years of study and practice have demonstrated the fact that many of the diseases and sufferings of mankind are caused by an accumulation of poisonous waste in the body, due to stomach diseases, imperfect digestion, liver stomach trouble, constipation and many other troubles such as unsound sleep and bad blood. If the elimination organs are working properly the food is converted into rich blood, if not working properly the fermented mass generates poison that is absorbed into the blood. HERB JUICE, the new herbal remedy, acts on the organs of elimination not on the bowels alone. It gradually tones the stomach, liver and bowels and stimulates these organs to more vigorous activity in a mild, general, natural way without discomfort or distress and the only after effect is glorious relief and benefit.

SOCIETY

One of the most enjoyable small dances of the season was held last evening by the members, numbering about fifty, of the Peterboro Ski and Snowshoe Club, as a wind-up to their winter frolics. The dance was held in the old Westclox building on George Street, and took the form of a "Poverty" hop, all arrangements being carried out in a "poor" manner, from the invitations, written on wrapping-paper, to the fake supper of dry bread and water which preceded the real refreshments of the evening. The costumes were all old and "hard-looking," seven of the guests who attended in fussy attire being treated as "aristocrats," and jailed for a time, after which they were tried, compelled to doff some article that appeared especially rich-looking and have their faces blackened. Games and dancing were the order of the evening, and the social committee of the club is to be congratulated on the success of their venture. An elimination dance, after sorting out those who had more than a dollar in their pockets and had eaten more than two meals yesterday, ended with the announcement that those in charge were too poor to provide prizes for the final couples on the floor. Prizes for the best "hardluck" costumes were awarded to Miss Marjorie Lawrence, who received a bunch of very artificial flowers, and to Mr. Ed. Catton, who was awarded a pair of old boots. Excellent music was provided for dancing by Mr. Charles Sedgwick. Nobody at the Poverty Dance, as one guest remarked, had a "poor" time.

SECRETS OF CHARM

The arrival of warm weather makes all of us take stock of our clothes, and all the more discerning of us take stock of our good looks.

For spick and span new Spring clothes lose much of their freshness if they clothe someone who has a muddy complexion and dull hair. The wearer should really have clear, lovely and bright wideawake-looking hair which shows the abundant life that marks a good constitution to back it.

I mention the value of general good looks in connection with new clothes, because the season of the year which makes all our Winter clothes seem drab is the best season to take stock of our good looks.

You want to feel your loveliest and freshest to keep pace with the outdoors, and to do this you must consider every small beauty point.

So why not let this be a time to refresh your appearance as well as your clothes? If you are in doubt about how to proceed, let me suggest a few points which are not now, but which cannot be overstressed, because of their great importance.

First, there's the question of your complexion and hair. You must know that the real beauty principle underlying beauty of complexion and hair is health. I suggest that you drink water, lots of it, eight glasses a day. This is a wonderfully effective step toward an attractive, clear complexion, and a more lasting one than all the beauty creams in the world.

Then there's the matter of green vegetables. This is the season when such foods are beginning to be more plentiful and cheaper, therefore an excellent time to resolve to partake of your share of all the fresh green vegetables you can procure.

These two are the principal steps I suggest to make you healthier inside, and thus improve your outward appearance. Plenty of water, green vegetables and exercise will do wonders for you

Then there are ever so many small outward signs, and which of these you need to regard most you will have to decide for yourselves. I may suggest a new coiffure, immaculate fingernails, perfectly groomed shoes and stockings. All these points contribute their share toward loveliness.

Shirrings Give a Soft Answer to the Demand for Width

A FROCK that shirrs itself at shoulder and waistline can be made easily and inexpensively, for it requires no other trimming and is charming even in cotton voile. In Madonna blue, for example, or the new yellowish green that is just the color of willow buds in the early Spring, or in mimosa yellow, it is very like and quite as lovely as the frocks one finds at Liberty's in London or in the fascinating shops of the Rue Saint Honoré. Printed Georgette is charming in flower patterns or the new French designs of iridescent soap-bubbles in pink and blue.

The Examiner does not sell these patterns.

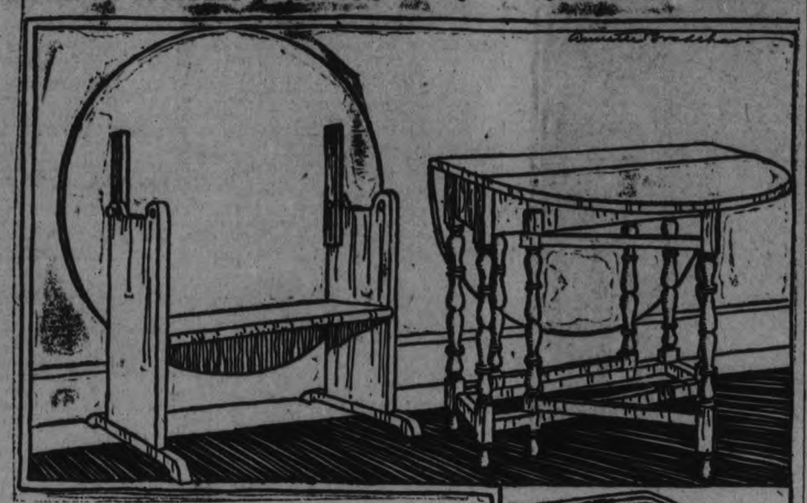
Convenient Tables -:- By Annette Bradshaw.



The Tip-Table on the Left Makes a Seat When Occasion Requires. The Gate-Leg Table is a Welcome Addition to Any Living Room.

In this day of smaller homes where space must be considered in all furnishing, the table is being given more attention than ever before.

At the left is a table handed down from the long-ago, when the idea of durability entered largely into everything. This is a combination settle and dining table. With a dextrous little twirl the seat of the mahogany bench becomes the top of the table. Then after the meal is served another skilfull whirl transforms it back into a settle. Placed in front of an open fire and heaped with downy cushions it becomes a center of attraction in the living room. This table should be made of solid wood—not veneer.

At the right is the familiar gate-leg table—a relic from the days of our grandmothers that has not been improved on for utility and beauty. On either side of the center leaf is another leaf that folds downward, when the artistic gate legs are folded under. With a runner and a book or magazine the table is then suitable for the small living room. During meal time the leaves are opened up and the table easily accomodates six people. Of course, there are various sizes of gate-leg tables and in the smaller sizes they fit into the surprisingly little corners or make a light rest at the side of a chair.

The nest of tables shown below is perhaps the most unique of them all. The apartment housewife who apparently has room at her table for two or three guests, at most, is in reality prepared to serve three times that many. This table comes in mahogany or carved oak. It may be adorned with lacquered scrolls or it may be left absolutely plain, according to the taste of the owner. The legs are especially graceful and artistic.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

TOOTH IS LONGER

Your child had tooth-ache one night and you were able to relieve his suffering by applications of oil of cloves to the cavity; and when the pain had subsided, you congratulated yourself that the trouble was ended.

But in the morning he awoke to find that the tooth was sore to bite upon, and longer than the others, so he said.

Now, he was right: for in a sense the tooth was longer than its fellows. Just what happened?

Each tooth is suspended in a soft tissue sac which acts as a cushion between the tooth and its bony socket, breaking the jar when the tooth is in use.

And the inflammation which caused the tooth to ache, has spread from the pulp to this sac (or pericementum) which is richly supplied with blood vessels: thus, with the accompanying rush of blood, the sac has become swollen and so thickened.

Actually then, it does lift the tooth in the socket a trifle, permitting it to hit the opposing teeth before the others come together.

Now, of course, this needs attention, not only because of the dangerous sequelae from the inflamed condition if allowed to progress further, but also for the reason that Sonny will do all his chewing on the 'well side,' in his endeavour to avoid using the sore tooth.

This, continued long enough, will form a habit making for a one-sided muscle development and leaving the teeth on the 'sick side,' because of this disuse, more prone to decay.

Further, should one or more of these deciduous teeth be allowed to remain in such condition as to cause pain when used, the food will naturally be bolted and a harmful habit formed which it may be difficult to correct later.

The Woman's Day

Written by a Woman for Women.

Touching brightly on woman's every major interest in life from books and babies to politics and psycho analysis.

(By Allene Sumner)

My Say-So!

I found this in a book—not such an old book, either, called "Talks to Business Girls."

"In receiving a woman caller a man in his office should always rise. He should not weat a hat nor have his coat off. He should offer her a chair and remain standing until she is seated. Then rise and open the door for her when she leaves."

And if more women who have nothing to do but write books upon subjects of which they know noothing would learn the golden beauty of silence, those who must be business women to earn their livings would be far better off!

* * *

When you were a little kid and read the pink and yellow fairy tale books, what fun you thought it would be to be a prince or princess and suck lollypops all day long when you weren't eating chocolate cake! It seems, however, that among other woes of a prince is the woe of diet. Eddie Windsor, Prince of Wales, fearful that his torso may grow to resemble that of his late grandfather, King Edward, pleads for lighter luncheons and banquets, with dancing after each course.

Gossip"

"Before I knew how cruel
Just common talk can be,
I thought that words were singing things
With colors like the sea.
But since I've felt their caustic lash,
And know how they can sting,
I hold my breath when words go by
For fear they will not sing."
—Lexie Dean Robertson.

Your Child

"My neighbor called yesterday with the worst-mannered child I have ever seen," Mrs. B. writes me. "Although my little girl is only two, I decided it was none too early to begin. Can you recommend a good book on child manner teaching?" Ask your librarian for "Everyday Manners for American Boys and Girls," also Hall's "Manners for Boys and Girls."

The Book

It is not lover-and-lover problem that battles its way through the pages of the new books, so much as parent-and-child problem. Elsie Singmaster gives us another of her delightful rural Pennsylvania stories with "Keller's Anna Ruth." Anna Ruth's father nipped her love affair in the bud so that he could continue to make money from her services. When he dies Anna Ruth is too old, too set, for future joy.

The Club

"We wish to plan next year's program at our last meeting this year," writes "Program Chairman." "We want two or three poetry evenings. There is no library in our town. Can you suggest a handful of books to order from our traveling library?" You might have one evening on "American Women Poets." For this, get Willa Cather's "April Twilight": Millay's "Few Figs From Thistles": Conkling's "Shoes of the Wind": Austin's "The American Rhythm": Two or three poetry anthologies will suggest several ways of grouping the contents. Get Braithwaite's "Anthology of Magazine Verse": Farrar's "Bookman Anthology of Verse."

ENSEMBLES SUITED FOR STREET OR TRAVELING.

BY HENRI BENDEL
Noted Fashion Designer.

(Written for NEA Service)

NEW YORK, April 22.—Costumes "pour le sport" are given much more attention by Parisiennes than ever before.

Couturiers who used to concern themselves only with formal clothes and impressive looking creations, now exercise their originality creating the most fascinating and intrikuingly outfits for country and informal wear.

The Frenchwoman gets into her sports clothes what she puts into all of her gowns—a certain delightful intimacy and effect of ease. They have chic as well as comfort, and may be worn on the street in the city, or for traveling quite as appropriately as on the golf course or at the country club.

Plaid Skirt Good.

In common with all other smart costuming, the end and aim of their life is a good line. I am showing you some today which I consider absolutely smart.

For a change, I like that combination of plain coat and plaid skirt in shades of brown and tan. The skirt is knife-pleated in front and the jacket is of French flannel bound with silk braid. A bloused effect in the back is another smart touch for which you must take my word.

With this I consider the brown crepe de chine blouse with the feminine little tie and the French felt hat with the rolled brim absolutely correct and in keeping with the sport idea.

Quite a novel idea, I think, in sports attire is the model which seems to owe a debt of gratitude to both the Eton jacket and the bolero.

It contradicts, quite charmingly, the general belief in regard to the hip length jacket for sport, and wins its contention beyond the question of a doubt.

Brown is Popular.

The material here is tan with darker threads making an overcheck. The coat ties, rather than buttons, and flaunts a sash directly in the front, as if that were quite the customary thing to do.

The blouse is in tan Jersey, very soft and pliable, and in the same tone as the suit.

The low waistline is very attractive, I think, but I feel I should warn the heavy figure against it. A slender waist as well as a narrow hipline are necessary to the success of this particular model.

I find brown and combinations of brown and tan quite the most desired colors this season in sport clothes. The footwear of this season is admirably adapted to the mode, and the brown and tan sport shoes that are now being shown have never been excelled for smartness.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

THE SPRING BRIDE.

(Written for the United Press by Hedda Hoyt.)

NEW YORK, April 21 (United Press).—While prospective grooms are looking over the railroad time-tables, their intended brides are picking out their trains. The train of the wedding gown has been sort of side-tracked of late. It may start anywhere and end anywhere, despite the fact that tradition has urged them to start at the shoulders and end on the floor.

Some of the modern girls choose trains that start straight from the hip, falling below the hem and training on the floor. Others choose those side-panel trains that start at one shoulder only and fall in sweeping train effect. Still others combine both of the above fashions, using the double train or the train with a cabosse attachment as where one train starts from one shoulder and the other starts at the opposite hip.
